COLE'S OSSIDINE.

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.
Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

Price $3.00 per Large Bottle,

Owner of Eole, St Saviour, Eolist, etc, says; I have long used it in my stables, and find it to be all that is claimed for it in removing callous and unnatural bony growths, without leaving the slightest blemish. From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,

FRIDAY.

Judges for the day, Messrs. La Rue, Crane and Meeham. There was an immense crowd in attendance upon the fourth day, but the races were not up to the average of the week, because there were no contests. It all went one way, the favorites taking everything, and taking it easily.

Running—Three-quarters of a mile and repeat.

The first event was a ¾ and repeat in which Bruce Cockrill's b m Daisy D, a, Wheatley—Black Maria, ridden by Taylor, at 125 pounds and G. Pacheco's b m Julia P, a, Wheatley—Mercedes, ridden by Kenealley at 116. It was a "cinch" for Daisy. In both heats she had the lead from start to finish and won with the utmost ease. Time, 1:20 and 1:22½. Daisy sold in a few pools at $25 to $5.

SUMMARY.

Trotting, District Three-Year-Olds.

The district three-year-old trot had but two starters, Fred Loeber's c m Directa and Tom Smith's b c Geo. Washington. The trotting men saw a winner in George Washington and backed him in the auctions at $25 to $18

First Heat. The word found them going unsteadily, and when they swung into the turn Washington lost his feet, and while he was getting down the filly went away and took a long lead. Down the backstretch and into the lower turn she had it all her own way, but when they got well into the turn Washington slowly crowded up. The straight found her three lengths in the lead, but coming home he outspeeded the filly and took the heat, forcing her off her feet when they were head and head and almost at the wire. Many thought it a dead heat. Time, 2:30¼.

Second Heat. Pools sold, Washington $25, Directa $18. Washington had the best of the go and went off steadily, taking a good lead on the turn. He held it down the backstretch and around the lower turn. When they came into the straight Washington was on his toes, while the filly, going smoothly, was gaining upon him. It was a race home, Directa closing the gap at every stride. She made a spurt just past the drawgate, and with a rush snatched it the heat, as Washington almost had it now. Time, 2:31¼.

Third Heat. Pools sold, Washington $25, Directa $10. Directa went off in the lead and held it nicely to the lower turn, but as she swung into the circle and had the heat half won her overcheck broke, and the accident caused her to make a tangled break. Washington went by her and she was no more in it, the horse coming home and finishing first by ten lengths in 2:34.

Fourth Heat—Directa had done her work, and the result was known before they got the word. The filly went off first around the turn at a slow pace, Smith laying Washington back. He allowed the filly the lead until the homestretch was reached; then he gave Washington his head and passed to the lead an easy winner in 2:34. The horse was fit for a race and could have gone a mile away down in the twenties.

Trotting; District Four-year-olds.

The next event had in it A. A. Guerne's b s Alfred, G. A. J. Zane's gr m Clara Z and A. McFadyen's b s Redwood, and Alfred G. won it in straight heats. It was no race as in point of speed; Alfred G. far outclassed the other two.

First Heat—Pools: Alfred G $50, field $20. Alfred and Clara trotted together at an easy pace all the way from the start to the middle of the homestretch, Redwood making a bad break on the upper turn and dropping out of the heat. At the proper time Alfred drew away from his companion and took the heat by a head well in hand in 2:36½.

Second Heat—Clara again plays second fiddle to Alfred G, and hung on a length behind him to the half, where she broke; then Redwood passed into her place and took a position at the leader's wheel, maintaining it down the homestretch and bidding for the heat, but losing it by half a length. Clara Z. finished a poor third. Time, 2:30¼.

Third Heat—Alfred G. went off in the lead, Redwood second and Clara Z. third. The positions were never altered. Alfred G. did the fastest work of the race, finishing at a fast pace in 2:27½.

Pacing, Gold Leaf—Adonis.

The Gold Leaf—Adonis affair, about which so much was said before the event, could hardly in justice be called a race. As everybody knows the horse has not been right for months past, and had no preparation for a bruising race, and a speed contest could hardly be looked for. The filly was on the contrary on edge, and she could have paced anywhere near her Napa record without trouble. What few pools were sold went at the rate of five to one on Gold Leaf. She took the race in straight heats.

In the first heat the two went like a team to the lower turn. Then Gold Leaf slowly opened a gap until a length of daylight shone behind her. When she headed for home on the straight, McDowell gave her a little more rein and she opened a wide gap and then jogged under the wire in 2:18½. The first half of the second heat was in 1:11, then the filly got down to her work, straightened herself out and came home at a sharp clip, doing the last half in 1:05, the mile in 2:16. In the third heat Andy sent her away around the turn with a spurt, but when he got her on the backstretch, he took her back a little and allows her to make the half in 1:07½. From there home she did not increase the speed, and the mile was put down in 2:16¾. It was simply a jog for her.

L. J. Rose's yearling filly by Alcazar out of Sallie Durbrow was driven by Walter Maben to beat 2:40. She trotted the first three-quarters in 0:39½, 1:19½ and 1:57. On the homestretch she tired, and the runner coming up close forced her to a break near the wire and she galloped under, finishing in 2:36. The break lost her a full second.

SATURDAY.

Judges, Messrs. LaRue, Crave and Knowles. The closing day of the fair was on a par with Thursday and Friday so far as attendance went, and some good speed contests were given, the most interesting thing being the 2:30 class trot, in which Gifford's c h Atto Rex, Ayre's br h Balkan, Palo Alto's b g Express, Salisbury's b m Margaret S., and D. J. Murphy's blk h Soudan came to the score. Atto Rex's previous performances entitled him to the favorite's place, and before the first heat pools sold Atto Rex $25, Margaret S $9, Express $8, field $7.

First Heat.—When the word came after several scores, Margaret S. went off in the lead, trotted fast around the turn, and opened a gap which the others did not close. On the backstretch Atto Rex was in second place with Soudan third, but on the stretch Donothan sent Soudan along and took the place from Atto Rex, fishing second, Balkan fourth and Express fifth. Time 2:24¾. The judges called Atto Rex's driver, George Bayless, upto the stand and warned him that there must be no more laying of heats, that he must drive to win every time. After that the time of the heats was better.

Second Heat.—Pools sold, Atto Rex $100, Margaret S. $15, field $15. Margaret S. again took the lead, but she could hold it no further than the quarter, where Soudan and Express both passed her, followed by the favorite. These three went together down the backstretch, and at the half were head and head. On the lower turn Atto Rex opened a gap, Express stayed in second place and Soundan third. Coming up the straight to the wire Express was half a length behind, but trotting smoothly at the drawgate Atto Rex tired and went off his feet, and Express went under the wire winner by three lengths, Soudan third, Margaret S. fourth and Balkan fifth. Time 2:21.

Third Heat—Atto Rex sold for $25, Express $12, and the field $3. Atto Rex took the lead from the start, and going around the turn the order was Rex, Margaret S. and Express. On the backstretch Atto Rex lead by half a length, Margaret S. and Express wheel to wheel. Going into the lower turn Express passed Margaret S. and was making a strong bid for the lead when he broke and dropped out of the heat. Atto Rex had things his own way from there home, and finished in a jog in 2:21¾, Mrgaret S. second, Soudan third, Express fourth and Balkan fifth.

Fourth Heat.—Pools sold Atto Rex $25, field $5. The favorite went away in the lead but broke on the turn, and Margaret S took first place with Express on her wheel, and Soudan in third place. In these positions they went down the backstretch. On the lower turn, Express passed Margaret S and lead her to the head of the straight, but he broke there, and Margaret got to his wheel. Again he drew away from her, and coming steadily took the heat, Margaret S second, Atto Rex third, Soudan fourth, and Balkan fifth. Time 2:23¾.

Fifth Heat.—Pools, Atto Rex $30, field $15. Express went first around the turn, with the favorite in second place, Margaret S third, and Soudan fourth. The positions remained the same until they came to the head of the straight. There Express lost his feet, and Atto Rex took the lead from him and won the heat, Soudan finishing third, and Margaret S fourth. Time 2:22½.

Sixth Heat—There were no pools sold. Atto Rex took the lead in the turn close by, followed by Margaret S and Express. On the backstretch and lower turn he increased his lead. Express was done for already, and Atto Rex came on home and won the heat and race as he pleased, Margaret S second, Express third. Time, 2:25½.

The above event followed. H. W. Crabb's b m Flora B, A. T. Hatch's b s Guide, R. S. Brown's b m Mattie P. and T. Whitton's b g Lookout were the starters.

First Heat—Pools sold: Lookout, $40, Guide $10, Field $10. At the word Flora B went to the fore, Guide in second place and Lookout third. The three were bunched on the backstretch, and at the half Flora B and Lookout were on even terms, Guide off his feet two lengths behind. The two leaders trotted together half way down the straight; there Lookout lost his feet and Flora B went on, Guide passing to second place and finishing there, Lookout third and Mattie P distanced. Time, 2:27.

Second Heat—Lookout and Flora B. went around the turn together, Guide following. At the quarter Lookout broke, and both passed him, but when he got down again he trotted fast, and going into the turn, he was on even terms with Flora. He drew away around the turn, and on the homestretch had a good lead, which he held to the finish. Guide finished in second place, but was set back for running on the stretch, and second place was given to Flora B. Time, 2:27½.

Third Heat—Lookout was the only thing in it. He was to the fore when the word came, and was never headed, finishing first by three lengths in a jog, Guide second and Flora B. third. Time, 2:31½.

Fourth Heat—The fourth was simply a repetition of the third. Lookout lead the entire distance, finishing as he pleased in 2:33, Guide second and Flora B. third. Time, 2:33.

Dawn—Lillie Stanley.

The Dawn-Lillie Stanley match excited little interest among the betting men, as it was generally known that Stanley was in simply to act as a teaser for Dawn, who was to go for a record. Time was the only difference in the three heats, Dawn taking them all and leading in all from start to finish. The first heat saw Dawn going like the wind a long way in front. He tried his speed to the straight, but tired a little at the finish, doing the mile in 2:18¾, lowering his record three-fourths of a second. He went easy in the second mile, doing it in 2:20, and in the third Shaner again sent him along at a good rate, landing him under the wire in 2:19½. It was a very creditable performance for the horse, and the Petaluma people loudly applauded him at the end of each mile.

CHICO.

FRIDAY.

The attendance, which had been steadily increasing, was at its highest pitch on Friday. There were two trotting races on the programme, the 2:40 class and the 2:27 class; the former was won in straight heats by Fedora. The feature of the day, however, was the brilliant race trotted by Mr. Cropsey's Eva W., who took the first two heats in 2:28 and 2:26½, was only two lengths behind in 2:24, beaten a short head in 2:27, and took the fifth heat handily in 2:28. She is by Nutwood, dam Alice R. by Naubuc, grandam by Gen. M. Patchen, Jr. Her nice, easy style of going, combined with sheer gameness, alone enabled her to beat her opponent, who was a trifle faster than her for a brush. When she took the final heat she and her driver were greeted with vociferous cheers, and several offers were made to purchase the mare, but Mr Cropsey will probably give her a better record before the season is out, and unless tempted by a big offer, will breed her next spring. The day's racing wound up with an amusing mule race to sulky, the best heat being made in 3:50.

2:40 Class—Trotting.

First Heat—Auction pools: Fedora $20, Belle A. $8, Field $5. Belle A. was trotting fast when the word was given, and drew away, leading Rose a length round the turn, with Almont three lengths back and four in front of Fedora. Rose broke shortly after passing the quarter, and Fedora closed up on Belle, being only two lengths behind on the upper turn, and trotting steadily, caught her half way down the stretch, and after a game struggle, beat her out a length, the other pair just saving their distance. Time, 2:30½.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Fedora $20, Belle $6, Field $3. They were started on pretty even terms. Belle A. and Fedora collided before the turn, the latter dropping back. Belle broke on the turn, and Rosa led her five lengths at the quarter, Almont four lengths behind, third, and Fedora three in the rear. Fedora passed Almont, and, trotting fast, both mares drew up to Rosa, being a length behind on the upper turn, and passing her, were level a length in front of Rosa at the head of the stretch.

After a hard race down the straight both left their feet before the wire, Fedora being a head in front, Rosa M. a bad third and Almont distanced. Belle A. was set back third for foul driving on first turn. Time, 2:32½.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Fedora $20, Field $6. They were soon sent away, Fedora cutting out the pace was two lengths in front of Belle all the way round to the upper turn. There she broke badly and never catching again finished last, Fedora winning in a jog by six lengths from Rose M. Time, 2:37½.

2:27 Class—Trotting.

First Heat—Auction pools: Rabe $20, Eva W., $14. After a good deal of scoring up for the word the pair went away evenly, but Rabe breaking before the turn was reached, fell back, going up again at the quarter. Eva was seven lengths in front and going on won easily by four lengths. Time, 2:28.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Rabe $20, Eva W. $20. There was again a large amount of jockeying for the start, Rabe getting a shade the best of it was two lengths in front on the turn but breaking badly Eva trotted right away from him leading five lengths at the half in 1:13, and coming home easy in 1:13½, winning by a length and a half. Time, 2:26½.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Eva $20, Rabe $7. The pair got off pretty evenly, trotting together to the turn where Eva broke losing three lengths. She gradually closed up on Rabe who was trotting fast and steadily. At the head of the stretch Rabe had two lengths the best of it and driven out retained his advantage to the wire. Time, 2:24.

Fourth Heat—Auction Pools: Eva $25, Rabe $20. They trotted head and head to the turn when Rabe went up losing three lengths. Eva trotted well breaking half way up the backstretch. They caught cleverly going round the turn two lengths in front, Rabe closed up the gap getting level at the distance and in a hard severe finish won by the shortest of heads. Time, 2:27.

Fifth Heat. Auction pools, Rabe $20, Eva W. $11. They were both trotting fast when the bell was tapped, but Dennison's horse broke at the eighth pole and Eva W. went on in front, leading two lengths all the way to the head of the stretch. Rabe closed up and caught the mare at the distance, where she broke but caught at once, winning by two lengths. Time, 2:28.

SATURDAY.

The wind-up day was very successful, though several hard kicks marred the proceedings. In the four-year-old district race there were only two starters, M. Reavis' Director mare (Mattie Solomon) taking the second and fourth heats, distancing her solitary opponent. She has the old horse's true style of going, but was very unsteady. In the special race Mary Lou trotted a good hard race for a four-year-old, only missing a record of 2:22½ by a break just before the wire. Dennison was taken down after the third heat, and Jim Snider put up, with 28 lbs. overweight, behind Addie E., but he won the next two heats cleverly. A vigorous kick was made against Dennison being taken out, but as the judges were satisfied he broke his mare intentionally, they would not allow him to drive. The consolation purse was won by Isabella, Hotspur's rider never making an effort until too late.

Four-Year-Olds, Trotting.

First Heat. Auction pools, Mattie Soloman $20, Beatrice $14. When the word was given Beatrice went away very smoothly, while Mattie was hopping and skiving all over, but settling down went up to her at the half, and stayed level to the head of the stretch, when she drew away, looking all over a winner; however, she made a disastrous break inside the distance, Beatrice winning by four lengths. Time 2:40½.

Second Heat. Auction pools, Mattie $10, Beatrice $9. Mattie settled down to work, and after scoring several times they were tapped off. Mattie was very steady to the turn, where Beatrice broke, dropping three lengths back. The black Director went on easily and smoothly, increasing her lead to six lengths up the back stretch, and with Beatrice breaking again in the stretch, won easily by four lengths. Time 2:36.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Mattie $15, Beatrice $8. They were soon started, Mattie trotting steadily was two lengths in front on the turn, but breaking, was passed by Beatrice, who led a length at the quarter. Mattie trotted well up the backstretch, getting on even terms on the upper turn and a length in front at the three-quarter pole; both were driven hard down the stretch, Mattie breaking at the distance, lost the heat by two lengths. Time, 2:37½.

Fourth Heat—Auction pools: Beatrice $10, Mattie $8. The pair started off pretty evenly, but colliding on the turn, both broke, and Mattie catching first, trotted right away from her opponent, winning easily by a distance. Time, 2:39½.

Special Trotting Race.

First Heat. Auction pools, Mary Lou, $10, Addie E. $8, field $6. After a long and tedious scoring up the bell was tapped to a very bad start, Addie E. and Mary Lou having the best of it. Addie led round the turn, passing the quarter two lengths in front of Lou, who closed up at the half, but breaking, was a length behind at the head of the stretch, and coming fast down the straight was level at the distance flag, when she swerved in colliding with Addie, and both breaking Addie went under the wire a neck in front, the other two just inside. Time 2:22½.

Second Heat. Auction pools, Lou $20, Addie $18, field $6. They were sent off to a fairly good start, Mary Lou and Addie E. keeping together round the turn two lengths in front of the other pair. The leaders drew away, passing the quarter five lengths in front. Both pairs had a hard race up the backstretch, Lou gradually leaving Addie, while Marvin, breaking, was passed by Agnew. Lou kept her lead to the finish, and despite a rush on the post made by Dennison, won by a length, Marvin beating Agnew three lengths for third place and finishing eight behind Addie E. Time, 2:25½.

Third Heat. Auction pools, Mary Lou $20, Addie $17, field $4. When tapped off Agnew had a length the worst of the start. Mary Lou broke on the first turn, Addie E. leading three lengths at the quarter, Mary Lou two in front of Marvin. Addie broke half way up the backstretch, and was pulled to a standstill last, Mary Lou passing the half four lengths in front of Agnew, who led Marvin one length. They both closed up on Lou round the turn and made a good race down the straight. When thirty yards from the wire Agnew broke and Mary Lou went under the wire a length in front of her, with Marvin a length and a half back, Addie seven further in the rear. Time 2:32.

Fourth Heat. Auction pools $20, Addie $10, field $8. Linden drove Addie E. They were let go to a bad start, Kate Agnew being three lengths back. Mary Lou broke on the turn, and Marvin and Addie led her three lengths past the quarter. Marvin went up and Lou followed Addie two lengths behind to the head of the stretch, when McCord made his effort, and closing up rapidly was on even terms an eighth from home, but his mare breaking badly, was pulled up, Addie winning easily by six lengths, the others just in. Time 2:25.

Fifth Heat—Auction pools, Addie $20, Field $6. Addie went out from the wire leading Mary a length round the turn where the latter made a handy break and trotting was only a neck behind on the upper turn when she again broke, losing four lengths by it. Addie went on winning easily by five lengths; the others had a hard struggle down the straight Marvin making a dead heat for second with Lou, Agnew only a short half length behind. Time, 2:26¾.

Hotspur came up to Joker passing him on the turn and at the head of the stretch was seven lengths behind Isabella, who was ridden all the way. When the Fair closed on Saturday it was very satisfactory to learn that the association had made a success from a financial point of view, as they have all worked hard for that purpose, the Directors having devoted a good deal of time to it, while the President worked like a Trojan. The Secretary, Jo D. Sproul, is so well known that it is almost needless to say that he is—as he always was—one of the most courteous and business-like secretaries on the coast. Next year it is expected there will be more open races, as, although the district races filled well, they only brought about two to the post in each instance, and did not give much of a contest. There were several well-known horses on the ground—Creole, Thapsin, Ned Winslow, Little Doc, and others who did not get a race, owing to the quantity of District races. Next year they will all have a chance.

The horses and cattle exhibited were, as I mentioned before, exceptionally good, the Reavis entries being generally admired. Several of the young Monroe Chiefs looked very well, though perhaps the pick of the youngsters was the colt by Steinman out of a Buccaneer mare, a handsome chestnut with good action and fine shoulders, with good big knees and hocks and nice square action. Mr. J. D. Forbes' Silver King came in for a good deal of praise. He is a nice shapely chestnut, with a light mane and tail, and should improve the breed in the district, as he is brother to May Boy, being bred by Mr. Hayward.

The cattle exhibits were very good, but as they were in the three herds there was not much competition. The Vina Ranch Holsteins were a very even lot, capable of holding their own in any company.

The Pavilion was crowded every night, the exhibits of fruit, carriages, pictures, etc., being very tastefully arranged and quite up to the usual standard of excellence.

The premiums for cattle and horses were awarded on Saturday morning, and immediately afterwards the ladies, tournament took place. Three equestriennes faced the judges, who ultimately gave first prize, $25, to Miss Clara Reichling, second, $15, to Mrs, C. Paulsell, third, $10, to Mrs. J. A. Rodley.

Tom Smith, of Vallejo, has a cracking good three-year-old which he calls Geo. Washington. He beat Directa with consumate ease at Petaluma last week, and if I am not much mistaken will make a low mark for himself before the season closes. He is by Mambrino Chief Jr., dam Fannie Rose. Tom has always been an enthusiastic horseman, and his friends are pleased to think that at last he has a good one.

Grim's Gossip.

Racing is mighty "unsartin."

The talant is having a hard time of it.

In an out performances seems to be the rule.

It is reported that Tom Hazlett won $4,000 in a week in Montana.

Thapsin was worked out three good heats on Friday at Chico, the best in 2:22.

Henry Vaughan has returned from the East with a fine herd of Hereford cattle.

Ed. Annan, the pacer, only pulls a twenty-eight pounds sulky on the grand circuit.

Wibble—"Whatever induced you to name your horse Nail?"
Wabble—"Because my wife can't drive him."—Terre Haute Express.

The Angel Island band discoursed sweet music during the Petaluma meeting, and they were frequently applauded.

A shower of raw beef has fallen in Illinois. It is supposed that a mule had some trouble with a butcher cart in one of the northern counties.

And now the running horse men are trying on their little jobs. The judges at Oakland should have ruled Cook off; he deserved it.

Another son of Electioneer has distinguished himself. This time it is Fallis who has placed Don Marvin in the 2:30 list. The time made was 2:29.

The English Eclipse Stake for 1892 closed with 196 entries. This year's Cesarewitch obtained seventy-five subscribers and the Cambridgeshire Handicap 106.

A private telegram to Mr. Ariel Lathrop informs that gentleman that Norval has again reduced his record, this time to 2:17½. The Electioneers seem to improve with age.

Jim Page, Denver, Col., has a green horse which he considers more promising than were either Rarus or Maxey Cobb when he first brought them before the public.

It looks as though Dan Dennison had been trying to revamp the old Swamp Angel game at Chico. That took place away in "73" but the judges had evidently good memories.

Last week it was stated in this column that Kelly & Samuels had paid forfeit on the Rettie B.—McGinnis match. They received forfeit instead of paying it.

Winslow last week at Marysville paced three heats in 2:18½ 2:17¼ and 2:19¾. Little Tommy Benton is doing good work at the stud, Mary Low and Winslow already going fast.

No one seems to be aware how fast Lot Slocum has been going in exercise, yet I am creditably informed that he could go in 2:12. The hard work has been too much for him, and now he is undergoing a rest.

The pacer William M. Singerly has plenty of speed, but is too big gaited to go in and out among a numerous field; 2:10 is a probability for him against time, is the prediction of a turf follower.

It is reported from New York that J. B. Haggin has made one hundred and seven entries for the Produce Stake of 1892 at Monmouth Park. This is the largest entry ever made by one breeder for a race in this country.

Sam Gamble has received from Dr. Bowhill, a certificate that it would be unwise to train Noonday for any racing events this season. A sprain of the flexor tendon of the near fore leg is the cause.

Col. R. H. Warfield of Healdsburg, and Harvey W. Peck of the same place, were at Petaluma to witness the racing, and secure entries for the Healdsburg meeting, which will take place the second week in October.

H. M. LaRue is one of the best racing judges in the State, and it would be a good thing if all the associations on the entire circuit should engage him regularly. He smelleth a job afar off.

Bert Hart is a proud boy, he has carried "Gerry" to the three quarter post in 1:11, and now he and Casey Winchell consider themselves monarchs of all they survey. California boys, both of them.

The Montana contingent had a rough time coming overland. They found several bridges destroyed and they had to go around-about way, entailing an extra journey of almost 500 miles.

Merry Capt. T. B. Merry has severed his connection with the Helena Journal, and united his fortunes with the Missoula (Montana) Gazette. Tom is one of the old school, and will do well anywhere.

Dan Murphy of San Jose, was at Petaluma Saturday to see his stallion Soudan go in the 2:30 race. Although he did not win a heat, the black came in second to Margaret S. in 2:24¾.

The street cars in Petaluma are a great convenience to the public, and the promoter, Mr. Edwards (Secretary of the Agricultural Society) is deserving of every credit for completing it in such short order.

Genial Judge Post of Sacramento, was in town a couple of days this week, and he was fully primed with horse lore. He is such a believer in the Norfolk—Marion blood that he forgot to talk about anything else.

Mr. C. S. Crittenden has opened up his new stable and riding academy on Golden Gate avenue. It is one of the most sumptuous establishments of the kind in the United States and is a credit to the city.

Mr. Journay, who lives near Sacramento, has a female mule with a sucking filly at her side. She is very jealous of her progeny and will not allow any one near it. It is now many years since such a freak of nature occurred in this State.

The Distance Judge at Chico dropped his flag with Kate Agnew well inside, and then declared her distanced. Pretty hard lines, though there was no doubt she would have been distanced had the flagman not been dilatory.

Mr. Hickok has finally settled all controversy about Adonis by purchasing the disputed half interest, and is now the sole owner of the fast pacer. He made a bad showing at Petaluma, but will soon work around to his old form.

Dan Dennison made a vigorous protest against Chaborzes driving out on the turns in the Rabe—Eva to race but the judges said that Dan had taught him in the preceding heats what to do. Dan replied "sure then he is a very apt pupil," and left.

Killip and Co. will sell at Sacramento during fair week, the magnificent herd of Durham cattle, owned by Pruitt and Goff of Winchester, Ky. They are a lot of gems, and worthy of a place on any first class stock farm in the country.

Harry and Lee Rose, of Los Angeles, are making the tour of the circuit, and they have with them several fast horses, only two of which have started. Before the season is through both of the boys promise to knock Norlaine's record into a cocked hat.

The Marysville track now has a gutter on the inside, where a fence should be, so Dan Dennison will not surprise the boys, (in the dusk) by appearing five lengths in front at the seven furlongs, after being last at the half mile, as it is rumored he once did.

Harry Agnew, with an eye to the nimble sixpence, has bought Emma Temple, 2:23½, from Mr. Rochford, and will keep her hard at work. She will be started at Stockton and Fresno, and some of the fast ones will find it a hard matter to down her. The price paid, so we are told, was $3,000.

C. W. Williams, the owner of the three-year-old Axtell, who trotted a mile at Chicago Friday in 2:14, has been offered $100,000 for the colt by Col. J. W. Conley. Mr. Williams has taken the offer under consideration. Later—He has refused Col. Conley's offer.

Where no stock is kept, and manure must be made for a garden, an excellent mode of so doing is to begin with a pile of dirt, upon which all the waste water and refuse should be thrown. It should be covered to prevent injury by rain. Each family waste enough every season to highly manure a garden plat.

According to good authority the best time for cutting grass with a machine is after four o'clock in the afternoon. Any single team farmer can cut all the grass after four o'clock that he can handle the next day before that hour, and all hay should go into the barn by that time every afternoon.

It is not true that the Buffalo and Poughkeepsie stake winner Alcryon is blind. He has one good eye. And it is doubtful whether any horse on this season's track can outbrush him except Guy. Frank Noble, his owner, offered him for $4,000 before the Buffalo Stake. Now he is priced at $15,000.

The well-known brood mare Alma Mater, now the property of W. S. Hobert, Esq., of this city, has had another of her get to enter the 2:30 list, Almater by Mambrino, being the last to go in, making a record of 2:29¼ at Lexington, August 27th. She now has four in the list. The others are Alcantara 2:23, Alcyone 2:27, and Arbiter 2:30.

W. Gardner and M. Biggs, Jr., matched Jim Blaine and Dude to trot on the last day at Sacramento State Fair for $350 aside, Mr. Biggs to drive his horse Dude, while Mr. Gardner after the first heat could put up a subsitute if he wished; $100 forfeit was deposited with W. Lowell.

A. J. Cassatt has definitely decided to send The Bard to the stud. "If Mr. Cassatt would consent to have him fired," said Dr. Sheppard, "I am almost certain that he could stand staining again, because his case is not within fifty per cent as bad as Troubadour's was," but Mr. Cassatt does not care to have his great horse submitted to that operation.

Matt Storn is quite indignant that I should have suggested his name as a successor to Matt Allen, and says he is not looking for any man's place. That is correct Matt, but I want to see Senator Hearst win a race semi-occasionally, and feel very much afraid that that long looked for event is in the dim furture, unless some new trainer is secured.

The cherry face of Frank Baldwin, manager of the Fresno Park Association, was seen last week on the Petaluma track getting entries for the races which will take place in Fresno the first week in October. Frank is a rustler, and it will not be his fault if the next meeting is not the best that ever took place in the lower San Joaquin.

"Hayseed" Doherty was a trifle late in making his entries for the Quincy races, and the directors refused to accept Victor in the free for all, and Lotilla in the 2:50, 2:35, and 2:30 classes. His letter was postmarked August 22nd instead of the 20th.

Some weeks ago I mentioned that some American party had purchased Roxaline, the full sister to Marion (dam of El Rio Rey, The Czar, The Emperor, etc.) from Mr. E. Burgess of the Riverside Stud, Canada. It now transpires that J. B. Haggin was the gentleman who bought her.

Al. Pierson, a horse jockey, who has been in Chico about two months, got smitten with a girl, and because the girl refused his company and hand, he became romantic and threatened to kill her. The girl told an officer, and Al was captured while on his way to put his threat into execution. He languishes in a cell.

In the last issue of this paper a mistake was made in giving the pedigrees of two of the starters in the summary of the yearling district trotting race. It should have read Tamarack by Mambrino, Jr., dam by a son of Belmont; and Mambrino Button by Mambrino, Jr., dam Maud by Naubuc; second dam by old Ethan Allen.

Senator Hearst has added another horse to his already large string. Last Saturday morning he purchased the two year old filly Miss Bell, by Prince Charlie, dam Linnet, the price paid being $5,000. It was thought that she had a splendid chance to win the Sapphire stake, but on Tuesday, the day on which the event came off, she could not do better than get third place.

The Solano Republican in speaking of the two-year-old district race at Petaluma says: "Parties from Suisun who saw Frank B. when he was led out for the race, say that he acted strangely—was apparently sick, and it is the general belief that he was doped." I wonder if Express and Lillie Stanley were also doped, for most assuredly they acted exactly as did Frank B.; they broke at the wrong time.

While I have not seen Mr. Corbitt to verify the following, still Dame Rumor has diligently circulated the news that the owner of the San Mateo Stock Farm has had Le Grande killed. Le Grand 2868 was by Almont 33, dam Jesse Pepper by Mambrino Chief 11, 2nd dam by Sidi Hamet, 3rd dam, the Wickliffe mare, said to be by Diomed. He was eight years old, and has suffered for some time from a bad rupture.

I wondered what caused such extraordinary pleasant looks on the faces of the Salisbury contingent, and asked if any of the boys had fallen heir to a fortune, but was told it was better than that. "Why," said Mr. Neal, "Nellie R. has had a filly by Director. It was foaled last Sunday morning, and is as fine a youngster as was ever foaled at Pleasanton."

The judges several times had to order the horses in the special on Friday, at Chico, to score by the slowest horse in order to get a start; one otherwise good start was spoilt by a foul, there were several on the track, but this was an old hen which flew in the horses faces and finished up with a broken leg under Worth Ober's sulky.

Whitney, the absconding bookmaker, who levanted with a lot of money from this city some months ago, has been seen in London, England, and it is reported that he will shortly start for Buenos Ayres. If he tries any of his swindling tricks in South America, some early fisherman will find a body floating in the bay, with a knife wound in the back. They have a peculiar way of dealing with men of that stamp in that far away country.

There is nothing that comes more natural to the person working on a "hoss paper" than to work out the pedigree of some sensational performer. Only a few days ago Alcryon drove Nelson to a record of 2:14¼, and now there is a dispute as to the real name of Alcryon. His owner contends that the right name is Alectryon, and that he is registered as number 2834, while there are others that contend that his name is Alcryon 7478. Knowing nothing of the dispute, we cannot say, but the two stallions in the register given by the numbers above are the same, unless the mare had twins.

One of the unfortunates last Tuesday at Oakland was Matt Storn. Cyrus Holloway in the morning had his knee-cap displaced while attending to the race-mare Glen Ellen. In the afternoon the jockey Pierce was thrown from the back of Marigold, and the filly running away, had to be withdrawn. Later in the day Glen Ellen was left at the post, making a chapter of accidents that was enough to make anyone swear at fate.

It is clearly the duty of the Directors of the Petaluma Society to appoint a committee and take all necessary testimoney, re, the pulling of Lillie Stanley. Mr. Coombs is very outspoken in regard to the matter, and in behalf of honest racing it behooves the society to sift the matter to the bottom. At the same time it might not be out of place to make inquiry into the defeat of Lorena, in the two-year-old stake race, as there are many ugly reports in circulation about the way the race was trotted. Capt. Harris might throw some light on the subject.

The owner of the trotting stallion Nelson, the winner of the 2:22 purse at Buffalo in 2:15, 2:17¼ and 2:15, has refused $55,000 for the horse. In an interview with Mr. Nelson which was reported in the gossip column last week, he stated that he had matched his stallion against Stamboul for $10,000. He has done nothing of the kind, at least Mr. Hobert knows nothing about it, and has given no one authority to make any such match. Stamboul, when fit and well, will be trotted to beat the Stallion record, and under Mr. Hickok's care is daily improving. Some time ago, he caught his leg in a fence and injured it somewhat, but it was not serious enough to cause any alarm to his owner. The rumor that Stamboul would stand in Kentucky next season is also without foundation.

Theo. Winters came down from Washoe last evening. He informed a reporter that he had received no offer from Dwyer Bros. for his big chestnut race-horse El Rio Rey, but that Eastern parties had been trying to buy him for over a month past. He said that he offered his whole stable for sale when he first took it East for $35,000, but when El Rio Rey won his big race in Chicago, coming up under the whip and spur, then he began to realize what a horse he had, and immediately withdrew him for the sale. He intends to keep the chestnut from the stud, to fill the stall soon to be left vacant by Old Norfolk, and will not entertain any offer that anybody can make for him. His antecedents were all noble animals, and from the showing he has made East this season he is the best one in the lot.—(Reno Gazette.)

From Santa Barbara my correspondent writes that the jockeys, rubbers, drivers and trainers are all taking a marked interest in the coming fair. Every day the track is well patronized by those who love equine contests. He says the jewelers here are all doing a good business, as many buy stop watches to catch quarters, halves and miles, to be well posted. Last Saturday I saw a horse go to the half mile post in 1:16 The horse is a new one, and I believe he was sired by Red Wilkes. The driver of him will say nothing about the horse, but if he thinks he can train his gelding for a hot race without working him he will get left. Ruenall is improving very much and Gus Walters expects to drive him away below :30 this fall. Hiram Pierce's Diamond is travelling like a race horse, and Jimmy Hope's "Tono" was driven a third heat in 2:35, and he could have trotted much faster. Nigger Boby trots handily in 2:28. The runners are all doing well. The fast two-year-old, Gambo, out of Dolly Dimple and by Wildidler, is very fast. He ran against E. R. Den's Baby a quarter Saturday, and beat him handily in 23½ seconds. Geo. W., stallion, by Whipple's Hambletonian, is improving very much. He is owned by Mr. Wilson, and is trained by Mr. Williams, who has the management of the track; and the track, by the way, needs work, as it is uneven and heavy around the three-quarter turn. There is much talk of a match between Ruenall and Geo. W. Ruenall is to be hitched to a cart that must weigh 120 pounds. When the morning work on the track is finished most of the people drive to the seashore and enjoy a sea bath. Santa Barbara beach surpasses all beaches for sea bathing, and there are many fine swimmers. Last Saturday the sea overflowed with legal intelectuality. Thomas B. Bishop, a prominent attorney of San Francisco, was enjoying the warm, smooth beach, and so was Judge Van Fleet, of Sacramento. District Attorney Cooper and his law partner, J. J. Boyce, were also in the surf. There was a swimming contest between Mr. Hall, of Miramar, and Professor McGee, of Berkeley. They swam to the keep and return, a mile and a half.

Santa Barbara, Aug. 22, 1889. T. M.

The Home of Whippleton.

The authorities on trotters, present strange anomolies when looked into carefully. Those who are supposed to have carefully studied the intricate question of breeding, will tell you that the only way to get a fast trotter is to breed to well known blood lines and then only when clearly established, others will argue about the superiority of the thoroughbred cross, and contend that the only way to get endurance is to have an infusion of hot blood, etc. But there are very few that are willing to acknowledge that untraceable blood will produce trotting horses, yet still such is the case and most noticeably so in the case of Whippleton 1883. When in Napa, week before last, I saw Dolly McMahon receive a first premium from the judges, and on the same afternoon, witnessed her daughter Lillie Stanley, win a race from Dawn in three straight heats.

The pedigree of Dolly McMahon is a perfect mystery. It seems to be as completely wrapped in oblivion, as the question of "how were the pyramids built?" And yet the ancient Dolly begot, to the cover of Whippleton, Lillie Stanley 2:17½. Homestakes a pacer that would have astonished the world with ordinary care, and who paced his first heat in 2:16½, is set down in the year book as by Whippleton, dam untraced.

Flora B. is another of the get of Whippleton, and the same work says dam untraced. And these are all that the records show to his credit up to the end of the year 1888. Harry Starr, a careful and diligent worker in the sulky, has several Whippletons under his care at the Napa track, and as the general conformation of each were alike, and they all show up fast, it was only natural that a curiosity should be aroused to see the sire of such generally good all round performers. F. W. Loeber, the proprietor of Vineland Breeding Farm, very kindly invited me to take a look at the sire, and one bright, pleasant morning we journeyed to St. Helena, within one mile of which is situated Mr. Loeber's pretty vineyard and orchard. While the home place is rather small, the owner controls a large number of acres on the bottom lands, where the grass is green almost all the year round, with a good water supply and plenty of trees to shelter the broodmares and the foals when they desire to get out of the sun's rays.

Whippleton is a beautiful black stallion with tan muzzle and flanks, stands almost if not quite 17 hands, and is well finished in every particular. He is an exceptionally well put up animal, strong and muscular, with the well developed Hambletonian characteristics. His colts, all that I have seen, are uniformly cast in his own mold, and all of them are speedy. His ability to throw good colors in his get, is shown by an advertisement in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN some months ago, wherein Mr. Loeber says "he has never sired a sorrel or white faced colt; if he does I agree to refund the service money." Could there be a stronger showing of faith of this particular merit in the great sire, than the words quoted above by his owner. In the neighborhood of St. Helena and Napa there are a number of his youngsters, and it will not surprise anyone who knows the horse to hear that he has a dozen in the "30" list by the fall of next year. On the same farm there are two other stallions standing for public service, both of which are worth more then passing mention.

The first of these is Alcona 730 by the great Almont (sire of Westmont, 2:15½, Puritan, 2:16, Fannie Witherspoon, 2:16¼, Piedmont, 2:17¼, and 31 others with records better than 2:30, and grandsire of Bell Hamlin, 2:13¼) by Alexander's Abdallah (sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14), he by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, Alcona's dam, Queen Mary by Mambrino Chief sire of Lady Thorn, 2:18¼, Woodford Mambrino 2:21½ and 4 others in 2:30 list, and sire of the dams of Piedmont, 2:17¼, Director, 2:17, Onward, 2:25½, and many others; 23 of his sons have produced 2:30 trotters.

Alcona is a beautiful chestnut 16.3 hands high, of grand conformation and undoubted speed. Since his advent into California the mares served by him have not been gilt-edged, as far as fashionable breeding is concerned, yet his colts all show good speed, several of which are far above the average. Flora Belle, who is now on the circuit, has already obtained a record of 2:24, and Clay Duke, another good one, is fair on the road to get low down in the "twenties."

Grandissimo is a full brother to Grandee, 2:23½, made as a three-year-old. He is by Le Grande (son of Almont, and out of Jessie Pepper, by Mambrino Chief; Jessie Pepper is the dam of Iona, 2:22, Alpha 2:23½, Sterling Wilkes, 2:33¾, and others) dam Norma by Arthurton (sire of Arab 2:15, Joe Arthurton, 2:20½, etc. Grandam Nourmahal (full sister to A. W. Richmond, sire of Arrow, 2:13¾, Romero, 2:19, and sire of Columbine, dam of Anteeo, 2:16½, and Antevolo, 2:19½ at 4 years old).

Grandissimo is only three years old, is a magnificent mahogany bay, and will be when at full growth, over sixteen hands in height. He is a splendid specimen of the perfect horse and should be a valuable adjunct to the Vineland Farm.

Mr. Loeber has made careful selection of the mares on his place, and they are all individually of great merit. It would take too much space to enumerate them all, but the following will give an idea of the choice stock now to be seen there.

Whidana, bl m 4 years old, by Whippleton, dam s t b by Gen. Dana, stinted to Grandissimo.

Flighty, ch m, 6 years old, by Naubuc, dam You Guess, by Jack Hawkins (Denison's), stinted to Whippleton.

Vineland Maid (dam of Lookout, 2:25), by John Nelson, second dam s t b by Gen. McClelland, stinted to Whippleton.

Wisp, bay m, 6 years old, by Whippleton, dam by George M. Patchen Jr., second dam by Ethen Allen (Vick's), filly at foot by Director, stinted to Director.

Whipalene, g m, 6 years old by Whippleton, dam by Vicks Ethan Allen, 2nd dam by Gen. Taylor, 3rd dam thoroughbred, stinted to Grandissimo.

There are a number of young stallions on the farm, several of which are for sale.

Free Willy, br f, 5 years old by Whippleton, 1st dam Sally Gorham by Werner's Rattler, 2nd dam Lady Rotan.

Ashton, br s, 2 years old by Whippleton, dam Sally Gorham etc.

Wheeler, bl s, 2 years old by Whippleton, dam by Naubuc, second dam by Jack Hawkins.

The Kaiser, bay colt, 1 year old by Young Santa Claus, dam by Whippleton, 2nd dam by Geo. M. Patchen, Jr., 3rd dam by Vick's Ethen Allen.

Bancroft, bay colt, 1 year old by Alcona, 1st dam by Cassin's M. Clay 22, 2nd dam by Joe Downing.

Daylight, ch colt, 1 year old by Dawn, dam Alida, (dam of Directa 2:31¼, 3 years old) by Admiral, g dam by Mohowk.

Mr. Loeber is on the high road to success, and he fully deserves it, for he is an earnest, conscientious horseman, liked by all who know him, and with well wishers whose name is legion. It was with extreme regret that we had to say goodbye, yet we left in the hope that on some future occasion we might be able to repeat the visit.

OAKLAND.

BY OUR SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.

MONDAY.

The Annual Fair of the Golden Gate Association opened at the Oakland Driving Park, Monday, Sept. 2, with a good first day attendance, and a first-class programme. The events were not well contested. They were too much one way, the favorite winning in both in straight heats. It was a betting crowd all over, and pots of money went into the pool boxes on the two sure things. The judges for the day were C. S. Crittenden starting judge, assisted by Messrs. Sam Gamble and N. E. Green. The watches were held by Messrs. Harry Agnew, Wilfred Page and Ed. Dalton.

Trotting—2:20 Class.

The above event opened the day. Palo Alto's c h Palo Alto, C. A. Davis & Co's., br g Franklin, O. A. Hickok's c h Bay Rose, G. E. Doherty's b h Victor, E. B. Gifford's blk g Don Tomas, and J. A. Linscott's ch s Jim L. were in it. Palo Alto so far outclasses everything in the class that so long as he stays in any sort of shape, the 2:20 class will not see a race Palo Alto can take it as he pleases, and Monday, could have made the third heat in 2:16 if Marvin had only wanted him to do it, and had not slowed him down to a jog in the straight with the crowd almost a distance behind him.

First Heat.—Pools were sold Palo Alto $200, field $40. They were given the worst start seen this season, and was somewhat similar to the start given the same crowd at Petaluma when Bay Rose was distanced in the fourth heat. When they came past the stand they were scattered all over the track and Jim L. was off his feet. Still the gong sounded, but it came late, and both Donothan, who was driving Franklin, and Rodriguez who was behind Jim L. took their horses back, Jim L. turning clear around. Then when Palo Alto, Victor, Bay Rose and Don Tomas were clipping along half way around the turn, the judges and crowd shouted to them to go on. They could do nothing then but try to save their distance. Victor was in the fore, Palo Alto and Tomas together in second place and Bay Rose third. The bayseed horse lead them to the middle of the backstretch and then Palo Alto passed him, and going into the lower turn Palo Alto was two lengths in front, Don Tomas and Victor next to him and Bay Rose third. Palo Alto broke in the turn, but came down quickly, with the crowd at his wheel. At the head of the homestretch it was Palo Alto first by a length, Bay Rose second, Victor third and Don Tomas fourth. In this order they finished, Palo Alto going easily. Franklin got inside the flag, but Jim L. was distanced. Time 2:22¼.

Second Heat—Pools: Palo Alto $80, Field $12. Palo Alto went off in the lead, closely followed by Bay Rose and Victor. At the quarter Palo Alto was a length to the good, Bay Rose second, Don Tomas and Franklin third by two lengths. On the backstretch Palo Alto drew away from them to four lengths. Bay Rose caught up and trotted head and head with Don Tomas. At the half Palo Alto was still in front and Don Tomas had a little the best of Bay Rose in the battle for second. Around the turn Bay Rose and Don Tomas and Victor and Franklin trotted like two teams. They came well into the straight in this order; then Franklin drew out of the crowd and was on even terms with Bay Rose for second. The fight was all for second place, and when Palo Alto passed the wire in 2:20 Franklin shot by Bay Rose and got second by half a length, Don Tomas fourth and Victor fifth.

Third Heat—No more pools were sold. Palo Alto took a long lead on the turn, and when they got around and into the backstretch he was ten lengths in front, Franklin, Bay Rose and Don Tomas a length apart in the crowd. Palo Alto got to the half in 1:09. There Frank in came up with Bay Rose and Don Tomas, and going around the turn he was in second place The struggle for second took place again in the straight. Victor got himself next to Franklin, and they finished, Palo Alto first in a jog, Franklin second by two lengths, Victor two lengths further away in third place, and Bay Rose and Don Tomas fourth and fifth. Time, 0:35, 1:09, 1:42½. When Marvin saw that he had the whole crowd beaten he losed Palo Alto to jog in, although at the rate he was going he could easily have done the mile in 2:16. The time was 2:19½. As Marvin began to take his horse back the crowd yelled to him to let the horse go, but he wanted to let everybody in, and so Palo Alto went under at what to him was a walkover, Franklin second, Victor third, Bay Rose fourth and Don Tomas fifth.

Trotting—2:27 Class.

B. C. Holly's ch m Pink, M. Salisbury's b m Hazel Kirke, D. J. Murphy's blk h Soudan and E. B. Gifford's br m Belle B. started. It was another sure thing with the betters, and Pink opened favorite in the pools at $40, the field going at $30 and Hazel Kirke $12. The field was favorite just before the start, selling at $50 to $30 for Pink and $19 for Hazel Kirke.

First Heat—Soudan had the best of the go and went around the turn a length in front of Belle B. and two lengths to the good of Pink. Hazel Kirke was lame and made no showing in the heat. Belle B closed up and had a little the best of Soudan at the quarter, but she broke and the horse again went to the front followed by Pink. The positions were unchanged until they were half way down the straight, then Holly called on Pink and the game little mare raced Soudan off his feet within thirty yards of the wire and won by two lengths, Belle B. third, Hazel Kirke a poor fourth. Time, 2:25¼.

Second Heat—Pools sold: Pink $120: Field $35. Pink was a length in front going around the turn, Soudan, Belle B. and Hazel Kirke on even terms. At the quarter it was the same; then Belle B. went up closer to the leader, getting to his wheel in a spurt, which threw her off her feet, and the break was bad enough to put her out of it. Hazel Kirke and Soudan were hardly a length behind Pink, going into the turn, and half way around Hazel Kirke was at her wheel. Soudan also came up, and when they entered the straight the three were together. They came down abreast to the drawgate; then Pink drew away and finished first by a length, Soudan second and Hazel third. Belle B. was away back. Time, 2:26¼. Pink was also the winner of the third and last heat. He took a lead of a half length on the turn, but at the half Soudan came up to his wheel and on the backstretch passed him. Pink hung on to the horse's wheel to the middle of the lower turn, and then made a bid for the lead again, getting it as they came into the straight. Down home there was a close race with Soudan, but the big horse gave it up near the wire, and Pink won by a length. Belle B. was a bad third and Hazel Kirk just saved her distance. Time, 2:25.

TUESDAY.

There was an improvement in the size of the attendance upon the second day of the Golden Gate Races. The weather was all that could be desired from a racing point of view, and the track was measurably fast and in good condition for the trotters.

Trotting—2:50 Class.

In the first event, the 2:50 class, San Mateo Stock Farm's ch m Hazel Wilkes, Palo Alto's ch m Lorita, B. C. Holly's c s San Diego and the La Siesta Ranch's c m Wanda started. In the pool boxes Hazel Wilkes was first choice, selling at $70 against $23 for Lorita and $10 for the field.

First Heat.—When the bell tapped them off in the first heat to a good start, they went into the turn on even terms, and then Wanda showed in front with San Diego at her wheel. At the quarter Wanda lead by a length, the other three together. On the backstretch Hazel took second place and San Diego left Lorita in fourth. The positions were unchanged around the turn, except that Lorita closed up with San Diego. Wanda had still her length lead at the head of the straight. Hazel Wilkes closed the gap steadily as they came home at a good clip, and at the dawgate was at Wanda's wheel, and at the distance post was crawling up by inches. Wanda trotted steadily and went under first by a neck, Hazel Wilkes gaining on her at every stride, San Diego finished third and Lorita fourth. Time 2:26

Second Heat.—Pools sold, Hazel Wilkes $60, Lorita $20, field $6. When they got the word, Hazel Wilkes went off fast and took the lead on the turn Lorita at her wheel. San Diego made a bad break and was never heard of again. Before they got to the quarter Lorita went away like a shot and showed half a length in front, going into the backstretch. Hazel Wilkes stopped on her wheel and stayed there to the middle of the lower turn, when Lorita broke and gained a length by it. Coming into the straight she had an open length the best of Hazel Wilkes, Goldsmith shook the mare up and came down to one of his fighting finishes. Lorita broke at the drawgate, but caught in an instant and went on faster, but broke again near the wire and ran under finishing first by half a length, Wanda in third place and San Diego away back, fourth. When the judges rendered their discision there was a growl from the crowd. The heat was given to Hazel Wilkes, Wanda was placed second, San Diego third, and Lorita was set back to fourth place for her running

Third Heat.—Hazel Wilkes went up in the pools selling at $60 against $16 for the field. Lorita's punishment didn't do much harm. She went out for the next heat and took the pole and first place in the turn, Hazel Wilkes after her. Lorita was a length in front at the head of the backstretch, when Hazel Wilkes broke and gave her four lengths of open daylight. Lorita held that all the way around the lower turn, breaking once. Goldsmith tried hard for the lead, but he forced his filly off her feet in the attempt and Lorita finished first by two lengths in a jog, San Diego third and Wanda fourth. Time 2:26.

Fourth Heat.—Hazel Wilkes sold at $25 against $12 for the field. Lorita took the heat after a fighting finish with Hazel Wilkes by a neck in 2:25. San Diego made his first showing in the heat, following on Lorita's wheel to the backstretch where Hazel passed him for second place. Lorita lead Hazel the entire mile, making one skip close to the wire, when Hazel was forcing her out. San Diego finished third and Wanda fourth.

Fifth Heat—Lorita was made favorite and sold at $50 to $27 for Hazel Wilkes and $2 for the field. Lorita took the heat and race, finishing in a jog She went off in the lead, San Diego on her wheel and Wanda third. At the backstretch Wanda got in second place and was at the leader's neck at the half, Hazel Wilkes a length behind them. In this order they came around the turn and into the straight. Hazel Wilkes made a bid for the lead but made a bad break, and Lorita came on home and won as she chose in a jog. Hazel beat Wanda out for second, San Diego being a poor fourth. Time, 2:24.

Paeing, 2:25 Class.

In the 2:25 class pace there were John Patterson's blk f Princess Alice, Chas. Haven's blk g Racquet, T. H. Griffin's c g Edwin C., G. W. Woodward's br m Belle Button, A. C. Dietz's c s Longworth, and B. C. Holly's ch g Frank. Pools sold, Longworth $30, Racquet $13, Edwin C. $11, field $10.

First Heat. The fight for the first heat was between Longworth and Belle Button. Button took the lead on the turn and held it to the middle of the homestretch, Longworth hanging on a length behind. At the distance post Johnson gave him his speed and he swept past the filly, beating her by half a length. Princess Alice broke at the first turn, and was no more in it. Edwin C. lost his feet at the quarter and ran the entire distance to get in. Frank made no showing with the leaders, while Racquet did little better. Decisions on the places were not rendered until after the trotters had been given a sandwiched heat. Longworth was first, Belle Button second, Frank third, Racquet fourth and Princess Alice and Edwin C. distanced. Time, 2:19.

Second Heat. Longworth was in front with Belle Button at his wheel when they strung out on the turn. Racquet was in third place. Longworth held his lead to the head of the straight and looked like an easy winner, when he broke and tangled up so badly that Belle Button was left alone in the lead, and she finished first in a jog. Racquet disputed with Longworth for second place, and snatched it from him at the finish by a head. Time 2:24. Frank finished away back. Pools sold before the heat, Longworth $60, field $25.

Third Heat—The next heat brought out a surprise. Frank had made no showing at all and was considered out of the race, but he took the heat by two lengths. Belle Button was first on the turn, Longworth a length back, and Racquet close up to him. Belle Button was in front, with Longworth a length back in the straight. Racquet made a tangled break upon the backstretch, and was no more in it. At the head of the straight Frank showed up close to the leaders, coming fast. Longworth got the whip and Belle Button quit, and Frank flashed past them and came under the wire a winner, Longworth second, Belle Button third, and Racquet fourth. Time, 2:20. Pools sold, Longworth $70, Racquet $50, Field $12. Paris mutuals paid, $39.

Fourth Heat—The hedgers, in trying to get out after the heat, ran the field up to $40, Longworth going at $20 and Racquet at $12. The heat was another surprise. Racquet got the lead on the turn and was never headed. Frank paced in second place and made a rush at the finish and came near getting the heat, going under the wire at Racquet's neck. Belle Button and Longworth paced the distance in third and fourth place and finished in that order.

Fifth Heat—Longworth, Belle Button and Frank in the field sold favorite at $40 to $20 for Racquet. When the word came for the fifth heat Longworth went away fast and took a long lead, Belle Button following him. Frank passed to second place on the backstretch, and when Longworth came into the straight Frank was but two lengths behind him and in the next 100 yards closed up on even terms. Longworth was severely punished, but he couldn't keep the pace, and Frank got the heat in 2:23¾, Belle Button third. Racquet made two bad breaks on the turn and the backstretch and was distanced.

Sixth Heat—Frank $70, field $17 was the way the pools sold, the talent hedging out fast. The sun was almost down when the three starters came out again. At the word Belle Button went off and established herself in first place, Frank and Longworth going together about a length behind her. On the lower turn Longworth went back a length, but came up again at the head of the straight, and half way down the three were on even terms. Belle Button tired and a few lengths nearer the wire Longworth gave it up and Frank paced in easy in 2:26, Longworth second and Belle Button third.

Judges for the day, Messrs. P. A. Finnigan, Robt. McKillican and Judge Green. Timers, Harry Agnew, Wilfred Page and Ed. Dalton.

WEDNESDAY.

Judges for the day—R. T. Carroll, Peter Pumyea, Robert McKillican. Timers—Dalton, Agnew and Goldsmith. Running day at Oakland drew a good crowd, the ladies particularly turning out in numbers. The programme was one of the best ever seen on the track.

RUNNING ¾ MILE; TWO-YEAR-OLDS.

The first event was a three-quarter mile dash for the Leland Stanford Free Purse, $300, and had as starters Palo Alto's br c Rico and ch c Flambeau, John Leach's br c Captain Al, T. E. Abbott's ch c Nightime, Phil. Sibenthaler's ch c King Hooker, Kelly & Samuels' b g Pliny, J. W. Donathan's ch c Hubert Earl and Harry E. Rose's b c Rose Mead. In the auction pools the Palo Alto Stable sold for $50, Pliney $13, Field $13.

C. S. Crittenden had the flag at the post, and sent them off to a good start, Flambeau showing in front of the pack. When they got straightened out on the backstretch Flambeau was in front, Rose Mead on his flank, Pliny third and Rico with his head in front of the crowd. At the half Rose Mead was head and head with Flambeau, but the Palo Alto colt drew away on the turn, and at the head of the straight it was Flambeau first by a length, Rose Mead second, Rico third, Pliny at his flank, and Hubert Earle heading the pack. Rico made his run at the drawgate and got into second place. Under the whip the Palo Alto colt came home, the jocke riding for all there was in it. Pliney tried for the lead but couldn't make it, and Flambeau came under first by a length, Rico second. Hubert Earle made a rush at the finish and snatched third place from Pliney. Time, 1:14½.

The second event had in it Palo Alto's b f Faustine, John Reavy's b f Bessie Shannon, John McBride's ch c Longshot, Ben P. Hill's ch s Odette, H. H Hobb's b c Duke Spencer, Matt Storn's ch m Glen Ellen, Elmwood Stable's br f Installation, and Harry E. Rose's b c Dan Murphy. In the pools Faustine $140, Longshot $16, field $16, Bessie Shannon $8. The flag went down on a miserable start, Duke Spencer, Bessie Shaunon and Glen Ellen having their heads turned up the track, and the crowd broke away, leaving them at the post. Longshot showed a length in front of the pack on the turn, and went to the quarter like a shot, opening a length lead, Dan Murphy next to him, Installation and Faustine head and head. Down the backstretch Longshot increased his lead to two lengths, and Faustine went to tha head of the crowd. Longshot led all around the turn, the Palo Alto filly closing on him slowly, and the pack coming up to them. Up the stretch the fight was between Longshot and the favorite. The filly got the whip and a severe punishment and responded by going up to the leader's neck, but she quit at the drawgate and Longshot flashed in under a drive, a winner by a length, Faustine second and Duke Spencer third. Time 1:45.

RUNNING, HALF MILE HEATS.

The Banks of Oakland Free Purse, half mile heats, had four starters, Ben Hill's gr m Eve C., Kelly & Samuel's b m Susie S, Bambrick's gr g Stoneman and W. S. Heald's b m Daisy Neal. Susie S. had the call in the pool box, selling for $130 to $90 for Stoneman and $50 for the field. The weight was 110 pounds all around.

The flag went down with Eve moving fast, Stoneman on her flank and Susie S. just in motion. Daisy Neal would not go off and was left at the post. Eve showed in front by a length, Stoneman after her and Susie S. two lengths behind him as they swung into the turn. They came around the turn at a lively gait, Stoneman closing up to Eve and coming into the straight on even terms with her, Susie S. two lengths back. Stoneman passed the mare half way down home, and a little further on Susie S. shot by her. Stoneman came on well in hand and took the heat by half a length. In the last fifty yards Cook, on Susie S, made a show at catching the leader, and the mare responded to his touch with a rush that would have carried her to the front with ease if it had been made a little earlier. Cook didn't want the heat. Daisy Neal was distanced. Time :05.

SECOND HEAT.—There were evidences of something shaky in the manner in which the pool box was manipulated. When the boxes opened Susie S. sold favorite at $100 against $70 for the field. They sold that way for fifteen minutes when suddenly the field sprung into favorite's place, selling at $110 to $100. Except a certain coterie who stood about the pool stand, the crowd was bewildered and hardly knew what to do. When the flag dropped Eve jumped off in the lead, Stoneman at her flank, Susie S. getting away badly and following them around the turn ten lengths behind. Stoneman took the lead as they swung into the straight and came right away from Eve. Susie S. began to move at the same time, her jockey making a great show with his whip, but the mare didn't come very fast somehow. Stoneman went under first by six lengths, Susie S. running second about a nose ahead of Eve.

The evidences of a job were so plain that the whole crowd saw it and surrounded the judges' stand. The decision was some time coming, but at last President R. T. Carrol made the announcement that the race was declared off and all bets off, expecting of course the Paris Mutuals on the first heat. The decision was greeted with a shout, and one small crowd went off and kicked itself.

The J. D. Carr Free Purse had thirteen starters in it, too big a field to start on the track and the race was split, J. E. Fallon's br s Birdcatcher, Chas. Haven's ch g Jim Duffy, W. L. Appleby's br f Alfarata, Matt Storn's b m Fanny F., Kelly & Samuels' br m Welcome, Elmwood Stable's br g Vinco and J. Cairn Simpson's br s Rathbone started first. Pools sold, Vinco $40, Alfarata $35 and the field $30. There was a long delay at the post, Alfarata acted badly. When they finally got the flag, Vinco showed in front with Alfarata next to him and the pack bunched at her heels. Down the backstretch Alfarata and Vinco ran head and head four lengths ahead of the pack, Welcome showing in front of it. On the lower turn they strung out, Vinco leading Alfarata half a length, Welcome four lengths back in third place and Jim Duffy at his heels. These were the positions at the head of the straight, then Welcome began her running, cutting out Alfarata in the first hundred yards and collaring the leader at the drawgate. Vinco was severely punished, but his tail went up and Welcome shot in, winner by two lengths. Jim Duffy made a rush at the finish and beat Vinco out for second place, Alfarata finishing fourth, with Fannie F. at her shoulder. Time, 1:30.

The second contingent entered in the Carr Purse, who started in the special, were R. P. Cockrill's b m Daisy D, John McBride's ch c Longshot, Ben Hill's ch g Mikado, Matt. Storn's ch g Forester, Elmwood Stable's ch m Nerva, and A. Harrison's ch g Hello. In the pool boxes Daisy D. was a hot favorite at $60 against $30 for the entire field. It was another dump for the talent. The start was a good one, Crittenden sending them off well bunched, Hello half a length to the good of the crowd, Mikado and Daisy D. leading the pack. Down the backstretch the three drew away from the lot, Hello leading by a length, Mikado second, and Daisy D. at his flank. On the turn Mikado and Daisy D. were on even terms at Hello's heels. At the head of the straight the jocks began to ride. Hello came on in front. The whips flashed up and down on all three, but Hello naturally outran them, finishing first by a length, Mikado second, and Daisy D. up to him in third place. Time, 1:28.

THURSDAY.

Sunol and Lillian Wilkes have met again, and the Palo Alto filly has conquered. Her victory is a hollow one, though, and Palo Alto has no reason to be unduly proud of her. There were the same three in it which started in the race at Petaluma, and neither was fit for a race. Sunol was all tucked up, and Lillian was tender about the legs, and neither of them were given hardly more than a good warming up heat, with the exception of the first heat, when Sunol had a fast three-quarters. She took the race in straight heats in 2:21, 2:24¼ and 2:20, jogging in in all of them. It was not such a betting race as that at Petaluma, comparatively little money going into the box.

The second event on the day's card, the 2:22 class trot, was fought out in six heats. The last one was trotted in semi-darkness, and the judges made a departure in racing by declaring the heat off and postponing the race. The mutterings upon that decision will be heard for a long time, and there will in all probability be a strong and determined fight to have it set aside, with a high probability of success.

The meeting has thus far been an unqualified success, the events being away above the average, and the attendance good all the week through. The crowd on Thursday was larger than on the preceding days, drawn there for the main part by the Sunol—Wilkes race. The day was begun with that event, the details of which are as follows:

FIRST HEAT—Lillian Wilkes had the pole, Margaret S. next to her, and Sunol was on the outside. They scored seven times before the word was given, and then Sunol on the outside had half a length the best of it, but she was not going steadily, and fifty yards from the wire made a bad break. Margaret S. swung into the turn a length in front of Lillian Wilkes, but at the eighth Lillian lost her feet in a tangled break, and when she got down Margaret S. was eight lengths away from her and Sunol was the same distance behind her. When they got into the backstretch Margaret S. was ten lengths away from Lillian, while Sunol was crawling up to the Wilkes filly, and only three lengths behind her. At the half Margaret was eight lengths away, but Sunol had closed her gap and was at Lillian's wheel. Well into the second turn Margaret was six lengths first and Sunol and Wilkes were head and head. Swinging into the straight Sunol went half a length in front of Lillian and came into the straight clear of her and but two lengths behind Margaret. Then began the race for home. Sunol steadily closed up upon Margaret, Lillian following her, but going on her toes. They were almost at the drawgate when Lillian went off her feet in a tangled break and Sunol collared Margaret. Andy McDowell managed to keep his mare on even terms with Sunol to within fifty yards of the wire; then Sunol shoved her head in front and drew slowly away from her, moving easy, and went under the string with Margaret's head at her flank. Lillian's break put her out of the heat entirely, and she jogged in ten lengths back. Time by quarters, 0:34½, 1:09½, 1:45½ and 2.21. Sunol trotted a very fast three-quarters, some watches catching it as low as 1:40½, others getting it 1:41.

Second Heat—When the pool-boxes opened, Sunol sold for a time at even money against the field, but later on she was made favorite at $50 to $40. Crittenden gave them a good start, but Lillian was unsteady under the wire, and almost at the word broke. Sunol swung into the straight in front of Margaret S., and when they got half way around, was in front by a length. Lillian was eight lengths back when she settled. The positions at the quarter were the same. Going down the backstretch Sunol drew away from Margaret S., opening a gap of two lengths, Lillian eight lengths behind. At the half there was no change, but going around the lower turn Sunol went off to five lengths lead, and Lillian closed up to about the same distance behind Margaret, trotting fast. Sunol reached the three-quarters five lengths in front. Lillian was right at Margaret's wheel, and was going fast when she again left her feet, and didn't get down until well into the straight, and then was out of the heat. Sunol and Margaret S. came on home, Sunol trotting easy. Andy took Margaret back when he found there was no hope of catching the leader, and Sunol jogged under the wire about six lengths in front of her. Time by quarters, 0:36, 1:12¾, 1:46, 2:24½.

Third heat. The hedgers made the betting pretty lively. The box opened with Sunol going at $80 against the field at $20, then it dropped down to $50 for Sunol and $11 for the field. Johnny gave Lillian two or three fast spins and had her scoring strong when they came out for the heat. It looked as if he was in to get the heat. Sunol was sulking at the score and wouldn't come up. At the third attempt she was back a length and a half, but Marvin nodded for the word and Crittenden let them go. Lillian went off very fast, but broke again going into the turn, and when she got down again Sunol was at the eighth half a length in front of Margaret S, and Lillian was six lengths away. At the quarter the positions were unchanged. On the backstretch Margaret got up close to Sunol, and at the half was at her wheel and Lillian was five lengths away from her. Going around the turn Sunol drew away to two lengths and Lillian closed up to three lengths from Margaret S. At the head of the straight Sunol was three lengths in front, Margaret two lengths from Lillian. The race was over then. Sunol trotted toward home at an easy gait, and went under in a jog again, four lengths in front of Margaret S. and seven to the good of Lillian. Time by quarters, :35½, 1:09¾, 1:44, 2:20.

The 2:22 class trot had in it Pleasanton Stock Farm's blk s Direct, Marcus Daly's b s Senator, Geo. Doherty's b s Victor, B. C. Holly's b g Valentine and Alfred Gonzales' b s Junio. Direct was the thing in the pool boxes, selling rapidly at $300 to $100 for Senator, second choice and $60 for the field.

First Heat—Senator, Victor, Junio, Direct and Valentine, were the positions at the start. They scored half a dozen times before they got the word. Senator broke as they went off, and when they got straightened out on the turn Direct was two lengths in front of Senator, Valentine at Senator's wheel and Victor at Valentine's Junio got off badly and was away back. At the quarter Direct had increased his lead to three lengths. On the backstretch Senator got up two lengths of the leader and Victor was lapping Valentine two lengths behind Senator. On the lower turn Direct was three lengths in front of Senator who broke half way around, and Victor was in front of Valentine. At the head of the straight Senator was still three lengths back, Victor at his wheel. He drew away from Victor in an attempt to reach Direct. The little black came steadily home an easy winner by three lengths in 2:22; Victor drove Senator hard for second place. Senator broke and ran under the wire with Victor on his wheel. Valentine finished fourth. Junio went all to pieces on the backstretch and was distanced. Quarters :35½, 1:11¾, 1:46½.

SECOND HEAT—Direct sold against the whole field at $60 to $20. They were given a beautiful start. Direct was an open length in front at the eighth, Senator second, Valentine at his wheel, and Victor a length behind Valentine. Valentine got up to Senator's wheel on the backstretch, but went back again, and at the half Direct was first by a length and a half, Senator second, Valentine a length third, and Victor the same distance fourth. On the turn Direct drew away to two lengths' lead. Victor closed up on Valentine and came into the straight ahead of him. Senator made play for the leader, but was not fast enough, and went back to Victor, who was coming strong for second place. Direct took the heat as he pleased, jogging in five lengths in front. Victor forced Senator to a break at the distance post, but the horse gained by it and started on in the lead, but the "hayseed" bay outtrotted him and finished nose and nose with him, and the judges gave Victor the place. Valentine finished fourth away back. Time by quarters, 0:36½, 1:11½, 1:46, 2:21¾.

THIRD HEAT—The race was looked upon as such a sure thing for Direct that there was no betting. When they got off Victor lost his feet. On the turn Senator also went up, and Direct, with Valentine at his wheel, went away two lengths from the two breakers. On the backstretch the positions were unchanged. Around the turn Senator and Victor got up within six lengths of the leaders. At the head of the straight Valentine was on even terms with Direct, and a little further down took the lead from him. Victor began to crowd up. At the drawgate he collared and passed Direct and made for the leader, closing the gap at a terrific pace. Holly urged Valentine on. Victor was at his flank and a sure winner of the heat, when he broke, and Valentine went in winner by a length. Andy pulled Direct up, when Victor passed him and finished fourth, Senator getting third place. Time by quarters, 0:35¾, 1:10½, 1:45¾, 2:22 Victor trotted from the half home in something like a 2:18 gait.

Fourth heat. The pool boxes were immediately besieged, and pools sold Direct $60, field $30. Victor was out for the heat and when he jogged out Johnny Goldsmith was up behind him. Direct was sulking and didn't want to go. When they got off Goldsmith carried Victor at once to the front, and on the turn he was leading, with Valentine at his wheel, Senator and Direct six lengths back. The only change in the positions was that Victor and Valentine had fifteen lengths the lead of Senator and Direct at the half, and it looked as if the favorite would be distanced. The heat was altogether between Victor and Valentine. Valentine hung on to his wheel half way down the straight, and then Holly began to use his whip, but Victor naturally outspeeded him and came in winner of the heat by six lengths. Senator and Direct just managing to save their distance. Time by quarters, :36½, 1:11½, 1:47. 2:22¾.

Fifth Heat.—Postponement was what the boys were looking for.

The pool box was again opened, and this time sold, Direct $40, field $15 and Valentine $5. Direct came out acting badly again. Victor jogged down the stretch with the whole crowd cheering him. When they got the word and swung into the turn, Victor broke, and Valentine went away three lengths in front. At the quarter Valentine, Victor, Direct and Senator was the order. Going down the backstretch Victor trotted like a demon, closing the gap at every stride, and at the half he was at Valentine's wheel, Direct two lengths back. Senator ran considerably, and went into the turn on a gallop. Half way around the turn Victor passed the leader, and as they swung into the straight he was an open length in front. From there home he had it all his own way. Senator made a play for second place, and trotted up to Valentine's wheel; Victor finished first eight lengths in front of them in a jog; Senator finished third at Valentine's wheel, and Direct was seven lengths behind them. Senator was set back to fourth place for running. Time by quarters, 0:35½, 1:12¾, 1:44¾, 2:24½.

The pool-sellers packed up their traps in the middle of the fifth heat and went home, and when the hedgers wanted to pull out, there was no opportunity, and there were not a few mad men in the crowd. There was a chance to have made some sure money if the box had been open. When the horses came out for the sixth heat, Victor was roundly cheered.

The sun had long since set, and the big yellow moon was looking down upon the crowd. There was just enough light for the horses to be seen on the backstretch with the aid of field glasses. Valentine and Direct went off around the turn together, but at the quarter Direct had a length the best of it, with Victor a length behind Valentine. The positions were unchanged until they got to the lower turn, and then it was first, Valentine and then Victor passed Direct. Victor and Valentine were together at the head of the straight and there Victor began to draw away. Direct was out of it altogether. Victor opened a wide gap between himself and Valentine and jogged in under the wire ten lengths to the good of Valentine, Holly taking his horse back when he found that he was beaten. The people who had backed the field early in the game with such long odds in their favor were jubilant. They awaited the decision with patience. There was evidently something wrong in the judges' stand. It grew darker and darker and the crowd was more and more impatient. There had been a protest made that Victor had run on the backstretch. The Direct men were anxious. The decision finally came. It was that on account of the darkness the judges could not see the horses and the heat was therefore declared off, and the race would be called for the deciding heat the next day at one o'clock. The announcement was greeted with howls from one side and hisses from the other, and taunts were freely thrown at the judges. When they came down from the stand they were surrounded by the crowd and excited men demanded the cause of the decision and the reason for giving it. It was without a precedent and the people wanted to know what motive, if there was one, the judges had for their rendering upon the heat. C. S. Crittenden, the starting judge was seen by a representative of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and asked regarding the decision. His answer was that the judges couldn't tell what the horses were doing on the backstretch or at the head of the straight, and they thought the only thing they could do was to declare the heat off. George Doherty, the owner of Victor was mad, and very mad. He said that he could get 1,000 men who would swear that his horse won the race fairly, and that he would under no consideration start his horse the next day.

The Direct people got what they wanted. They put a pile of money on the horse, but he couldn't go more than two heats and quit in the third. When they knew he couldn't win they saw hope to save themselves only by a postponement. All sorts of rumors were in circulation, one being that Victor had been bought to help Direct out. He was to be driven for two heats, and by that time they would get a postponement. Victor won his heats all right, very near distancing Direct in the first. Then the Direct people were surprised by the bell calling them out for a sixth heat. Their only chance then was to have Valentine win the heat. But Johnny Goldsmith upset every calculation by driving Victor to win in the slow time of 2:29. The field crowd were happy until the decision came.

As to the injustice of the decision there is no question. It certainly stands without a precedent. If the darkness was such that the horses could not be plainly seen, then the race should have been postponed after the fifth heat, as everybody expected it would be. The great error was in starting them at all if there was any question about darkness.

C. S. Crittenden, R. T. Carroll and George Bement were in the stand upon the first race, but after that Mr. Carroll stepped down, and his place was taken by Dr. Latham.

Oakland Gossip.

Runners will draw a crowd every time.

The thoroughbreds are what attracts the ladies.

Not a single accident is reported in the bringing of the stables from Petaluma. A good many horses came by boat.

The Rosemeade stud was well represented in the 2:20 class. Four of the starters had the blood of The Moor in their veins.

What a corker the first running day was at Oakland for the fancy. With one exception they went wrong, and heavily wrong on everything.

The committee of one who was detailed to prepare the track did his work pretty well. It was in good condition both for running and trotting.

Lorita is the handiest breaker I ever saw. In a hot finish she will make two or three skips, get down in a flash, and go on like a shot. She doesn't lose an inch.

Longworth has been three out of four times beaten, but he has the honor of the two best heats in 2:19¾ at Petaluma and 2:19 at Oakland. This third good one of the get of Sidney may go in 2:15 before the circuit is over.

The betting was heavier Wednesday than upon any other day of the meeting. Everybody had money, and everybody was betting it. As soon as one race was over the pools began to sell and they kept on selling until the horses actually got the flag.

Lenmar, Margaret S., Wanda and a lot of other horses are off, and the opinion is that it is the result of working them too soon after an attack of epizootic. The disease was not well out of the system, and in most cases it has caused a weakness in the coupling.

If Palo Alto were only out of the :20 class, what a race it would be through the circuit. He spoils the best event on the programme by being too fast for the lot. After he had won at Oakland, Tuesday, Marvin brought him out for a jog and sent him a fourth mile in 2:20, coming the last half in 1:09.

Palo Alto is a great horse and is worthy the name he bears. In the third heat of the 2:20 class he could have come home in 2:16 with all ease, had not Marvin taken him back, seemingly to let the crowd in. Half a hundred people were shouting "come on!" when they saw him easing the horse up. They wanted to see him make a better race record.

What a betting race is the 2:25 class pace! With the exception of Petaluma, where Longworth took it in straight heats, it has been any horse's race, and one end is just as likely to win as the other. Lots of money goes in on those side-wheelers. It was a man with a long head who could hedge right on Tuesday's race. Very few of them did it.

Harry Agnew made a good purchase the other day at Petaluma in the mare Emma Temple. He got her of Tom Rochford, paying $3,000 for her. He bought an entry in the 2:30 class at Fresno for her, and will send her on through the circuit in the hands of Henry Helman, who handled her for her former owner. She is by Jackson Temple, dam by Emigrant.

For a horse that has seen life at the tongue of a water-cart and knows what hard work is, Frank, Holly's pacer, is not a bad one. It is not the first instance where a horse has been taken from the menial labor of a mule and put upon the track to develop into a world beater. Little Brown Jug had an experience something like that. Frank will scare everything in his class to death before the season is over.

I like the way the Palo Alto horses are ridden. In the Leland Stanford purse, Flambeau and Rico were one and two at the drawgate and had the race won, still the jocks drew their whips and slashed away, riding like demons, each one apparently endeavoring to win with just as much zeal as if they were not riding stable companions. Nobody is afraid to stake his dollars on a stable like that.

Palo Alto made a good start for the fall season, running one, two in the first race. Faustine disgraced them, though, in the George Hearst purse. A pile of money went in on the filly to win and for place, but she quit dead away when she was punished in the straight. Those who backed her wanted to lay her defeat to the bad start, but she was at no greater disadvantage than the others, getting off well up in the bunch.

It has been a long time since we have seen such big fields in the running events as Oakland had. The start made one think of a Derby day on an Eastern course. The association has done one thing for which it deserves commendation. The jockeys wore numbers on their sleeves to correspond with the number of the mount on the programme. It's the best known plan for identifying the horses to the crowd, and the State Fair might well follow suit.

J. B. Chase's filly Marigold who was to start in the Leland Stanford Purse, distinguished herself by twice throwing her jockey, Pierce. He was warming her up and was galloping her around the first turn when she stopped and tossed him over. He wasn't hurt and climbed up again, but at the head of the straight she swerved when under a gallop and threw the boy pretty hard. She took a gallop around the turn before being caught and was withdrawn for her caper. Pierce was a little groggy after the second fall, but had a mount on Glen Ellen in the second race.

Bi Holly is a man whom the ladies would call, in the language of the drawing-room, "cute," and in the parlance of the track, "smooth." It is rare that he makes an error in generalship in a race. A horse was never placed more precisely than he had Frank in the 2:25 class pace, and after the second heat Holly had the whole crowd just where he wanted them. When he was ten lengths behind at the three-quarter post in the third heat, and started his horse for the lead, he must have paced the quarter at a 2:10 gait. I never saw a horse begin his work that distance behind and cut down the crowd as he did.

The blood of old Norfolk showed itself in a good performance Wednesday. Duke Spencer ran a great race when he finished second to Longshot in the Hearst purse. He was not less than two seconds away from the leaders as they swung into the upper turn. He cut down the crowd one at a time, and when the head of the stretch was reached, he was somewhere back in about fifth place. The crowd spread out in the run home, and he came next the rails, and went through them like a shot, getting the place. The mile was made in 1:43, but he couldn't have run it in less than 1:41. He will do to watch.

It is a very unfortunate thing when a man goes into the judges' stand at Oakland. There seems to be a hoodoo upon the place, and something unpleasant is sure to happen. This year the opening day and opening race was signalized by one of the worst starts ever seen on a race track, and the tap of the bell was a blunder which distanced one horse and made a hard heat for some of the others. Then that was followed by the decision against Lorita in the second heat of the 2:50 class race Tuesday. Nobody expected anything worse than the giving of the heat to Hazel Wilkes or making it a dead heat, and there was a good deal of dissatisfaction when she was set back to fourth place. In the opinion of a very large majority the penalty was too great for the crime.

I never knew a decision to receive less unfavorable comment than that of the judges upon the Stoneman—Susie S. race. I rather think the jobbers were glad to get off with light punishment. The ruling off of both jockey and horse wouldn't have been too severe. It was the worst job seen since the Al Farrow affair of last spring. Cook got Susie off behind in the first heat and held her there until they were within twenty lengths of the wire, there he let the mare have her head and she ran in with a magnificent rush. He timed it very nicely. Two seconds sooner he couldn't have helped winning. In the second heat he tangled her at the start so as to give them a longer lead, and then came home under the whip, but the rawhide cut the air oftener than it did the mare. The judges are to be congratulated.

The weather was insufferably hot on the opening day and only a slim crowd attended. The half mile and repeat was not decent exercise for Johnny Gray, but the 2:30 class was a hard determined race from start to finish. There were seven heats and each of the last three had two to their credit at the end of the sixth. Worth Ober drove Allarita after the fifth heat, he and Linden having a very close call in the sixth when both sulkys upset. Luckily neither was much worse for their tumble, and Ober won the heat and race, Almonte being run very hard, finished in front of him but was set back to third place.

Half-Mile Heats, Running.

First Heat. Little or no pools selling, with Gray $10 to Dick $2. Dick jumped off in front, but bucking all round the turn, was passed by Gray, who won in a canter by four lengths. Time, :53¼.

Second Heat. They were sent off to an even start. Gray soon drew away, leading two lengths round the turn, and cantered home five lengths in front. Time :52½.

Three-minute Class—Trotting.

First Heat—Pools sold briskly at Almonta $20, Redwood $5, Field $5. They were started at the third attempt and went pretty even to the turn, where they all broke; Redwood catching handily, was six lengths in front of the rest at the quarter, Allarita second, a length in front of Almonta. The latter passed Allarita, but never got near Redwood, who won easily by five lengths, Almonta second, and Allarita third, the other pair distanced.

Second Heat—Almonta still sold favorite at $10 to Redwood $4 and Allarita $2 Almonta was quickest away, leading a length on the first turn which she increased to four on the backstretch, the others being head and head. Allarita gradually left Redwood and went in hot pursuit of Almonta, catching her half way down the stretch, carried her to a break, and though the latter came fast and was almost level fifty yards from home, both broke just before the wire, Allarita winning by the shortest of heads, Redwood seven lengths back. Time, 2:30.

Third Heat—Pools now veered round, Allarita bringing $20 to Almonta $5, and Redwood $3. The trio went very evenly to the turn, where Almonta broke, and Allarita went on leading six lengths at the quarter, the others even. Almonta trotted fast up the backstretch, getting to within a length of Allarita at the head of the homestretch, and after a hard drive down the straight, it was nip and tuck till Almonta broke, fifty yards from the wire, losing the heat by four lengths, Redwood close up. Time, 2:26¼.

Fourth Heat—Allarita now sold for $20 to the field $6. They were all on equal terms to the first turn, when both mares left their feet, and Redwood trotting steadily, was five lengths in front at the quarter, with Almonta ten clear of Allarita. Almonta, trotting fast, shortened the gap rapidly getting up to Redwood at the head of the stretch, with Allarita fifty yards back. Almonta was kept at work, getting four lengths in front an eighth from home, and driven hard, broke, and was run the last hundred yards under the whip, winning by thirty yards, with Allarita just inside. Time, 2.28½.

Fifth Heat—Allarita now sold for $10 to the field $5. Almonta went away very steadily, and Redwood breaking on the turn, she led Allarita two lengths all the way to the upper turn, where the latter broke, and going up again at the head of the stretch, Almonta won easily by eight lengths, Allarita ten in front of Redwood. Time, 2:32.

Sixth Heat—Betting was feverish still. Almont sold favorite at $10 to the field $5. Worth Ober now took Jack Cochran's place behind Allarita. Almonta had a length the best of the start, and trotting very steadily, led Allarita a length and a half round the turn and up the backstretch. When going round the turn Almonta broke, and colliding with Ober's sulky, both were thrown out. Allarita was stopped at the wire, but Almonta galloped once round the track before she was stopped. The heat was given to Redwood, who jogged home, Almonta being placed second. Time, 2:46.

Seventh Heat—No pools were sold, the trio being sent off in a very dim light. Almonta broke on the first turn and Allarita trotting very steadily, led Redwood six lengths up the backstretch, and keeping level, went under the wire a length behind Almonta, who was run hard from the half-mile to the seven-eighth pole, and catching when two lengths in front, trotted under the wire. Redwood was placed second and Almonta third for running. Time, 2:35.

WEDNESDAY.

Three races were on the card a nearest to a four minutes event. The mile dash was only a good gallop for Applause, the 2:40 trotting was won handily by Rabe after losing the first heat. The special was a good betting race, Agnew was made a hot favorite in the first two heats with Pasha second choice in the last heat. Marvin brought $20 to the field $10, and won a good race. Messrs. Biggs and Lowell were both about 30 pounds overweight. Dude showed plenty of pace but was very erractic.

Mile Dash—Running.

Applause sold a red hot favorite for $20 to the field $10. When the flag fell at third attempt Applause was a length behind, but straightening out took the inside going round the turn and led Johnny Gray a length with Hotspur eight lengths in the rear. The favorite kept in front all the way, winning hands down by four lengths, Hotspur finished second, ridden hard for half a mile he caught Gray on the upper turn and finished thirty yards in front of him, Sir Thad last.

2:40 Class, Trotting.

First Heat. Pools sold briskly, with Rabe $20, Fedora $9 and the field $5. After several attempts, owing to the narrow track, they were started in two rows with Rabe outside the last row. When the bell was sounded Rabe was level with the front line, and trotting fast was in front on the turn, when he left his feet and fell back last. Blaine took the lead, and trotting steadily, was three lengths to the good when he got on his quarter and broke badly, Fedora and Rosa both passing him, and then Rabe. The two mares trotted together round the turn, with Rabe closing fast. When fairly in the homestretch Rabe passed both the mares and was a length in front a furlong from home, but breaking, was beaten a neck by Fedora, Rosa a moderate third, Belle A. a distanced. Time, 2:31½.

Second Heat. Pools now sold, Rabe $20, Fedora $12, field $5. They were soon sent away, Rabe going right out, with Rosa second and Fedora third. The latter took second place at the quarter, and followed Rabe home four lengths behind all the way. Dennison kept his horse going all the time, shutting Almont and Blaine (who broke all to pieces) out. Time 2:25.

Third Heat. It was now considered a certainty for Rabe, who again went away very fast. Dinah broke at once and Fedora broke on the turn. Rabe led Rosa six lengths past the quarter, Fedora a length back third, and Dinah away back, still unsettled. Rabe increased his lead, and Fedora, passing Rosa, was ten lengths behind Rabe round the turn, the latter winning easily by ten yards, Fedora about the same in front of Rosa, and Dinah distanced. Time 2:27.

Fourth Heat. The race was all over when the trio were started. Dennison again cut loose soon, having a clear lead of six lengths, and though he lost six lengths by a break on the upper turn, he was four lengths to the good at the wire. Rosa, who broke badly at the half, was distanced. Time 2:27¼.

Special Trotting Race.

First Heat—Agnew was at once installed first choice, finally settling down to $20, Pasha $16, and the field $4. After some delay they were started; Ouida going to the front, led Marvin two lengths to the quarter, Agnew five further back. Marvin broke, and Ouida increased her lead, Pasha closing up on Marvin, but both breaking at the half mile, Ouida went round the turn five lengths in front; Pasha, Marvin and Agnew were all about level, and when well in the homestretch Marvin and Agnew went for Ouida, and though she stayed on her feet, she had not pace or condition enough, Marvin winning by two lengths, Agnew a good length in front of Ouida. Time, 2:29.

Second Heat—Agnew still sold first choice for $10, with Pasha bringing $6 and the field $4. When the word was given Dude broke, Marvin cutting out the work with Agnew on his wheel to the quarter, when the stallion left his feet, and Agnew had a five lengths' lead, when he settled down a length in front of Pasha, who broke at the half. The gray mare retained her advantage to the stretch, when the others closed up a little, Dude trotting well last; three hundred yards from home Agnew broke all to pieces, and Marvin won handily by three lengths from Pasha, Dude two further back, Agnew last. Time, 2:30.

Third Heat—Agnew was driven by Eddy. Pools veered round, Marvin selling for $15 to the field $7.50. This time Pasha went out, leading Agnew a length to the quarter, and then broke; Marvin, who was four lengths behind, followed suit. Agnew kept going very steadily at the three-quarters, being three lengths in front of Pasha and Marvin, who had both broken on the turn. Marvin closed up a little, and Dude trotted rapidly into third position. Agnew looked all over a winner until forty yards from the wire, when she broke badly, Marvin beating her a length, Pasha a bad third. Time, 2:32½.

Our Australian Letter.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The expatriation of the Australian sires, Sir Modred, Darebin and Cheviot, to your shores will, no doubt, open up greater interest in America with regard to racing matters this side of the line, and in this connection I propose sending you by each mail a column or so of colonial racing most likely to interest the readers of your journal. The Australian horse promises in the near future to make its mark on the thoroughbred animal in the States, and outside the three stallions above mentioned, the racing career of the Australian pair owned by Senator Hearst of California, are under the eager surveillance of Australian breeders, as their success must as a necessity cause a further demand for Australian bred youngsters.

In England, also, horsemen are beginning to wonder what sort of animals we breed out here, when an Australian, Ringmaster, at best a third rater, is sent home to make a name for himself.

News of the doings in the States of the progeny of Sir Modred and Darebin are closely looked after by us Australians, and regret is now expressed on all sides that the pair should ever have been suffered to leave the colonies. With regard to their get out here, your readers will no doubt be conversant with the career of that really great horse Australian Peer, by Darebin, out of Stockdove. Nearly all the Peer's great races have been with Mr. White's magnificent colt Abercorn, by Chester, dam Cinnamon, and the pair won race for race in a most extraordinary manner. The Peer ran third to Abercorn's win of the A. J. C. (Sydney) Derby of 1887, but turned the tables by winning the Victorian Derby from Mr. White's crack. He next beat Abercorn for the Canterbury Stakes, but Abercorn asserted himself when he defeated the Peer in both the Flemington (Victoria) and A. J. C. (N. S. Wales) St. Legers. Then the Peer reversed matters by winning the Cumberland Stakes from Abercorn, but went under to Abercorn in the A. J. C. Plate, three miles. Their four-year-old career opened with a win for the Peer in the Randwick Spring Stakes, but Abercorn's turn came in the Craven Plate, when the Peer had to cry second fiddle. The Peer's other big wins were the Randwick Plate, three miles; Sydney Cup, two miles, and Melbourne Stakes, one and one-quarter miles. What a time either owner would have had with the other dear charmer away.

Antaeus, a fine colt by Sir Modred out of Millie, now in his third year, is looked upon by the knowing ones as an animal likely to make a name for himself. At the Randwick (Sydney) autumn meeting he annexed the First Nursery Handicap, and at Tattersall's meeting (Sydney) in June, he won the Flying Handicap.

Little Bernie, a colt by Cheviot, dam Myrtle, also shows himself composed of the right stuff. He won the Nursery Handicap at Warwick Farm (near Sydney), and ran seconds in both second Nursery Handicaps at the Randwick Autumn and Sydney Turf Club meetings.

West Lynne is a magnificent colt by Darebin, and the writer will not be surprised if he turns out a flyer. At the Canterbury (near Sydney) March meeting he came in first in the double, Park Stakes and Steward's mile, but was disqualified from the first event for alleged crossing.

Maggie, a four-year-old by Darebin, dam Margaret, is owned by Mr. T. Sampson, a brother of the world-known Pendragon of the London Referee. As a two-year-old she made one win, and ran three times into a place; and as a three-year-old she added one winning bracket and ran once into a place. Grand Chester, a three-year-old by Darebin, dam Esmeralda, as a two-year-old never failed to run into a place, making two wins, one second and two-thirds.

The four big handicaps to be run between this date and November next in New South Wales and Victoria are the Hawkesbury Handicap (September 14th) and the Metropolitan Stakes (24th September) in the former colony; and the Caulfield Cup (October 19th) and Melbourne Cup (5th November in the latter. For the Metropolitan, Abercorn heads the list with 9st, 7 lbs., Australian Peer next with 9st, 4lbs., and then with 9st, 2lbs., Arsenal, the Melbourne Cup winner of 1886, an old gentleman, by the way, whom they are now running with a sort of muzzle, as he has taken a fancy to now and then dine off the leg of the rider who may be up on the horse accompanying him in his work. The Darebin colt West Lynne and the Sir Modred Antaeus are engaged in the Metropolitan at 7st 4 lbs. and 7st 2lbs. respectively. The three horses most likely to interest Americans in the Caulfield Cup are Grand Chester, Maggie and Little Bernie, the Darebin and Cheviot youngsters.

For the Melbourne Cup, the race of all races in Australia, the Champion Carbine heads the list at 10 stone, Mentor and Abercorn are on an equality at 9 st, 10lbs., and of the 128 horses entered for the event, Darebin's son, Australian Peer, holds fourth place at 9 st, 6 lbs. The Career of Carbine, the mighty son of the mightiest of Australian sires, the recently deceased Musket, is a wonderful one. As a two-year old he was never beaten, scoring five wins, and as a three-year-old he won nine races, ran three seconds and one-third. In the Victorian Derby, owing to execrable riding, he was defeated by Ensign, a horse to whom he could have given many pounds and a beating.

The importation of American trotting stallions is beginning to make itself felt in Australia by improvement in the class of buggy and light horses generally, but as a sport, trotting has not yet taken a big hold—in fact any hold at all—upon the general public, being conducted in such a loose manner that it fairly stinks in the nostrils of honest men. Nearly all trotting races in the vicinity of Sydney come off on a track on the Agricultural Society's ground. It was tried by a couple of the Suburban race course proprietors, but the swindling was so apparent that they declined to hold any further trotting matches on their courses. Seven stallions imported from America by Mr J. Burns were offered for auction in Sydney on 18th of July, but only three found purchasers: Judge Belden, by Elmo, from Prentice, record 2:31, brought 370 guineas; Bonner Jr., by Bonner, brought 250 guineas, and Ben Hur, by Elmo from Nora Marshall, went at 125 guineas. With regard to the records imported with your horses, either our miles must be longer than yours or our watches go faster, but certain it is that they leave their record behind them in the States, and go in for a newer—and slower one—in the colonies.

The four horses sent to England with the idea of showing Britishers the stuff Australian nags are made of have arrived safely in the old country, and if breeding and appearance go for anything, the pair bred to English time and destined for the English Derby should anything but disgrace their native heather, if they toe the scratch fit and well. Narellan, by Chester, from Princess Maud, is full brother to Acme, a "real" lady who in one month ran third in the Summer Cup, mile and a half, won Carrington Stakes, one mile, won Tattersall's Cup, two miles, and second to Cardigan in the Anniversary Handicap. The other colt, Kirkham, by Chester, from La Princesse, is full brother to Cranbrook, who as a three-year-old secured five winning brackets. The other horse, owned by Mr. James White, Plutarch, is perhaps the most unlucky horse that ever sported silk, having ran no less than eleven seconds. He is by Mr. White's favorite Sire Chester from Cameo, and taking a line from Ringmaster's performances in England, should be up to his neck in it if not crushed by the handicappers. Lady Betty, the fourth horse of the string, is by St. Albans, from Pardon, and her two-year-old performances were all winning ones. At weight for age, for a mile, she beat the sterling Cranbrook, who won the Newmarket Handicap, six furlongs, with 8st. 12 lbs. up in 1:14⅛.

Outside the racing men proper, the general public are taking a big interest in the welfare of the quartette, and should either of the colts appropriate the Epsom Derby, no one in Australia will cast his hat higher in the air than your humble servant. "THE JUNGLE."

Galloway and Angus Cattle.

Killip & Co., the live stock auctioneers, will sell at public auction on the morning of September 20th, at Sacramento, during the State Fair meeting, the finest collection of Galloway and Angus cattle ever offered in the State. They are the property of the Inter State Galloway Cattle Company, which, as the records show, have imported more first-class cattle into California than any other firm. These cattle are now at Sacramento, and can be seen by those who may think of purchasing. They are all registered in the American-bred books, so that there can be no mistake as to the breeding.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Mr. I. L Miller of Bakerfield, is in the city for his annual enjoyment of salty breezes and metropolitan pleasures. His recent trip to Mount Whitney left him brown and sound as a nut. His stories of big trout are calculated to make confinement at ordinary labor still more irksome.

Mr. Chas. Studarus, at Routiers, Sacramento Co., is said to have in training a setter that promises to walk away with the Pacific Coast all aged stake in January. Mr. Studarus is enthusiastic and expends a great deal of time and labor upon his dog. The animal is a half brother of Mr. Chris. Ecklon's Trix, winner five years ago at White Rock.

The exportation of fine stock to Japan is notable. Mr. Andrew Smith of Redwood City, sent sixty nine head down recently, two of them Holsteins, one a Jersey, and the rest thoroughbred and grade Durhams. The cattle endured the voyage well, and received the best of care, both on their journey and after reaching their destination.

Judge C. N. Post of Sacramento, having been called to San Francisco by business before the Supreme Court, on Monday last, allotted an hour or two to his friends in this office. He reports his English setters all well except famous old Sweetheart. Heart's last litter was a heavy one, and as other demands on her owner's time compelled some neglect, the bitch suffered considerably, and is not yet entirely beyond danger.

Mr. O. H. Lockhart, at Burbank, Cal., asks for the addresses of some breeders of foxhounds. In so far as we know Mr. Dan Murphy, of the Coyote Kennels breeds the only pure English foxhounds on the coast, but whether he cares to dispose of any of his dogs we do not know. Breeders of native foxhounds are Mr. W. S. Kittle, of this city, and Mr. George Rainey, of Napa.

Mr. George T. Allender writes from Watsonville that the dogs in his charge are all in good form. Of the imported pointer bitch Sall, owned by William Schreiber, Esq, of this city, he says that she is showing splendid nose, pace and staying power, but is rather hard to train because of stubbornness. Mr. Allender will be glad to learn that Mr. Schreiber's other importation Nester is fat, saucy and handsome.

Denver Sports Afield always brings good news, and its latest issue presents this most gratifying editorial assurance: "Western breeders and admirers of thoroughbred dogs will be glad to hear that everything now points to the approaching Continental Kennel Club's show proving a most successful one. It will be held in Denver three days, commencing November 14, 15 and 16. The many railroads centering at this point have all shown a desire to treat the dogmen liberally as regards transportation, and Sports Afield looks to see a number of the most prominent kennels in the country on deck with flying colors."

The very pleasant correspondent and discriminating fancier of cocker spaniels, Mr. M. P. McKoon, writes from El Cajon, San Diego County, as follows: "I do intend and wish to write a few little articles upon breaking cockers, docking, breeding, etc, for BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, but I never seem to get the time, my health being poor and my fruit farm, kennel and tent business occupy my time so fully, that I find little time for other than business correspondence. I will probably make a fetch of it in time, however."

The Ohio Field Trial Club was organized last week at Wooster, O. Following is a list of officers: President. Hon M. L. Smyzer; vice-president, Capt. A. S. McClure; secretary and treasurer, John Bolus; executive committee, John H. Law, F. J. Mullin, C. E White, J. F. Marchant and A. M. Parrish; committee on grounds, Messrs Clark, Jones' Lake, Horn, Huffstott and Ebright. The trials will probably be run near Wooster about the middle of November. Only one stake will be run this year, a free-for-all, with $10 forfeit and $15 additional to start. Entry blanks and full particulars can be obtained by addressing the secretary, John Bolus, Wooster, O.

Mr. Chas. L. Lundy, of Cincinnati, who will be remembered as an Arizona correspondent of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, and also as the gentlenan who sold that dainty bit of pointer flesh, Surf, to Mr. W. S. Kittle, writes:—

"You ask if I will have anything to do with ki-yi's The enclosed clipping from last night's Covington, Ky., paper answers the question fully."

[The clipping says: "A dog case, already quite celebrated, was the occasion again this morning of a spirited war of words between Judge Phelps and Charles L. Lundy, attorneys in the case. Joe Smith, a bartender living at 132 Longworth street, Cincinnati, is, or rather was, the owner of a fine setter dog that he had listed for taxation at $100. Frank Ery, who had a grievance against Smith, took the dog and brought it to his brother-in-law's, Henry Kleinschbrodt, place, 21 Oliver street, this city. Smith learned of the dog's hiding place, and going to Kleinschbrodt's found the latter asleep and took charge of the dog, and while en route to Cincinnati was not a little mystified to meet Kleinschbrodt armed with a six-shooter, who told Smith to deliver or die. The dog, although known to be stolen, was taken back, and now the legal war is to get possession of the setter. Kleinschbrodt promised to be in court this morning with the dog, and his failure to put in an appearance gave rise to the war. Mr. Lundy caused a warrant to be issued for Kleinschbrodt, charging him with grand larceny, and if he refuses to go to Cincinnati to stand trial, the necessary requisition papers will be procured. Judge Phelps maintains that Mayor Althy has jurisdiction in the premises, and will insist on him trying the case, and what the result will be remains to be seen."]

When that crazy Kentuckian flashed his gun I did not have a word to say. His four words "drop that dog quick" were the most powerful argument I ever listened to. Judge Phelps, the attorney against me is considered good, but his client's gun had more eloquence, (effective) in a minute, than did the Judge' entire argument of more than an hour. If you have ever looked into a "big one" you appreciate this fact.

As for my individual dogs have only got two, an old do not smile saying you never yet saw a good one—Gordon and one of his get. I picked him up two seasons ago for a song, from a farmer while out on a hunt, no pedigree, and terribly homely.

But he is not for sale. He is the rangiest, truest, best single and dead bird dog I ever worked, a bit unsteady on covey, or in company, but good enough for me. I bagged more than 500 over him in a single season, and really do not believe that I lost a single dead one. Do you blame me for sticking to him, particularly when he is equally good on all kinds, land and water?

ARTICLE XXII. CONSTITUTION OF THE AMERICAN KENNEL CLUB.

The business management of the American Kennel Club Stud-Book shall be subjected to the direction of a committee of three, elected by a majority of the delegates present at the annual meeting of the Club, and shall render account to the Association annually at such meeting.

At a meeting of the Stud-Book Committe held August 22, it was deemed advisable to make a public explanation of the reason for which the registration fee is to be increased after Jan 1, 1890, to the sum of one dollar. Two or three protests against the action of this committee having appeared in some of the sporting papers, expressing the hope that the American Kennel Club at its next meeting would rescind our action, makes it necessary to go back to the establishment of the official Stud-Book. From January 1, 1887, to March 1, 1888, some fifteen months, the Stud-Book was in the charge of and compiled by the Secretary of the Club. It was an experiment, its future could not be foretold. In order to meet the necessary expenses a large number of the friends of the club advertised in the book, and notwithstanding this increase of its income, the club could not afford to pay even a fair salary for the work the Stud-Book entailed. Owing to the increased business of the Stud-Book this committee, on March 1, 1888, appointed an editor of the book, and demanded of him his entire time and attention, and yet could not afford to fix and pay a stated salary. The two years experience of both the Secretary and the Editor showed them conclusively that the cost of publishing each entry was greater than the amount charged for it, and this induced the Secretary to bring the matter before the American Kennel Club at its meeting December 6, 1888. By referring to the official record of that meeting published in the January issue of the American Kennel Gazette, and also in the several sporting journals the week following the meeting, the following extract from the proceedings will be found:

Mr. Vredenburgh called attention to the registration fee which at present is fifty cents, and advocated in cases of voluntary registration the charge of one dollar. On suggestion of Mr Hitchcock the matter was left to the Stud-Book Committee.

By this action the American Kennel Club evidently thought that the Stud-Book Committee was in a better position to determine this matter than the club itself was, and accordingly gave this committee power to act as its judgment dictated. When the fee of fifty cent was originally fixed it was by action of this committee, which is elected annually by the American Kennel Club, and this same committee was given the power to increase it to one dollar if it was found necessary to do so.

The committee determined to permit the old fee to remain in force for the year 1889, and now gives five month's notice of the increased fee. Our reasons for the increase are as follows: The cost of composition, printing, electrotyping, stock, and binding of each volume is about thirty-three cents for each entry. To this must be added the salary of the compiler of the book, a proportionate share of office rent, postage, and stationery; these combined swell the total cost of the publication of each entry to a fraction over eighty-one cents. Since January 1, 1889, the Stud-Book has paid its editor a stated salary on the last day of each and every month, together with its share of its other legitimate expenses, and when the present volume is published and paid for the result will be that it has been published at a loss of over thiry-one cents on each and every entry that the book contains. We desire to state in this connection that the income and expense of the Stud-Book is kept entirely separate and distinct from the other departments of the American Kennel Club, and the Stud-Book does not pay the American Kennel Gazette for the monthly publication of the preliminary registrations that have been assigned Stud-Book number, said publication being entirely complimentary.

The other resolution unfavorably commented upon, has been forced upon the committee. Persons from all sections are continually requesting to be furnished with extended pedigrees of dogs that are registered in the several Stud-Books that are kept at the office of the American Kennel Club. These requests are becoming so frequent, and to comply consumes so much time, that the committee deems it necessary to charge for the work, and fixed the reasonable sum of fifty cents, for which is issued an official certificate of a pedigree, including the fourth generation when possible, and duly signed by the Secretary of the Club.

Chesapeake Bay Dogs.

Dr. H. H. Smith, of Malvern, Iowa, kindly sends a few notes about Chesapeake Bay dogs, of which he breeds many. He says:—

The Chesapeake Bay dogs originated, without doubt, on the east shores of Chesapeake Bay and evidently came from a pair of small Labrador or Newfoun land dogs that were taken off from a wrecked vessel bound to England from Labrador. The pair were brought to Baltimore and the dog was taken to the east shore. These dogs, belonging to the family of retrievers, and being strongly possessed of these qualities, soon made their mark among the wild fowl shooters. The dog was bred to natives that were noted retrievers; the matter of pedigree was ignored, and the principle of a dog being a fine performer would impart the same quality to his progeny was the course pursued.

Several of the produce passed into the hands of the wealthy Ducking Clubs along the Chesapeake Bay, where they have been kept in purity and judiciously bred. The members of these clubs priding themselves in the great excellence of their dogs, refused to part with them at any price. And those that have had the good luck to secure any of the produce of these dogs have much to be thankful for. All along the Chesapeake Bay can be found dogs that are called Chesapeakes, but to any man that has seen the dogs of Carroll Island and Maxwell's Point (which are without doubt the purest in existence) there is no comparison.

When developed they weigh from 50 to 70 lbs., about 24 inches at the shoulder. Their coat in color, texture and general appearance resembles a faded Buffalo robe but more dense. White feet and toe tips are admissable, sometimes a stripe between the eyes. The coat seems almost impervious to water and with a few shakes it seems virtually dry. They are strong powerful dogs with indomitable courage always able to take care of themselves. Kind and companionable to those they know. Very watchful of their master's interest but woe unto the tramp or prowler that comes into his premises, they will be welcomed with a sharp bark of warning and the sooner they vacate that locality the better.

They are natural retrievers from water. No weather, ice or current will ever stop them, the hotter the shooting the more fierce they are in their work. No other dog can stand the exposure and hard work they can. Imported Irish Water Spaniels and other Retrievers have been tried beside them on the Chesapeake and have become so nearly exhausted that a boat had to be sent to their rescue. They are very fast swimmers, and when pursuing a wounded duck if it dives they dive also. Possessed of keen sensitive noses it matters not how dense or impenetrable the marsh is, if they once get the scent of the duck that is down they find and fetch it. Quitting or refusing to go is not in their vocabulary.

They are hardy and easily raised; I never lost one by disease. To retain their wonderful qualities they must be bred in their purity, they will not stand out crossing. I have bred them to Irish Water Spaniels, Setters and Retrievers and he result is anything but satisfactory.

THE GUN.

Mr. J. H. Mangels, of this city, returned on August 4th from a trip around the world, which has occupied him for a little more than two years. The tour embraced pretty much all the world but Africa, and the clear headed young San Franciscan brought back a rare store of experiences together with loads of more tangible souvenirs, such as photographs of noted places, and curios. Such an opportunity as that so well improved by Mr. Mangels is rarely afforded, and it may be said that few travellers so well improve their opportunities. Mr. Mangels will furnish some reminiscences to us from time to time.

The letters about Mongolian pheasants which have recently appeared in this paper, have been widely quoted, and have excited remark in many circles. That they differ so remarkably it seems may be attributed more to lack of exact knowledge on the part of some of the writers, than to any peculiarity of the birds which could give rise to the variations in beliefs. Mr. Loud rather seems to establish his position as one thoroughly versed in the habits of the pheasants, and he is unmistakably opposed to them for the reason that they do not lie to the dog. To our mind that is not an conclusive reason for their non-introduction. In so far as we can learn, pheasants do not lie well to a dog anywhere, but are most advantageously hunted by driving them—the shooters being posted either in open ways through woods or on the outskirts of copses, while beaters thresh about through the covers and put the birds out. In England, we believe, the practice is to shoot them only as we have indicated. Whether the Chinese bird affords good sport over dogs in China, cannot be ascertained, but the probability is that his English congener is about the same bird in habits. If we are right in the suppositions offered, then the desirability of the pheasant must depend upon other qualities than mere lying to dogs. If the bird is good food, breeds rapidly, does not destroy quail and other ground-nesting game birds, it might well be introduced. Mr. Loud is quite certain that quail and ruffed grouse disappear in proportion as the Mongolian pheasant multiplies, but he does not offer positive information on the point. We shall be glad to receive the ideas of our readers generally on the pheasant question. The Fish Commission is anxious to learn the desires of sportsmen about game birds to be introduced to California, and we hope there will be a free expression of preferences, to the end that the importation and acclimation may begin at once.

The inquiries about the coming meeting of the State Sportsman's Association, which begins at San Jose on October 9th next, indicate a very general interest in the event. An effort is being made to induce teams from Seattle, Tacoma and Portland to attend as well as from San Diego, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and other Southern cities. It is by no means a slight undertaking for a team to do practice work, travel seven or eight hundred miles, and spend the better part of a week at the meeting shooting continuously, but the coming gathering is so rich in the trophies offered and will be such a rare convention in its personelle that it will be well worth the time and trouble to any one of twenty experts in the North and fully as many in the South. The meeting will be exclusively a trap meeting, except that a little routine business must be transacted. The Secretary of the Association urges those clubs and individual members who are in arrears for dues to remit to him before October 1st.

Most effective work is being done by the Fish Commission just now in the way of preventing the trapping and sale of quails. The Commission has deputized a large number of sportsmen, all of whom are on the alert, to detect the presence of birds in the markets and restaurants. The remark make by President Stackpool of the "Sportsmen's Protective Association," that "the Commission was inert" was made in ignorance of what is actually being done. Only last week Deputy Commissioner F. P. Callundan accompanied by a sportsman of this city, visited San Mateo County and established a system of espionage on shooters which will prevent the shipping of quails from the towns in that county. Mr. Callundan travelled through a wide extent of quail ground, destroying traps, learning the names of men on whose lands traps were found, and gathering information about the pot shooters who have been in the habit of slipping into the country about San Francisco just before the opening of the season and killing birds for sale to certain disreputable restaurants, the owners of which are so regardless of decency and the law as to covetly offer unseasonable game to their patrons. The restaurants are being visited by specially appointed men, and whenever a proprietor can be found in possession of quails, other than canned birds, an arrest and prosecution will follow. The matter of securing evidence is always a difficult one to encompass, and it is only by conjoined efforts that the guilt of trespassers can be established. Mr. Callundan appointed some seven or eight deputies in San Mateo County, selecting only these men who were recommended as discreet, close-mouthed and nervy. The men selected were advised that the commission would stand by them solidly in all proper efforts to stamp out trapping and illegal shooting. If the Fish Commission receives the unreserved support of sportsmen and anglers, the coming year will be a sultry one for poachers.

Sportsmen's Protective Association.

The association met in Knights of the Red Branch Hall, corner ofMason and O'Farrell streets, on Tuesday evening last. After reading and approval of the minutes, the report of the Board of Directors was asked for and Mr. J. L. Durkee reported that he had not been able to get the directors together, but hoped to do so at some day in the near future. President Stackpool remarked that the whole matter of enforcement of the game and fish laws must rest with the Fish Commission. He was informed that quail were openly offered at the tables of many restaurants in San Francisco, but the Fish Commission overlooked and tolerated the misdemeanor. He could not understand the apathy of the Commission in the face of public opinion, which was setting so strongly for publication.

Treasurer's report—$199.70 balance on hand. A communication from E. A. Wolf, urging the association to adopt a badge or pin for use of members was referred to the Board of Directors.

The following were proposed for membership: Ben F. Naphthaly, John Kerrigan, H. B Goslinger, J. H. Van Buskirk, John T. Beggs, Arthur Preese, Ike Comison, C. H. Metz. On motion of Mr. M. Campbell it was ordered that the treasurer deliver to any member in good standing, four tickets entitling him to reduced fare over the S. F. N P. R. R. Members to be entitled to more tickets if desired. On motion of T. Kennedy ordered that an attorney be engaged to furnish a statement of the law in relation to the rights of shooters to go upon levees to shoot, and also to define accurately what constitutes a fence or inclosure.

In response to an invitation from President Stackpool, a visiting sportsman recited his opinions in relation to the right of travelers along a highway to enter upon adjacent lands for the purpose of shooting thereupon. The speaker was not acquainted with any statute permitting such entry, and in his remarks entered upon a discussion of the principles which should guide gentlemen and sportsmen in the practice of shooting and fishing. He thought that the principle noblesse oblige should control, and could not see how any one entitled to be called "sportsman" could go where fellow-craftsmen had acquired exclusive shooting or fishing privileges. The disposition to go all lengths to harass those who chose to form shooting clubs and secure control of marshes should not be cultivated. The speaker could not see why owners of land should not, if they chose, transfer to clubs the shooting privileges on their property, nor could he understand why the clubs were not entitled to the fullest protection under the law.

Mr. Thomas Kennedy very forcibly differed with the opinions advanced. He deprecated the maintenance of shooting preserves and insisted that access to lands upon which game might be found should be perfectly free to all. He regarded the establishment of preserves as a retrogade movement, and the entering wedge which might result in the disruption of free institutions. Mr. Kennedy strongly urged members of the Association not to forget that the central principal of the organization was opposition to exclusive shooting rights. Mr. M. Campbell followed in a similar strain, and grew fairly eloquent in his animadversions upon the ways and motives of those who were leasing shooting rights and establishing preserve clubs. Mr. Thomas Haggerty agreed with both of the preceding speakers. The discussion then became general, President Stackpool supporting the opposition to the preserves, and being followed by all of those who spoke. The Association then adjourned.

To the top of Mt. Whitney.

BY C. E. SHERMAN.

Eight certain gentlemen of Bakersfield, of varied professions and with diverse interests in every day affairs, resolved with one accord to go upon a pilgrimage; enduring the hardships of a weary way; plodding by road and trail over long miles of uninhabited lands, and toiling with patience down, up and over steep defiles, to the end that three rewards might be fairly won, namely: the grand presence of the everlasting hills; royal fishing, and the summit of the highest shrine in the Sierra Nevada chain.

Whereupon, fully equipped, on July 3, 1889, this band of zealous pilgrims left the town of Bakersfield. The faithful record of their itinerary, by their own courtesy, will be narrated in these columns from time to time, until the tale is told. Roster:—H. A. Blodget, H. F. Condict, George Daggett, W. E. Houghton, E. T. Houghton, I. L. Miller, A. J. Moulty and Jose Peralta. Items—Thirteen saddle and pack animals, accontered; tools, artistic, scientific and murderous; eatables, various and ample; servicable comforts for the night watches; snake poison; attic salt and a modicum of social pepper sauce. Name:—The Mt. Whitney Photo Campers.

Even as clans, at the order of their chieftain gather at one assembling place, so by team and by rail the pilgrims set out for the rendezvous at Caliente, where packing and general tribulation was ordered to commence. Animal nature comes out strong at the outset of things and did the same here. One unruly horse scattered his pack to about seven winds of heaven and wasted snake poison enough for many days' needs. One lazy mule invited and received cordwood treatment, accompanied with proper objurgations, yet not until his rider had been almost given up for lost. But he was retrieved in splendid order. Leaving Caliente at 1 P. M., the watering trough was reached at 1:30, where a halt was called and the mystic rites of rest and refreshment were indulged in until 3. At 6:15 P. M. Pilgrim camp was struck at Walkers Basin. Elevation at watering trough 2,200 feet. Temperature, watering trough, 2 P. M., July 30th, 102 degrees; Walkers Basin, 5 A. M., July 31st, 86 degrees. The gorgeous shower bath under Basin Creek dam was fully improved, and in the early evening hours the ladies, resident and visitant, honored the pilgrims by flocking en masse to their camp.

WALKERS BASIN

Never really was discovered; it grew. In the early days of the world, probably in the Jurassic age, it was an irregular sided, but in the main, a triangular shaped rift between massive cliffs, with narrow outlet, and a main, broader inlet. The slickens of Time have filled in and leveled up the jagged canyon, until it is now indeed a basin; its sides the now rounded mountains; its bottom fairly level, gently sloping to a westerly outlet, and perhaps at its greatest, four miles across by seven or eight miles in length. It has also a lesser inlet that is itself a lesser basin from its surrounding hills to its outpour into the larger creation. Early in the 50's Joe Walker, the noted scout, trapper and pioneer camped here, and from him and its own fitness comes the title, Walkers Basin. In 1855, Charles Weick, the first settler there, built a cabin near the present bridge over Basin Creek, and took up 160 acres of land. He was a German, intelligent, bright, and a great reader. His remains now lie in their last earthly home, upon a little knoll over-looking what was once all his own, and within perhaps 200 yards of the dwelling which he built, wherein he lived, dreamed his dreams, spun his fancies, and finally passed beyond all his earthly hopes, imaginings and ambitions. Peace to his soul! Later in the same year Robert Wilson took up the present Lightner place, and built an adobe which still stands as part of the house at the Lightner homestead. He had a Spanish wife and bands of wild Mexican horses and cattle. In 1855 or '56 the United States Surveyor-General sent out a party which ran lines and established corners in the valley. John R. Beck brought in the first American family, when his dear ones came and settled with him there in 1857. A neat cemetery, with iron railings marks the spot where he placed his beloved dead.

In the fall of 1858 Abiah T. Lightner, with his family, moved into the Basin, and bought the Wilson ranch with its stock of cattle and horses. And upon the same place still stands the Lightner homestead, occupied by his decendants, with doors open wide to welcome guests, and never shut in the face of passing strangers. In '62 and '63 the Owens River Indians became hostile, and in 1864 the whole band were captured by U. S. forces under the command of Captain McLaughlin and taken to Fort Tejon. Many got away, and as refugees, for a while haunted the country between the Basin and the Keysville mines. At that time mining supplies were packed in from Allen's Camp—now known as Caliente—or were hauled in via Mejave and Kelsoe Canyon. Several times teamsters and travelers were ambushed by these Indians. A group of three surprised Mason, a Mexican, and in the melee, during which he fired several shots, two of his fingers were shot off. He finally left his mule and succeeded in escaping. At another time a train was ambushed and everything taken. Three teamsters were killed and only one man escaped, W. F. Dawson, now living in Tehachipa, who actually outran the hostile Indians. D. W. Walser's present place was originally called Harmon's hay ground. Harmon cut natural hay there as early as '56 and used to haul it to the mines, going on the ridges, with logs hitched behind at the descents and at the last and steepest one, snubbing the load down with ropes. In the Spring of 1867 Wm. H. Williams, known to this day as Hamp Williams, while herding cattle, accidentally discovered rich gold croppings sticking out of the ground. He sold the prospect, without striking a pick into it, for $2,000 to Hank Burdette, and then the noted Joe Walker mine began to become famous. The cropping showed gold throughout, and for 83 feet the shaft carried a 4-foot vein of very rich quartz, with a seam on the foot wall worth thousands of dollars in gold per ton. The cropping had often been seen before, but everyone had carelessly eyed it, and the general opinion was that it was only part of a feldspar dyke. A twenty stamp mill was erected, and for a long time the output averaged $1,000 a day.

Down in the depths of the earth, one day while working in the hanging wall, an underground reservoir, or a hitherto hidden water course was tapped. A stream nearly the size of a man's body, suddenly shot out with tremendous force and the miners had hardly time to escape before the mine was full of water. There is a legend that the ore continues rich at the present depth of 400 feet, and two different attempts have been made, both unsatisfactory, to handle the water and resume mining. There are those who say that the ledge has little value in the lower workings, but that great body of water has for many years sealed the secret. On February 12, 1867, Abiah T. Lightner left his home at 2 o'clock in the morning, with a load of hay for the Havilah mining camp.

At the foot of the first hill a passing Mexican met the team with the overturned wagon, and going a little further found the body of Mr. Lightner, with the chest, hips and shoulders crushed. And so ended the life of a brave, conscientious and honorable man. In '67 Andrew McGuirk settled in nearly the center of the Basin, and his family now occupy the same place and dwell in the same pleasant homestead. He was found dead in the early fall of the year 1873, near the Jo. Walker mine. And thus two of the pioneers of Walkers Basin have died, by sudden accident, away from and yet hardly out of sight of home. In 1868 Thomas Williams settled, and with his family still lives in the lesser Basin, which is a fertile, cosy valley, among other things containing hot soda springs.

This digression may not even have been dreamed of by the Pilgrims; it was certainly not told at their camp fire, for its embers have long since gone to ashes. So, forty miles on their pilgrimage, wrapped in the restful slumbers of tired enthusiasts, left them be left until the opening of Chapter II of their journey's history.

Running Records.

Since the opening of Morris Park at Westchester the surprises have been so frequent that of late the public does not feel the same gratification which once aroused the sluggish temperment and caused the face of the enthusiast to lighten up with joy. Geraldine, a Californian born and bred, was the first of the sprinters to have her name wafted from one end of the country to the other as the only thoroughbred who had ever run five-eighths of a mile in the even minute. This was personally pleasing to all residents of the Golden State who love to follow the fortunes of the runners, for State pride naturally played a very important part in their joyous feelings. A quarter of a second is a nice slice to cut from a record, and naturally our exhuberance of spirits was somewhat checked when the telegraph flashed the news that Tipstaff had also smashed a record, but in this instance had cut down Force's and Tom Hood's time for three-quarters of a mile a full second. When this was followed in a few days by another dispatch stating that Tenny had also run the same distance in 1:12, equalling the time of Tipstaff, the performance of Geraldine seemed to sink into insignificance. However, California had the record for the shorter distance and we were comparatively happy.

When the news reached San Francisco last Saturday afternoon that Britannic, had beaten Geraldine's time by a second completing five-eighths in fifty-nine seconds, a blow seemed to have been struck at the horse interests of the State. However, later in the afternoon, when the news came that El Rio Rey, the two-year-old son of Norfolk and Marion, had won the rich White Plains Stake in the almost inconceivable time of 1:11 for three-quarters, carrying 126 pounds, the enthusiasm broke loose again, and the wonderful time and the immense weight carried was the sole topic of conversation in sporting circles. There are many who fancy, and very justly too, that it will be a generation before the time is beat under like conditions. At any rate it stamps Mr. Winters colt as being the very best that ever lived in America, and we congratulate him heartily on his good fortune.

Stockton, Vallejo, San Jose and Fresno.

The original circuit is almost completed, Sacramento will finish it up, and it can be truly said that California has never had more enjoyable racing than that seen for the past four weeks. Surprises have been of constant occurrance and the true worth of many of the contestants is not positively known as yet. The breeders and owners are just as anxious to reduce the records as the public is to see the sport, and consequently many entries will be made to-morrow and Monday for the meetings to be held at Stockton, Fresno, San Jose and Vallejo. It is a great pity that there is a clash of dates between Fresno and San Jose, and it is to be hoped that before the next season rolls around that arrangements will be perfected to prevent a like occurrence. Advertisements giving a full account of the various programmes will be found in the proper columns, which it will be well for all who desire to enter in the second circuit, to read, as the purses and conditions are therein stated fully. We trust to be able to publish next week the gratifying intelligence that at all points the purses and stakes have filled well, and if there are only a tithe of the grand contests seen in the latter part of the season that has already been witnessed, it will be many a long day before the record for 1889 will be rubbed out.

Petaluma.

Beautiful weather, splendid attendance, first-class racing, and a magnificent pavilion exhibit, all tended to make the Petaluma Fair a grand success. The directors had worked together with a will, not leaving a stone unturned which might add to the ultimate result, and, as a consequence, have finished their labors with a handsome profit for the association. This is as it should be, with united effort, an enthusiasm is aroused locally, and neighbors vie with each other in turning out to see the attractions, but where there is internal strife, as in Santa Rosa, only one outcome can be expected, and that with a balance on the wrong side of the ledger. The Petaluma people, however, assisted the society in every way possible, and they are now happy in the consolation that their section stands equal with any of the agricultural districts that have so far held their fairs. The racing was not as sensational as that at Napa, for in the case of the latter place most of the horses were green, and were therefore unknown quantities; but now that it is known what the performers can do, the audience expect fast time from those that have already shown it. One of the happy events was the downfall of Lillie Stanley by Dawn, the stallion being a great local favorite, his owner, Mr. Whitney, being one of the prominent merchants of the town, and at the end of each heat, as he came under the wire winner, the occupants of the grand stand would raise en masse and almost shout themselves hoarse at the victory of the favorite. What added more to the enjoyment of the occasion was the fact that he lowered his record from 2:19½ to 2:18¾, and he could have lowered it still further, but the mare had an aptitude for breaking and could not force him out.

Several others of the contestants have reduced their marks, notably Express from the Palo Alto farm from 2:23½ to 2:21, Longworth has proved himself a fast pacer and gets his maiden brackets, the time being 2:19¾, 2:20¼ and 2.21½, showing that Mr. Dietz has a colt of unusual excellence. The mighty Guy Wilkes has a worthy representative in Lillian Wilkes, who defeated the supposed to be invincible Sunol, and gained a 2:17¾ credit for herself, and Hazel Wilkes got a record of 2:22¼. Pedlar is another of the get of Electioneer to enter the charmed circle, he having made a record of 2:27¾ in the two-year-old stake. Senator Rose had the pleasure of seeing his Alcazar yearling filly trot under the wire in 2:36, and it is the firm belief of all that were present that Norlaine's 2;31½ is in great danger from this new Los Angeles aspirant. Taken all in all the meeting has been a very successful one, and one of which those who have assisted may well feel proud.

And now Belmont wants El Rio Rey, and is willing to put up $60,000 for the colt. He is worth every cent of the money, as he is the best two-year-old this country has ever seen.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department MUST be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but as proof of good faith. Write the questions distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Positively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

C. N., City.

When you have a little space to spare in the paper, several parties would like to have you answer this question, as considerable of a discussion arose about the same. I am using wet bandages, as I thought, to keep the fever out and strengthen the legs after a drive. One party disagreed and then was joined by another. He claimed they act like a steam bath and weaken the legs. He says, only use the brush well, and if any bandage, a dry one. Which is right?

Answer.—The care of horses legs after exercise has been a question for many years. Nine-tenths of the drivers believe in the wet bandage, while the others are opposed to the idea. From personal observation we believe that nine out of every ten horses require the wet bandage, while the odd one should have the dry bandage only.

Please inform me if Coligny is registered?

Answer.—No.

The following letter was received by Mr. Gamble and he requests us to publish it, so that those who can give the desired information may do so.

UNION SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 26, '89.

MR. SAMUEL GAMBLE—Dear Sir:—In looking over my papers I find one from you to Mr Milton Hoag, of Seneca Falls, N. Y., in reference to the horse Niagara. It seems to be now settled that this horse is by Tom Wonder 147, son of Tom Crowder. This Niagara is registered No. 234, was bred by S. R. Bowne Flatbush, L. I., N. Y.; his dam was by Abdallah. I would be obliged to you for any information you can give about his produce in California, besides Lady Hoag. I think this information will be of use to owners of stock descended from Niagara, as it not only adds two valuable strains of trotting blood, but a standard strain in at that.

Yours very truly, T. A. HENDRICK.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Will you please have this above letter published in your next issue, as some of your readers may know something about it, if this is the same breeding that was giving this horse Niagara, when he made seasons in and about Stockton, some years back.

Yours truly, SAM GAMBLE.

Mr. Hendrick has been hunting for a long time for the pedigree of Niagara and has come to the conclusion that Niagara 234, is the one that came to California. We have almost positive evidence that it is not the same Niagara, but one fully as well bred, and we hope before long to be able to prove it to the world. The gentleman who brought to Niagara this State is still living and he has sent us the names of the parties from whom he bought the horse and also tells where Niagara was bought as a yearling, and we are at present in correspondence with the parties, and hope to be able to clear up the mystery of his breeding. However, if any of our readers can give Mr Hendrick the information he desires, we have no doubt he will appreciate the favor!

J. H. M., City.

Will you please give me, through the columns of your paper, the pedigree of Old Sport, a San Jose horse, but now owned by Dick Egan of this city. Also of the great horse Chicago, and whether or not he ever trotted against Lucy.

Answer.—"Chester" give the sire of Old Sport as by Comet. You can probably get further information by addressing James H. Howard, 32 Lightstone Street, San Jose. Chicago by Ole Bull, dam by American Eclipse (?). He was also known as Jim Rockey and Hard Bread; under the name of Rockey we find he started against a mare called Lucy, at Norwalk, Ohio, August 24, 1887. This Lucy has a record of 2:35, and was not the trotting mare of that name that came to California.

Names Claimed.

Mountain Rose, for light chestnut filly, star in forehead, left hind foot white, foaled April 26, 1887, by Rosewood, dam Jenny Lind by Ironclad.

Bloucher Boy, for by horse colt, no white, foaled April 20, 1889, by Daly 5341, dam Jenny Lind by Ironclad. The mare has been stinted to Secretary, he by Director.

Auction Sales.

Killip & Co., will have their hands full during the second week of the State Fair, at Sacramento. As on every day they have an auction sale of cattle or horses at the State Fair Grounds. On Monday, Sept. 16th, a magnificent herd of Hereford cattle will be offered and also a number of Holstein's from the celebrated herd of Senator Stanford. Tuesday a fine lot of thoroughbreds will be sold by order of W. L. Pritchard and R. P. Ashe, they being the get of Flood, Jocko Norfolk, John Happy, Joe Hooker, Leinster, etc. Comprising relatives to Geraldine, Parole, Geo. Kinney, El Rio Rey, Mollie McCarty and a lot of other good ones. Wednesday and Thursday will be devoted to the sale of Prewitt & Goff's herd of registered short horn cattle, among which are any quantity of prize winners. On Friday the firm will sell for account of the Inter-State Galloway Cattle Company, the finest lot of registered Galloway and Aberdeen polled Angus cattle ever seen in the State. Catalogues for all the above sales can be had by applying to Killip & Co., 22 Montgomery St., S. F., or to E. F. Smith, Secretary State Agricultural Society.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: I have made arrangements with the Southern Pacific to carry all race horses, trotters and men in attendance in same car to our fair and return at one full fare for the round trip. Please make note of this in the next issue of your paper.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

SUMMARY.

Quite a number of interesting athletic exhibitions are on the tapis for the present month, and the sport-lovers will have no cause to complain. The runners and walkers are still keeping up practice, and the swimmers are in their glory on account of the hot weather.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

At least five of the starters in the novice's race on November 28th, will get under eleven seconds.

P. D. Skillman, the well known New York runner, is at present in San Francisco. Mr. Skillman came to California with the intention of competing in the games that were to be held on September 9th, but which are unavoidably postponed until Thanksgiving Day. After spending a few weeks in 'Frisco, he will return East. The local crack runners will not weep over his departure, for the Eastern amateur is capable of giving the Pacific Coast champion a start of a hundred yards in a mile run.

The sixth cross country run of the Olympic Athletic Club was held at San Mateo on Sunday last. On account of the warm weather the pace was very slow, and none of the starters were forced to over-exert themselves. The swim at the close of the run was highly appreciated, and the very liberal collation supplied by the club was partaken of with much zest by the weary foot-racers. The next run of the club will probably take place over the same course.

A large crowd of well known professional and amateur athletes were noticed amongst the fishermen at Tiburon on Sunday last.

The amateur boxers of the C. A. A. C. are anxiously awaiting the arrival of September 16th, when the entries for the boxing tournament will be made known. Much doubt at present exists as to whether the leading outside clubs will allow their men to enter or not.

From present indications the initial games of the C. A. A. C. will not take place this year. The young members are growing very uneasy, and the directors of the club should offer them some inducements before it is too late.

Conneff, the champion one-mile runner, and Malcom W. Ford, the all round athlete may possibly take a flying trip to California about the time the new O. A. C. grounds will be opened.

An article recently appeared in a local daily paper which insinuated that Moffet's record of five feet, eight and a half inches for the running high jump was not equal to the performance done a couple of years ago by A. H. Lean. As we were present when both records were made, we are able to throw a little light on the subject. Mr. Lean's jump of five feet eight and three quarters of an inch was an exhibition jump, and besides Lean was compelled to take several trials before finally getting over the bar. At the last championship meeting, when Mr. Moffet jumped five feet eight and a half inches, he cleared the bar easily on the second trial, and it was evident to all present that he was capable of getting over a couple of inches nigher. Mr. Moffet's record was legitimately made, and it should be allowed as the Pacific Coast record.

Howard will represent the Pacific Athletic Club in the walking event on Thanksgiving Day.

The warm weather has proved a boon to the out-door athletes, and many of them may be seen training late at night.

P. J. Higgins, the well-known Irish amateur runner, is still in San Francisco. He will not start in to train until suitable training grounds are established, for a bad track, he says, hurts a man more than it helps him.

A match sprint run between Dave Egan and T. Powers would attract much attention, as both men are evenly matched.

It is more than probable that when W. Greer Harrison, the peerless President of the O. A. C, returns from England, where at present he is visiting, he will introduce several new ideas at future out-door meetings of his club.

A competent trainer will be stationed at the new out-door grounds of the O. A. C. so that the athletes can get properly rubbed down at all hours of the day or evening.

Among the members of the new Lurline Club are some very promising amateur boxers.

The winter in-door meeting of the P. A. C. promises to be a big success. Some of the other athletic clubs should follow the example of the P. A. C. and make arrangements for the holding of in-door handicap meetings during the coming spring. These meetings are always well attended in the Eastern cities, and as San Francisco is a sport-loving city, there is no reason why they should not be a success here.

W. H Wood, a well-known professional runner, has applied for reinstatement to the P. C. A. A. A. We hope the association will not be foolish enough to reinstate him. When an athlete once turns his back on amateurdom with the full knowledge of what he is doing he should never be taken back into the fold again. If such a man as Wood were to be reinstated, amateur athletics would soon degenerate.

Mr. A. C. McDowell, Honorary Secretary of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada, announces a championship meeting for Sept. 28th, on the Rosedale Athletic grounds at Toronto. Running events are 100, 220, 440, 880, 1760 and 3520 yards 120 yards hurdle, three mile walk, pole high leap, running high and broad jumps, throwing 56 pounds weight, putting 16 pound shot and throwing the 16 pound hammer. Open to all amateurs. Entries close Sept. 21st. Fee 50 cents in each event.

AT THE OARS.

On last Sunday the bay was as smooth as glass and the oarsmen were out in full force. Every rowing club around the bay was represented by one or more crews.

Several of the local crews rowed over to Tiburon and Sausalito.

The Ariel Rowing Club has an amateur crew that can get away with any other amateur crew on the coast.

The Lurline Club will put several crews in the field.

Odds are now being freely offered on Searle, and as the day of the race approaches his backers feel more confident of his ability to down the Canadian champion. Like all other big sporting events the winner will be crowned a king while the loser will sink into oblivion.

THE WHEELMEN.

Several wheelmen who have lately returned from the interior say that the roads are covered with dust, and that riding in some parts of the country on this account is rather disagreeable.

The fifth anniversary party of the Bay City Wheelmen which took place on last Saturday evening was a big success. The programme opened with a literary and musical entertainment, after which speech making followed. The finale was in the shape of a very toothsome repast which was vastly enjoyed by the large number of guests assembled. Several wheelmen from the neighboring towns were present, and many high compliments were paid to the B. C. W. on their ability to entertain their friends while on the track and in their rooms.

The hot weather on Sunday last caused the wheelmen to desert the suburbs, and only a few stray wheels were to be seen. The majority of the boys thought that a dip in the bay, or a rest in the shade was a more sensible way of passing the Sabbath, than risking the chance of getting sun stricken, while wandering around on their wheels.

Knapp and Morgan, the professional riders at present on the Coast, will endeavor to get up a tournament at the Haight St. grounds before leaving the city. The tournament will last two or three days. They will also attempt to start a six-day bicycle race for females in the Mechanics Pavilion.

The weather in the interior is too hot for racing at this time of the year, and the local wheelmen should be glad that the San Jose meeting was abandoned.

The membership of the San Francisco Bicycle Club is steadily increasing.

The bicycle events at the O. A. C. games on Thanksgiving Day will no doubt attract a large field of competitors, Good prizes will be given and this fact may have a tendency to coax some of the old-time riders to go into training again.

IN THE SURF.

Sunday last was a busy day at the different bath houses, as crowds of suffering humanity sought to cool themselves in the refreshing and cool surf. At certain times during the day it was impossible to obtain a suit at the Terrace or Shelter Cove swimming baths.

The Terrace Swimming Club was out in full force. Some of the members remained in the water for two or three hours, and even then were not satisfied.

Owing to the warm weather there was a slight falling off in the attendance at the Palace and Crystal Baths, the regular customers of these places preferring the open sea to the warm water in the tanks.

The weather will probably remain warm for some time to come, and the bathers will have a chance to enjoy the surf.

John Fay is one of the best swimmers at the Shelter Cove baths, and he never misses a day without going around the buoy anchored an eighth of a mile from shore.

Mrs. Webb is the best lady swimmer at these baths, and she also thinks nothing of taking in the buoy.

The new club connected with the baths has been christened the Lurline. Some of the best amateur swimmers on the coast are amongst the members, and the initial swimming races of the club will be worth watching,

CLUB JOTTINGS.

It is more than probable that the Golden Gate Athletic Club will make an effort to secure a lease of the club rooms at present occupied by the O. A. C., when the latter club moves to its new building on Post Street.

The directors of the C. A. C. are trying to secure a two-year's lease of Harbor View Park, that they may turn it into a pleasure resort for the members of the club. If they are successful in making suitable arrangements with the proprietor, work will be commenced at once, and in a very short time a complete transformation of the park will be effected. A running track, gymnasium, hot and cold water baths, dressing rooms and a boat house will be built. Several racing and pleasure boats will be purchased for the use of the members, and a steam barge belonging to the club will make frequent trips between the city front and the park in order to take out members who are desirous of visiting the grounds. We hope the directors mean business this time, for such an extension to the club would certainly help to attract a good many new members.

So far the Pacific Athletic Club has been unable to secure more extensive headquarters. The committee appointed by the club to look after new club rooms say that it is impossible at present to rent suitable rooms, as all the large halls are rented by new athletic organizations.

The annual election of the Olympic Club was held on Monday last. There were two tickets in the field, but the only difference in them, was that the name of Mr. Walter A. Scott was the regular candidate for Leader, while John A. Hammersmith was the candidate of the opposition. The latter carried off the honors with a vote of 168, against 156 for Scott. Following are the names of the new Directors, together with the vote they polled: William Greer Harrison, 322 votes, R. P. Hammond 324, W. E. Holloway 324, Henry B. Russ 325, John A. Hammersmith 168, Alex C. Forsythe 325, M. H. Weed 325, Alfred B. Field 325, Barry Baldwin 325, Ed. A. Rix 324, J. H. Gilhuly 321. The Directors will hold a meeting next week, when it is expected that W. Greer Harrison will be elected President, R. P. Hammond Jr. Vice-President, W. E. Holloway Secretary, Henry B. Russ Treasurer, and John A. Hammersmith Leader.

The U. A. C. should include several open events on their next programme of games. The action of the athletic committee in reserving most of the events for their own athletes appear to be rather selfish, and we honestly hope that they will be more liberal to outside athletes when the time for their next field-day arrives.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SOUTH LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 17, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—It is about time I was heard from again, though I can say but little to interest your readers who dwell on the "slope." The result of the Omnibus was a severe dumper to the people of this city (Louisville), most of whom pinned their faith to that excellent horse "Proctor." How could any one who saw him at Nashville and in the Kentucky Derby be made to believe that any horse could defeat him when he was right? And it was given out that he was right, for the Omnibus. Now, it was the mud. Well, it is a year for wonderful three-year-olds, if Longstreet, Salvator, and Spokane are his equal. As Spokane won the Kentucky Derby, many papers erroneously give him the credit of the fractional time in that race. That is all wrong. Proctor at the quarter, Proctor at the half, Proctor at three-quarter, Proctor at the mile, Proctor at the mile and a quarter is the way it was run, and that much of the race surely belongs to him. And only beaten a neck at the finish, when at the last sixteenth he was two lengths behind, and had he been given head only a little sooner it is at least doubtful if he would not have won the race. Horses are now coming in for the fall meeting here, which promises good for a fall meeting. The country is alive with untried two-year-olds, and it is likely the green stake will fill well. And some good racing material will develope here. What a year for three-year-olds '90 will be, if Cayuga, El Rio Rey, Penn P., Avondale, Phœnix and Onaway are taken care of; to say nothing of others that are yet to develop. Of the lot I would now pin my faith to the son of Mr. Pickwick for a great horse next year. His way of going cannot be discounted. I have seen three or four horses that, if properly prepared, could take in the "California $20,000." Terra Cotta is one of them and the first one I would select.

It is to be hoped the stake will fill well. If my old friend Capt. Moore was alive, he would be in the fight and find another Foster, exiled to some sparse region, awaiting him, for a careful, but rapid "rounding up." L. M. Lasley & Co., have bought of Norvin Harris, of Hurstburn farm, St. Mathews, Ky., the 2-year old brother-in-blood to Grayson, by Geo. Kinney; dam Bijore, and L. M. Lasly has bought a half interest in a yearling b c. by Longfellow, dam Stephanie; by Powhattan; Stephanie out of Zilpah, by Foster. How is that for breeding? At all events, he is a rasping fine yearling, and well entered now in the "big events," so also, is the large handsome yearling by Concregan, out of Olena—Santaline's dam. This should be a good stable in '90, with some eight or ten good two-year-olds, and Wood Moss, Samaritan, Silence, and Miss Lincoln—three-year-olds. The latter four will start here this fall, and may do something to their credit. Some of them may yet winter on the "slope."

Your cut of Geraldine sometime since, is a splendid likeness of Silence, and they possess the same characteristics as described.

ALLSEY.

Pierre Lorillard, of New York, has asked the Palo Alto management to set a price on Racine. He has made an offer of $14,000 for the colt, but Senator Stanford is inclined to keep him. There are lots of people who firmly believe that Racine can beat El Rio Rey, and it may be possible that the great tobacco man wants to have a go at the Winter's stable for two-year-old honors.

Eastern Fruit Packing and Shipping.

Written for The Breeder and Sportsman.

In last week's issue nothing was mentioned in regard to the preparation of fruit, for eastern markets. "Hints on fruit packing" treating entirely on the manner of packing for our home markets. The trade in green fruits has grown so large and been extended so far, during the last few years, that it is one of the principal industries or main branches in connection with the fruit business. So far, as the market for California green fruit has extended, as many cities and towns as the wide spread trade has reached, you will still meet with parties from the East that have never seen our fruit, in the localities that they come from. It is supposed that all the principal arteries of the trade have been tapped and our fruit strewn broadcast, in all the principal places of the United States, but there is reason to believe and facts to show, that it can be spread still farther. There are times when Chicago, the main distributing point, is completely glutted with green fruit. This should be remedied and the fruit more widely distributed. The fault does not, in all probability, lie with the managers of the fruit unions. They cannot control the distribution to small towns, that has either got to be done by their agents in the principal cities or by a general dispatcher situated in some central location. Probably the unions have done all in their power in appointing agents, instructing them in the delivery and distribution of the fruit and there is a general manager in the East, during the shipping season. It seems as though there should be no occasion for a material lowering of prices, not down to what the fruit costs laid down and often not enough to pay for the cost of packing and boxing. The crops of fruit in different sections of the States, regulate the prices of our fruit, but if Michigan is sending peaches into Chicago at the same time that we are shipping there, it naturally will cause a glut in the market, of that particular fruit. If such be the case, why not divert our peaches and ship to other markets, away from Michigan or any other locality shipping the same fruit. There are probably hundreds of towns that are not thought large enough, with but a small trade, that are ignored entirely by those having in charge the distribution of the fruit. These should all come in for their share and be canvassed thoroughly. It will have to be done eventually, and the sooner the better, the trade is growing so fast, that every avenue of escape, in case of a glutted market should be utilized to the utmost. Especially is the crowded condition of the Eastern markets noted during the fall, when the larger portion of green pears are shipped. Then is the time that the managers and shippers should direct their best efforts, in seeing that the markets are not over stocked. There is no reason why a glut should occur at that time. The East cannot raise pears enough to supply their own wants or come any where near doing it, for the reason that they are troubled so much by the pear blight, whole orchards having been rendered useless, and dug up, on account of this. Owing to its fine shipping qualities in comparison with the pit fruits, there is no trouble in shipping to the most distant places in the United States and Canada. There was a time when it required but little foresight and judgment to realize large returns in the Eastern shipping of green fruit, but at the present time things are different, and it requires as much calcution and probably a little more than it would in figuring on merchandise, owing to so many risks being taken from the time the fruit is picked, during transportation, and until it reaches its destination. When even there the market is very uncertain. The weather if propitious and the fruit well packed, generally places the fruit in good condition on arrival. These are the two principal factors, together with the market that controls our Eastern shipping.

Freight is an established thing; we know all about that before the fruit is shipped; that probably bothers the shipper the least, although he needs lower rates badly, compared with these other things. He does not have to worry over his freight bill, as he would over the weather, that is paid or guaranteed, so does not trouble him as much as the price that the fruit will finally bring. If the fruit passes through a thunder-storm and warm weather, there may be a balance on the debit side of the account sales for the hopeful shipper to pay. This is discouraging, and many carloads of this kind would soon prevent further shipments, but as a general rule there is no danger of the fruit arriving in bad order if properly attended to on this side. The standerd and excellence of our fruits should be kept up as much as possible. Proper attention on this side will do more toward our holding it up and keeping it in the favor of Eastern patrons than anything else. Because our fruit has heretofore had the reputation of being the best and most called for, does not warrant us in lowering the quality of our goods one mite, but we should endeavor in all ways to even try and place our fruit way ahead of the well known standard of former years, and keep it at its height, even if less fruit is shipped.

It is a well known fact that the San Francisco market is not supplied with the extra grades of fruit of the shipping varieties. This year it has shown up a great deal better than for some seasons, probably for the reason that the crops were so large, and for another, that a great many of the small growers prefer shipping here and being sure of a small profit rather than send their fruit out of the State and take their chances.

Among hundreds of shippers there are and always will be some who will not try to sustain our reputation, even when cautioned by the managers of our fruit unions, and being told how to arrange and pack their fruits to the best advantage. There will always be more or less slouching in the packing, and when so done the shipment should be immediately condemned at Sacramento by the general managers. It is not right that a lot of scrubby and scale-covered fruit should be allowed to be shipped alongside of that where the utmost pains have been taken with it. When a carload arrives at its destination, a small inferior shipment may be a great detriment in the sale of the entire car, injuring the good fruit more than what the poor is worth, sometimes a great many times over.

Small orchardists who have parts of carloads to send East will generally do better by selling their fruit outright to the local shippers, who have had the experience so valuable to successful shipping. A great many who ship in a small way in connection with the unions, do not take the pains to learn and study up the routine necessary, while the large shippers make it their business to carefully note every change in the ways of the business, the same as a doctor is continually looking up new remedies for diseases. A man may be a most thorough cultivator, taking pains to see that not a weed is left to mar the looks of his orchard, he may keep his trees nicely pruned and produce a first class fruit, but when it comes to the disposing of his crop, he is in the dark as to the best means of so doing. To those it would be well for them to visit the larger orchards and take lessons in the packing, and take notice of any items that would benefit them in the least degree.

The largest orchardists and shippers are often considered by the smaller to have the control of the business, and are looked upon by a great many as their enemies. Of course they control the smaller orchardists to a great extent in their business. Do they not regulate the price to some extent? Holding out for the highest that they can get, consulting with each other on the various ways of disposing of their fruit so as not to cause a glut in the local markets. Do they not introduce better and cheaper ways of packing? Experimenting with the new box, crate or chest; throwing it aside if not presenting any new advantages. Who is it that gets the railroads to lower freight rates? The large orchardists; and it is for their interest first and last to see to all of these things, helping and aiding the small grower in numerous ways. They experiment very often, spending considerable money in finding new washes and remedies for insect pests; these the small grower gets the benefit of gratis, for the large grower is always willing to impart any information in his power to any of his co-laborers in horticulture. It is well for all of these things to be understood, and for the owners of small tracts to consider the large orchardists his friends, and a benefit to the State at large. Perhaps as the cherry season has passed, nothing need be said for the present, of the place and interest that this fruit occupies in our Eastern shipping.

Pears, having probably as large a representation as any other variety, will interest as many as any other fruit in the Eastern trade, shipped from this State. We will class them as the authorities do, as summer, fall and winter pears, treating each class separately in regard to the packing, and only of the best and most popular shipping varieties out of the several hundred on record. Of all our pears, whether for the table or canning, none have been found to supersede the Bartlett. This is generally the first summer pear shipped, and the early ones always command a good price. The Doyenne Bonssock, while not a first-class shipper, finds favor early in the season, but the later ones do not turn out as well generally. This pear ripens very rapidly after being picked, and will not stand any delay in transportation. The Flemish Beauty, while being a very fine flavored pear, is not a good shipper, very few, if any, going East now. Most of the trees of this fine variety have been grafted and worked over with other varieties. They, however, command a good price in this market. The Beurre Hardy is very extensively shipped, but does not bring the top price. It is, however, a delicious pear, and the only reason for its not selling higher is that it is shipped in such quantities. The juicy Summer Seckel is well liked in the East, but will never be as popular a shipper as some others. The Howell is a fair shipper, a pear of a whitish, melting vinous flesh and flavor. The Consular Wrany, while a good shipper, is too coarse a pear to find much sale. These are the best shippers of the summer pears: there is always more risk in shipping these and the early fall varieties than the winter. They ripen, most of them, while on the road, so that when they reach their destination they are in a condition to be sold immediately without being left in the store room to ripen. The Duchesse d' Angouleme is probably as worthy a shipper to head the fall pears as any other, as Field, in his book on pear culture, says that this fruit must be crowned "The Queen of Pears," and it must be said that it will honorably bear out this assertion, being prized highly among our shippers for its long-distance shipping qualities and delicious flavor, and sometimes growing to immense size. The White and gray Doyenne, Doyenne d' Comice, Onondaga, Beurre Clairgeau, Beurre Diel and Beurre Bosc are all excellent shippers; but the Vicar of Wakefield does not come up to the standard as a good long-distance shipper; it is considered fair. The quince stock greatly improves this variety. The best winter pears, the Glont Morceau, Easter Beurre, Winter Seckel and Winter Nelis, are too well known to need describing, and will always have a good market in the East.

The greatest shipper, however, is the Doyenne d'Alencon, but as it will not bear a full crop but once in every ten years, cannot be grown for profit. When the pear shows signs of clearing on the stem, if the seeds have fulled and you are sure that the sap in the fruit has chemically changed toward the ripening state, pick them. They are green and hard, but it is necessary that they be in this condition so as to carry safely on their long journey. A great many have them placed in boxes and hauled to the packing-house and packed there, but I would recommend that this be done away with as much as possible, where there is enough fruit to make it an object, by packing right under the trees in the orchard and then hauling away in the permanent boxes, thus saving many pears that would be otherwise bruised in the handling and hauling. Select the spot where there is the most shade right in the center of the orchard or block that you are picking from, and place there a good bedding of straw, spreading it as far as you intend the pile to extend; then pile up your pears, make as large a stack as you want, and then set the packers to work, with their paper and boxes before them, all around it; have your cover press close at hand, and as fast as the boxes are packed place them alongside the press and let one man do the nailing and marking. See that they are packed and enclosed about four inches above the top of the sides of the box in the center, tapering down to an inch or so at the ends. This will allow for just about enough pressure to pack them tight, so that when they shrink on their journey across the continent our Eastern patrons will receive about an even box.

Peaches want to be packed equally tight, the boxes well ventilated by having spaces between the covers and bottom of the box and heavily cleated. If space enough is left between the different portions of the box there will be no need of holes being drilled in the sides, as is generally done. The clingstones probably carry off the palm as the best shippers, but some of the yellow freestones stand the trip well. Apricots are in the some line of packing as peaches; all the standard varieties are shipped, being picked just as they are on the point of turning color, a little green if anything. This is a rather unreliable fruit to ship, as this year's returns will bear out, and the packing and picking requires the closest kind of attention. Plums and prunes of the coarser kinds are easily shipped; the packing is rather tedious, but it is a good idea to mix the carload and have, say, a third plums or prunes and the remainder pears, or even other varieties. The single and double crate, twenty and porty pounds net respectively, is used for grapes. Let them stand awhile in the boxes after picking before packing. If they should commence heating in the center that would spoil the shipment. In fact, they are a fruit that is generally packed too soon. If they were allowed to sweat in the boxes and then placed on stray in the sun just long enough to take the moisture off them and no more it would be a sure way of keeping them; but when everything is all bustle and hurry in the packing-shed this method would be too slow a way of doing, but would pay if regularly followed up. The following varieties of grapes are shipped more than any others: The Verdel, Flame de Tokay, Emperor, Rose of Peru, Cerro Gordo, Black Prince, Muscat of Alexandria, Mission and Cornichon. The stems should be cut off as near to the bunch as possible, and no loose berries allowed to remain in the baskets, and in placing them in the frames and covering be careful not to mash or bruise them in the least. The same care should be exercised in handling.

ROD.

For some time past the black bass have been biting freely in the Crystal Spings Lake. Permits to fish in the lake must be obtained at the Water Company's office.

The smelt have not been biting very well of late. Last Sunday smelt fishing was exceedingly poor and only a few fair catches were made.

The rock cod were unusually free in accepting the bait on Sunday and during the early part of the week. Some of the largest catches of the season were made on Sunday.

A couple of boats anchored near Arch Rock on Sunday last and several sacks full of fish were caught. Some of the rock cod weighed as much as five pounds.

At Lime Point, Angel Island, California City, Red Rock, Kershaw's Point and other places around the Bay the fishing was unusually good, and nearly everybody that visited these places made large catches.

Postal carriers Bottomly and Folsom between them hooked about fifty pounds of rock cod.

Professor Joe Action of the C. A. C. and his pupil Gus Ungermann, were noticed among the anglers at Tiburon on Sunday. The Prof. took along his customary barrel of lager. The fishing was so good, however, that he forgot to drink the beer and Gus had to empty the barrel all alone.

Ben. Naphthaly, the Police Court lawyer, was discovered sitting on the wharf at Tiburon, on Sunday morning, dressed a la cowboy. His opinion is that the older the clothes the better the fishing.

The fishing at the old Oakland wharf was very poor, and the smelt seekers were compelled to return home with empty baskets.

Tough raw beef is about the best bait that can be used in fishing for rock cod. Beef, as a general rule, acts like magic when everything else fails.

Good bay fishing may be expected for some time to come, as the signal service reports say that the weather will be warm and mild for the balance of the month.

Mr. Andrew Lang who does not believe that fish feel pain puts his view of the matter neatly saying:

A fish can vesy easily be killed, if one goes to work the right way, and hits the fish one tap just where the neck should be; but he continues: "When the Spectator talks of 'killing a fish,' landing him may be meant. Is that such a painful process? Trout, the most shy of our fish, often comes back and are captured, with the angler's broken fly or casting line in their mouths. Would they do this if they were so much hurt? Suppose you went to the editor of the Spectator while he was on the feed; suppose you delicately cast a nicely devilled whitebait over him, rose him, and hooked him; suppose that he leaped in the air four or five feet high and then ran below the table and sulked, and tried to entangle the line in the legs of chairs. Then, of course, you would tighten the line on him, and tap the butt of the rod, and your gillie would throw stones at him, or stir him up with a young tree. If this succeeded he would make the reel sing, rushing up stairs, plunging down stairs, racing up and down the drawing-room, and finally would break you in the banisters. Well, after all this play, do you think it likely that if you fished over the dining-room again, you would raise the editor with a mutton cutlet, an asparagus, or a strawberry? Assuredly not; he would be 'put down' for days and only rise at arrowroot, and that very cautiously. But trout do not behave thus. It often happens that, after being hooked on a small blue dun, and breaking the casting line, they return and rise at a sedge or an alder, and get landed. So I am told, for, as I have admitted, I never catch anything myself. What is the inference? Clearly, that trout do not feel like men and editors. I could not fish, I could not take the chance of inflicting such anguish, as a trout would feel like the editor in the cruel scene which I have steeled myself to describe."

Naming a Horse.

"Where did you get that name of Polhemus from, that you have bestowed upon that two-year-old of yours?" asked one of our staff from Hon. Green Preuitt, the other day in Helena, says the Gazette.

"His name is Polemus—there's no letter 'h' in it," said the treasurer quickly.

"I didn't know but he was named after some personal friend named Polhemus," replied our man.

"Not at all," said Mr. Preuitt quietly. "You see we had a squirrel bounty law here, a few years ago, and it came near bankrupting the whole territory. We paid 5 cents per scalp, and if the law had not been repealed, it would have busted every bank in Helena. One of these fellows, who made a business shooting squirrels, was a man named Polemus Blankenship. He had a rifle and used to send in from fifty to one hundred squirrel scalps every week. I believe I cashed more warrants for him than for any other man in Montana.

"He was inclined to be pestersome, was he?"

"Don't forget it," said Mr. Preuitt; "he gave me a heap of trouble, and I swore that if ever we had a thoroughbred colt foaled on the ranch I would name him after Mr. Blankenship, whom, by the way, I have never seen. Well, one of our thoroughbred mares, Lady Preuitt, we sold to Mr. Haggin of California, with the understanding that we would reserve her coming foal. When it came we got a note from Mr. Mackey, superintendent of the Haggin ranch, saying it was a male foal and of very high quality. He is now two years old."

"Has he won any races yet?" asked our man.

"No, but he has run twice second in good time, and I think he is nearly due to win. If he bothers the other colts as badly as his namesake did me, he won't lose a race for the next two seasons."

Ernest Pulver, the young jockey employed by R. B. Cockrill, died on Friday last from the effects of an accident which occurred on the Wednesday previous. He was exercising Mark L., a running horse, and W. Murphy was speeding the trotting mare Maud Dee. They traversed the track in opposite directions and collided near the stand, the lad being thrown from the horse, which was also badly injured, one of the sulky shafts entering the breast of the horse.

THE MOST DELIGHTFULLY SITUATED, ACCESSIBLE and DESIRABLE SUBURBAN RESORT on the PACIFIC COAST.

The famous Sanchez mansion in San Pedro Valley has been remodeled, and additions made, transforming it into a fully appointed modern hotel. Twenty elegantly furnished rooms are available. The table is unexceptionable, poultry, cream fish and game being supplied from adjacent ranchos. The personal attention of the proprietor is constantly given, and scrupulous regard for the comfort and pleasure of guests exercised.

Two salmon trout lakes with boats are controlled. Bath houses on the finest sea beach of the Coast are attached to the hotel. The best quail and rabbit shooting, and brook fishing for trout are found all about the place.

Hotel San Pedro is reached by taking train to Colma on the coast division of the Southern Pacific Company, thence by the hotel conveyance, over eight miles of picturesque mountain road, within sight of the Pacific Ocean. OSSIDINE

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a 'Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

Price $3.00 per Large Bottle,

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

Owner of Eole, St Saviour, Eolist, etc, says; I have long used it in my stables, and find it to be all that is claimed for it in removing callous and unnatural bony growths, without leaving the slightest blemish. From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,

MAMBRINO WILKES

BY GEO. WILKES, DAM LADY CHRISMAN BY MAMBRINO JR. PROPERTY OF IRVIN AYRES, SAN MIGUEL STOCK FARM.

MAMBRINO WILKES.

A Grand Stallion that is the Personification of Equine Beauty. The Property of Irvin Ayres, San Francisco Cal.

One of the very best stallions in the State of California today is Mambrino Wilkes 6083. There is no guess work in making an assertion such as this for a look at this noble stallion will convince the most skeptical that the statement cannot be denied. The one great trouble that there has been in the past is the fact that he has not had proper opportunities. When bred to the ordinary mares to be found in Northern California, he could not do justice to the great family to which he belongs, and when brought down to Stockton he was in but a little better fix. The mares were not there that he should have had, for there is no better bred horse in the State. It was simply by force of circumstances that he was brought to California by Rufus Fugalls Jr., and ultimately fell into the hands of Mr. A. L. Hinds, who finally sold him to Irvin Ayres Esq., in whose possession he has been for a number of years. Lately Mr. Ayres has picked up an exceedingly fine lot of mares and now the stallion is being mated to such as he should have had years ago. With his slender chances he has proved a marvel, he being the sire of Gus Wilkes 2:22, Alpheus 2:27 and Balkan 2:29½. The latter who is now only a four-year old, made his record last season under the most adverse circumstances, having been sick the entire year with a sort of epizootic from which he is not altogether recovered yet. If by any chance he should get his speed before the season ends, a number of seconds will be knocked from his present record. As he is one of the best gaited horses seen this year, graceful, and with easy action, he is the typical idea of a trotting horse and might with ordinary luck come very near touching the "twenty mark." Gus Wilkes is at present under the weather, but it will be simply a question of days until he will be seen on the track again, as his trainer and driver, James Dustin, reports him improving wonderfully. Alpheus is suffering from a bruise received during the stud season, and has shown signs of lameness, which it is a pleasure to state, have almost disappeared. Here we have three in the list, by a horse whose merits have been almost overlooked. And yet his breeding is of the highest order, and he stands as a worthy representative of the Wilkes family, almost ignored, while every season, persons look over the published list to see what stallion they will patronize for their mares. A gentleman writing for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, said, only a short time ago:

"When Mambrino Wilkes, 6083, was brought out, I could not restrain an exclamation of surprise at his beauty and symmetrical form. It is now many years ago since first I saw Fillighan (the name George Wilkes was originally known by), but the memory still retains the conformation as perfectly as though seen but yesterday. In this son of his is the same head and neck, with a slight improvement in the body, Mambrino Wilkes being a heavier muscled horse than his sire, and has the appearance of being much larger. In color he is a perfect black, stands over sixteen hands in height, and is one of the most stylish animals in California. There is not a spot about him that I would change if I could, with the exception of his near fore and hind feet, they being slightly contracted, due more to the blacksmith than to any other reason. He is the personification of all that is beautiful in the equine form, and Mr. Ayers may be congratulated on owning one of the best finished horses in the State."

Any pen picture would fail to do this great horse justice, for as artists say it is impossible to paint a Pacific Ocean sunset, so it is impossble to convey to the mind of the reader what a fine looking stallion he is. Mambrino Wilkes is by George Wilkes, he by Rysdyk's Hambletonian out of Dolly Spanker. The dam of Mambrino Wilkes is Lady Chrisman, she by Todhunter's Mambrino, out of a daughter of Pilot Jr., 12. Those of the present day who look for gilt-edged breeding cannot improve on it, as the fashionable strains are all there and close up.

Mr. Ayres has a choice farm situated less than a score of miles from Oakland, and he is gradually fitting it up as he adds to the number of his mares. Of late he has had erected a magnificent large barn and stable, the latter with stalls enough to accommodate about twenty horses. Each compartment is of mammoth proportions, thus giving the occupant plenty of room to move around in. The acreage is about equally divided between bottom and slightly hilly land, with a small stream of living water running through it. It is pleasantly situated and nicely sheltered from the winds of the Bay, making it one of the most desirable breeding establishments in the State. Mr. Ayres is thoroughly alive to the wants of the community who are interested in the equine race, and those who may seek the services of his grand horse may rest assured that their stock will be looked after in a conscientious manner.

Capt. Henry White has sold to James Dodd of Honolulu, a fast pacing gelding which he bought at one of the Haggin sales some two years ago. The price paid by Mr Dodd was $600. Capt. White has also purchased from Mr. Barry of Colma, the well known brood mare Ruby, by Monday, dam Ida Martin by Rifleman out of Lexington Mare.

There are very few of the old times that do not know James Adams of Los Angeles. He has been visiting the Oakland Fair the past week, and Thursday night, when stepping off the Oakland boat he stumbled and fell breaking his arm. Jim will have the sympathy of a host of friends.

To Tell a Good Race Horse.

Pointers That Will Help the Novice in Juding a Colt.

Hard to get and heavy to hold.

Hundreds of yearling thoroughbred horses are now being brought from their native pastures to be offered for sale in the city. The buyers of yearlings who can judge correctly of a horse's future by what they see of him in his box or led about the paddock are few and far between. It is the object of this article to give some idea to intending purchasers of what a yearling that may reasonably be expected to become a racehorse, should be like.

To begin with, his head should be wide and preferably flat across the forehead, intelligent and not too small. The eyes must be large, prominent and far apart. A "pig eye" or sunken eye denotes sullenness, intractability and want of courage. Much of the white shown indicates viciousness. The lateral shape of the head does not so much matter. Roman nosed horses are generally hardy and enduring. Yet many prefer a slight concavity from the lower part of the forehead for a short distance and then a convexity to the nostrils, which should be wide, showing plainly the red lining when the horse is excited or blowing. The muzzle should be small and the lips thin and compressed. A pendulous lip is a sign of constitutional weakness and want of decision. The jaws should be wide beneath, like a game cock's, so as to give plenty of room for the windpipe, which must be large and loose. The ears should be short and pricked, although occasionally good horses are seen with lop earts.

The head should be set upon the neck at an angle of about 100 degrees. If at a smaller angle, or a greater, the horse does not carry it well. A high crest is also objectionable, and so is a ewe neck—that is, a straight neck, inclinding upward, but the latter is the less evil of the two. The neck should be strong and muscular, to sustain the weight of the head. In racing, the neck tires first. It should not be too long, and the hand should feel it firm and substantial under the mane, which should be thin and silky, while the tail must be strong and thick.

"Thin mane, thick tail, broad buttocks, tender hide," is the rule. The first two and the last two are most important requisites in a thoroughbred. I could name a very expensive two year old now in training which will never be a great horse because he is deficient in the third of these requirements. The neck should merge gradually into the shoulder, showing no very marked junction, and its length should appear rather above than below.

The general line of the leg should fall straight to the ground, and the toe and the point of the shoulder be in the same perpendicular, or nearly so. Standing in front of the colts, the out line, from the withers to the bottom of the chest should appear like flattened oval, smaller at the withers, and narrow, compared with that of a horse used for any other purposes but racing. If the chest is too wide, the fore legs will be wide apart and the space between the legs too great. This is the greatest fault a horse intended for racing can have. I have seldom seen such a horse that could race at all, and never one that could stay. The space between the forelegs should be small and the feet close together, an inch or two apart. The chest should be deep. A deep narrow chest is capable of greater expansion in respose to the action of the lungs than a round one. The elbow should neither be turned in nor turned out, for in the former case it comes in contract with the ribs and impedes the action of the limb, and in the latter the feet are turned in, a very serious fault and one which invariably diminishes the horse's speed.

Looking again at the horse sideways, the lower part of the chest should rise sightly toward to the belly until about eight inches from the elbow, when the outline should fall a little, the angle formed by these inclines indicating the proper place for the saddle girth. I should perhaps have mentioned that a horse who is calf-kneed, that is, where the outline of the back of the foreleg is convex and the front concave, will be week limbed and likely to give way in training. So will one "tied below the knees," that is smaller immediately below than he is further down. As regards the forequarter, generally the more there is in front of the saddle or the place where the saddle would sit, the better. The ribs should be long and curved, not flat, and the last or back rib should not be more than five inches from the hip joint. In stable parlance, a horse so formed is said to be "long in the back rib" and well ribbed up." This formation denotes strength and good feeding qualities, while a flat side, a short rib and increased distance between the last rib and the hip joint indicate opposite qualities, but are less objectionable with fillies than with colts. The back should be short and the loin arched, which shows that it is well covered with muscle. The hip should be wide across and prominent, and the stifle turned out, which gives freedom to the forward action of the hind quarter. Otherwise the play of the joint would be interfered with by the ribs. A horse with the stifle turned out stands with his hocks together, and other things being right, is generally fast.

The second thighs, descending to the hock, should be broad, viewed laterally, as should also be the hock, and the hock should be close to the ground. From the point of the hock to the fetlock the leg should fall straight and perpendicular. If the posterior outline is convex, that indicates curbs, if concave, weakness. The leg to the fetlock should be of even width, the tendon being detached and clean as in the foreleg. The fetlock, as well as the hock joint, should be large and bony a certain appearance of coarseness in the latter being preferred. The pasterns and feet should slope at an angle of forty-five degrees to the ground, and the feet will be smaller and shorter then then the fore.

Standing behind the colt, the space between the thighs should be well filled up with muscle, the absence of which makes a horse "split up behind," as men of stable mind say. Similarly the outside muscles of the thigh should swell or bulge out, infringing upon what would otherwise be the top-like symmetry of the hind quarter. Sometimes at the junction of the hip bone with the spine a lump is seen which detracts from the symmetry of the dorsal line. In such cases the bone is highly developed and adds to the strength of the quarter, such horses being generally fast, and this is why in horsemen's slang it is called "the bump of speed." The hocks should be close together, and the legs and feet perhaps slightly turned out, but never turned in. Looking again at the colt turned sideways the line from the top of the quarters to the withers should be nearly horizontal, the latter being slightly lower in yearlings, as the wither rises with age more than the hindquarters. I do not like a horse with high withers. His action is likely to be higher than is desirable. Horses so formed have seldom that daisy cutting action so gratifying to the eye of an expert. Eclipse was low before and I may add went very wide behind, bringing his hind feet outside his fore, and in this respect many of our best race horses resemble him. A weak tail indicates a weak constitution.

A colt that is likely to race will show great freedom at the walk in the use of his limbs before and behind. He should reach out with his fore feet, and put them down resolutely with a decided thud, not dwelling in the air. The hind legs should be brought well under him and planted well in front—the further the better—of the spot whence the fore feet have been taken. This should be accompanied by flexibility of the neck and body, and the tail should swing freely from side to side. The motion should be graceful. Fine muscular development does not always carry with it freedom of action, as may be seen in prize fighters. In the human subject grace, it is true, may be acquired, but with the horse, which, as far as we know, does not study personal appearance, it comes wholly from conformation. For these reasons a colt will often appear quite a different animal in his box and out of it.

The $10,000 Purse at Hartford.

The $10,000 purse for 2:20 horses, that for seven years has been trotted annually at the Hartford meeting, such cracks as Harry Wilkes, Director, Oliver K. and Patron winning it in their day, has come to be one of the classic events of the trotting turf, and although there are now equally large purses given by other tracks, that at Hartford is certain to have a tremendous entry list, and the honor of winning it is eagerly sought by breeders and other horsemen all over the land. This year it was thought, after the Maine stallion Nelson had trotted two heats in one race in 2:15, that the richest prize of the trotting turf would go to him, because, in addition to being a remarkably fast horse, he is also as good an actor in a race as could be wished, and everyone knows what an important figure this cuts in contest where nothing but speed, gameness and good behavior can possibly win. The combination is a hard one to find, but Nelson has it to perfection, and it was for this reason that the best judges thought he would win the Hartford event. It was true that other stallions had been going well this year, but Nelson seemed to outclass them all in every particular, and, look at the matter as one might, there was no point of view from which any other horse eligible to the Hartford purse could be figured out the superior of the one from Maine. He was to trot in the entry of Dan DeNoyelles, that shrewd old man who has been a figure on the trotting turf ever since the days when Dan and Benny Mace were boys, and everything looked rosy. And yet he was beaten, and at the finish, the defeat was a decisive one. In the first heat he rushed away with the pole, trotting as if the race was a dash, making the first half in 1:07¼ and the last in 1:07, the result of it all being that his record was reduced to 2:14¼, and the people more than ever convinced that he could not be beaten. But in the second heat the Michigan stallion Alcryon, a gray fellow with but one eye, bred for a sprinter and stayer as well, took a hand in the game. Nelson was the fastest for half a mile, but at that point the gray son of Alcyone began to close the gap, and people who had seen him win at other points along the Central Circuit line, making a record of 2:16¼ and wearing out his opponents by a steady brush from the half-mile pole home, knew that there was danger, even for a 2:14¼ horse, in this new competitor, the chestnut mare Geneva S., having been second in the preceding heat. There was nothing electrical or dashing about the struggle of Alcryon for first place, no sudden spurt to the wheel of the leader and then another brilliant display of speed that left the erstwhile victor in the rear, but just a steady, pitiless, distance-devouring pace that brought Alcryon alongside of Nelson before half the home-stretch had been trotted. There was a momentary struggle of course as the heads of the two gallant trotters lay alongside of each other, but it was a fleeting picture to the onlooker, Alcryon keeping up the measured stride that had characterized his work for nearly half a mile, and in an instant his gray nose was to the fore and the heat had been won in 2:16¼. Nelson had passed the half in 1:07, a faster clip than in the first heat, but he had faltered coming home, the pace set in the first half of the journey being too fast. The third and fourth heats were easy ones for Alcryon, for Nelson, the only horse in the race with anything like his burst of speed, was now out of the fight, finishing third and fourth in the last two heats, Geneva S. and Jack making the fight with the winner. Jack looked, for a little while in the last heat, as though there was a chance for him to win, and the two grays, one bred in Michigan and the other out of a mare owned in that State, had "quite a trotting match," as John Turner would say, around the upper turn and half way to the wire, but at no time was the result really in doubt, Alcryon being first home in 2:19¼. It was a great surprise to the public, which had conceived the idea that Nelson was unbeatable, and to a great many horsemen who held the same view, but the latter class remembered that in all his starts since Detroit Alcryon has been invincible, and when one considers the class of horses he has met and the fact that he has been beating 2:20 all the time, the overthrow of Nelson is not by any means such a hard matter to explain. Alcryon and Nelson, first and second in the great trotting race of the year, are trotting-bred to the backbone. Alcryon is by Alcyone, 2:27, he by George Wilkes, 2:22, and out of the famous Alma Mater, dam of four in the 2:30 list, by Mambrino Patchen, son of Mambrino Chief. Alcryon's dam was by Privateer, he by Hoagland's Gray Messenger and out of the famous old trotting mare Moscow. It is a plain pedigree. Rysdyk's Hambletonian was a 2:40 trotter, his son George Wilkes was a 2:22 horse, his grandson Alcyone was a 2:27 horse by the records and a 2:21 horse by public trial, his great-grandson Alcryon is a 2:16¼ horse. Of course all the excellence was not in the male line. The dam of Alcyone was by Mambrino Patchen, brother to Lady Thorne, 2:18¼, and that she was a mare of great potency in the production of speed is shown by the fact that four of her produce are in the 2:30 list. The dam of Alcryon is by a son of Hoagland's Messenger, whose dam was a noted trotting mare in her day, and Hoagland's Messenger was by a son of Sherman Morgan. Nelson, the second horse in the race and winner of the fastest heat, is by Young Rolfe, a trotter with a record of 2:21¼, and his dam by a son of Hambletonian. It was trotting blood to front with a vengeance.

The chestnut mare Almater, the property of Mr. W. H. Wilson of Cynthiana, Ky., added new laurels to her dam Alma Mater, by doing the fourth and fastest heat in the race at Lexington Ky., August 27th, in 2:29¼. This is the third brood-mare that Abdallah Park has given records below 2:30 this year.

No one need go to Colusa or Marysville, in fact any where in the vicinity with a saddle horse again, first John L. at Chico and Willows—used as a saddle-horse until a few weeks ago—wins at Willows, gets a record of 2:24 at Chico, at Marysville Snicklefritz same tale. A good vaquero horse wins in straight heats, going to the half in 1:11 in the first heat.

JUNIO, 2:22.

A. and M. Gonzales are the fortunate possessors of a first-class Electioneer colt of which much was expected this year, but sickness has prevented him from receiving the proper amount of necessary work, although he will be especially prepared for the Fresno meeting. He was foaled in 1882, being by the Premier Stud of Palo Alto, and out of a daughter of Granger, he by imp. Hercules. He is a beautiful dark bay, fully sixteen hands high, and as to his conformation, it is best expressed in the words of Lee Shaner, the well known trainer and driver who says: "He is the best finished Electioneer I have ever seen, and for his size, is exceedingly well proportioned."

As Mr. Shaner has handled horses for many years, he can be cited as an authority, for no one knows Junio better than he does. Last season he made his maiden appearance at Butte City, Montana, August 9th, meeting as competitors I. Jay S., Lady Don and Golddust. He won the first heat in 2:32, but had to lower his colors to I. Jay S., who won the third, fourth and fifth heat, the second falling to Golddust. From there he was taken to Helena, where he met Col. Brad. shaw, Leona and Prince, gaining second money. At the same meeting, on August 24th, six started in the 2:38 class, and Junio won the first and second heats in 2:30 and 2:28, but the race was ultimately won by Fantasia, Bishop Hero having also won two heats.

From Helena he was taken to Anaconda, where Fantasia, in a six-heat race, again won, Junio getting second money. We next hear of him at Spokane Falls, where he had so much improved that he defeated his old antagonists Fantasia and Col. Bradshaw, although it again took five heats to decide the contest, Junio winning the first, second and fifth heats in 2:25, 2:23 and 2:26½.

At the Bay District track on October 24th, he won a memorable victory over Jim L., Allo, Ha Ha, and Argent which is well worthy of a detailed account, which is taken from the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of October 27th.

The second event was a match race for $1,000, with the stallions Ha Ha, Junio, Allo, Jim L. and Argent as starters. Before the first heat Ha Ha was the favorite, selling for $25, Junio at $11, Allo at $11, Jim L. at $15 and Argent at $5.

They had a great deal of trouble scoring, and when they got off at about the tenth attempt J m L. took the lead, with Ha Ha after him. The other three were plainly not out for the heat, and Jim L. and Ha Ha had the fight to themselves. After they left the quarter-post Jim led by a couple of lengths up the backstretch and by a length or more around the turn. In the straight Ha Ha began to close up, and under the whip they raced home in a hot finish, Jim L. winning by half a length in 2:20½, Ha Ha second and Argent third.

Jim L. became a decided favorite after the heat and was worth $25 to $12 for Ha Ha, $4 for Allo and $8 for the field of Junio and Argent. In the second heat the order of things was reversed. Junio was the leading horse when they got to the turn and Allo was second, with Ha Ha at his wheel.

On the back stretch Ha Ha went up and the two drew away from him, and he was never heard from again. Junio led Allo by a length, at the half mile post, the same distance in the turn, and half a length as they swept into the straight. Then both got the whip and went home for a close finish, Junio taking the heat, Allo second and Jim L. a poor third. Time, 2:22.

Few had faith in Junio, and so, after the heat, Jim L. jumped into the favorite's place, selling for $40, field $18, Ha Ha $13 and Allo $7. The third heat was much like the second. Again Junio took the lead, with Allo second, and Ha Ha kept close to them until past the quarter, the pace was too fast, and he broke and dropped back with the ruck. Junio led all the way. Allo was pushing him to a hard finish, but went up at the drawgate, and Junio trotted under the wire in 2:22½, Allo second and Jim L. third.

When Junio was announced as the winner of the heat there was a glorious chop in the pools. Everybody wanted to get in on Junio, and they soon ran him up to $160 to $29 for the field of four. Some of the gamblers began to cry "jobbery," but their money was in and it took heavy hedging to get it out.

After a deal of scoring the flyers were sent off for the fourth heat. Junio and Jim L. disputed for the first place all around the turn and into the homestretch, but there Jim lost his feet and Jim drew away, Allo passing to second place. Jim was not heard from again, Junio and Allo came around a length apart and made a very pretty finish, Junio taking the heat and race. Allo a length second, and Argent third. Time, 2:25½. The short enders were happy.

SUMMARY.

Junio, b s by Electioneer, dam by Granger, (Shaner)	4	1	1	1
Allo, b s (Dustin)	5	2	2	2
Jim L., ch s by Dan Voorhies, dam Grace, (Rodriguez)	1	3	3	4
Ha Ha, br s by Nephew, (Houser)	2	5	5	5
Argent, b s by Sterling, dam Madame Buckner, (Walton)	3	4	4	3

Time, 2:20½, 2:22, 2:22½, 2:25½.

His last race for the season was at Oakland when he was beaten by Bay Rose. Since his retirement to the stud, he has severed a large number of mares, which combined with the attack of Epizootic has rendered him unfit for heavy work. His only attempt to face the starter this year was at the Oakland meeting, where he was in no fit condition to trot, being distanced in the first heat. As stated before he will be prepared for fast work and will not be started again until the Fresno meeting, where it is confidently expected that he will be able to lower his present record by several seconds.

CORRESPONDENCE.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—In your issue of this date, under "Grim's Gossip," I notice a paragraph in which some comment is made in reference to the Dawn-Stanley race at Petaluma last week, and in the same article you say perhaps "I might throw some light on the subject so freely discussed about the race between Lorena and Pedlar."

I take it that your remarks or suggestions were made entirely, as they should be, from a spirit tending toward the best interests of the turf, and a promotion of its patronage by an appreciative public

In this view of the case, I am only too willing to say, that anything I may be able to contribute toward a solution of what seems to be such a mystery, will afford me as much pleasure as it may be of interest to others. That the time (2:30) made by my filly in the first heat was to me an unexpected performance, and of which I was, under the circumstances of her short time in training, very proud; that she could have beaten Pedlar's 2:27¾ in the second heat, I did not then, nor do I now, believe; but that she (Lorena by Jim Mulvena, dam E'morene by Elmo) should be so easily beaten in a third heat of 2:35½, is to me as yet an unsolved mystery, resulting in a financial loss not only to me, but to my stable men who had the mare in charge.

In connection with the foregoing facts, I deem it proper to say also that John Blue, my trainer, is a man in whom I have every confidence as relates to his integrity, and to him was intrusted the choice of drivers for the race, he being some forty pounds over weight. "Buster" had driven Lorena on two former occasions, losing to Gov. Stanford's Delmar at Napa, August 14th, in 2:34¾ and 2:30, and beating his brown stallion Pedlar at Santa Rosa, August 22d, in 2:38 and 2:33½, which performances were, so far, entirely satisfactory to Mr. Blue and myself. Therefore it is not strange that the same driver was chosen by Blue to drive the filly at Petaluma, and that it was with my consent and approval that he did so. Hence whatever may have occured to cause her defeat, no blame can attach either to Blue or myself, unless it may be that I should have asked for a change of drivers after the third and last heat, but as I believed most fully in the efficiency and prompt judgment of Mr. H. M. Larue, who was the acting official in the stand at the time, I deemed such a course unnecessary.

Drake Carter, the famous old American race-horse, is dead, says the Horseman. Saturday he was being exercised on the Woodbine track, at Toronto, Can., when he fell and broke his leg, and a bullet ended the old hero's long-drawn-out misery. Drake Carter was foaled in 1880, sired by Ten Broeck, out of Platina, by Planet, and became the property of G. B. Morris when a yearling. He proved to be a grand race-horse, and when three years old was purchased by Pierre Lorillard for $17,500. He held the present "best on record" for three miles, 5:24, made at Sheepshead Bay, September 6, 1884. When his racing days were over he became the property of T C. Patteson, of Toronto, who afterwards sold him to his last owner, the Bay View Stable, for $150. At the time of his death he was being trained with the view of starting him at the fall meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club.

The Standard.

[AS REVISED AND ADOPTED BY THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF TROTTING-HORSE BREEDERS, DECEMBER 14, 1887.]

IN order to define what constitutes a trotting-bred horse and to establish a BREED of trotters on a more intelligent basis, the following rules are adopted to control admission to the records of pedigrees. When an animal meets the requirements of admission and is duly registered, it shall be accepted as a standard trotting-bred animal:—

FIRST.—Any stallion that has himself a record of two minutes and thirty seconds (2:30) or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:35 or better, or provided his sire or his dam is already a standard animal.

SECOND.—Any mare or gelding that has a record of 2:30 or better.

THIRD.—Any horse that is the sire of two animals with a record of 2:30 or better.

FOURTH.—Any horse that is the sire of one animal with a record of 2:30 or better, provided he has either of the additional qualifications: (1) A record himself of 2:35 or better. (2) Is the sire of two other animals with a record of 2:35 or better. (3) Has a sire or dam that is already a standard animal.

FIFTH.—Any mare that has produced an animal with a record of 2:30 or better.

SIXTH.—The progeny of a standard horse when out of a standard mare.

SEVENTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare by a standard horse.

EIGHTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare whose dam is a standard mare.

NINTH.—Any mare that has a record of 2:35 or better, and whose sire or dam is a standard animal.

To Prevent Colts from Becoming Wormy.

Many valuable colts are lost every year for the want of a little care. Hundreds die from lack of condition. As a rule, if colts are fed liberally and kept growing constantly from birth, there is not much danger to be feared from worms. Yet it is always best to be on the safe side, and use all harmless means to prevent every form of sickness and suffering. Some Kentucky breeders practice mixing a little pulverized copperas with salt and placing it in boxes where the colts can help themselves as they like. Two tablespoonfuls of pulverized copperas to a pint of salt is sufficient. Horses suffering from worms can be cured in time by feeding a teaspoonful of copperas mixed with a teaspoonful of powdered gentian every night for two or three weeks. It can be mixed with oats or turned down the throat from a bottle. Copperas and gentian is an excellent tonic. Breeders will do well to keep a small quantity on hand. Get the druggist to put up four ounces each, compounding it in his mortar so as to mix it thoroughly. Put the powder in a small box or wide-mouthed glass jar, label it, and when needed give to grown horses a teaspoonful in their feed at night. A yearling will require about one-third as much as a grown animal, and weanlings a much smaller quanity.—[American Cultivator.]

JUNIO

2:22, BY ELECTIONEER, DAM BY GRANGER, SON OF IMP. HERCULES. PROPERTY OF A. & M. GONZALES, SAN FRANCISCO.

Dr. C. W. Aby.

Bare names and bald recitals of facts with reference to any man are generally worth little unless they tend to give insight to the forces which have led up to the finished character as one meets it, but once in a while a man is found the story of whose life is best told by a chronicle of the surroundings of his youth and the environments of his days of adolescence. Such an one is Dr. Charles William Aby, whose rugged, independent, frank, shrewd, handsome, and altogether pleasant face looks upon the reader of this wholly inadequate note. Born on July 15, 1858, in Claiborne county, Miss., fifteen miles East from Port Gibson, the young Aby that was, had for a father a Virginia bred man of Scotch descent, and for a mother, who is to this day idolized by her big son, a lady of gentle Missippi ancestry. The cross was a nick.

The home was upon a big cotton plantation, cultivated as times went, by a hundred slaves, the produce of whose labor enabled the baronial owner to gratify his own strongly inbred taste for horses and field sports, and to give his decidedly precocious son and heir plenty of verge, as the youth began to display more fondness for thoroughbred horses and the coy maidens of neighboring plantations than for more ascetic studies. Aby, senior, went in quite extensively for good stock, particularly horses for road work, and the saddlers of his breeding were famous all through that region for their thoroughbred quality and rare excellence, whether for display or for actual endurance and good gaits.

The maternal grandfather, Col. B. O. Smith, of Natchez, was also a noted breeder of thoroughbreds, and it is little wonder that as Doctor Aby now says, he was "more at home on a horse than in a school form." However, the father, albeit a believer in following natural bents and a disciple of the school of muscular Christianity, felt it necessary to at least make a bluff at educating his somewhat irrepressible offspring, and Charles William was consequently halter-broken at the neighboring school, and afterward pretty carefully put in condition at Transylvania University.

The splendid racing form since shown by the Doctor he freely credits largely to the sternness and patience of those instructors. While doing his university reading, young Aby chanced to form acquaintance with Doctors E. T. and J. R. Haggard, veterinary surgeons of Lexington, Ky., both of them thoroughly schooled practitioners as well as accomplished gentlemen. At spare hours Aby was thrown much into association with the doctors; rode with them, assisted clinically, and did some little elementary work in veterinary medicine. What more natural transition then, than from the university, as a graduate with honors, to Dr. Haggard's office as a student and pupil. Two years were given to close study under direction of his preceptors, with such intelligent quizzes and so many opportunities to see surgical manipulations, that the end of the time found C. W. Aby thoroughly well furnished as a veterinarian, enjoying the fullest confidence of his teachers, and prescribing and operating interchangeably with them. When at last the Doctor's Haggard joined in pronouncing Aby fit at all points to maintain the dignity and honor of his invaluable profession, the young man, then about twenty-two or three, cast about for a suitable opening, and soon found one upon the Nantura Farm, at Woodford, Ky., belonging to F. B. Harper, where he went as manager in the spring of 1882, and remained until the spring of 1886.

Woodford County, famous for its great horse farms, had no more notable place than Nantura, where Dr. Aby had such famous flyers as Longfellow, Ten Broeck, Jils Johnson, Bell Knight, the dam of Freeland, and others. Three stallions and twenty-two mares formed the stud then, but the stallions accepted public services to the number, 150 in some years.

The clear headedness, snap and knowledge displayed by Doctor Aby, soon gave him local prominence, and the reputation increased in geometrical ratio. The numberless buyers who flocked to Kentucky each year, went away impressed with the ability and practical sense shown by the manager of Nantura, and in the natural course of events, when Mr. E. J. Baldwin, of Santa Anita Ranch, in this State, needed a manager for his thoroughbred department, he made overtures to Doctor Aby, and finally, in the spring of '86, succeeded in engaging him. The Doctor's own story is that "being naturally of a roving disposition, and having seen Silver Cloud win the American Derby, and the conviction being forced upon me that there was no place like California for the thoroughbred, I came to beautiful Santa Anita."

Two years at Mr. Baldwin's increased Doctor Aby's knowledge, and ripened his experience, the opportunities for studying of blood lines and experimenting in the development of the scores of gilt-edged youngsters being practically unlimited.

In 1888 Mr. Frederic Gebhard established the Guenoc Ranch near Middletown, Lake county, and having boundless resources naturally desired the very best assistants, and as naturally invited Dr. Aby to assume charge as general manager. Together with the owner, Dr. Aby visited the ranch, suggested preliminary improvements which were at once put in course of construction, and then started East for stallions. Eole, Eolist and St. Savior were already owned by Mr. Gebhard, and Dr. Aby left for California with them on August 12th, 1888. On the morning of the 13th at Port Jervis, Pa., the train went over a precipice 180 feet high into the Delaware river, killing twelve out of fourteen horses, St. Savior and the mare Mineral being the only survivors. The doctor lost everything he had in the world but his pluck, a pair of socks and the left pocket of the pair of pantaloons which he was wearing at the time, and the socks were stolen before daylight next morning. Then followed eight weeks in the New York Hospital, during which suffering was great and convalescence slow, but at last the patient was discharged, and at once set about carrying out the original design. A grandly bred and grander looking horse, Imported Greenback by Dollar, dam Music by Stockwell, together with some mares likely to nick with Greenback and St. Savior, were purchased, and the band again started for Guenoc, reaching that ideal horse rancho on February 4th, 1889, since which time Dr. Aby's lines have been cast in pleasant places. He is endeavoring to make Guenoc a perfect horse-breeding establishment, and those who know the solid learning of the man in horse love, his sleepless energy and fixedness of purpose, as well as his tact, will readily believe in the future of Mr. Gebhard's principality which covers the meads, canadas, oat hills and cool springs of so great a part of peerless Lake. Like every other man of marked individuality, Dr. Aby is an impressive character. Full of horsey talk, and strongly in love with his profession, his position and prospects, he can nevertheless find hours for other employments, and some for recreation. He is a keen sportsman, a fine wing shot, good fisherman, bright story-teller, the most charming of hosts, a manly man and a friend worth making, and doubly well worth trying to.

The Wass Wire Works.

Modern ornamental work in wrought iron and brass is so artistic in design and so exquisite in execution as to fairly entitle it to a place among things most beautiful. If there is a doubter let him visit D. D. Wass at 141—143 First street, San Francisco, and study the exhibit made in his wareroome.

Missouri Horse Exchange.

The largest, best and most perfectly appointed repository under cover in America, is the Missouri Horse Exchange, in St. Louis, Mo. It has the best management that can be obtained with thoroughly experienced men in every department, and consequently is enabled to insure high prices for stock consigned to its care. It arranges special sales for large consignments and contributes in every possible way to the advantage of its patrons. The officers, Messrs. George Gray, President, and Harry Ashman Secretary, are most favorably known in local circles, and their business connections are rapidly bringing them into contact with the best possible clientage of breeders, and the fact insures the greatest prosperity in the future. The firm will hold a great sale during the St. Louis Trotting Meeting, Sept. 30th and Oct. 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th. The advertisement of the company appears in another column and should be read by all horse and cattle owners.

J. A. McKerron's Horse Boots.

Ten years ago John A. McKerron made a trotting boot for Sam Gamble, then proprietor of the Club Stables in this city. The boot was a departure from accepted patterns of that day, and was the best that either Gamble or his horse-owning friends had seen. The materials used were the very best and the workmanship firstclass. Mr. McKerron's success in the initial attempt soon brought him another order, and when it appeared that the second boots were full up to the standard set by the first, the orders began to come with such frequency that Mr. McKerron was compelled to give up all other work and make nothing but horse boots. A few months enlarged his business so much that he could not meet the demand alone, and he began employing carefully selected assistants until he now has twenty-five of the best saddlers in America working under him. Prosperity has not changed the canny Scot a bit, however, and his whole time is spent in his shop where every piece of work is subjected, at all stages of completion, to the keen exacting and educated inspection of the master. The result is that the McKerron boots are standard all over the world, and in fact, two-thirds of the great volume of business done is with buyers east of the Rocky Mountains, Mr. McKerron's New York agents, A. R Van Nest & Co., handling that portion of the trade. Mr. McKerron's Pacific Coast agents are Messrs. Main & Winchester. Mr. McKerron issues a catalogue of his boots and appliances, in which the illustrations and drawings, specially prepared under personal supervision, showing each boot in full detail. In printing these drawings have been colored, so that each boot, and every part of each boot, as it appears on the list, is an exact miniature representation of the original. Thus any one by looking through these illustrations can practically get as good an idea of the boots as by seeing samples in a case. It is needless to add, that any horseman can tell at a glance a boot that will answer a particular purpose more readily than from pages of elaborate description.

With regard to quality, it is but simple justice to say that in style, fit and durability, as well as in the general excellence of the materials and workmanship used in their construction, these boots are beyond all comparison the best ever offered to the public.

The book may be had from Mr. McKerron, 228, 230 and 232 Ellis street, San Francisco, or from the agents.

Every style of boot has a distinguishing number and is made in three sizes.

Every boot has its number stamped on the leather in plain figures, also one or other of the letters L., M., or S. These are the initials of the words Large, Medium and Small.

In ordering, these numbers and letters are all that need be used. Thus, an order for 1 pair No. 8, M., would bring a pair of front shin boots, medium size, kersey, elastic; while an order for 1 pair No. 57 M., would bring the same boot in French calfskin instead of kersey, etc., etc.

Never say same as last unless you give the date of the previous order.

In cases of abnormal development, either natural or the result of accident, special directions for the necessary measurements will be furnished on application. Cases within a reasonable distance of San Francisco will receive his personal attention.

An Artist in Iron.

A visit paid to the St. Julian, or as it is more favorably known as Martin O'Dea's shop, served to impress upon your correspondent the necessity of education, skill and observation in the proper shoeing of trotters. Mr. O'Dea has shod all our famous flyers. Look at the list: St. Julian, Rarus, Lucy, Goldsmith Maid, Sweetzer, Occident, Arab, Fullerton, Nutwood, Graves, Bodine, Overman, Sana Purdy, Clementine, Abbotsford, Oakland Maid, Volney, Stamboul, etc, etc. One naturally supposes there must be some particular reason for the universal selection of any one man to whom such fleet and valuable horses are entrusted. A look at the skilfull way in which the proprietor (for be it known that he does the work on all particular jobs himself) deftly hammers and draws the iron with quick, nervous strokes, shaping and fashioning the metal to the desired shape, convinces one that he is well entitled to the name given him at the head of this article. Mr. O'Dea is no stranger in our midst, having been continually in the same line of business since 1869, during which time he has shod not only our fleetest footed horses (in a turf sense), but all classes are alike sure of the same conscientious treatment at his hands. He has seven men constantly employed, and not one that does not excel in his particular line. So great is the fame as a thorough and skilfull workman of Dr. O'Dea that he is frequently called to go into the interior of the State to attend to difficult and complicated cases of shoeing. His shop is beyond all doubt the most popular one of its kind not only in the city, but Mr. O'Dea has given it a reputation throughout the State as the shop par excellence of fine and scientific shoeing.

J. C. Johnson & Co.

Time was in California when the saddler was chiefest among ten thousand and altogether lovely. In those days of elegant appanage J. C. Johnson & Co., 400 to 404 Market street, city, led the trade and have since maintained their reputation for thorough honesty in selection of materials and workmanship, as well as for superb taste in designs for harness and saddlery. The firm not only manufactures largely, but also carries heavy lines of goods made in the East and elsewhere. The huge store presents an epitome of the advanced trade in the wares handled, and the continued prosperity of the firm for so many years is the best possible guarantee both of business integrity and able management.

Lillie R. the dam of Chaos, the Futurity winner, is almost a sister to Firenzi, being by Glenelg, out of Florence, the grandam of Firenzi.

At Agricultual Park,

SACRAMENTO.

In the cattle department a splendid display is to be seen, Durhams, Jerseys, Devons, Herefords, Polled Angus, Ayrshires and graded cattle being well represented. Although the entries did not close until Thursday night cattle commenced to come in the latter part of last week and the earlier portion of this in great numbers to compete for the premiums offered by the State Fair Society. Class 1, for Durhams, or Shorthorns, as they are generally called, has several good herds, the first to arrive being Messrs. Bridgeford's and Mulligan's and P. Peterson's herds from Colusa County, and P. S. Chile's from Davisville. The Colusa herd (eight head) was led by a good looking two year old bull. Mazurka Duke, a good hard red, with a typical head, powerful neck and shoulders, nice level back and short legs. Two cows five and six years old followed him, both as level topped and even as could be wished, and though very fat showed every indication of being good milkers. The two two year old heifers were nice shapely, beefy looking cattle, close to the ground, with good wide hips and lots of quality. A yearling heifer and a yearling bull were near the rear of the procession. The latter has a very taking appearance, a hard red, with every indication of making a grand beefy animal; the last was a fine, robust eight months old calf. P. S. Chile's herd was headed by the well known four year old Kirklevington Oxford Count, a dark red bull in grand show condition, his massive, taurine head and neck, muscular, well developed shoulders, tremendous girth and broad back, with short legs, and despite his weight, good, active movements, excited general admiration. P. Peterson has twenty-one head of as thoroughbred looking cattle as could be wished for. Counsellor, brought from Illinois, is the lord of the harem. He is a good dark red, with plenty of beef evenly laid on, very active in spite of his 2300 pounds. A good looking yearling bull is in the next stall. He was brought from Kentucky, and should improve the breed. Five cows, all large, roomy looking and good milkers, the youngest of them a three year old, took second prize last year. Her calf has been sold for $150. There are two shapely two year old heifers and a bull of the same age, who already weighs 1730 pounds, four yearling heifers and six calves, three of either sex and a calf by Counsellor, the property of Mr. Bryant, Nevada County, who bought his dam last year. Four cows followed in his wake, well matched and evidently good milkers. Two yearling bulls, Prince, a hard red, and Cupbearer 2nd, a red roan, looked fit to compete in any company, while the four bull calves and five heifers all under a year old, give practical demonstration of the Count's prowess as a producer.

In Class 2, for Jerseys and Guernseys, H. S. Sargent, Stockton, had sent thirteen worthy representatives of that popular breed, the foremost being a powerful, lengthy, blackish-fawn five year old bull, who is stronger and bigger than is usual in that breed, but yet has plenty of quality. The six cows, all young animals, showed enough indication of keeping up the reputation of the Jerseys as milk producers, having big udders, all of them being milked twice or three times a day and giving a generous supply of milk. Two two year old heifers, three heifer calves and one bull calf completed the herd.

In class 3 for Devons the first herd to arrive was R. McEnespy's herd. Five head started out, but there are already six and should be seven shortly, an increase being daily expected. A nice, low, red seventeen months' old bull brought from Pennsylvania and two cows were leading the van; a heifer fourteen months old, which has since calved, and a shapely two-year-old heifer very heavy in calf were much admired; a heifer and a bull both under a year old complete the entry.

Class 6—Holsteins or Friesian have the best entries in the ground, both in numbers and quality. Twenty-five head from Senator Stanford's Vina Ranch were placed in the first lot of stalls nearest to the grand stand, a magnificent four-year-old bull having the first stall, the four two-year-old bulls and the seven yearlings were a very even lot nicely marked, with plenty of quality and with every sign of developing into good stock bulls. Of the six cows two are imported from Friesland, and all are tremendous milk-yielders, two heifer and two bull calves complete the quota, all of which are registered in the Holstein Friesian Herd Book.

G. B. Polhemus of Coyote has twenty-four head, with Romley 3249 H. H. B., 62 A. R., at the head of the list. This well-known bull was imported in utero from Friesland to Massachusetts, and thence here. He is the sire of many prominent Holsteins in the advanced Registry, and also in the show ring. Seven cows are shown, all of which are registered in the Holstein Herd Book, having been imported and out of cows with a tremendous milk record. Sansye 2nd is a typical Holstein. Her mother, Sansye, was imported, and shortly after her arrival calved Sansye 2nd, who was the first animal admitted in California to the Advanced Registry. Four two-year-old heifers and one two-year-old bull are also shown, six trim characteristic yearling bulls, a yearling heifer and four calves, two of each sex. All are entered in the Herd Book.

In Class 7, Angus or Galloways, G. M. Dixon, Argonaut Stock Farm, has eleven head in the class. They are black Polled Angus, and are a very even lot, lengthy, short-legged and very beefy-looking, hardy stock. Miniature, a three year old bull weighing 2525 pounds, has the premier position, and worthily, too, for he is a good representative of the breed. Coquette 2nd, of Lake Forest, is probably as near perfection as anything in the class, her head being exceptionally fine. Her sire, Basuto, is a well known winner of the show ring in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and the Eastern States. He was bred by Sir George McPherson Grant in Stockton, while her dam was the well known Coquette 4th, a prize winner in Scotland and afterwards in the Eastern States. Two four year old cows, a two year old heifer with a pretty bull calf, a three year old yearling and a heifer calf are also exhibited.

F. H. Burke's La Siesta Holsteins are so well known that it is almost needless to expatiate on their merits. There are nineteen head in all. The bulls were all raised by Mr. Burke. Two of them, big, long rangy animals of massive proportions are brilliant examples of what the ranch can raise. The cows, several of which are imported, are a very even lot, evidently great milk producers.

P. C. Anderson, Oakland, has five useful-looking Jerseys.

W. C. Smith, Florin, has eight head of Jerseys, including a useful two-year-old bull, who is rather thin, a bull calf, the old seventeen-year-old cow, last year's prize winner, three heifers (two and one year old and a calf) out of her and two heifer calves.

Geo. Bement, Oakland, has twelve Ayrshires, headed by Lord Faxon, a dark red and white bull, four younger bulls and eight cows and heifers. They were, with one exception, all bred by the owner.

J. E. Camp has eight head of Polled angus that are very well matched, though rather rough haired; they show good quality; two useful young Durham bulls are also entered by Mr. Camp.

The Interstate Galloway Cattle Company have thirty-nine head of Galloways and three Polled angus. The former have evidently been carefully selected, being a very uniform lot.

Henry Vaughan, the well known importer of Herefords, had twelve head of his favorite breed, which should upset the Shorthorn fanciers this year in the sweepstakes. Pertly is a grand six year old bull weighing 2,800 pounds. He is by Rudolph, the celebrated Wyoming bull for whom $40,000 was refused. His dam was by Royalist, the sire of Lenora, who was said to be the best Hereford heifer ever shown in England. Pertly is a big, lengthy animal, with a back like a table, wide behind and on good short legs. Although he has not been here long he is in very good show trim. Among his cows is an eleven year old, a winner in St. Louis in 1887, then weighing 1,800 pounds, and although she has had seven calves, four of which have been exhibited successfully in the show ring, she is in very good condition, having plenty of fat evenly distributed on her; the four and three year old cows have both had calves and are again in calf. They, with the old cow, were originally imported from England. There are also in the herd a very shapely two year old heifer brought from Illinois; she is in calf; a yearling and one nearly two years old, both in calf to Pertly, and a good ten months old heifer calf. The younger bulls are Hickory Grove, a massive two year old, What's Wanted, an aptly named yearling, dark red and a splendid specimen of his breed. Both his parents are well known winners at Kilburn and the crack English shows. Two bull calves, ten and nine months old, are at the tail end of a herd the equal of which has probably never been seen in California before.

H. M. La Ru has his Australian Hereford, who is hardly in as good condition as he has been before. M. Swan, of Santa Barbara, has six head of nice even range bulls; though not in condition, they are in good trim for ranch cattle.

A. & A. Heilbron have ten Hereford and eighteen Shorthorns. The Herefords consist of two bulls, two bull calves, four cows and two heifers. One of the bulls is a very good representative. The Shorthorns or Durhams include eleven good useful bulls, two cows and calves.

W. Jacobs' (Sacramento) herd is represented by seven good average cows and a shapely bull.

The California Pastoral and Agricultural Association, Merced, sent up eleven head of graded cattle, and though not fattened up like some other exhibits, they are in good condition for breeding purposes.

Messrs. Younger and son have seventeen head of Durhams, eleven females and six males. The cows are all good strong, healthy, well put up cattle. The big red bull begins to show signs of age, but the younger, a roan, is a very compact, short-legged, beefy animal.

J. M. Mansfield, of Napa, has a big red bull in the same class, rather old, judging from his appearance, but there should be some good work in him yet.

J. Marzen, Nevada, has nine Durhams and a yearling Hereford bull. A good red four year old bull has the post of honor; the six cows, all young, are useful looking, with plenty of quality.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., Thursday, Sept. 13th.

The State Fair is again upon us. For the thirty-ninth time this capital city is full of people and full of horses. Sacramento is a good town to sleep in for fifty weeks of the year, but for the other two it is the only town in the State. People forget that there is any other place to go to, and every railroad which leads this way carries hundreds of excursionists who come for two weeks to see what their neighbors over the county line are doing toward raising fine pumpkins, and what their friends on the stock ranches are doing in the way of producing prize bulls. Then the boys come to see just where they can put their money, so that it will do the most good, and to settle in their own minds whether the chestnut colt from down south can give the bay from the north a beating. Then the true-blooded horseman comes, and he brings with him the pick and pride of his place, the immaculate conceptions of his pet breeding theory to be entered alongside the same kind of an article produced by another horseman. Then the women and children come, some to see the races, some to see their relatives, and all to enjoy themselves. The poor, hard-worked wife from the farm sits alongside the aristocratic wearer of silks and satins from the city. The one will bet her gloves and her bon-bons upon some racer whose colors please her, while the other will watch with beating heart and heaving breast and an unuttered prayer in her bosom the efforts of her husband's one entry to win a purse which means half a year's living to her and the little ones. One of them sees in a horse a machine of muscle and bone, built to run as an actor is trained to play—to please the public; the other sees a thing of life and heart—a kind of foster-child—bred and born, nursed and nurtured right under the eaves of the old homestead, and carrying with him as he jogs down to the post, the hopes and the fears, the success or the failure, the joy or the pain, of a whole family and half a county.

It is a cosmopolitan crowd which congregates at the State Fair. There are many fairs and many race meetings, but to the counties there is but one State Fair, and they show their appreciation of it by hoarding for a whole year all the spare dimes which come in, and at the fall season, and then when the year's work is about over and its fruits in the bin, they come out for a season of absolute enjoyment.

The State Fair this year has not seen its equal in the past. Never were the premium lists so heavy and never were the entries so large. There are three distinct features of the fair, the races, the stock shows and the pavilion exhibits, and the three appeal to three different classes of people. The races of course, draw the largest crowd and have the widest interest. What sport they will furnish this year can be seen by a glance at the entry list. Every event has a heavy quota of starters and there have been up to date, remarkably few scratches. The horses to contend are all well known, too well known to the racing public to deserve detailed mention. The stables include all of the old timers. There are representatives here from Palo Alto, Rancho del Paso, Rosemeade, San Mateo, Pleasanton and every other large breeding establishment west of the Rockies, and there are smaller owners by the dozen; Bruce Cockrell, Billy Appleby, Matt Storn, John Reavey, Kelly & Samuels, Dan Reeves, L. U. Shippee, Colonel Thornton, P. C. Donalich, Charles Horan, Tom Jones, Ben Hill, J. E. Fallon, H. H. Hobbs, C. V. Tupper and W. M. Murray.

Among the lovers of the trotter there are G. Valensin, Irvin Ayres, Orrin Hickok, G. A. Doherty, E. B. Gifford, J. A. Linscott, "By" Holly, Scott Quinton, A. C. Dietz, Frank Burke, Alfred Gonzales, A. T. Hatch, H. B. Starr, George W. Woodward, J. R. Hodgson and others, besides the scores of trainers, jockeys and the crowd who love a race as they love their lives.

The track and adjacent grounds never presented a better appearance than they do to-day. The track is smooth as velvet and in the best of condition for the trotters and good enough for the runners. It is not quite so fast as the Napa track, but will compare with any other in the State. The rising sun sees half a hundred horses at their work every morning, and a handsomer lot can't be put together in any one State in the Union. The park stables are the most commodious and most comfortable in the West, and still they have been found inadequate and 67 new cottage stalls have been built within the past three days. With this addition everything is full up to the brim and more stock coming. There are horses, cattle and sheep everywhere. They fill the stalls and the sheds to overflowing and stand with their heads out the doors of the old abandoned sheds away down the quarter stretch. Grooms, rubbers and attendants are flying about all day long and there is a continual bustle and excitement from daylight until dark.

The pavilion has been sadly behindhand. The formal opening took place Monday evening, but it saw a confused mass of pumpkins and pianos, horse collars and stick candy, harness and needlework, windmills and canned fruit, instead of a well-ordered show. Throngs of men have been diligently at work since then, and something like arrangement has been brought out of the chaos, and Thursday night for the first time people saw what the exposition would be like.

One's first impression on entering the pavilion is that California produces half the fruit of the world. There is fruit to the left of you, fruit to the right of you, fruit in front of you; fruit green and fruit dry, fruit on the bunch and fruit in the can. Every county displays fruit, and there is enough to feed this city a week. The displays of farm machinery, buggies, harness, etc., is hardly up to former years. In the buggy department the Columbus Buggy Company makes it usual large exhibit of light vehicles running in style from a hunting wagon to a T cart.

A. Meister & Co. display a larger assortment of California made vehicles consisting of buggies, phaetons, carriages, hotel busses, etc. C. Nielson of Sacramento, shows seventeen specimens of carriage work. Studebaker Bros. exhibit farm wagons and several styles of buggies, and Maxon & Ackley of Sacramento, family carriages, sulkies and other vehicles.

The display of farm implements is not very elaborate. Several styles of windmills, two or three patterns of combined harvesters, hay presses, threshers, etc, are shown. Many other entries in the department are not yet in place.

Killip & Co, the pool-sellers, have been the means of creating quite a furor. They secured a vacant lot belonging to the government on 7th and K streets, opposite the Golden Eagle Hotel, and built thereon a shed for the stated purpose of selling over-night pools. The city government sat down on the gambling fraternity, and it became noised about that Killip & Co. had sublet a part of their lot to the gamblers, and that the gambling would go on despite the city law under the pretext that the city had no jurisdiction over the government land. Two men started a game in the shed, and were immediately arrested. The police judge decided that he had no jurisdiction, and that night the wheel started in the shed and is running in full blast. Killip & Co. deny having anything to do with the games. Opposition people started pool-selling in the Golden Eagle Hotel, but only a few bets were laid, and the business was suspended. The betting thus far in Killip's shed has been very heavy. Sunol's walk-over in the Occident Stake, Thursday, called out odds of $20 to $15 that she would trot in 2:18.

The trip of the stables up from Oakland was made in perfect safety, not a single horse sustaining injury. The contingent from up country also had a safe arrival. The racers have the call on stables, of course, and all are comfortably housed. There are many comendable features in the State fair management which the other associations might adopt with small expense. On the huge blackboard in front of the grandstand are placed the names of all starters in a race with drivers or riders, the postions of horses in each heat and the time by quarters. Every jockey is numbered to correspond with his mount's number on the card and riders are compelled to wear stables colors corresponding with the colors announced on the card. By these means, the result of a little care, the general public is enabled to identify the horse in a race and to determine the exact positions of a finish. Everything considered, the track and grounds are the best arranged and the best equipped for racing to be found anywhere outside the big eastern cities. To-day sees the opening and when the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN goes to press the State Fair will be in full blast and a thousand throats will be cherring the winners of the opening events, success to the fair and success to the men whose energy and enterprise have established it as the racing entertainment of the year and of the west.

J. N. A.

Please let me know the pedigree of "Rhoderick Dhu" owned at one time by James Crocker.

Answer.—Mr. Charles Kerr, of Bakersfield who bred the horse, says he was by Whipple's Hambletonian, dam by Pauls Abdallah, of his second dam he knows nothing.

J. H. W. Oakland

Please send letter to this office as to how you got sush a pedigree for the mare. We think you have been imposed upon, but will straighten it out if possible.

James A. Clayton of San Jose will sell at public auction, for whom it may concern, during the Fair Meeting at that place, a choice lot of draft horses, including prize winners and premium colts. A number of standard trotting horses will also be sold at the same sale.

Mr. Biggs, Jr., has been annoyed, and justly feels a good deal injured by the various reports of the St. Lucas race at Marysville last week, more particularly by the report in one of our prominent dailies. As a matter of fact, the judges did not take Mr. Biggs out of the sulky; on the contrary, when he requested them to allow him to substitute a driver they asked him to continue driving himself, but as his arms were very tender from recent boils he was unable to do the horse justice and insisted on their allowing him to have a new driver and lost a good deal of money on the race. After consulting with several friends who were the principal backers of the horse, Kinney was put up. The result is already known; Annie E. won.

DON PATRICIO

BY A. W. RICHMOND, DAM BRIDGET. PROPERTY OF I. K. FISHER, SANTA BARBARA.

DON PATRICIO.

One of the Finest Stallions in Southern California—Owned by I. K. Fisher, of Santa Barbara.

A. W. Richmond 1687, was foaled in 1862 near Cleveland, Ohio. He was by Simpson's Blackbird, and his dam was reputed to be by a horse called Rateier; the grand dam said to be by a spotted horse named Spotted Ranger. He was bred by Azariah Prussia of Iowa, and was brought to this State by Joseph Cairn Simpson, now of Oakland. This gentleman sold Richmond to Hancock M. Johnson, of San Diego, who owned him until the death of the horse in December of last year. Away in that far off corner of the State he had not the opportunities which should have been his, yet still he has left a name through his progeny that will live for years to come. A. W. Richmond came first into prominence as a Sire, in 1879, when Len Rose as a two year old, trotted at Sacramento in 2:47½, which was then considered a remarkable performance, and two years later Romero appeared upon the circuit gaining a record for himself of 2:22¼ as a four year old, which he further reduced in 1882 to 2:19½. Another of his get which made him famous was the celebrated pacer Arrow 2:13¼ which last year and the year previous was such a well known campaigner. Ellwood, another pacer has a record of 2:24, but it is as the Sire of Columbine that he is best known. She stands today the only broodmare in the great table with two trotters to her credit better than 2:20, they being Anteeo 2:16¼, and Antevolo 2:19½ as a four year old.

Is it any wonder that the close student of producing blood should want A. W. Richmond stock? Certainly not, the only wonder being that there were not more of the fashionably bred matrons sent to his harem for he had many years ago proved himself a producer of great speed. Those who have any of the get of A. W. Richmond are very fortunate, for it is certain that his sons will be in great demand before long. Among the many good ones now in this State there is probably not one that ranks in individual excellence with DON PATRICIO, owned by I. K. Fisher of Santa Barbara. Mr. Fisher is an ardent lover of equine sport and an exceedingly good judge of horse flesh, so when he determined some time ago to purchase a first class stock horse he did not buy on the "say so" of any one, but carefully examined any and all that he thought might suit, traveling north and south, in his determination to take only the best.

When Willoughby and Co. offered for sale the steel grey Stallion Don Patricio foald 1884 by A. W. Richmond, dam Bridget, who was out of Lady Lexington, she by Kentucky Hunter. The dam of Don Patricio, Bridget, was a very fast road mare of more than usual speed, as she could readily pull a road wagon a mile in 2:40, while she has been known to beat three minutes with two gentlemen in a heavy buggy. In buying the young colt, Mr. Fisher was well aware of the great individuality of the mare and felt assured that a cross with A. W. Richmond must make the produce a very desirable animal. In addition to the well known qualities of the sire and dam, Don Patricio is in himself a perfect model of the ideal trotter, and those who have seen him, speak in the highest manner of his conformation and great muscular development. His head presents a high degree of intelligence, very broad forehead, magnificent eyes, well set ears and a fine tapering neck which emanates from as muscular a pair of shoulders as man ever saw on any well bred horse. He is well coupled with fine broad back, very deep through the heart and closely knit ribs, presenting a finished body appearance that is rarely witnessed. His quarters are heavy, stifle action good and legs that cannot be beat. Don Patricio has never been trained, yet can show quarters in thirty eight seconds, and it is confidently believed by many that 2:20 will be an easy mark for him with the requisite amount of work. He will not be trained this year, but next season Mr. Fisher will put the horse in competent hands with the idea of getting a low record for him.

Mr. Fisher is a keen sportsman and thoroughly believes in only securing the best of everything and he has made no mistake in purchasing this grand looking son of A. W. Richmond.

I. K. Fisher is one of the pushing, wide awake business men of Santa Barbara, and is always to the fore in matters of public interest; and it was through his indefatigable efforts that the present excellent water supply of the city was brought into use. For three successive terms, he has been elected to the position of City Councilman, and at the last election he was the only one that was reelected, thus showing how his valuable services are appreciated by his fellow townsmen.

Mr. Fisher has a fine ranch only six miles from the city of Santa Barbara, which he expects to turn into a first class breeding farm, having already secured quite a number of well bred mares. It is only a question of time until the fame of Mr. Fisher's stock farm will be second to none in the State, and it is an assured fact that only the best will be allowed there. With Don Patricio at the head of the stud, Mr. Fisher should have a lot of youngsters that will equal any to be found in the country.

General Hart came down to Marysville on Thursday to see his mare Almonta, trot on Friday. The General was very much disappointed about the Wednesday's race as were many others.

McCord was afraid of getting Ned Winslow driven out too fast on Thursday at Marysville, so the race was declared off. Snickleritz, the only other starter would probably have forced him out in 2:20.

The Fairlawn Sale.

The sale of Fairlawn trotters, which will take place on the 10th, 11th and 12 of October next, will be the greatest disposal sale of trotters ever held. The Glenview sale comprised but 183 head, while Fairlawn will sell 250. These animals are the result of fifteen years' careful application by one of the ablest breeders in the United States. There is no trotting farm in America or elsewhere that can show animals of greater excellence than can be found at Fairlawn. The brood mares and fillies are a rich lot, and our young breeders will do well to make selections from among them. We regard the Fairlawn collection as by long odds the best large lot of stock ever put on the market. Fifteen daughters of Almont are now dams of eighteen 2:30 performers. This beats the record by two for a horse of his age. Almont will soon be known as the greatest sire of dams, in addition to his many other great achievements. Read the advertisement of the Fairlawn sale.

A Lament For Old Black Joe.

BY KIT KILLBIRD.

Old Black Joe! What cheek is there that does not pale, what lip that does not quiver, what heart, among this great throng of American sportsmen, that does not turn cold and shiver at the chilling and repulsive shadow of Death, as it glides with its relentless sickle over the alley-ways of the kennel yard, while the tear-dimmed eye reads this triple-worded phrase, Old Black Joe? If to the coterie of sympathetic sportsmen, the sad intelligence of the death of this great dog and field trial performer, comes with such an appalling shock, what, oh reader! must be the feelings of his proud, but now grief-stricken owner, who can but cry, in the agonizing throes of despair, "Oh Death, where is thy sting? Oh Grave, where is thy victory?"

Little did we think, when the thrill of hope stirred the heart, and the glow of a sportsman's pride and enthusiasm mantled every cheek upon the plains of Bakersfield, where Old Black Joe ran foremost and ahead, whipping his merry stern in the face of his competitors, and carrying the standard of honor to the very pinnnacle of fame, whose temple now stands in granite-like strength and magnitude upon the haunted field, to commemorate the faultless stride, the enchanting style, and the unerring nose of the wonderful dog, that the golden sands of California would so soon be heaped upon the dead, cold form and wreck of this phenomenal performer, the pride of his owner's kennel, and the joy of a sportsman's heart.

No sooner, or more suddenly had this great dog arisen from the depths of obscurity, and ridden on the crest of the waves that wafted him to the gilt-edge shores of fame and renown, that he sunk beneath them to rise no more. A flash, a glimmer as it were, a rocket in the sky, then the dull, gray line that marks the path of the meteor in the dark blue dome above us.

Yes, a brilliant actor has disappeared from the stage, a star has fallen from the firmament, and in darkness we shall grope, unless a spark! from this once bright luminary has been kindled into a vestal flame, and guarded by watchful eyes in the camp-grounds of the Pacific coast. Far in the future, on pages of the history of the dogs of America, to those who may read it, when the handlers of to-day are grim, bald and gray; when the buffalo shall have passed away, and the Indian too; when the wild duck has stopped nesting, and the Spring shooter has laid down his old-fashioned hammerless, the name of Old Black Joe will appear like an "oasis 'pon the desert," "a green spot in memory's waste" to awaken and recall the sweet but sad memories of the past. The trembling, tracing finger of the gray-bearded patriarch will stop instinctively on the spot and a low, sepulchral voice shall be heard, saying: "Come here sonny, and let grandpa tell you about that marvelous dog that came all the way from old England, leaving his pedigree amid the rubbish of the work-shop of Pape, the gunmaker at New-castle-on-Tyne, to battle with the cracks upon the boundless fields of America, on the merits of his work alone, winning for his master a purse greater in value, perhaps, than his purchase price, and for himself.

Upon the scroll of fame,
An imperishable record, a spotless name.

But alas!

The "grim messenger" with mandates stern, Joe,
And decrees of Fate eternal
Have handicapped you here below
And flushed our realm infernal.

But all will be yours, Joe, in spirit land whence no traveler returns, and of which now a still small voice, from the depths of a hunter's soul within me, asks:

"Is there a land and hunting grounds,
A land beyond the limit,
Of sinful souls terrestrial bounds
With guns and dogs within it?

"There is a land, a happy land,
A land beyond the sky,
Enticing fields, a guiding hand
And a voice saying, 'Hie.'"

There let this winged spirit fly,
Fly from the wrath to come
And we'll be there in the sweet bye and bye
To shout o'er the victory won.

Peace be to thy ashes good and faithful one, and upon the stone above thy head there be writ in letters gilt, that he who runs may read, veni, vidi, vici.

Joe had, 'tis said, no pedigree,
But how on earth could this thing be
For in his actions did we not see
The index of his purity?
Poor Joe, good dog you have in me
One who reveres the memory
Of every meritorious score
Won under shotgun's sullen roar
Ere thy battle of life was o'er.

Then, comrades, on his grave I ween,
You'll cast a sprig of evergreen,
A brother's consolation
If for naught but to show how hard
Woe betides a kennel yard
And a breeders aspiration.

He was not mine, oh no,
The world knows that; but then for Joe
I do repine,
But the moist eye, and the lip that quivered
More than once o'er the vase thus shivered,
All, is mine.

PINKNEYVILLE, MISS.

"Kit Killbird's" lament for Old Black Joe, printed elsewhere, is taken from our excellent exchange The American Field, and is in the best vien of that particularly felicitious writer.

Meeting of the Advisory Committee of the American Kennel Club, held Aug. 1, '89.

Present:—Thomas H. Terry, James L. Anthony and Dr. J. Frank Perry.

Absent—August Belmont Jr., and John S. Wise.

The meeting was called to order at 1 o'clock P. M.

Mr. Thomas H. Terry was duly elected chairman.

The report of the special committee consisting of C. M. Munhall and T. B. Lee, in the matter of investigating the charges preferred by the Michigan Kennel Club, against the St. Paul and Minnesota Kennel Club, and referred to the committee by the Executive Committee of the American Kennel Club at its meeting May 23rd, was submitted, and the following resolution was offered and adopted:

Resolved, That the St. Paul and Minnesota Kennel Club be and is hereby censured for their neglect to comply strictly with the rules of the American Kennel Club. Evidence is wanted to convince this committee that the violation of the rules was intentional, otherwise the committee would have recommended the expulsion of the club. As to the matter of the employment of Chas Weil as superintendent of the show, the committee deplores the fact that there is no rule of the American Kennel Club which bears on his case. The committee therefore beg to recommend the adoption of a rule forbidding the official employment of any person expelled by a a club that is a member of the American Kennel Club.

The appeal of Mr. T. O. Hall, Atlanta, Ga., from his disqualification as the advertised Treasurer of the National Poultry and Bench Show Association, was read, and the following resolution was offered and adopted:

Resolved, That Mr. T. O. Hall be granted sixty days to furnish this committee with proof from the officers, or three reputable members of the late National Poultry and Bench Show Association of Atlanta, Ga., that he was not the treasurer of said association, nor employed in any official capacity at the show of said association, and that his name was advertised and used as treasurer without his knowledge or consent, that upon being furnished with satisfactory proof as above this committee will recommend that the disqualification in his case be removed.

The Secretary read a communication from Mr. W. B. Shattuc, President of the American Field Trial Club, advising the American Kennel Club that his club had paid Mr. Jas. L. Anthony the prize awarded to the pointer Lad of Bow at the trials of 1887, said communnication being accompanied by a resolution adopted by the Board of Control of the American Field Trial Club, which was laid on the table for future action, there being no quorum present without Mr. Anthony, who declined to act in the matter, being personally interested.

A petition from Mr. J. F. Campbell, Montreal, Canada, forwarded by the Canadian Kennel Club, asking to be relieved from the penalty of suspension for one year, imposed on him by the American Kennel Club at its meeting December 6, 1888, was submitted, and resulted in the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, It being the sense of this committee that Mr. J. F. Campbell in having promptly paid back to the Westminster Kennel Club the prize he illegally won at its show, upon notice to do so from the American Kennel Club, and having in the opinion of this committee been sufficiently punished for his offense, it is hereby ordered that the suspension of the said J. F. Campbell be and is hereby removed from this date.

A request from the Dominion of Canada Kennel Club for the recognition of the awards at its coming show to be held at Toronto, Canada, in September next, was read, and the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, The American Kennel Club, at its annual meeting in February last, entered into an agreement with the Canadian Kennel Club to recognize its wins, and said Canadian Kennel Club filed with the American Kennel Club a copy of its Constitution, By-Laws, Rules for the Governing of Dog Shows in Canado, etc., therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this committee that in consideration of the aforementioned agreement between the American Kennel Club and the Canadian Kennel Club, it would be confusing and unwise to recognize the wins at Canadian shows held under a variety of show rules.

Resolved, That this committee hereby recommends that the American Kennel Club should make a standing rule, to-wit, that any show held in Canada under the rules of the Canadian Kennel Club, will, upon application, be recognized by the American Kennel Club, provided said application shall be recommended by the Canadian Kennel Club.

Resolved, The Secretary is hereby directed to publish in the August number of the Gazette the following names as delinquents:

Col. Forsythe, Fresno, Cal.; Alex. Greer, Albany, N. Y.; W. S. Gregory, Albany, N. Y.; J. G. Heckscher, Union Club, N. Y.; W. C. Hudson, Albany, N. Y.; G. H. Turner, New York; A. P. Cassin, Atlanta, Ga.; W. R. Crosby, Atlanta, Ga. S. H. Meyers, Augusta, Ga.; A. S. Mattingly, Mount Pleasant, D. C.; H. J. Dolan, Boston, Mass.

Resolved, That the following names published as delinquents in the June and July Gazettes be dropped from the roll of Associate membership for the non-payment of dues:

Hosea Madden, Augusta, Ga.; J. H. Phelan, Jersey City, N. J.; Joseph Lewis, Cannonsburg, Pa; George N. Whiteley, Helena, Mont.

Resolved, That this committee deems it inexpedient to barter advertisements; and the Secretary is hereby instructed to that effect.

Adjourned. A. P. VREDENBURGH, Secretary.

The late Clydesdale shows in Scotland have been very fine, with a large exhibit of splendid horses, and big crowds of people in attendance. "The presence of our American friends," says "Ravenswood," "is as marked a feature of agricultural life at this season of the year as ever, and not only are buyers from Canada and the United States numerous, but they are looking out for and selecting stock of great value. Nothing is more remarkable in this season's purchases than the ample verification of the statement that the day of the inferior horse is over." "Ravenswood" gives quite a list of American purchases, which include many of the finest young animals to be found in the Clydesdale districts. Fine shows have been held at Stanraer, Wigtown, Aberdeen and Melrose, all of which showed great advance in breeding during the past few years, with perhaps the exception of Melrose, where the entries were not so numerous as usual, though the quality of many of the animals shown was of a superior character.

FAIRMONT.

A Promising Young Stallion. The Property of James G. Fair, Jr.

Away up, near Knights' Landing, is a farm consisting of 11,000 acres of land owned by one of our wealthiest citizens, and yet there are but very few who are aware that he is interested in horses and is branching out into a prominent breeder of trotting horses. Within the past twelve months Senator James G. Fair has developed an inclination to go into the business that has brought fame and golden opinions to Senator Stanford, Hon. L. J. Rose, William Corbitt and many others on this coast. The large farm has heretofore been devoted to the raising of cereals and hay, but now a certain portion will be reserved for the brood mares that may be added from time to time, and small paddocks will be fenced off for the use of the foals. It is pleasant to contemplate another wealthy gentleman added to the numerous breeders, but it is an assurance that only the gilt-edged and fashionable strains will be cultivated on the farm.

It may be interesting to many to know how Senator Fair became connected with a breeding establishment, especially as it was by pure accident. Many years ago every one in the habit of visiting the race track and park were familiar with the well-known team owned and driven by Mr. Flood, the banker. The names of Oakland Maid and Queen were household words among those interested in horses, for they were the team par excellence of San Francisco, and by many thought to be the best in the United States. It was no unusual thing to see them beating a "twenty-five" gait, and many times they were driven even faster than that. Oakland Maid was originally the property of Josiah Sessions, and before being purchased by Mr. Flood had achieved great renown on the track, having made a record of 2:22. In the several years that she was relegated to turf exploits she met and conquered such good ones as Dan Voorhees, St. James, May Howard, George Treat, San Bruno and scores of others. Mr. Flood was anxious to secure a mate for the Maid, and deputed Mr. George Congdon to purchase one equally as fast, the result being that Queen was bought in Orange County, New York, and sent out here. She was a magnificent brown mare, and of the same age as Oakland Maid, being foaled in 1868. Her sire was Garibaldi, a son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, and her dam was a very fast trotting mare, whose sire was Royal George; the second dam was by the famous old horse, St. Lawrence. Owing to the death of Mr. Congdon, the breeding of Queen was for a long time in doubt, but when inquiries were set on foot it took but a short time to clear up the mystery of her parentage and determine where she got her great speed from, It was generally conceded by those most capable of judging that she could easily beat 2:18 if in proper condition, but she was never started in a race singly, consequently what she might have done is only a matter of conjecture. In the course of time both of the mares were bred, Queen being stinted to Piedmont, and the result was Fairmont, the subject of this sketch. Mr. Flood finally made a present of the colt to Mr. James G. Fair, Jr., who sent the handsome youngster up to his father's place. Mr. Fair, pere, at once saw the necessity of having some good brood mares, and an advertisement was inserted in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN looking toward that end. There were scores of answers, but a large majority of the stock offered did not suit, as good producing dams were wanted. As yet only half a dozen have been secured, but from time to time the number will be added to. It will be seen from the above that the presentation of the colt to young Mr. Fair is what caused the Senator to add the horse interest to his already large and diversified businesses. The youngsteris three years old, a son of a great performer, and also a producer of speed, as is testified to in the fact that already this year four of his get have entered the 2.30 list, with many more to hear from. Piedmont was as game a horse as ever started in a race, and is the fastest son of the mighty Almont. His record shows that he engaged in fifteen hotly contested races, and he has forty one heats to his credit, made in better time than 2:30.

His record of 2:17¼ was made in one of the greatest races that ever took place in America. The celebrated stallions Robert McGregor, 2:17½, Santa Claus, 2:17½, Monroe Chief, 2:18¼, Wedgewood, 2:19, and Hannis, 2.17¾, were his competitors at Chicago on July 19, 1881, where they met in battle royal to determine the relative merits of the great stallions of the day. The first and third heats went to McGregor in 2·18 and 2:18½. Santa Claus won the second heat in 2:17½, while Piedmont took the fourth, fifth and sixth heats in 2.17¼, 2:19½ and 2:21.

This stamped the winner as being the very best horse of his age in the country, and all Californians were gratified when it was learned that Senator Stanford had purchased the great horse for stock purposes. With such game breeding on both sides, is it to be wondered that James G. Fair, Jr., thinks that he has the most promising young horse in the State?

Flowing in the veins of Fairmont we find the blood o Rysdyk's Hambletonian, Almont, Mambrino Chief, Mambrino and Pilot Jr., enough of each to warrant the belief that he should be as fast as the wind, and an equally good producer, for all of his ancestors have proven their good qualities in that respect.

Fairmont is a beautiful bay, and will undoubtedly stand fully sixteen hands high when he has attained his full growth. To the eye of the ordinary observer, the horse is a picture, but when the practical horseman takes a look over his proportions, captivation at once ensues. He is perfectly balanced, has a fine intelligent head, good neck, set in a deep pair of shoulders, is well muscled, grand legs, and tendons that cannot be surpassed. There is a breadth to the legs that betokens great strength. His middle piece is extraordinarily good, and the back ribs have the proper curve. There is all the room necessary for the heart and lungs, and, taken all in all, he is as near perfection as one could desire Mr. Fair may be congratulated on having the very best three-year-old to be seen anywhere, and if he does not prove a most valuable horse, then breeding and looks go for nothing.

Almont Mares.

ED. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Almont produced altogether not more than 800 foals. Of these not more than 400 are alive—about 200 sons and about the same number of daughters. Of the latter fourteen remain unsold at Fairlawn, and these having been selected by General Withers for his stud, are among the best bred, and the best individuals of all the mares produced by that renowned stallion. As these mares are shortly to pass under the auctioneer's hammer, a description of them will probably be of interest to your readers, particularly as it is now a recognized fact that Almont will in all probability soon become the greatest sire of trotting sires. I will take up these mares alphabetically.

The first is Agate, foaled in 1870. She is a roan mare, 15¾ hands high, bred at Fairlawn. Her first dam was Annie Bailey, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian; 2nd dam by Hiram Drew. Annie Bailey was a very fast trotter. Agate is a beautifully gaited mare and could easily be put in the 2:30 list. She is a good breeder and was bred this year to Noble Medium, the handsome and fat son of Happy Medium. This is a very desirable mare, both on account of her breeding and individuality.

Allena is a very dark bay mare, 15¾ hand high, foaled in 1877; bred by Gen. Withers. Her first dam was Belle Goddard by Mambrino Chief; 2nd dam Woodford Belle by Mirabeau, son of Medoc; 3rd dam said to be thoroughbred. Allena is a highly finished mare. Her combination of blood is the same that produced Allie West, Piedmont, Almont Eagle and LeGrande, sire of the sensational Grandee. Metella, bred in the same lines, an unbroken mare recently, sold for $3,500. Allena is a regular breeder and is a very valuable broodmare.

Almira is a full sister to Alburn (sire of Almont, 2:20, and others). Trouble (sire of Lizzie 2d 2:24½, Trifle 2:29½ and other winners) and Altamont 2:25¾; dam Sue Ford by Brown Chief, son of Mambrino Chief; 2nd dam by imp. Hooton (sire of Lulu's dam, record 2:14¾); 3rd dam by Bertrand; 4th dam by imp. Buzzard. Brown Chief's dam was by Downing's Bay Messenger; 2nd dam by Hunt's Brown Highlander. Almira is 16 hands high, and was foaled in 1873. She is bred this year to Noble Medium, and a colt produced by this cross should be very valuable.

Balsoreen is a dark bay mare, 15½ hands high, foaled in 1879; dam Balsorina by Balsora (son of Alexander's Abdallah; 2nd dam Lady Woodfolk by Alcalde; 3rd dam by Ball's Vermont; 4th dam Betty by Hunt's Commodore; 5th dam Bet Bounce, a fast trotting mare brought from Canada in 1836, by Mr. David Castleman. This is a remarkably fine individual and an exceedingly well bred mare. She was this year bred to Aberdeen.

Brightness is a chestnut mare 15¾ hands high, foaled in 1877. She is a very handsome and finely gated mare, and a full sister to the trotting stallion General Withers, for which $5,000 was refused. Her two-year-old brother sold for $2,500 and her first foal Glitter has trotted several times better than 2:30. She was bred this year to Aberdeen.

Crape Myrtle is a bay mare 15½ hands high, foaled in 1884 and is a full sister to Grandmont that made a record of 2:26¼ in Italy under adverse circumstances. Her first dam is Badonia by C. M. Clay Jr.; 2nd dam Puss Steadman by Alexander's Norman; 3rd dam by Toronto (sires of dams of Aldine 2:19¼, Lister 2:25, Mignon 2:27¼, Good Morning 2:28½ and the second dam of Monroe Chief 2:18¼) son of Old St. Lawrence; 4th dam by imp. Champion. Crape Myrtle was bred this year to Noble Medium.

Emblem, bay mare, 15½ hands high, is a full sister to Alroy, sire of Alcalde 2:28¾, Atlas 2:28½, Alas 2:40 at three years old and other winners. Her first dam was Emma Kinkead by Conscript, full brother to American Clay; 2nd dam Effie Dean by Mambrino Chief; 3rd dam by Powell's Bertrand, sire of Bertrand, son of Sir Archy. Emblem was foaled in 1881 and was this year bred to Noble Medium.

Etona is a bay mare, foaled in 1875, 15½ hands high. Her first dam was the grand dam of King Phillip 2:23¾ and dam of Rothschild, grand sire of Hunter 2:23½ and Charley P. 2:25¾, by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; 2nd dam by Downing's Black Highlander, son of Crussader; 3rd dam by Lance. Etona is a very desirable mare, is very stout and highly finished, and an excellent broodmare. She was bred this year to Aberdeen.

Francisca, bay mare, 15½ hand high, was foaled June 14, 1881; dam France's Breckenridge by Sentinel (full brother to Volunteer and sire of Von Arnim 2:19¼, Vivaudiere 2:21¼, Annette 2:25½, T. A. 2:29, Young Sentinel 2:26, Mignon 2:26½, Grand Sentinel 2:27¼, and Capoul 2-28 He is also the grand sire Consul 2:22½, Sir Knight 2:23¾, Lelah H. 2:24½, and 14 more with records of 2:30 or better) son of Rysdyk's Hambleian; 2nd dam by Byard (best son of Pilot Jr.,) sire of Bliss 2:21½, Emma B. 2:22, Fanny C 2:22¼, Tillie J. 2:24½, Eagle Plume 2:29¼, Modie H. 2:29¾; 3rd dam Luna, by Swigert's Lexington, sire of the dam of Black Pilot, record 2:30. sire of Pilot Knox 2:19½; 4th dam Eagless by imp Glencoe; 5th dam grand dam Ansel 2:24 by Grey Fagle; 6th dam Mary Morris by Medoc,, sire of the dam of John Morgan 2:24; 7th dam Miss Obstinate by Sumpter. This mare a full sister to Maximus, one of the most promising young stallions at Fairlawn, and her breeding is of the very best. Colts by Maximus are trotting very fast, though as yet too young to train.

Ideal is grey mare, 15½ hands high, was foaled in 1880; dam by C. M Clay Jr., (sire of Durango 2:23¾, Harry Clay 2:23¾, American Clay, etc.; 2nd dam Meduas by Almont; 3rd dam Miss Curry by Pilot Jr. This is as rich a pedigree as will be found in the register. Ideal is a large strong mare and splendidly gaited. She is bred to Alecto.

Lady Chiles is a black mare, 16¾ hands high, foaled in 1874; dam Lady Rothschild (dam of King Phillip 2:26¼, sire of Lexington 2:24½) Mambrino Patchen; 2nd dam (dam of Rothschild, grandsire of Hunter 2:23½ by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; 3rd dam Black Highlander; 4th dam by Lance, son of a American Eclipe. Lady Chiles is a regular breeder, and is bred to Maximus. She is one of the best broodmares at Fairlawn.

Medura is a grey mare, foaled in 1870, 15½ hands high; her dam is Lady Curry by Pilot Jr. She is the dam of Sinbad 2:34¼. She is a mare of Splendid trotting action and a regular breeder.

Aleria is a grand young mare in every particular, 15¾ hands high, was foaled in 1882. Her first dam is County Girl by County Gentleman; 2nd dam the dam of Joe Hooker (sire of Bushwhacker 2:28½ and Maud Macey 2:28¾) by Canada Chief (sire of the dams of Blanche 2:25¼, Coaster 2:27½ and Governor 2:30) by Davy Crockett; 3rd dam by Plow Boy, a fast pacer and trotter. Aleria would make a very fast mare if trained. She is perfectly gentle, very handsome, has best of legs and a model mare in every respect. She is standard under Rule 8. She was bred this year to Aberdeen.

Glorietta is a dark bay mare, 15¾ hands high, foaled in 1877; dam Bettie Stone by Spaulding's Abdallah (Bettie Stone had a record of 2:52 at four years of age); 2d dam by Whitehall (sire of Rhode Island, record 2:23½). Rhode Island sired Jim Schriber 2:21½; Governor Sprague 5 year-old record 2:20½, sire if seventeen in the 2:30 list. Whitehall is also the grandsire of Scott's Thomas 2:21, Scott's Chief 2:20, and Nelly Holcomb 2:28) by North American. This mare has fine size, and is a typical Almont in gait and conformation.

I have omitted to say much that truly may be said in praise of these mares. They were selected by one of the most astute breeders, as the best individuals by his favorite horse. There are none among them but first-class broodmares, and some of them are worth a prince's ransom. The breeder who gets his selection from this lot will be fortunate.

Yours, CARTER.

Axtell.

C. W. Williams, who ownes Axtell, 2:14, and Allerton, 2:18¼, both records made this year as three-year-olds, says that Axtell will stand at $1,000 next year, limited to thirty mares, and that Allerton's fee will be $500. He also says that an offer of $5,000 each for ten services to Axtell next year, with no privilege of return in case they were not got with foal, was refused. The offer came from Kentucky, and men who have had a great deal of experience in the business of handling stallions are of the opinion that to refuse it was not a wise move. For all that Mr. Williams knows, Axtell may not get trotters, and if such should be the case, about three years from now will see him standing at a considerably smaller fee than $1,000. When it is remembered that $500 is the highest fee ever charged in this country for the services of a trotting stallion, it will be seen that Mr. Williams is taking rather advanced ground regarding the merits of his young horses as sires. While it is true that as three-year-old trotters their equal has never been seen, it is also a fact that when it comes to stud service they will, in a very few years after entering the breeding ranks, be measured wholly by what their produce can do, and no fast record will bring mares to a stallion that does not get trotters. This was proved beyond doubt in the case of Smuggler. His record of 2:15¼ was the best for seven long years, and yet before that time had passed he was condemned as a sire, and was sold at auction while yet in his prime for $1,000, a slight reduction from the $40,000 paid for him only a few years previous. His ex-owner has since paid $16,000 for the trotting-bred stallion Edgemark, three-year-old record 2:21, and thinks so well of him as a sire that he has not permitted him to be trotted this season as a four-year-old. Williams, who owns Axtell and Allerton, is a quiet young fellow, but his knowledge of young trotters and how to handle them is simply marvelous in a man who has had no previous experience at the business. He is also a crack driver, being one of the few who are born with the faculty of getting speed from horses, and in addition to this he is as cool-headed as the oldest man in the business. His driving of Allerton in the third heat of his second race at the breeders' meeting last week, when in order to beat Bassinger Boy he was forced to do the mile in 2:18¼, was worthy of Budd Doble, and even the old heads at the business are beginning to admit that he is a genius as a horseman.—Breeders' Gazette.

A Great Young Horse.

Col. R. P. Pepper, South Elkhorn Stud, certainly made a most profitable investment last winter when he purchased of Senator Leland Stanford, Palo Alto Stud, the bay stallion Norval, paying for him $15,000. After being brought to Kentucky he was at once placed in the stud, and here has shown in a marked degree his merits as a trotter, as last season he covered no less the 93 mares. After performing this heavy duty, he was placed in training, and at Maysville last week he won the 3:00 class, getting a record of 2:21½, a mark which he lowered last Saturday, when he went a mile in 2:19¼. Norval is now seven-years-old and what is there then that cannot be expected of him, taking into consideration his powers as a trotter, his most fashionable blood lines and the fact that he also has the credit of having sired Norlaine, who holds the world's best yearling record 2:31½, whose phenominal career was ended only a few months after her remarkable performance, by being burned up in a fire which wrecked several of Palo Alto's fine structures.

Norlaine was sired when Norval was only three-years old, truly a most remarkable showing for a stallion, and one which must alone place him high in the estimation of breeders. With the addition of Norval, Electioneer now has thirteen trotters in the 2:20 list, which is a greater number of these star performers than is now to the credit of any stallion either living or dead.—Live Stock Record.

The San Jose Meeting.

A telegram from the secretary of the San Mateo and Santa Clara County Association, informs us that the purses have all filled well, except No. 3 and 13. The Directors have decided to offer special inducements to the pacing classes instead, and propose the following:

In place of number 3 they offer a purse of $600 for the following named horses; Belle Button, Racquet, Frank, Little Hope, Longworth, Creole, Chapman and Edwin C.

In place of number 13, they offer $800 for the following: Gold Leaf, Adonis, Almont Patchen and Yolo Maid

The entries to those specials, close on Saturday, September 21st. The association has been so liberal in its offer to the pacers that there can be no question as to the result. The "side wheelers" will be at San Jose in their might, as usual the chances are that they will be the great betting races of the meeting. This will especially so if Almont Patchen is considered well enough to start, as the fact of him being owned in the Garden City, is enough to warrant more than the usual amount of interest being manifested there.

An opportunity to retain in a permanent form the striking pictures which form our cover and are interspersed all through this issue is afforded by Messrs. Schussler Bros., 27 Grant Av. Acquainted, as they are, with the requirements of horsemen in the way of obtaining life-like and characteristic horse pictures, suitably framed, and at low rates, they should meet with the success their enterprise so richly deserves.

State Agricultural Society.

The history of the State Agricultural Society of California has been made clear for enduring form by Mr. I. N. Hoag, who filled the position of Secretary of the Society for years with honorable distinction as to competency and worth. The origin of the State Agricultural Society is among the enigmatical problems of the Pioneer period. To exactly solve it, is not among the exact ascertainments of the generation. There are claimants to the distinguishment of broaching the idea, and of these are some whose claims cannot be intelligently disregarded. It is enough to consider that men of thought, far apart in locality, and with no acquaintance or means of communication, think and work out their plans to a common object, to the ultimate good of the commonwealth. In this liberal view should be embraced the respective claimants to the idea that in the Golden State there ought to be inaugurated a State Agricultural Fair, for annual holding, to exhibit to the world the luxuriance of the products of California, in addition to her marvelous wealth of the whole world's precious metals, ores and minerals.

The California of half a century ago was virtually a terra incognita. Only to the very few adventurers who explored the world in the spirit of Marco Polo, Mungo Park and Humboldt, was there comprehensive knowledge of the coast from the Gulf of California to the noted marine headlands of the vast territory then known as Oregon. The Catholic missionaries from Spain and Mexico had planted their several Missions along the coast in the loveliest valleys of the contiguous ocean region. They cultivated the soil in the primitive methods practiced before the invention and introduction of deep sub-soil plows, cultivators, mowers, threshers and separators, run by steam, to perform the work of the harvesting of broad fields in a few days, which, until these inventions, had required the laborious toil of gangs of men at sowing by hand in the tilling, in the mowing and reaping by sickle, scythe and cradle.

It is since the discovery of the unparalleled gold mines of California, that the whole world has been in conspicuous measure regenerated. The most stupendous wars of all time have been fought since then, in Europe and in America. The Crimean campaign was the initiative. It has been succeeded and surpassed by the wars of Germany and France, and Austria and Italy, and these in turn, by the mightier conflict of France and Germany, greater than that which had its conclusion on the field of Waterloo, and eclipsed only by the tremendous struggle of the civil war which sealed the fate of slavery in our own and every other enlightened land.

It is a fit claim, in view of the long past and the lustrous future, that California is the pivotal country of the world, made so by American conquest and purchase, by American possession and American enterprise. The flowing gold of California revivified the energies of the older states, and was as new and bounding blood infused into the arteries of the wasting continents of Europe and Asia. It rejuvenated the commerce of the world. Every sea was plowed by the vessels of every class which had California—the land of gold—as their destination. California came into the possession of the United States as a desired acquisition upon the Pacific Coast, so that the confines of the Republic should be bounded and circumscribed only by the two greatest oceans, and instantly she soared to the proudest distinction—that of the commanding factor of the treasury of the world. Her ceasless flow of gold lubricated the wheels of Commerce and supplied the coffers of Finance. The discovery of gold was to traffic, enterprise and genius, as the finding of the fabled stone of the philosopher.

California furnished the occasion to the greatest enterprise of the world—the construction of a railroad to span a continent. The daring, the sagacity, and the boundless energy of four of California's citizens, made the iron rail highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific an accomplished work.

Months of fatiguing and perilous traffic were reduced to the transit of as many days in comfort and in safety.

The colossal works of the Ptolemies at Karnac, of the famous of Athens, of the line of Cæsars at Rome were astounding; yet they were in measure only local. The Chinese wall was an inhibition to the empire. The Overland railroad was a facility to all the world, the pathway to the greater Empire of the West, in the prophecy of Bishop Berkeley, to which the star of human enterprise pointed the way, and where the culmination of world ly grandeur would hold enduring seat.

The California of the venerated Father Junipero, whose memory is cherished for his noble, pious works, had type in the Babe of Bethlehem, in the spread of light and glory. Christianity spread from that sacred spot to illuminate the world. From California have extended and expanded the energies which move mankind, to better, enlighten, and to enrich it, to invigorate it, and to make more comfortable the homes and lives of incalculable millions. The alchemists who honestly strived, or who as imposters contrived to win the showers of fortune and enrich others besides themselves in the ages which have gone, are now as neglected cairns on the abandoned pathways of the curious. The greater power of the true metal digged from the soil of California in its original condition, has created events to surpass fables. Sidon and Tyre are as mythical traditions. Never will an Alexander sweep California from her supremacy. The future of San Francisco and the other prominent marts of this Pacific Coast is as permanently anchored as is the destiny of London, as is that of Rome, sole mistress of all the centuries since which history began, and the imperial city whose pride and state have survived that of Athens and of every city of greatest antiquity. The Herodotus and Macaulay, and the Bancroft of the coming ages will inscribe San Francisco as the mightiest emporium of the American continent upon the Pacific Coast, in finance, in commerce, in manufactures, in industries, in enterprise, and in all the varied works by which eminence is attained, and wealth is accumulated. California will rank paramount in agriculture, in mineral richness, and other natural qualities, and her people will be to the front in greatest enterprises. The lessons of the experience of past centuries from the examples of the dwellers of the Pacific Coast will endure and grow.

When California became a portion of the territory of the United States, it was the belief of American statesmen that the country was invaluable except in possessory rights and coast defence. So great a statesman as Daniel Webster declared that California was a desert land, valuable only for coast possession. Calhoun held similar opinion; Benton described it as a wilderness beyond redemption; Fremont wrote that the soil was arid and untillable, and declared that the honey bee could not exist west of the Rocky Mountains. Commodore Stockton and General Kearny contributed authority to these ideas. Besides John A. Sutter, Abel Stearns and John Bidwell, early emigrants, there were none to contend against these adverse opinions. Each of these pioneers had located, experimented, and proved the soil of California to be favored beyond comparison with that of the countries and the states in which they each were bred. Sutter was a Swiss, and had emigrated to the United States in the early years of manhood. He founded the New Helvetia upon the Pacific Coast. It is now embraced in the bounds of the city of Sacramento. He located his Stock farm in Sacramento Valley, on the Feather river, below the site of what is now Marysville, and there proved that the grape had congenial soil in interior California, as the Mission Fathers had proved that it had upon the Coast. The readers of Horace will recall that he held to the idea that the air of the Mediterranean refined the wine, and on his Sabine farm he sought to demonstrate his fancy.

The centuries have rolled, and California has emerged as the solvent of the various quantities. In gold, she has surpassed the world. In agriculture, California has no equal. In enterprise and progress, she holds commanding position. California in definitive sense implies the land of warmth—the hot land. Heat is the motive of power. Power rules the world. The corollary is beyond question, and the suggestive conclusion is that California is the exemplar State of the Pacific, as Massachusetts is of New England, with San Francisco as the counterpart of New York, in controlling degrees of finance, commerce and grandeur.

In the early years of the acquisition of California by the United States, immediately following the discovery of the mines of gold, the emigration from the States and from all the habitable world was intent only upon the gold. Thought of residence upon the coast was not indulged. It was to dig the coveted "pile," and depart. To rush to the mines was the paramount impulse. San Francisco, as the port of landing by sea, Sacramento and Stockton as the end of the weary journey by the Plains, were the entrepots of the crowding immigration. The lust for gold was the absorbing inspiration No one thought of agriculture. The idea of a home in California was not entertained. One year, two years, three years, at the utmost, was the limit of staying. To make a home in California was as making a home in Kamchatka or in unexplored Africa. To dig out the gold, and return to the home across the continent, was the prevalent idea. That California was rich in gold, of no account in agriculture, were the prevailing notions. It continued to be so until 1853.

The gold seekers who came to California in the early years of the gold-hunting process were mainly from the Atlantic side, and the greater proportion of them were neither farmers nor the sons of farmers. They came by the long voyage of Cape Horn, or by the Isthmus routes of Panama and Nicaragua. Besides these were the many who journeyed from the States, overland across the Plains. These brought with them American horses and cattle. These, and the bands of like animals brought by the earlier similar immigration into Oregon, constituted the stock of American horses and cattle on the Coast of the Pacific.

Naturally seeking fields and opportunities for agricultural pursuits, to which they had been bred, these immigrants from the States of the West sought the accustomed industry and made locations. They discovered that the California depicted by Fremont, and others who represented the land in the same strain, was not the actual California, as to soil and production. They settled upon the parched and crevissed broad plains of the Sacramento and the San Joaquin, and found that cereal crops could be cultivated to an abundance beyond the most fertile of the lands in the States from which they had emigrated. A few planted orchards, and were themselves surprised at the luxuriant productiveness.

Until 1853 California had depended upon the States of the Atlantic for her bread stuffs, for her lumber, for her staples in the lines of provisions. Chile was also an important exporting country for wheat and flour; potatoes and yams came from the Sandwich Islands, and commanded extraordinary prices. Flour sold as high as $40 per barrel — Haxall and Gallego from Richmond, Virginia, from Akron, Ohio, and from Rochester, New York. In 1854 in the markets of San Francisco, fruits—apples and oranges, grapes and lemons, and limes—brought prices which would now seem fabulous. California was regarded only as the land of gold; not of soil products. Everything to eat and to wear, to satisfy luxury and pander to extravagance, came from other quarters of the globe.

In 1854 the proofs of the abundant productiveness of California had become beyond doubt and contention. Then originated the germ of the movement which led to the organization of the State Agricultural Society. A few of the most enterprising citizens of the very few of the counties in which farming was prosecuted wrought the movement to its culmination in the Legislature of that year, which is the foundation of the present noble institution of California of the State corporate title. California was still a mining State. The "cow counties"—as the farming counties of Santa Clara, Sonoma, Contra Costa, San Joaquin and Sacramento were called—were in minority in the representation in the Legislature. The mining counties maintained preponderance. There were conflicting interests and sharp antagonisms between the miners, who were many, and the farmers, who were comparatively few. But good sense and wise judgment at length prevailed. The bill to incorporate and establish a State Agricultural Society was introduced in the popular branch of the Legislature—the Assembly—sitting in Benecia, and was passed in the Senate of 32(thirty-two)members. It was concurred in with only 8 (eight) negative votes. The vote in the Assembly was nearly unanimous. That was the origin of the present prosperous California State Agricultural Society, at the annual Fairs of which the world is every year more amazed and more delighted with the variety and the luxuriance of the products and the enterprise of this peerless Golden State—wealthier in her soil and other possessions than in her early surpassing mines of Gold. The thousands of millions digged from her mines have been distributed to every quarter of the globe. The famed countries of antiquity concentrated and stored their wealth, drawn by commerce and traffic. California scattered her gold in boundless profusion, and expanded every arm of finance, trade and productiveness. The volume has returned to her in manifold proportions. California has advanced to leading rank in finance, and commerce, and agricultural production, conspicuous among the States of the Union, and is rapidly gaining in population The State holds the keys to the traffic of the Pacific Islands, of Japan and Australasia, of China and the Indies. Instead of importer, California has become the exporter, the producer and favored distributer of gold and breadstuffs and of merchandise to all the nations of the world.

The institution of the California State Agricultural Society has had much to do in the progression to this most gratifying and unexampled condition of State prosperity. It is remarked in the opening paragraph of this paper, that the origin of the State Agricultural Society is enigmatical. It will be more appropriate to say that the tracing is not clear. Mr. Hoag has not finished it, and this is cause for the belief that it cannot be distinctly given. The material fact is that the Society exists, and is every year growing into greater favor, into broader usefulness, and commanding interest throughout the land.

Some idea of the incertitude of the projectors, coupled with the uncertainty of location of the State Capital, may be derived from the early history of the Society and the holding of the Annual Fairs. The first constitutional convention of California was held at the capital of the Mexican regime—at Monterey. The first Legislature convened under the State Constitution was held at San Jose, 1849–50, and there also was the next annual legislature of 1850–'51. At that session Vallejo was fixed upon as the State Capital. At that time the place designated had not a human habitation on its site. It was a grassy, beautiful knoll, and a pretty slope upon San Pablo Bay, with Mare Island—then unoccupied—across the narrow waters which lead to Napa creek, or river. Notwithstanding the desert condition of the site, the State Capital was voted there from San Jose, the building of a State House and other essential structures was pushed with commensurate activity, and in January, 1852, the Legislature convened in the barely finished buildings. They were insufficient, and the Legislature removed to Sacramento, where it sat the session through. In 1853 it sat in Benicia, and from there the removal was made again to Sacramento in 1854—since then the permanent State Capital.

In view of the changes made in the location of the State Capital, it would be too much to expect that the permanency of the Annual Fairs of the State Agricultural Society should have been determined at that early period. Legislatures are composed of men. Men are mortals; there were rival and aspiring cities of California contending for the distinction of the capital city, of the place of the State Fair. Sacramento, Benicia, San Jose, Stockton and Marysville alike strove for the coveted honor. The State Capital had been likened unto a circus; how could the State Fair expect any better treatment? Votes were needed in the legislature to have the bill passed; Senators and Assemblymen were not unmindful of local and personal considerations There was "log-rolling." Mining rights and water privileges in mining ditches dominated the State, until the calm, cool judgment of Mr. Justice Field, of the State Supreme Court was declared, which gave full rights to all, as to lands and waters, to miners and to farmers. The judgment satisfied the conflicting interests. Since, there has been no controversy. The riparian rights of parties have been definitely determined.

The first State Agricultural Society was organized under the Act of 1854, by charter. Fred A. Macondray, son of the pioneer Captain Macondray of San Francisco, was President. As Vice Presidents, were appointed E. L. Beard of Alameda, Julius K. Rose of San Francisco, D. W. C. Thompson of Sonoma, H. C. Malone of Santa Clara, W. H. Thompson of San Francisco, and C. T. Hutchinson of Sacramento. The Corresponding Secretary was J. L. L. F. Warren of San Francisco; the Recording Secretary C. V. Gillespie, of San Francisco, and the Treasurer was David Chambers of San Francisco.

Mention is not inappropriate to these gentlemen. Fred A. Macondray was the son of the pioneer and brave old Captain Macondray, who founded his business place in the early San Francisco on the site now occupied as California, Sansome and Pine Streets. The Bay washed their shores in 1849; the sand dunes of Happy Valley were troublous from the afternoon's prevailing winds. Julius K. Rose was an aspiring young lawyer. There came to him a man of powerful physique and mighty brain. He asked employment as a menial. It was his spirit. He was Lockwood, the great lawyer, who had been the partner of Van Voorhies, first Secretary of State, and Edmond Randolph. Judge Chambers was of the firm of Page, Bacon & Co., a gentleman of worth. C. V. Gillespie was a resident of San Francisco, until his decease a few weeks since.

The first Fair of the State Agricultural Society was held in San Francisco. The novelty attracted the multitude. It was in capacious hall, in a frame building, just beyond the business portion of the San Francisco of that period. There were products unexpected, a profusion of Flora's realm, queer exhibits. There were beautiful and stylish ladies, captivating maidens, and attractive, stately dames. Dollars were then the limit; not dimes the low token; the nickel was an unknown quantity. There was no exhibition of live stock of any kind. The curious things sent from the Mission of Santa Barbara, relics of the Indian woman who had lived alone on the Santa Catalina Island for eighteen years, and was at length brought to the main land by the veteran trapper, George Nidiver, were the chief objects of interest. California had not yet become important as a producing State, except in gold, and in the arts and mechanics she was in embryo transition. At Musical Hall were exhibited the proud showing for the period of cereals, fruits, vegetables and flowers. At the Mission Dolores, horses and cattle were exhibited. The award of premiums aggregated nearly $5,000. It seemed small for the Golden State, but it was the plant of a grand future, and gave stimulus to the activities of the people in every department and every branch of industry, invention and enterprise.

The following year the State Fair was held at Sacramento, the first which was held in that city. C. I. Hutchinson, a prominent and energetic citizen, was chosen President of the Society. W. W. Stow, of Santa Cruz, then come to the front as a leading citizen of the State, Speaker of the Assembly, was made first Vice President. With him were elected the veteran Gen. John A. Sutter, Sherman Day, conspicuous as Surveyor General of the State, Col. James Allen, a leading editor of Marysville and State Printer, and A. P. Smith, the pioneer horticulturist of Sacramento. Rev. O. C. Wheeler, a pioneer clergyman and a gentleman of much activity and recognized ability, was made Recording Secretary; Col. Warren, editor of the earliest agricultural weekly newspaper, was the Corresponding Secretary, and Angus Frierson, a popular citizen of Sacramento was chosen Treasurer.

It was in the preparatory movement for that State Fair that the Society pushed the good design to permanent establishment. A Convention was called to meet at Sacramento. Prominent citizens attended from the agricultural counties, and the mining counties were fairly represented. Among these were ex-Governor John McDougal, Senator Wilson Flint and Judge Crocker of San Francisco, Secretary of State David F. Douglass of San Joaquin, Judge C. T. Ryland of San Jose, and Selim E. Woodworth, a noted pioneer of the period, belonging to the U. S. Navy. It was at that Convention that ex-Governor McDougal, adhering to his gubernatorial recommendation to the State Legislature in 1851, reiterated the policy of inviting and employing the cheap labor of the Chinese in tilling the fields of California.

The State Fair of 1855 was the Second Annual Fair of the Society. It was held in Sacramento, September 25th, and continued one week. The agricultural exhibition was held in the improvised State House of the time—the County Court House corner of I and Seventh streets, and the cattle show—an indifferent attraction—at the Louisiana race track, in the suburbs. President Hutchinson made the opening speech; Henry S. Foote, ex-Governor and ex-United States Senator of Mississippi, delivered the annual address. It was eminently appropriate and eloquent. The Fair was successful beyond anticipation. The premiums awarded amounted to over $6,500. Sacramento was chosen for the next annual Fair of 1856. Colonel Baird of old Santa Clara Mission, a man of uncommon energy and masterly ability, was elected President. Mayor C. K. Garrison of San Francisco, Major Samuel J. Hensley of Santa Clara, Col. W. W Gift of Contra Costa, J. C. Yount, the old pioneer of Napa, General Sutter again, George A. Beach, the foremost peach orchardist and grape grower of Yuba, and S. H. Meyers of Alameda, were made Vice Presidents; Rev. Eli Corwin, a noted clergyman of surpassing pulpit eloquence, located in San Jose, the Recording Secretary, C. T. Hutchinson of Sacramento, Corresponding Secretary, and L. H. Bascom, a pioneer of the early period from Kentucky, resident of Santa Clara, was Treasurer. Judge Crockett of San Francisco, made the annual address.

In his opening address, President Baird gave lucid statement of the very encouraging advancement in agriculture of the State. From the supposed condition of barrenness, the great plains of the Sacramento and the San Joaquin were developing extraordinary productiveness, and the foothills of the mining counties showing a luxuriance and excellence of fruits beyond expectation. California was no more a State of gold production alone. She had convincingly demonstrated her superior capacity as an agricultural State, and that her paramount and enduring wealth rested inexhaustibly in her soil. Instead of drawing her supplies from the Atlantic States and from the ports of the world, in time California would become the greatest exporting State of the Union, in the staples which enrich commonwealths, and command commerce to the fulfillment of substantial financial prosperity.

The ambitious rivalry of competing cities came into active play, agreeably as the Annual State Fairs attracted popular attention. San Francisco was not a competitor. San Jose, Stockton and Marysville alike contended for the distinguishment of the location, and the struggle was inimical to Sacramento, yet barely hopeful of the possession of the State Capital, although not assured of it by fixed enactment.

The pull was beyond the influence of Sacramento. For the State Fair of 1857, Stockton bore away the coveted honor. Captain Charles M. Weber, the founder of Stockton, and conspicuous among the early pioneers, was chosen President of the Society. General Sutter was again made a Vice President. With him were associated Major Pearson B. Reading of Shasta, the Whig candidate for Governor in 1851, Messrs. Wm. Daniels of Santa Clara, Wm. Garrard of San Joaquin, W. B. Osborn of Los Angeles, H. D. McCarthy of Calaveras, and S. H. Meyers. George H. Sanderson of San Joaquin was chosen Secretary, and A. Wolf of the same county, Treasurer. Captain Weber early resignedthePresidency of the Society, and William Garrard was elected tothe position. E. S. Holden was chosen a Vice President, and Captain Edward P. Connor was made Treasurer in place ofWolf, resigned

The Fair opened on Tuesday, and continued only four days. It was a very encouraging exhibition. Judge Henry Eno of Mokelumne Hill delivered the Annual Address. He had been the Whig candidate for Lieutenant Governor against Samuel Purdy, and was defeated. The exhibit of fine horses and cattle exceeded that of any previous Fair of the Society. The awards of premiums aggregated nearly $8,000, and the Fair was considered in very favorable light as to promise for the future. The original appropriation, voted by the Legislature of 1854, had however, been exhausted, and unless the Legislature of 1858 should make a further appropriation, the State Fairs could not be suceessfully maintained. The Legislature was liberal, and voted an appropriation for five years. Important amendments were made to the original charter of the Society. The Fair of 1858 was appointed at Marysville. John C. Fall, trading merchant and capitalist of the city, was made President; John C. Bidwell, the early pioneer and founder of Chico, was made one of the Vice Presidents; associated with him were Dr. C.M.Hitchcock of San Francisco, G. N. Sweezy of Yuba, G. C. Yount of Napa, Horace W. Carpentier of Alameda, Don Jose. M. Covarrubias of Santa Barbara, and D. L. Morley of the new county of Stanislaus. Rev. O. C. Wheeler was made Corresponding Secretary, G. A. Beach of Yuba, Recording Secretary; and John A. Paxton, banker, of Marysville, Treasurer.

The Fair opened at Marysville, Monday, Aug. 20th, 1858, and continued through the whole week. It was the finest exhibition of the kind ever held in the State. A capacious and handsome Pavilion had been constructed expressly for the purpose. The attendance from every part of the State was greater than at any preceding Fair. The exhibition of cereals, of fruits, of products of every kind, was notably superior. Fremont had asserted that the honey bee could not exist in California. At that State Fair in Marysville was exhibited choice honey, the product of California, from stands of bees brought from the East, which sold at from $200 to $400 the stand. Buck of Santa Clara was the adventurous introducer of the enterprise. Others soon followed in his line, and California has become famous alike for the magnitude of the honey product and its super-excellence.

The Annual Fair of 1858 at Marysville was the satisfying demonstration of the wisdom of the Legislature in making the necessary appropriation for the yearly exhibition. Mr. Fall, in his opening address, was commendably lucid and practical. He reviewed the condition, the progress, and the prodigious energies of the people, and in clear prescience of the future presented the greater destiny of California and of the entire Pacific coast in American occupation. Rev. Sam B. Bell of Oakland, distinguished for his oratory, delivered the Annual Address.

There was, nevertheless, in this fifth Annual Fair a perceptible void—an important and most essential lacking quality, to assure to ensuing Fairs the complete measure of success which similiar institutions had attained in the older States of the Union. The premium awards were below the totals of preceding years. There was deficit instead of surplus—a need of substantial profit. There was no speed programme.

The necessity for fixed location was made apparent. The Annual State Fair of California could not be of perambulating order and yearly uncertainty of place—dependent upon log-rolling maneuvers and the adroitness or cupidity of legislators and politicians. As with the State Capital, the State Fair should be distinctively located, with permanance of location. The capital had changed from Monterey to San Jose, from San Jose to Vallejo, from Vallejo to Sacramento, from Sacramento to Benicia, and at last from Benicia back to Sacramento. The advent of a recurring flood, and the movement to make still another removal of the capital, had once more imperilled Sacramento as the location, and San Francisco and Oakland were suggested as the spots better adapted. These projects or fancies failed. The facilities of railroads, which practically overcame distance and central situation, judged by travel, came in good time to relieve California from the vexatious rivalry and uncertain establishment. "All roads lead to Rome," was the ancient maxim. Every road of California centres at Sacramento, is the practical fact of the day. The State Capital is there; the State Fair is there. Noble structures and adaptable grounds are to each. There is no longer any vexed question on either proposition. Sacramento is, and Sacramento will endure to be, the capital city of California, and at Sacramento shall permanently be held the Annual Fair of the California State Agricultural Society.

In 1859 the determination to this wise purpose was the discussed sequence to the State Fair held at Marysville. No more a traveling circus, but a rooted and established, great and peaceful institution of the State, which had conspicuously emerged to wider fame than the fabled Ophir in the oldest centuries by her unparalleled affluence of gold, that has since surpassed the Age of Gold by the mightier triumphs of most progressive enlightenment, by the superior wealth of perennial affluence of soil, to blossom products into the needed commodities of all the world, and by the unequalled energy and boundless enterprise of the race, and the scions of the adventurous pioneers who secured the golden fleece, and founded this magnificent State of the grandest ocean; at the capital should the State Fair be.

Antiquity still supplies its valuable lessons. The Olympic games were famous from their sports. Rome's Colosseum was more renowned for its gladitorial scenes and chariot races, than for the presence of heroes and of orators. The Annual State Fair had lacked the important quantity; the quality which more than any other of objects delights the multitudes of spectators. There were delighting and astonishing annual exhibits of products of the soil, of mechanics, of the arts, of every field of industry Patterson of Alameda and others showed their fine breeds of sheep. Others made fine display of their breeds and grades of cattle. There were also exhibits of swine and poultry, of everything of the farm, of the orchard, of the field, and of housewifery.

There was one lacking quality. It was the quality paramount. The sports of the Turf were missing. A State Fair without field or turf sports is as a feast with a Barmecide banquet. Going through the motions is not gratification. Deglutition requires the substantials and the lubrications.

National and State affairs contributed to the detrimental conditions of the State Fairs in 1859, in 1860 and in 1861 at Sacramento. Acrimonious domestic political contentions existed throughout California. Portentous throes agitated the whole country to the East. Trouble and deep anxiety were in the air. The culmination of the harassing struggle which was precipitated in 1861 and continued until 1865, was in its predestined course. California occupied a perturbed condition on the Pacific, which more or less affected every element of her being and her progress.

Sacramento was made the permanent location for the State Fair only in September, 1860. The Fair of 1859 was held there. A Pavilion was provided, commensurate to the ordinary exhibition, at the corner of M and Sixth Streets. The live stock exhibition was made upon the suburbs, where it is still maintained, with the commensurate addition of a fine race track of one mile, requisite racing stables and every convenience, stables, stalls, and everything needed for the thorough accommodation of everything that appertained to State Fairs, embracing racing and performances peculiar to the turf.

W. H. Rhodes of Stockton—the "Claxton" of California—delivered an original ode at the State Fair in 1859. Judge Ted Robinson, eminent in the Bar and honored on the Bench of California, made appropriate Address. Colonel E. D. Baker, the "Gray Eagle" of the Pacific, delivered a brilliant speech in the evening. The success of the Fair of 1859 secured to Sacramento in 1860 the permanent location. A new charter was passed. An amendment to the State Constitution was essential. A vote of the people of the State declared that the Annual State Fair must be held in Sacramento.

The first line of railroad constructed on the Pacific Coast was the line of railroad from Sacramento to Brighton—thence to Folsom. It was twenty miles in length—a great undertaking for the period. A few years later four citizens of Sacramento projected the stupendous work of uniting by rails the States of the Atlantic and the mightier Pacific, and the great enterprise was completed in less time than was employed in the construction of the twenty miles of road from Sacramento to Folsom. Lester L. Robinson, James H. Robinson, Pioche, Bayerque & Co., Chas. McNulty, Colis P. Huntingdon, Thomas M. Findley, and other prominent citizens of Sacramento and San Francisco, were parties to the initial railroad enterprise.

The first meeting of the permanent State Fair Society at Sacramento, in 1860, is in some respects historical beyond any other. The selection stirred antipathies, and local rivalries and exasperating contentions marred the occasion. Timothy Guy Phelps was made President. The Vice Presidents were selected from the various judicial districts. The veteran pioneer and ex-State Senator, the tall and sedate John J. Warner, was chosen from San Diego; handsome, chivalric and accomplished Pablo de la Guerra, allied with the grand old Noriega line of Castile, Senator from Santa Barbara; Nathan Coombs of Napa, Pearson B. Reading of Shasta, A. J. Land, the big mining man of Nevada county, R. P. Woodward, Dr. Wm. Rabe, the "Nil Desperandum" of the early fires of 1850, 1851 and 1852 of San Francisco; Cary Peebles, Y. T. Ryan, Charles Justice. S. S. Curtis, G. B. Harris, Wm. Thompson, R. J. Walsh and George W. Coulter of Mariposa were of the number. D. O. Mills, now a millionaire, was Treasurer; Rev. O. C. Wheeler was Corresponding Secretary; Senator Wilson Flint, and T. Ogg Shaw, once a manager of the Fremont Mariposa Mine, and P. J. Devine of Sacramento, were assistant managers; and N. A. D. Ball of Sacramento, was Recording Secretary. President Phelps made a good speech at the opening. Gen. John Bidwell of Chico delivered the Annual Address. It was carefully prepared, and of great historic value. Gen. Bidwell had emigrated to California in 1841, and thoroughly knew the country. He was not one of the eager hunters of gold. He anchored his belief, as a young man, in the undeveloped soil of the California of the Spanish period, and in the American acquisition; he had abiding faith in that order of manifest destiny which inspires the adventurer to advance, and upon the confines of his country to permanently locate the home he had in his young manhood founded.

The State Fair of 1859 was successful beyond that of preceding years. Still, there was apparent the chief attractive quantity. The diction of the humorist had unmistakably sounded the keynote in the East, and the absolute demand of the people was for the "pure agricultural horse trot." It meant that Fairs should be interesting in the exhibition of the farm and workshop, but that likewise must proper attention be devoted to the sports of the Turf.

Enterprising men of the State had embarked in the bringing of the best lines of imported and American live-stock to the coast—of horses, cattle, sheep and swine. Theodore Winters, Nathan Coombs, Jerome C. Davis, Robert Beck, R. J. Walsh, Major S. J. Hensley, and others engaged in the important business. John Welsh and John Anderson imported noted stock from Kentucky for California and Oregon. Rifleman was among the lot.

The time had come to impress upon the management of the State Fairs that the Track must not be disregarded. In it was the major attraction. It likewise produced the profits. The most successful Fair was that of 1862. Colonel Haraszthy of Sonoma was President. The Vice Presidents were Don Abel Stearns of Los Angeles, Major Hensley, Sam Brannan, Col. Warren, Col. Holden, C. H. Liming, Judge Van Dyke, Stephen Card, A. Delano, Tom B. Shannon, J. B. Frisbie, S. N. Sweezy, H. C. Stockton, R. J. Walsh, J. Vogan, and T. Davis, with Col. Peter Donahue, C. S. Lowell and W. T. Knox as additional managers. O. C. Wheeler was continued as Corresponding Secretary. E. B. Ryan was made Recording Secretary, and J. W. Hatch, Treasurer.

Leland Stanford was Governor of California. His home was Sacramento. He greatly added to the success of the Fair, that first of the Fairs of most encouraging holdings. The live stock exhibition was superior to any ever held on the Pacific Coast. The "Speed Programme," as the races were euphemistically and finely toned, morally described, was a succession of pleasing and exciting events. Since 1862, and the changed and more comformable management, with presidential attractions judiciously provided, the State Fair has never retrograded, never failed of good success. Henry E. Highton was the orator of the Annual Address. Tribute is not required to his eloquence.

The Fair and management of 1862 suggested important amendments to the Act of Incorporation. The State Fairs had been itinerant. The State Fair was now established as a permanent institution of the State. The situation was appreciated. The Legislature of 1863 passed an act which authorized the better organization of the Society, with Sacramento as the location. Judge Davis of Yolo was chosen President, James McClatchy, G. R. Warren, C. H. Graiame, Robert Beck, C. Holbrook and N. L. Drew of Sacramento, Mike Bryte of Yolo, R. J. Walsh of Colusa, and W. H. Parks were Vice Presidents. T. N. Hoag was made Secretary, F. B. Ryan Treasurer, Frank Fargo was Chief Marshal, and had as Aids Frank Denver, Drury Melone, L. H. Foote, G. Haraszthy, G. Rowland, B. B. Lea and M. L. McDonald. F. C. Stevens, Jerome C. Davis and E. M. Skaggs were racing judges, Steve Whippel and Nathan Coombs the timers. Prominent among the trotting drivers were John Crooks, James Eoff, J. Daniels and Sam Hyatt.

Hyatt managed on the last day but one of the Fair to compel the Society officers and official judges and timers from the judges' stand. He also ordered from their allotted place the reporters. The purpose was a "fixed" match between the trotters Jim Barton and Rainbow, each with a running mate—Shot and Honest Ance. The action of Hyatt was vigorously denounced by Col. W. W. Gift upon the track, as a an unexampled outrage, and it has never been repeated at any State Fair.

Rev. Starr King made a ringing Annual Address at the Fair of 1862. General Wright and staff attended, and the Fair was conspicuously the most enjoyed of any that had been held in the State. An incident occurred to mark the date and demonstrate the temper of the times. A man appeared upon the track offering for sale a $5 greenback—one of the earliest issue. He offered to sell it for $4, for $3, for $2.50. Governor Leland Stanford was in the judges' stand; he heard the man as he was bawling his offers on the tracks. He paid the fellow the face value of the greenback and ceased his annoyance.

The larger attendance and the interest shown at the Fair of 1862 had good effect in 1863. Encouragement beyond previous expectation was given. The legislature was moved to compliant temper, and aiding measures were passed. C. F. Reed of Yolo was made President. I. N. Hoag was re-elected Secretary. T. L. Chamberlain, J. J. Owen and J. H. Culver were chosen Directors. But the absorbing trouble of the great Civil War admonished the Society that circumstance and time and patience had become controlling factors, and could not wisely be disregarded.

The Annual Fair was held October, 1864. Rev. M. C. Briggs, a pioneer and eloquent Methodist clergyman, made the Annual Address. It was singularly pertinent. In general aspects the Fair of 1864 was gratifying. Still, there was an appreciated lack of entertainment at the Exhibition Grounds. The Pavilion in the city was nightly crowded, the Grand Stand was not daily filled.

The Fair of 1865 wrought the revolution. C. F. Reed was re-elected President; Robert Beck, R. J. Walsh and A. G. Richardson Directors. I. N. Hoag was re-elected Secretary. Edgar Mills, W. P. Coleman, John H. Carroll, C. T. Wheeler, B. R. Crocker and A. H. Richardson of Sacramento, were added to the Board. Dr. John F. Morse was selected to make the annual address. Hon. A. A. Sargent delivered an address to the Industrial Classes. These were interesting incidents of the Fair, but the paramount interest was centered in the great race between Norfolk and Lodi, three mile heats, purse $1,000. The race was free for all, but only Norfolk and Lodi started. Norfolk was the property of Theodore Winters, still conspicuous as a breeder of racers. Lodi was owned by Judge Charles H. Bryant, formerly an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of California, and an ex-State Senator from Yuba. Norfolk won—time, first heat 5:27⅛; second heat 5:29⅛. In the first heat the first mile was run in 1:48; second, 1:51¾; third, 1:47¾; second heat, 1:47¾; 1:50¼; 1:51½. The great race was run Saturday, September 23, 1865, and the record of Norfolk remains unbeaten. It was the most eventful race of California, surpassing that of the Hudspeth horse and Pico in 1849, at San Jose, for $10,000, and the fame of Norfolk was established. Lodi never again appeared upon the track.

Among the noted racers of the period were Victress and Beauregard, the property of Judge Moore of Santa Clara, P. O'Hanlon, Marriott, Henry Walsh and Tisdale were prominent turfmen. In the trotting field were Geo. M. Patchen, Capt. Hanford, Latham Mystery, Emigrant, Gen. McClellan, Baby Lewis.

In the free racing of earlier years in Sacramento, Wake-up-Jake had beaten Boston Colt, in a two mile race, with big winnings, in 1855; but no racing event in the State had attracted so general an interest as that of Norfolk and Lodi. Judge Bryant was never again heard of upon the racing turf. Theodore Winters is still in the front rank of breeders and honored.

The State Fairs of 1862 and of 1865 can be recorded as the events which secured the firm establishment of the Society and made its progress assured. In 1866 the Legislature made further appropriations. C. F. Reed was re-elected President and I. N. Hoag, Secretary. The Legislature had declined to make appropriation for a California exhibit in the Paris Exposition of 1867. The State Agricultural Society determined to make an exhibit of California products. Wells, Fargo & Co., the Pacific Mail S. S.Company, leading citizens of the State, contributed to the project, and at the Paris Exposition California was honored with the distinction of the best exhibition of agricultural products, mechanical inventions and industries, embracing manufactures. In his fine address, J. W. Winans, a pioneer of high culture, grandly referred to the eminence which California had attained in the round and complete sum of proudest Statehood.

The State Fair of 1687 was promising of good results. It achieved beyond the promise. General Jno. Bidwell made the Annual Address.

The Fair of 1868 was still more gratifying; the overland railway giving California connection with the States eastward was an accomplished fact. It was as the hitching of the team of California, by which her energies should evermore largely pull the world. Edward Tompkins, of Oakland, made an appropriate address. The four citizens of California who had accomplished this most stupendous enterprise of any age, were not forgotten in the popular expression and general applause. These men had shortened the overland route from months to days, and rendered the ocean routes by Cape Horn and the Isthmuses a traffic subservient to surer, safer, swifter modes.

Since 1868 there has never been doubt or hesitation as to the success and the progress of the State Fairs. The succeeding managements—of R. S. Carey, of Marcus D. Boruck, of Marion Biggs, of H. M. Larue, of Jesse D. Carr, have ever since wrought to the better advancement of the State Fair. The old Pavilion of the city is of the past; the capacious and befitting structure within the Capitol grounds is the pride of California. The cattle grounds, the stables, the track appurtenances are becoming. The State Fair of California has risen to distinction throughout the Union, and enjoys honorable mention in every foreign land of enlightenment. The products of California go to all the world, to fortify and vindicate the soil and the harvest.

In the fruition of her manifold attributes of superior accomplishment, California has become a land for the breeding of man's domestic animals—horses, cattle, sheep and swine. There is unrestricted enterprise and ample wealth to the complete ultimate fulfillment. Stanford and Haggin, Rose and Baldwin, Corbett and Carr, and others, are to the attestation. California emerged from comparative obscurity in 1848 by the brightness of her gold. She has since gained conspicuous place in the world of Finance and Commerce and Industries. Her destiny is beyond the contemplation of the most optimistic.

The detailed record of the State Agricultural Society of later years can better be left to ampler space, and the chronicle of the years which each year swell with the importance of names and the definiteness of mention. The most distinguished names of California adorn the the management and illuminate the roll of the State Fair orators; Senator Sargent, Morris M. Estee, General J. Hamilton, N. Greene Curtis, hold high places in the brilliant constellation. The names of Fred Cox and John Boggs, of H. M. La Rue and Jesse D. Carr, of James McM Shafter and C. N. Chase, of H. W. Hancock and C. F. Swan, of E. C. Singletary and L. U. Shippee, and of P. A. Finigan are now enrolled as Directors. Christopher Greene of Sacramento is President, re-elected, term after term, on account of his unquestioned ability and devoted attention to the duties of the office; Edwin F. Smith is continued as Secretary. The business of the Fair is admirably managed, carefully conducted.

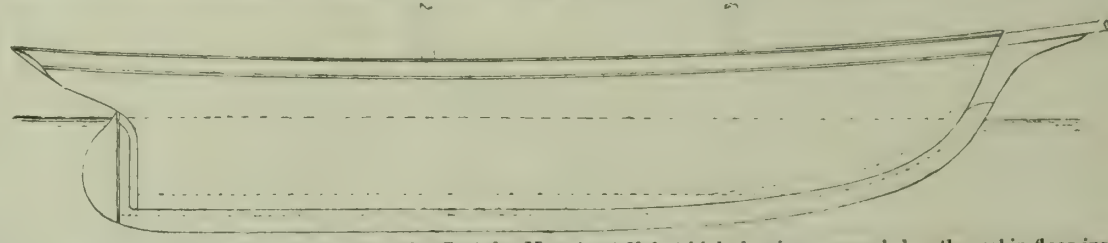
It is since the introduction of good and highly respectable racing at the State Fairs, that the prosperity of the Annual Exhibitions has been assured. Agriculture embraces thorough husbandry. There is the field as there is the farm. An Agricultural Fair without live stock is as the Social Fair without the fair. The youth who accounted his girl the next dearest creature to his favorite horse has more examples than the girls would like to think, and he who compared his sweetheart to a new buggy with red wheels, bright with paint, is not alone. Competition in speed is an American attribute, whether in man in getting ahead, or in forcing every going thing with legs to get ahead.

Good racing has the approbation, and challenges the admiration, of the most distinguished of the enlightened world, and the best cultured of society. The Derby and Goodwood, the Ascot and St. Leger, the Doncaster and the Oaks, are events to draw the royalty of England, the nobility, and the world of fashion. Paris is competing in her annual race meetings. Our own country requires no bush. The race of winning Eclipse against Sir Henry, more than half a century ago, the beating of the time of Eclipse by the little New Jersey mare, the peerless Fashion of her time,—outrunning Boston, the pride of the old Dominion and the South; next the unprecedented running of Kentucky's great Lexington; and since, the more wondrous performance of Longfellow, of Norfolk, of Katy Pease and Fellowcraft, and of matchless Tenbroek, with the winning of the Derby by Iroquois, have permanently and proudly established the supremacy of the American turf. California fairly contends with great Blue Grass Kentucky—acknowledged as the favored region to the East in the splendid emulation of the breeding of the fleetest.

The State Fairs have given impetus and encouragement, gratification and pride, to every industry of California. They began when the State was waning in her gold product, and barely making headway in the more lasting crops of breadstuffs. California was emancipated from the condition of a helpless consumer of provisions, of materials, and of products of everything except gold. She was the Golden State by entitlement of her digged soil. It has since been digged to surpassing resources, greater wealth, enduring importance. California sits as the Mistress of the commerce of the broader Pacific, in conjunction with the traffic of the Atlantic, diverted by the easier courses of the soil.

The State Fairs of California have advertised the State in an incomparable manner. Visitors from every part of Europe have attested the integrity of the local description. The fruits of California constantly sold in the markets of the East, and the material proofs that, if all that glistens is not gold, the luscious products of the State are not elsewhere equalled.

Excelling in cereals, in wines, in orchards, and first in mines, where can be suggested the exceptional quality of California? First consideration of the question prompts—the live-stock of California. It was Spanish and mixed, and therefore inferior as to cattle, the same as horses. The process to improvement has been described. The energy and disposition were in the State, the wealth was the important quality. This had been supplied, as the magnificent breeding farms of California attest. The blood of the sires of turf winners in the East, in the State—of breakers of racing records, approve the gratifying testimonials. California is the State destined to the distinction of the most favored in the breeding of the fleetest racers, the speediest trotters, the best of cattle, of sheep and swine.



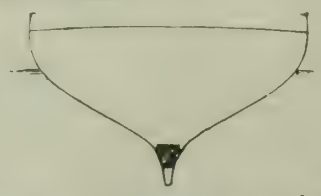
The Annual State Fairs have materially contributed to this partial consummation. The managers of several years merit high meed of praise. Secretary Hoag and Secretary Smith are especially worthy of praiseworthy mention. The Fair of this year will surpass any of the past. The racing premiums are admirably appointed and generous. The competition will be of high class and good. Of the other exhibitions of the farm and household, of mechanics and industries, of the useful and the beautiful, California is never neglectful. It is in the motto of "Excelsior!" that her people aspire, and in this they are willing to rest her claim at the State Fair of 1889.

YACHTING.

Commodore Macdonough's New Yacht.

Captain J. M. Kelly, for many years connected with the notable yacht-builder Capt. Matthew Turner of this city, kindly furnishes the lines for the new schooner now being completed by Capt. Turner for Commodore J. MacDonough of San Francisco. Captain Turner has designed and built over one hundred and forty vessels. An experience rarely equalled, and as he is a student and a close observer, the later models have embodied many improving changes. There is an individuality about Capt. Turner's work that readily enables yachtmen to distinguish his boats from those of the other local builders; and it is only just to Capt. Kelly to note that much of the peculiar grace and beauty of the Turner yachts is due to the bold fancy of the Captain.

Lurline, owned by the Messrs. Spreckels, embodied the latest theories of Captain Turner up to the time she was turned off the yard; and Commodore Gutte's beautiful Chispa, Colonel Mervyn Donahue's Nellie and the Consuelo all own the Turner yard as Creator. Commodore MacDonough's new boat has the single stick keel adapted by Captain Turner, and more overhang than former yachts built by that gentleman. The notes by Captain Kelly are as follow:



The new schooner yacht numbered 140, in Captain M. Turner's record of vessel built by him in California, is now being built at his shipyard in Benicia, and when completed, will be first class in every respect in speed, strength, beauty and comfort.

The new schooner has many of the best features of the famous pilot schooner yacht America, built by him last year, with some very important improvements. Her dimensions are:

	Ft.	In.
Length, extreme	86	8
Length of water line	75	1
Depth bottom of keel to deck	13	4
Depth of hold	9	10
Breadth at deck	24	7
Breadth on water line	22	8

Tonnage about 60 tons.

The materials used are selected of the very best. The keel is of Oregon pine, 58 feet long, 24x24 inches, and fashioned to conform to the model, making a portion of the body of the vessel. The forward piece of keel (or riser) and the stern are of Tamana wood, scarfed to the main keel, making a graceful curve from the stern post to the bowsprit. Unlike all other vessels, the outside lead ballast will be contained in an iron keel two feet wide, composed of boiler iron plates, one-half inch thick, riveted to a two-inch edge bolted securely on each side of the wood keel with vertical bolts through the iron, lead and wooden keel, to the top of the keelson.

The stern post is made of Tamana, 10x14 inches. The rudder will be of iron, and the iron plates on the stern post will be a part of the iron keel which will extend to above the water line on the stern, making a continuous piece over 80 feet long, and containing about 10 tons of lead.

The frame timbers in the bottom are of Oregon hard pine, the top timbers of cedar with stanchions of the best locust and other South Sea Island woods, which, when finished with the hard wood finish of skylights, companionway and deck trimmings, will have a beautiful effect. The cabin will be all under deck, finished in elegant style, with staterooms, salon and all modern improvements. The cabin will be about 6½ feet high, leaving a space below the cabin floor just inside ballast.

The outside planking will be of Oregon pine. The deck beams and deck will be of cedar, and all materials used in construction will be selected and of the best quality.

Desirable Property Offered.

Messrs. C. H. Street & Co., 415 Montgomery street, San Francisco, through the advertising columns, make an offer which should arrest the attention of every man who contemplates the purchase of California lands. When Mr. Frederic Gebhard selected the property in Lake county which now forms the Guenoc Stock Farm he was influenced by its accessibility, climatic excellence, good qualities of soil and water and the rich natural grasses which carpeted all the country. Messrs. Street & Co. offer 4,000 acres adjacent to the Gebhard tract, and equally desirable. Putah Creek runs through the land, and one hundred acres are already in alfalfa. It is a most likely opening for a man with moderate means. The firm also controls 20,000 acres of land in other parts of the State, which are for sale.

It was an old maxim of the Jews that he that did not teach his child some useful trade or occupation taught him to steal. Sure it is the criminal classes are recruited from the illiterate and idle. In this connection we call the attention of our thoughtful readers to the announcement of Heald's Business College.

A graduating course of study in Heald's Business College means something. It has no relation to a smattering of bookkeeping and writing, but it stands for preparation for realities of life. It stands for attainments that are available in the markets of the commercial world; it stands for knowledge that makes the possessor a stronger and more successful man and a more useful citizen.

The thousands of young ladies and gentlemen occupying positions of honor, usefulness and trust, who have graduated from this institution, speak volumes in praise of the practical utility of the course pursued in this College. We personally know the President to be not only thoroughly conversant with the requirements of a practical education, but a gentleman of probity and honor, and cheerfully commend the claims of the College.

ROD.

The smelt ran very freely on Sunday last, but the rock-cod did not at all seem inclined to bite.

Reports from the different fishing points around the bay say that fishing during the early part of the week was very poor.

In fishing for rock-cod where the tide runs strong, heavy sinkers should be used, otherwise it is impossible to keep the hooks at the bottom. At Tiburon, Lime Point, and other places where the tide comes in and goes out with a rush, sinkers not less than one and a half pounds should be used.

In the lagoon, at Point Tiburon, some very large flounders have recently been caught.

At certain times good perch fishing may be had from the rocks at the end of the Alameda wharf.

A fishing party went out to the Farallone Islands on Admission Day, but the fishing was exceedingly poor, only one or two large catches being made.

To-morrow the tides will be favorable, and the rock-cod should bite freely.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

SUMMARY

In our columns will be found reports of the different sporting events that took place during the past week. From now until the end of the year the athletes, both amateur and professional, will be kept pretty busy training for the different athletic events that are announced to take place.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The U. A. C. will hold a field-day in November. The College record for the one mile walk, 8 min. 17 sec., will possibly be lowered at this meeting by Fred C. Clift, of the Law College.

When the new athletic grounds of the U. A. C. are finished, the chances are that games of some kind or other will be held out there about twice a month.

Both the Golden Gate and the Pacific Athletic Clubs will be represented at the boxing tournament of the California Amateur Athletic Club. There will be no entrees from the Olympic Club. The winners in the different classes will be allowed to select either medals or jewelry prizes.

The Bay District track has lately been improved, and is now in excellent condition for running and walking.

One of the athletic clubs should lease Central Park, cor. of 8th and Market streets, and turn it into athletic grounds. The location is very central, and a more suitable place for holding games could not be found.

The Olympic Athletic Club will not be represented at the American championship meeting this year.

We would like to see that very promising young heel and toe walker, J. J. Theobald, of the O. A. C., appear on the track once more. Now that Coffin has retired Theobald should go into training again.

The O. A. C. should include on its Thanksgiving Day programme a one-mile walk for novices. Such an event would certainly bring out several good men that are too modest to compete against such walkers as Jarvis, Coffin or Gafney.

The individual amateur athletic championship of America for 1889, was won last week by Malcom W. Ford. Had John Purcell, the all-round champion of the Pacific Coast, been one of the competitors at this meeting, the contest between Ford and Purcell would have been very exciting. They are, without doubt, two of the best all-round athletes in the United States to-day, and it is to be hoped that they may yet have an opportunity to prove which is the better man.

An indoor tournament, under the auspices of the P. C. A. A. A., will probably be held in the Mechanics' Pavilion some time in November. The President of the Association, Walter A. Scott, has addressed a circular to each of the clubs belonging to the P. C. A. A. A., setting forth the nature of the tournament and asking them to lend their aid in getting it up. On more than one occasion, in these columns, we have suggested that an evening indoor athletic meeting would be sure to meet with success, and we are pleased to know that Mr. Scott has decided to make an effort towards getting up an evening tournament. We hope all the associate clubs of the P. C. A. A. A. will lend their assistance to the undertaking, as we honestly believe it will be a genuine success.

The field team of the Pacific Athletic Club will resume practice at the Bay District Track to-morrow morning. Captain Phil. Moody promises to have his men in tip-top condition for the November games of the O. A. C.

It would be a good idea to add an individual tug-of-war to the games' list of the O. A. C.

The P. C. A. A. A. will hold an important meeting on the 20th inst.

Bicycle tournaments are held at Stockton, San Jose, and other places throughout the State, why not athletic meetings? It is quite a while now since the country folks have had a chance to witness an out-door athletic tournament, and it would be in order for one of the Local Athletic Clubs to hold a meeting at one of the interior cities. The local athletes would appreciate the novelty of the change, and the sport-loving country people would no doubt lend their assistance towards making such a meeting a success.

Malcom W. Ford, the champion all-round athlete, is one of the best athletic writers in America, and is at present the Athletic Editor of one of the leading Eastern Sporting Journals.

E. L. Stones, the amateur champion pole vaulter of England, will take part in the championship games to-day. He holds the world record of 11 ft. 7 in.

Billy Johnson, the collar-and-elbow wrestler, has issued a challenge to wrestle in that style with any man in the world for any part of $2,500.

The well-known English amateur walker, C. V. W. Clark, is making his mark at long distance running.

The four crack walkers of the country, E. D. Lange, C. L. Nicoll, W. Burkhardt and T. Sherman, will oppose each other in the mile walk at the regular American championship meeting next month. The pace will, no doubt, be unusually hot, and the winner will be obliged to make fast time.

William Byrd Page, the high jumper, is also a first-class bicyclist, and affirms that he owes much of his powers as a high jumper to practice on his wheel. He says that the same muscles are brought into play in riding a bicycle and in high jumping.

E. A. Kolb of the Olympic Club has challenged Mertes of the California Athletic Club to wrestle in Græco-Roman or catch-as-catch-can style for a medal not to cost less than $100.

AT THE OARS.

A good many club boats were noticed skimming along the waters of the bay on Sunday last. It is evident that several crews are in training for coming events.

Considerable interest is being taken in the proposed professional championship race. It is thought that the date of the race will be fixed next week.

The Ariel Rowing Club has decided to remain in its present quarters for another year. Extensive improvements will be made in the present clubhouse. The club expects to have money enough in its treasury to build a first-class clubhouse, in a more suitable locality, by the end of next year.

John Teemer has signed the articles for a sculler's race, submitted by the backer of Jake Gaudaur. All the preliminaries have not been finally arranged yet, however, although the match seems assured.

John W. Park and Paul E. Huncker, both of Philadelphia, Pa., rowed a race for the championship of the Schuylkill Navy at Eaglesmere, August 26th, over a one and one-half mile course. The race which was hotly contested was won by Huncker by two lengths. Time, 8 min. 36 sec.

The great O'Connor-Searle race is an event of the past. The Australian champion proved himself to be superior to the Canadian in every way. When we predicted Searle's victory some weeks ago we did not base our theory upon mere guess work, we faithfully studied the records of both men and finally came to the conclusion that there was room for improvement in Searle while O'Connor's powers over strange waters were rather doubtful. Plainly speaking O'Connor's friends overestimated their man, they made no allowance for Searle's past victories, and if O'Connor had not been forced into believing himself to be a much greater oarsman than he really is perhaps he might have paid more attention to training. Searle was not forced to do his best but if O'Connor had been in the pink of condition, the result of the race, of course, would not have been any different, but the gap between the two boats at the finish would have been considerably less. The Canadian oarsman has learned a lesson and we hope he will profit by it. His defeat by Searle is no disgrace, and he still has a chance to prove himself to be an oarsman of more than ordinary ability, even though he should never meet the Australian again.

THE WHEELMEN.

The wheelmen have started in to train for future events. The proposed tournament at the Haight street grounds promises to attract much attention.

John J. Hardin, Manager of the American team, intends renting the Mechanics' Pavilion on October 21st for seven nights, for an amateur bicycle contest, open to the world. His team consists of three women and two men, the latter being W. F. Knapp and W. T. Morgan. Prizes amounting to $3,000 will be offered. The contest will be for seven days, eight hours a day.

The bicycle tournament, under the auspices of the Garden City Wheelmen, attracted about 1,500 spectators to the Agricultural Park, San Jose, on Monday afternoon. The weather was cool and the track in very fair condition. The results are as follows:

1 mile professional (handicap) W. F. Knapp (Scratch) 1st; time, 3:21. Senator Morgan, (60 yards) 2d. Jessie Oaks, (250 yards) 3d.

1 mile amateur scratch race. Julius Smith, 1st; time 3:22 2-5. J. E. Southworth, 2nd. J. Alexander, 3d.

In the five miles straightway race W. F. Knapp beat Stockton's trotter, Marion; time 18:41¾.

The two-day wheel tournament which took place at Hartford, Conn., September 2—3, was in every way a big success. The tournament was under the auspices of the Hartford, Conn., wheel club, and the profits accruing from the two-day's meet will amount to something like $1,500. The following events were contested for and won during the meet, viz.:

IN THE SURF.

The members of the Terrace Club are practicing hard for their coming races.

The weather was rather cold on Sunday last, and the bath houses were not as crowded as usual.

The beach at Santa Cruz is getting rougher and more dangerous every year. The tide comes up on the shore at least fifty feet higher than it did last year, and the chances are that in the course of a couple of years it will be almost impossible to bathe with safety at Santa Cruz.

Steve Brodie accomplished the very remarkable feat of "going" over the Horseshoe falls. Several have gone over before, but Brodie is the only one that has ever returned to shore alive. He is thinking about repeating the performance. Some very intimate friend should persuade him to abandon the idea, as his very narrow escape from drowning on Saturday last, was nothing short of a miracle.

The one-half mile swimming match for $100 a side between E. C. Peckham, champion of the Pacific Coast, and Alfred Sundstrom, of New York, took place at the Terrace Baths, Alameda, on Monday last. A very large audience was present to witness the contest. The New Yorker took the lead after the first lap and held it to the end, winning easily by about sixty yards. Peckham's defeat was quite a surprise to his friends, who now claim that he is much better at short distances than he is at long.

One of the swimming clubs should offer a medal for a long distance swimming race, of say, three or five miles, open to all amateurs; the race to take place in the bay.

At the Pavilion, Blackpool, England, Miss Annie Johnson accomplished the feat of remaining under water in a tank 3 min. 10 sec., which beats the performance of "Lurline, the Water Queen," by 18¾ sec. The time-keepers were Mr. Taylor, representing The Sporting Life and R. M. Whitehead. This is now the best under water performance by a female swimmer.

On Saturday, Aug. 31, the 100-yard and half-mile championship swimming races of the New York Athletic Club were held at Travers island. H. E. Toussaint won both in one min., 22⅗ sec. and 15 min., 14-5 sec. respectively. In the former Guy Richards was second by 1 yard, and in the latter F. J. Wells was second by 6 yards.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The regular monthly exhibition of the Golden Gate Athletic Club took place on Wednesday evening last.

The next regular meeting and exhibition of the Occidental Club will take place on Monday evening at the club rooms, southwest corner of Grove and Laguna.

An effort will shortly be made to start an athletic club in connection with the Young Men's Christian Association of this city.

The Pacific Athletic Club will no doubt be admitted to membership in the P. C. A. A. A. at the next meeting of the Association, September 20th.

Should the in-door athletic meeting of the P. C. A. A. A. prove a success, we will probably be treated to two championship meetings hereafter, one out-door and one in-door. The athletes then will have no cause to complain.

Contestants at amateur athletic meetings should wear badges, denoting the clubs to which they belong.

"An athlete" thinks it would be a capital idea if the P. C. A. A. A. would give a ball every year, at which the championship medals could be distributed to the successful athletes.

The Pacific Athletic Club has incorporated.

It is said that the P. A. C. will shortly offer the gold medals for a 25-mile walk and a 10-mile run, both events to decide the amateur championships of the Pacific Coast. The races will be open to all amateurs, and will probably take place at the Bay District Track.

Arrangements have been completed for the exhibition of the Olympic Club, which will take place at the Grand Opera House on the 21st inst. The juvenile class will contribute to the entertainment of the evening with exhibitions of pyramids, the wands, and exercises on the horizontal bars. A sparring match between Professor Jim Corbett, the boxing instructor of the club, and some unknown professional will also take place during the evening.

The regular annual meeting of the Olympic Club will be held on next Monday evening, when the officers recently elected will be installed.

At the games of the Passaic Athletic Club, held at Clifton, N. J., on August 31st, C. L. Nicoll of the M. A. C. won the one mile walk from scratch in the fast time of 6:49 3-5 sec.

OAKLAND.

FRIDAY.

Friday was another thoroughbred day and drew a good crowd. The unfinished 2:22 class trot which had been postponed from the day before was the first thing called, and the Direct people looked upon the race then as a sure thing for the back horse After several scores they got a fair start. Valentine half a length to the lead. At the first turn Direct took the pool, Valentine second and Victor about four lengths behind the leader. At the backstretch Direct increased his lead to six lengths, Victor acting like a very tired horse. It was probably one of Goldsmith's cute tactics, as when they reached the head of the second turn Johnny brought Victor up slowly but surely. When they came into the homestretch it was Direct first by five lengths, Valentine second and Victor lapping his wheel. Then the big bay came on with a rush, and as Direct perceptibly tired, caught him just at the wire, the judges declaring it a dead heat. At the drawgate Victor made a slight break, but Goldsmith caught him quickly, and he gained little or nothing by it. Valentine finished six lengths to the lead. Time by quarters, 0:35, 1:11, 1:46½, 2:26¼.

Seven heats and the race still undecided. There was a good deal of half suppressed excitement at this stage of the game. Direct had plainly had enough and was not fit for another heat. Valentine did not come out for the word. Direct and Victor were sent away, Victor made a slight break on the turn, landed quickly, and half way around took the lead and was never headed, finishing in a jog. It was a popular win and evoked a lot a cheering from the shortenders. Time by quarters 0-37½, 1:13, 1:50, 2:17¼.

Around the turn Daisy went back to the crowd, and when they came into the straight she was no more than a length from them. Stoneman, Longshot and Tycoon came with a rush for the lead. At the drawgate the three were together, and the jocks riding hard. Daisy D. quit. Hello shot out from the crowd, came to the front under a drive, and snatched the race at the wire by a neck from Tycoon, Longshot third. Time, 1:15½.

In the pools McGinnis sold for $200 against $33 for Nerva, and $38 for the field. Down the straight the first turn Nerva led by three lengths, the favorite laying back. At the first turn Lurline closed up with Nerva and went with her down the backstretch, McGinnis moving up to third place and running well in hand. Nerva went back on the second turn, and when the head of the straight was reached McGinnis and Lurline were together in the lead, the others down for Lurline stayed at the favorite head getting the whip at the drawgate. Cook on McGinnis held him steady until they came within ten lengths of the wire and then Cook gave him his head and he went under with a burst of speed, a neck in front of Lurline. Time, 2:11½.

The Palace Hotel purse had in it Palo Alto's br c Rico and ch c Flambeau, Matt Storn's ch f Marigold and Harry Rose's b c Rosemeade. It was such a sure thing for the Palo Alto stable, that no money could be found to go against it. When the bag dropped Rosemeade jumped off in front, Rico next to him, and Flambeau third.

Before they got to the quarter Rico had collared the leader. On the backstretch Flambeau got up on even terms with Rico, and in the turn passed him, and when they came into the straight it was Flambeau, Rico and Rosemeade in the order named, a length apart. Flambeau had it his own way from there home, and finished without an effort three lengths in front of Rico, Marigold third. Time, 1:29½.

White Cloud got away from the flag two lengths in the lead, Nightime next to him and Mikado's head showing in front of the pack. They ran in this order to the turn, where Mikado moved into second place. When the run home in the straight began, Longshot made a bid for the leaders. White Cloud quit, Mikado went on in front, with Longshot after him.

At the distance post it was Mikado sure, but Daisy D., who had been unseen in the pack, suddenly shot out from the muck, and ridden hard, flashed past Mikado at the wire, beating him by a length. Time, 1:15.

SATURDAY.

Saturday's programme at Oakland drew a larger crowd than had been present at any other day of the meeting. The events were good, but as speed contests they did not amount to much as everything was taken in straight heats. There were three events on the cards, the finish being the

Trotting, 2.30 Class.

E. B. Gifford's b h Atto Rex, Palo Alto's c g Express, B. C, Holly's ch m Pink, Marcus Daley's b h Lord Byron and G. Guerne's b h Alfred G. were the starters. Pools opened with Atto Rex a favorite at $60, Lord Byron going at $55, Express $27, Pink $20 and Alfred G. $11.

First Heat. The heat was altogether between Atto Rex and Alfred G., Lord Byron broke as they swung into the turn and wasn't heard of in the heat when they passed the quarter; Atto Rex was leading Alfred G. by a neck, Pink in third place two lengths back with Express at her wheel. At the half Rex and Alfred were still together with Pink three lengths back and Express off his feet and acting badly. The positions were never changed, Alfred G. gave Rex a race down the straight, but the attorney colt stayed in front and won from him by a neck, Pink third, Express fourth and Lord Byron fifth. Time, 2:21¾.

Second Heat. Pools sold, Atto Rex $50, Pink $30 and the field $33. Atto Rex and Alfred G. again went away in front a neck apart, both Byron and Pink breaking on the turn. Going down the backstretch Alfred G. closed up with Rex and at the half had half a length the good of him, Express in third place three lengths behind them. The two leaders went around the second turn head and head, Express breaking and giving second place to Lord Byron who was trotting fast. In the straight Rex and Alfred came together to the drawgate where Alfred tired and beat Lord Byron out second place only by half a length, Atto Rex going first two lengths ahead of them, Pink getting fourth. Time, 2:22.

Third Heat. Atto Rex sold in the pools at $80 against the entire field at $45. Going around the turn he broke but settled quickly, and at the quarter he was half a length in front of Alfred G. and three lengths from Byron and Express, both of whom were off their feet. Pink was in third place in the backstretch, but she too, broke. Alfred G. and Atto Rex went on around the turn and into the straight together, but when they settled down in the race for home Alfred broke and Atto Rex trotted in slowly, taking the heat and race by four lengths, Alfred G. Second, Lord Byron third, Express fourth and Pink fifth. Time, 2:22.

Trotting—2:17 Class.

The 2:17 class had but two starters, Palo Alto's b h Palo Alto and Coombs & Salisbury's b m Lillie Stanley, and the race was all one way, Stanley making no showing for herself against the horse. She was not fit for a bruising race, and the talent knowing that, backed Palo Alto as a sure thing. The pool box opened with Palo Alto going at about two to one against the mare.

First Heat. Palo Alto took a lead of two lengths going around the turn. On the backstretch he increased the gap to five lengths. He held that distance, trotting easily, to the middle of the straight, then Marvin eased him up and jogged him under the wire two lengths ahead of the mare. Time 2:18¼.

Second Heat. Palo Alto sold for $70 against $16 for the mare. The horse again went off in the lead, and was a length in front at the quarter. He made it three lengths on the backstretch, and held that gap to the wire, slowing down on the straight and again going under the wire in a jog. Time 2:19¼.

Third Heat. No pools were sold. The race was all over. Palo Alto took the lead on the turn, went on at any gait he pleased, and finished in the same style in 2:20¼, Stanley breaking over on the straight.

The announcement that Gold Leaf would not start in the free-for-all pace kept a good many people away from the track who would have gone to see the great pacers, and the crowd on the grounds were somewhat surprised when the names of Gold Leaf Adonis and Yolo Maid appeared on the board to start. Mr. Salisbury had consented to have the filly go, and the long looked for race was a reality. As a race, it was a disappointment, another straight heat affair, and in slow time, so slow that there was hardly a shout during the race, except when in the second heat Adonis made such a close finish with the Maid. The details of the race are as follows:

First Heat—Gold Leaf sold choice at $100 to $65 for the Maid and $21 for Adonis. Adonis was not in the first heat. Yolo Maid went off very fast with Gold Leaf at her wheel and they passed the quarter in that order, Adonis six lengths back. Down the backstretch the two leaders, with hardly a change in their positions, went at a fearful rate of speed and flashed past the half in 1:04. Yolo Maid went around the turn two lengths ahead, slowing down and getting to the three-quarters in 1:38¼. In the straight the Maid was four lengths away and going easy, and she jogged under the wire in 2:17, with Gold Leaf four lengths and Adonis ten lengths back.

Second Heat—Yolo Maid was the only thing in the pool box after her showing in the first heat, selling at $250 to $55 for Gold Leaf and $39 for Adonis. When they got off around the turn, the Maid showed in front with Gold Leaf at her wheel and Adonis a length back. At the quarter in 33½ seconds, the Maid was a length in front of Gold Leaf, Adonis two lengths behind the latter. On the backstretch the two drew away from Adonis and as they passed the half Yolo Maid was a length in front of Gold Leaf and Adonis was eight back. There was an open length between the leaders on the second turn, but from the half Adonis began to come fast and when they entered the straight he was not more than four lengths in the lead. He came like the wind down home, catching Gold Leaf at the drawgate. Andy took the filly back and Adonis went on for Yolo Maid. They fought out a very pretty finish, Yolo Maid getting there a head first. Time, 0:33½, 1:07½, 1:41, 2:17.

Third Heat—There was another great chop in the pools. Yolo Maid sold at $360, Adonis was second choice at $200 and Gold Leaf was begging at $20. A bad break on the first turn threw Adonis out of it. Yolo Maid went on in the lead, attended, as before, by Gold Leaf. The Maid opened a gap of two lengths on the backstretch and got to the half in 1:05. From there home she had it all her own way, gradually letting out more daylight behind her and coming down to the wire almost in a walk in 2:22.

Running—⅝ Mile.

The opening day of the extra event was a dash of five-eighths of a mile, with Harry Rose's b g Rosemeade, J. W. Donathan's br c Hubert Earl, Kelly & Samuels' b c Pliny, John Leach's ch c Capt. Al, and W. L. Appleby's ch c King David as starters. Pools sold, Pliny $50, Hubert Earl $15, and the field $14. Pliny acted badly at the post, and gave the starter much trouble. When the flag fell at last he was behind the crowd and not moving at all. Hubert Earl jumped off in front, with Captain Al and King David at his flanks. The three bunched as they passed the half, and came around the turn and into the straight together. Cook gave Pliny, who was two lengths back, the whip, and the colt responded by moving up to the leaders, but Hubert Earl had speed left in him, and responded to the whip by drawing away from the bunch with a rush, and going under the wire an open length first, Pliny second and King David third. Pools sold Daisy D. $40, field $40 and Nerva $13. When the flag dropped Louise M. jumped away in front, and the first time under the wire it was Louise M. first by a length, Welcome and Alfarata together in second place, Daisy D. at their heels. Going around the first turn Louise opened the gap to two lengths. On the backstretch Welcome moved up into second place with Daisy D. at her flank and they went around the turn in this order, then Louise quit. Welcome went to the fore with Daisy D. after her. Daisy quit at the drawgate, and Welcome ran in an easy winner by two lengths, Daisy D. second and Nerva third. Time 1:56½.

Trotting—Two-year-olds.

It was a mixed card, and the next event was a two-year-old trot for L. J. Rose's b f Mista, Ben Harris' ch f Lorena and San Mateo Stock Farm's br f Belle Grande. Mista was a hot favorite in the pools going at $90 to $62 for Lorena and $15 for Belle Grande.

First Heat—They scored up several times before starting Judge Crittenden gave them the word. Mista took the lead on the turn, Lorena and Belle Grande together, on the backstretch they were strung out in one, two, three order, Mista first, Lorena second, about two lengths apart. Lorena closed up on Mista in second turn and came into the straight on even terms with her. They came together half way down the straight then Mista made a tangled break. She landed going fast, and in a hot finish beat Loreuzo out by half a length. On account of the break by Mista the judges gave the heat to Lorena. Time, 2:30.

Second Heat—Pools sold Lorena $50, Mista $45 and Belle Grande $5. Mista again took the lead on the turn and went into the backstretch with one skip on the turn, three-lengths in front of Lorena in second place. The positions were never changed except that Lorena closed up to two lengths on the turn. Mista won by two lengths, very tired, Lorena second. Time, 2:31.

Third Heat—Pools opened, Mista $30, field $21. Mista took the lead on the turn and at the quarter was six lengths in front of Lorena who made a slight break in the turn. Mista trotted very fast going into the backstretch, but well in she made a bad break and when they got to the half she was not more than three lengths ahead of Lorena. On the second turn Lorena began to close the gap and half way around collared Mista and came into the straight leading her. Mista was very tired and made two bad breaks in the straight which put her out of it. Lorena trotted steadily to the wire, winning the heat and race by three lengths. Time, 2:31.

Pacing, Special.

Racquet, St. Patrick, Little Hope and Frank started in a special pace. There were no pools sold before the first heat.

First Heat. St. Patrick and Little Hope went off in the lead together. At the quarter St. Patrick lead by a length; at the half the positions were not materially changed. Racquet and Frank broke eight lengths from the leaders; St. Patrick came into the straight with Little Hope a length behind, and they finished that way, Frank getting third. Time 2:20¾.

Second Heat. Pools sold, St. Patrick $40, field $15, Racquet $5. St. Patrick had the best of the go and established himself in first place on the turn. At the quarter he lead by a length, Racquet second and Little Hope third. At the half they were a length apart, with Frank third. Around the second turn Racquet got up to the leader's wheel, and Frank cleared his gap and lapped on Racquet. In these positions they started down the straight. Frank passed Racquet and made for the leader, but broke at the distance post and St. Patrick came under first by three lengths, Racquet second and Frank third. Time 2:23¾.

Third Heat. Pools sold, St. Patrick $70, field $25. When they straightened out around the turn St. Patrick was first, Racquet second, Little Hope third, and Frank fourth. There was no change at the half. On the second turn Racquet and Little Hope closed up with the leader and came into the straight with him, but he drew away on the straight and won as he pleased. There was a battle for second place and money between Frank, Little Hope and Racquet. Little Hope broke at the drawgate and Frank crawled by Racquet and took the place from him by a neck. Time 2:20.

Trotting, Special.

Big Jim, Melrose, Nina D., Perihelion and Patch Allen started in a made race. Pools opened, Nina D. $90, Melrose $24 and the field $24.

First Heat. Nina D. went off in the lead, Melrose second, Perihelion third On the backstretch Big Jim took third place, the other positions unchanged. On the lower turn Melrose broke but lost little, and came into the straight on even turns with Nina. Down home he outspeeded the mare and won the heat by a length and a half, Big Jim third and Patch Allen fourth. Time, 2:27.

Second Heat. Pools sold, Nina D. $50, Melrose $22 and the field $9. Perihelion got the best of a scattering start, and went around the turn in the lead, Melrose second and Nina D. third. Melrose broke going into the backstretch, and when Nina D reached the half a length in front of Perihelion, who was running, Melrose was ten lengths back. On the turn Nina D. and Perihelion trotted together, Perihelion making two breaks. On the straight Nina D. quit, Melrosee trotted very fast and collared Perihelion at the distance post. Perihelion again broke and Melrose won the heat by a length, Big Jim finishing third, Patch Allen fourth and Nina D fifth. Perihelion was set back to fifth place for running. Time, 2:28.

The third heat was taken by Big Jim. Nina D. went off in front and took a long lead, but she was too tired to stay, and on the straight both Perihelion and Big Jim caught her. Big Jim outspeeded them all and took the heat, Perihelion second, Nina D. third and Patch Allen fourth. Time 2:29. As it was then almost dark the finish of the race was postponed to next day.

On Tuesday morning the specials started again, but Nina D. won in three straight heats in 2:28, 2:29¼ and 2:29½.

Osborne Self-Binder.

As usual, Messrs. D. M. Osborne & Co, at 116 Bluxome street, San Francisco, appear in the advertising columns most attractively, the reason being their desire to call the attention of those who make hay to the Osborne Self-Binder for cutting and binding hay. No raking is done or needed, hence no dirt is gathered with the hay. It cures sweetly in the bundle and does not leach or mould. It is the only machine having sufficient motion, power and capacity to handle green hay. In all hay great care should be taken to protect it from all dust, sand, grit, clod, and other impurities which tend to destroy the teeth and generate disease in stock. The Osborne Self-Binder is practically an insurance against all these dangers and is used by some of the most notable horsemen in California.

Clabrough, Golcher, & Co.

For twenty-five years the name of Clabrough in California, has been synonymous with well made, finely finished, splendid shooting and reasonably priced guns. Champion Crittenden Robinson won his spurs and maintained his supremacy for years with a Clabrough gun. When that superb gun-maker, Mr. William Golcher, associated himself with the Clabrough interest, the guns put out by the firm were noticeably improved in profile and hang and have ever since gone on improving, as desirable inventions could be tested.

The most recent specialty of the firm is a $45 hammerless in 10, 12 and 16 gauges, with fine Damascus barrels, and all improvements, every one being guaranteed.

The firm also holds agencies for L. C. Smith, Parker Bros., Le Fever, W. and C. Scott, & Son, and all other makers of merit.

Since the death of William Golcher about two years ago, his sons Wm. J. and Harry C., have assumed active control of the business and it is but just to the bright and thoroughly trained young business men to say that they have given an impetus to the gun and fishing tackle trade, which has been felt through all its various channels upon the coast. The house draws upon the world for the best of everything, within its lines, and is at the head of the trade west of St. Louis.

John H. Wallace.

There is no name so well known to horse breeders as that of the gentleman whose name heads this article. For many years he has devoted his entire time to the Register and now we find that he occupies the same position to the trotting horse breeders of the United States, that Weatherby does to the race horsemen of England. It is not always that we agree with him in his decisions, but as he is correct at least ninety and nine times out of a hundred, we bow to his mandates and feel that there is but one Wallace, But a short time ago he gave a concise history of his labors in the cause of registration, in the Monthly, and it will bear repeating.

"The story of the American Trotting Register is the story of more than thirty years of labor. Evolved out of nothing, we will allude, very briefly to some facts in its history. To very many of our younger subscribers these facts will be new and, we think, not without interest. Our work first commenced on running horses, and we carried it forward with all the enthusiasm of a beginner. We gleaned from all published sources, but especially from the American Turf Register, founded by John S. Skinner, of Baltimore, in 1829. This publication was afterward transferred to the old Spirit of the Times, in New York, and died about 1845. Under Mr. Skinner's management it became the chief receptacle for the pedigrees of running horses, but unfortunately he knew nothing about pedigrees and admitted whatever came just as it came. In our enthusiasm we never stopped to inquire whether a pedigree was true; it was there in a book and it must be true. Many of the pedigrees were fragmenary part to be found here and part there, but these transcient difficulties only served as a spur to keep us to our work. After writing and rewriting two or three times, we had a great mass af well-digested manuscript ready for the press. This manuscript embraced all the gleanings of everything that had been published, practically, down to about the year 1840, and when we had put it through the press it came out a great, handsome book of 1000 pages. As an appendix to this volume we inserted about 100 pages of trotting pedigrees that we had gathered up in the progress of our work. This appendix embraced all that was known of the breeding of trotters up to that day, and in this light it is now a most interesting study. We do not commend it for the purpose of showing how much was known at that time, but how little compared with what is now known.

"We then took up the runners again where we had left off, and gleaned everything, high and low, where a pedigree could be found, to the close of 1870. We did the work with great care and precision, and when we had it all ready for the press the truth began to dawn upon us that the whole work, published and unpublished, abounded in misrepresentations and frauds. We had done our work faithfully, but the basis on which we had done it was all wrong. We had been grasping for pedigrees, and the further those pedigrees were extended the better we were pleased. We accepted what we found in the various publications as true instead of investigating and sifting the true from the false. When we found such great horses as Timoleon, Boston, American Eclipse, etc., with absolute fictions in the extensions of their pedigrees, we became disgusted with the whole work to which we had devoted many years of toil. It is humiliating to confess it, but it is nevertheless true, that this all grew out of our overreadiness to accept everything we saw in print as true and our incapacity to judge of the motives which influenced men fifty years ago as they influence them to day. To secure patronage for a stallion, it was just as common to add on a valuable cross or two of his pedigree as it was to print a pedigree at all. There were no restraints of records or stud books beyond two or three crosses at most, and beyond those every fellow worked his own sweet will in makin making up the pedigree of his horse. The theory was that if a horse ran well he must be thoroughbred, and forthwith a pedigree was provided to suit him. We do not undertake to say that there were no honest men nor honest pedigrees in the early part of this century, but we do say most emphatically that it was the custom of the times to add on fictitious crosses that had no truth in them.

"The years devoted to the genealogy of the runners were not thrown away. This was just the kind of training we needed to fit us for the greater work among the trotters. The trotting supplement of 100 pages in the first volume of the stud-book seemed to be more highly prized by the great mass of breeders than the body of the book itself. This was a most encouraging fact, and we resolved to spend some time and money in making a book that no other man in the world would have the courage to undertake. We traveled all over the country, gathering information from all sources and securing the co operation and assistance of breeders. We were received with a welcome by the prominent breeders of the country, with one single exception. That man was willing to have his pedigrees appear in the book, but he was not willing to pay a dollar each to have them there. He was a rich man, still a breeder with very moderate success, and has never forgotten us for his meanness.

"The first volume of the Register was published in 1871, the second in 1878, the third in 1879, the fourth in 1882, the fifth in 1885, the sixth in 1887 and the seventh in 1888. In the progress of this work we have been brought into contact with a great variety of men, and we are glad to say that our opinion of human nature has not been lowered by this contact. The great body of our correspondents are honorable and truthful men, and want nothing in their pedigrees that does not rest on a well-ascertained and solid foundation. There are others who will stick for what they claim, whether right or wrong, and will refer to any number of persons who have said the pedigree was all right. When asked for the evidence upon which those persons base their assertion, the fact flashes upon their minds at once that their methods of proving their pedigrees are defective, and they soon come to terms. Another class is extremely tenacious in holding on to a pedigree because it is old, and they will not fail to remind you that "it has stood unquestioned for forty years"—just as though great age converted a lie into a truth. If you point out an absolute impossibility in the pedigree it makes but little difference, and is still retained. Fortunately, men of this class are not numerous Lastly, we have a class—and we are glad to say it is a very small class—who are ready to cheat on every occasion. In dealing with this class we have found by experience that the only safety is in declining to accept any pedigrees from them.

"It would be a very strange thi g—indeed, something unheard of in the experience of our frail human natnre—if we should come in contact with so many men whose property interests would be affected by our action and not produce any friction. There has been friction, sharp and grating, until, on two different occasions, the spindles got hot. It was simply another test of an old experiment that often been successful, as to whether a monkey with a pocketful of money could not beat a man with a hatful of brains. The contests was not for the profits of registration, but for the control of registration so that pedigrees could be manipulated to suit certain interests. Fortunately the animus and object of these movements were understood from the beginning, and the breeders of the country placed their seal of condemnation upon them with such emphasis that they died still born. They were not ready to place their pedigree interests in the hands of a rival establishment or establishments, even if there had been no manifestations of unwillingness to submit to rules of evidence that were just and fair to all. They had confidence in the integrity and ability of the management of the Register, and there they stood as firm as a rock. Assurances of support came pouring in upon us from every quarter, and when the conspirators saw that the whole breeding public was with us and that they could neither steal the property nor force its surrender, they came forward and offered us money to sell it, with its good will and patronage. Our reply to them was, in effect, that they were all rich men, but they didn't have money enough to buy it, and that we would not transfer the ownership or control to any body of men in whom the public did not have confidence. But we will not dwell on this feature of the evolution of the Register, for the wars now seem to be over and everything indicates peace."

When we determined to issue an extra edition of the Breeder and Sportsman during the State Fair, a request was sent to Mr. Wallace, asking him to contribute a short article on California pedigrees, knowing the fighting character of our subject. We were not surprised to receive such a caustic letter, and while we do not agree with him in regard to Mr. Williamson, still it shows the character of the writer. Mr. Williamson, by the way, has a most remarkable memory and can recall the names and marks of mares served by his horses twenty-five years ago, and, furthermore, we have never known him to be wrong whenever there has been a chance to verify his statements. In the case of Sunol the statements of all concerned have been printed so recently that it requires no further comment.

MR. WALLCE ON THE DIFFICULTIES OF CALIFORNIA PEDIGREES.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—As you have kindly suggested that I should say something to your readers on the subject of California trotting pedigrees, I will call attention, briefly, to a few of the leading difficulties that have stood in the way of satisfactory results in the investigations that I have sought to carry forward in the past, and which still hinder the discovery of the truth in many cases. The good people of California are no better and no worse than the people of other States, but as they have not been brought into practical contact with the question of registration, as in the older States, they are really behind in their appreciation of the value of registration and in their knowledge of the kind of evidence that is required to establish a pedigree. The Register has always had a fair sprinkling of support from California, but of late there has been a flood of applications and many rejections.

The general fact that the investigation and registration of trotting pedigrees is comparatively a new thing in all the States alike has to be supplemented with the additional fact that in California it has been the custom for many years to let the horses run at large and breed as they pleased. This rendered all knowledge of lines of descent impossible, but it did not fail to credit the colts to the best horse that was in the band, or to any other famous stallion that may have been owned in the region where the band wandered. Many of the California pedigrees are in this shape, and we need not say that all such are untrustworthy.

As an illustration of a class of pedigrees that abound in California, take the case of the fast pacing mare Flora Langford, the dam of Joe Arthurton and others. All that we have ever been able to learn about this mare is that she bears the brand of the man who owned the running horse Langford, son of Belmont. On the basis of this brand it is assumed that she was bred by that man and that she was got by Langford. Now both of these assumptions may be true, but they must be shown to be true before they can be accepted. We must know by whom this mare was bred and we must know every step of her history from her breeder to her last owner. That she was a natural and fast pacer is evidence of some weight that she was not by Langford, but it is not conclusive evidence. While it is a basic truth that no thoroughbred horse ever paced or ever transmitted that habit of action, yet the pace, coming from the other side of the house, has shown itself in a good number of instances, as in the case of Rifleman, the sire of the very fast converted pacer, Col. Lewis. While the probabilities, therefore, are very much against Flora Langford being by Langford, we cannot either accept or finally reject the pedigree till we are in possession of the facts.

Fifty or sixty years ago all old gray mares were "Messengers," and the habit of so calling them was not restricted to any one region of country, but prevailed almost everywhere. At a later period all chestnut mares about New York, and especially Orange County, were "American Stars." In Kentucky and Ohio they accommodated themselves to circumstances, but hardly ever failed to call a grey mare a "Grey Eagle." In all these cases and nine times out of ten these representations were purely fictitious. In California the running horse Belmont takes the place, substantially, of Grey Eagle and American Star in Kentucky and New York. No doubt a number of trotters are out of Belmont mares, but in most cases nobody seems to know by whom those mares were bred. This is one of the leading difficulties in considering California pedigrees, and what makes it still worse is the readiness of the former owner of Belmont to endorse the Belmont cross in the pedigree of any and every performer that is in search of a sire for his dam. It may as well be understood that we do not place much confidence in this kind of authority, for no man can from memory and without reference to his books, tell what mares were bred to his horse twenty years ago. Besides, there is a weakness among the former owners of noted stallions that is well nigh universal, to exaggerate the merits of their dead heroes. This is not peculiar to California, for it is met with everywhere, and it is safe to say that the average stallion owner is about the least reliable of all the witnesses we have to examine. As a matter of course this remark applies to that class of stallion owners who depend upon their memory and imagination, instead of upon records of the facts written down at the time of the event.

The most aggrvating difficulty we have to contend with is the disposition on the part of some men to "twist" established facts and distort them so as to suit some preconceived theory of breeding or history. Take the case of Waxy, the grandam of Sunol, and we have a fair illustration of this type of depravity. Waxy was sold as a two-year-old, with other fillies of the same age. At the sale those fillies were entered in a stake for three-year-olds to be run the next fall; previous to the race they were exhibited at a fair as three-year-olds and a few weeks afterwards they ran for the stake as three-year-olds. Here were three different occasions on which their ages were publicly given and recorded, any one of which would be sufficient to establish the year they were foaled. Entries in stakes for certain ages and public performances for those stakes are the very best evidence that can exist as to the age of an animal so entered and raced. But now, in spite of these facts, established and recorded a quarter of a century ago, any number of men can be found in California who would be willing to swear that the fillies in question were only two years old when they ran for the stake, thus setting up their unaided and unsupported recollection against facts duly ascertained and written down at the time they occurred. But why should those men be willing to forswear themselves in a matter about which they have no accurate knowledge? Simply to maintain a theory that has nothing but a flimsy falsehood for a foundation. If the fillies were three years old when they raced, then Waxy was not by Lexington and out of Philip Swigert's Grey Eagle mare, for that mare had no foal corresponding with that year, hence to make the pedigree possible the age of the fillies must be changed. The horse world can furnish, on sight, a great many liars and a great many fools, but it is doubtful whether any State can furnish the two qualities combined in such blooming exhuberance as California has done in this case.

The old practice of saying "dam thoroughbred" when nothing whatever is known of the breeding of the dam or grandam, still has its adherents in California. At one time it was a humbug, practically universal in all the States, but of late years and since the Monthly was established it has fallen into disuse and is looked upon as disreputable and vulgar. Instead of writing it "dam thoroughbred" we now write it "dam unknown," which is the real and true meaning of the phrase. How can any mortal know whether an animal is thoroughbred unless he can give the pedigree and the breeder of that animal? The first requisite in preparing an application for registration is to give the breeder of the animal and the breeder of each dam in the pedigree. With this there must be a circumstantial history of each dam, so that there can be no mistake in her identity, and every standard animal must be registered. The whole aim is to get at the truth, and all the truth, and nothing but the truth.

BRITTON AND REY,
Lithographers.

Next only to fitly chosen words in graphic power are the inscriptions of the artist, as they reach us after the delicate manipulations of the lithographer, and perhaps to none more than Messrs. Britton & Rey, long time established at 525 Commercial street, San Francisco, are local art lovers in debt for high class work in Lithography, Arto-type work and Photo-Lithography. Readers of the Breeder and Sportsman have, ever since the establishment of the paper, had opportunities to enjoy the artistic productions of the firm, and it is but giving expression to the consensus of opinion to write that the pictures of Britton & Rey have always been unexceptionable. All recent developmenfs in the picture making art are at once tested by the firm, and they are fully prepared to do perfect artotype work, as well as to produce clear and elegant photo-lithographs. A specialty is a patent process for lithographing on tin for signs for ordinary wall advertising, and the demand for the work proves alike its desirability and cheapness. The storerooms of the firm afford most interesting opportunities to the student of art, and demonstrate both the march of invention and the enterprise of the proprietors. Our dog fancying readers in particular have cause to be grateful to Britton & Rey for the beautiful portraits of notable dogs sent out from time to time, while horsemen may readily be pardoned a little enthusiasm as they study the marvelously lifelike presentments of great equines which accompany the present issue, all of which emanated from the quaint laboratory of Britton & Rey, at 525 Commercial street.

The London Live-Stock Journal publishes the following interesting account of an occurrence which appears to be well authenticated: "A Cornwall correspondent, in sending us the following extract from the Cornishman says: 'I thought it possible you would like to have it sent to you as it is a very remarkable case. I do not think there is one on record like it. I have heard of cases before, but they have only been one stone (or calculi). In this case, you will see, there were four. I might state that I was there and saw them taken out. 'Mr. George Williams, of St Iven, Cornwall, fish-buyer, etc., had a horse fourteen years old, which on Tuesday took a load of potatoes to a steamer at Penzance, and reached home at eight in the evening, apparently quite well and doing its work as comfortably as any ordinary horse of that age does. On Wednesday it became uneasy, and seemed to be in much pain, and at six o'clock that evening the services of Prof. F. Andrew, veterinary surgeon, were asked and promptly given. He found the poor animal sitting on its haunches straining, and in great agony. He at once said there was a stoppage in its stomach or intestines. All that veterinary skill and attention thoughout that night and Thursday could do was done by Prof. Andrew, but the poor animal died in terrible pain, its screechings being something pitiful to listen to. A post-mortem disclosed the causa of so much pain and ultimate death. In the intestines were four large stones, weighing 4 pounds 1 oz. The largest weighed 1½ lbs. You could see that these foreign substances had a small beginning, and then time after time, probably from deposits of lime or some mineral in the water, ring on ring of calcareous matter formed. But the most curious fact remains. Two of the large stones seemed to have got together in the gut, and these ground against each other until the inner surface of each sphere became flat. They were found together, flattened face to flattened face. The two smaller stones were apart, and were round. How the poor animal lived, fed, and worked under such circumstances is a mystery.'"

Horse Syphillis or Maladie du Coit.

This disease, which has lately attracted considerable attention to the State of Illinois, owing to the severity of an outbreak in De Wit County, has been known to exist for many years in Europe, Asia and Africa.

Space being kindly allotted to me for an article in the State Fair edition of this paper, I have chosen the above-mentioned disease, and propose giving the history, symptoms, etc., of this malady, as it presents itself in the stallion and mare. However, to do so it is necessary to draw largely, if not entirely, upon the recent literature on this subject, and the last and most authentic report and description I have read is that by Dr. Williams, Assistant State Veterinary Surgeon of Illinois, in his report on the outbreak in De Wit County to the Live Stock Commissioners of that State. Other works can also be had with interest, and probably none with greater interest than Dr. Lientard's exhaustive treatise on the American Veterinary Review, Vol. IX. For further and more extensive information readers of this article are referred to Dr. Fleming's Sanitary Science and Police. In describing the symptoms of this malady, I will adhere strictly to those enumerated by Dr. Williams as being present in the Illinois outbreak —Firstly. Because the symptoms' etc., of other writers in the English language are mostly translations from foreign authors. Secondly, Because those writers did not have charge of affected animals in quarantine, as Dr. Williams has, and, consequently, could not observe daily changes in symptoms, etc., as Dr. Williams has done.

Dr. Williams considers the so-called benign form of maladie du coit described by English authors to be a distinct venereal disorder, and in this I concur with Dr. Williams because last June I was called by Dr. Spencer, of San Jose, to examine a stallion and some thirty mares, which were pronounced by an unqualified veterinary surgeon to be affected with horse syphillis or maladie du coit.

Dr. Spencer had already seen the animals and decided there was no cause for any such decision. I found the mares and one stallion suffering from equine chancroid a benign ocal ruptive venereal disorder—symptoms of which will be given, after those of the true horse syphillis or maladie du coit have been enumerated—at first I was inclined to consider it as the benign form of horse Syphillis, but there being no deaths, and all of the affected animals recovering in from two to three weeks, proved that Dr. Spencer's conclusions were correct.

The precaution of quarantining all the affected animals was taken. At the same time I was struck with the similari y of those symptoms and those of the so-called benign form of horse syphillis and equine chancroid, and was at a loss to account for anything to distinguish the two diseases until a copy of Dr. Williams' able report was published, when I at once saw the correctness of his (Dr. Williams) views, and agree with him in his definition that "equine syphillis" may be defined as a malignant, specific venereal disease, peculiar to solipeds, and as my views are similar to those of Dr. Williams, I will as already stated, adhere to the symptoms published, by Dr. Williams as being present during the outbreak in Illinois. Adjoined to this article is a verbative copy of the list of stallions that were affected in that State. It will be noticed that stallion No. 18, was last heard from at Fresno, California, still affected and under no restrictions. The question that arrises in the mind of any horseman in the State is, Has this stallion affected any mares in this State? One would infer he has if bred to any mares, as certainly must be the case when we read that No. 18 was under no restrictions, and again it is certain the owner did not purchase and bring the stallion to this State to look at. We will ask another question. If the disease should already have gained a foothold, whole is to blame? The State authorities, of course, as this stallion came in without any, and remained likewise, without any restrictions; so can numerous other fatal diseases also be admitted, some of which would cause sufficient loss among the stock interests to awake the authorities when it is probably too late.

The symptoms of horse syphilis or maladie du coit:

1st: The Mare—In a variable length of time—from eight to nine days after copulation—the mare exhibits uterine excitement resembling exagerated oestrum (heat). The vulva is swollen and the mucous or living membrane of both the vulva and vagina becomes red—with a discharge from the vagina—which increases, becoming sticky—white, yellow, greyish, or reddish in color—collecting about, and soiling the tail and perineum. The mare is restless, stamps with her hind feet, and voids urine frequently in small quantities, which irritates the vagina, causing increased restlessness. The lips of the vulva become more swollen, the odœma being of a dropsical nature.

Concerning the appearance of external eruption, Dr. William says: "If any occured in the outbreak in Illinois, they have been entirely within the vagina, and few in number. There is a peculiar loss of pigment in the skin of the vulva perineum and annus, continuing until the entire vulva, perineum and annus may become one white patch, or dotted with spots a one-quarter of an inch in diameter. Copulation increases the vaginal discharge, as well as aggrevating the symptoms.

Infected mares rarely conclive, and if they do, abort by the sixth month, and if the foal is carried to the full period, it is almost sure to be weakly and short lived. Itching is frequently present, and comparatively early in the disease odœmatous swellings of the legs and abdomen appear.

The inguinal glands frequently enlarge and suppinate, and the udder also becomes inflamed and enlarged. Enlargement of the glands between the angles of the lower jaws is often present, as well as a viscid, sticky discharge from the nostrils resembling glanders, which resemblance is heightened by the appearance of small superficial erosions or ulcers on the nasal membrane, and usually associated with the nasal discharge, a muco-purulent discharge from the eyes is observed.

Other swellings appear one, two or even six inches in diameter. These swellings occur any time from eight to ten weeks to the end of the disease and disappear as suddenly as they come, and others again appear in other parts of the body. In nearly all cases, as the disease progresses, there appears signs of weakness and paralysis, mainly of the hind parts, the animal exhibiting an unsteady gait and bringing the hind feet forward in a difficult, uncertain manner. This difficult action may be present in one or both limbs, or appear first in one and then in the other, when it may disappear entirely and return again worse than ever. The lameness is sometimes of a spasmodic nature, resembling string halt. As the disease advances the lameness usually increases. The back becomes arched, and the hind feet are dragged along the ground, until the paralysis becomes so severe that the animal, when down, is unable to rise. Emaciation usually begins early in the disease, and increases rapidly when once the paralytic symptoms develop, until the whole body is wasted to a skeleton, although the appetite appears unimpaired to the last and the food to be well digested. Late in the course of the disease paralysis of a lip or ear occasionally occurs. Death may be due to gradual giving away of the animal powers or to pneumonia and other accidental complications.

2ND IN THE STALLION.

In view of the general symptoms being essentially the same as in the mare, it is necessary only to consider the local manifestations in the genital organs. The commencement of the disease is far more insidious in the stallion than in the mare, being in many cases unrecognizable for months.

The symptoms sometimes appear early; again, the develment of the disease is tardy and hardly noticeable, or the primary symptoms may appear for a few days or weeks, and then disappear entirely and the stallion remain entirely well for months, although returned to the stud (which aggravates the disease), and yet be capable of transmitting the disease at least six months later, probably several years, without affording other evidence of disease. The first noticeable sign of the malady is a well marked, peculiar swelling of the prepuce, of an indolent, doughy nature, which may implicate the anterior part of the sheath, as well as the posterior part and the scrotum, the skin being thickened, smooth and shiny. These symptoms may disappear in a few days to a few weeks, leaving no tangible trace of the disease, except the power of transmitting it, or it may remain for some months or years, either to be complicated with or succeeded by other symptoms. Some writers at this stage describe erosions or eruptions upon the prepuce, penis and sheath, but in Illinois the eruptions were few in number, disappearing quickly, leaving no noticeable scars, and in most cases none were noticed at all The sheath may or may not become swollen, and if it does the swelling may disappear early, or may be present throughout the disease, and when so, varies in size, being susceptible to unaccountable turns of growth or subsidence. The character of the swelling resembles those of the prepuce, or they may become indurated from the presence of suppurating glands.

The testicles are in most cases unusually pendant, due to paralysis of the cremaster muscle; again, when greatly atrophied, they lie in some cases in the inguinal canal, and may even be pushed up into the ring by abscesses or indurations of the lower part of the scrotum. Their size may be normal, enlarged or atrophied. Enlargement during the earlier stages is proverb ally the rule, but atrophy is almost constant during the latter stages; the consistency is almost flaby and soft. The penis is said to be sometimes hypertrophied (enlarged) and sometimes atrophied (wasted), but in the Illinois outbreak no deviations from the normal size was noticed, nor were there any signs of alterations in color or presence of the yellowish-white marks, or bluish, or violet eliptical patches mentioned by other writers. The retractile power of the penis was deficient in a large proportion of the cases, so that it hung partially out of the sheath, and in some cases at full length entirely powerless.

Sexual desire usually remains unimpaired throughout, and the power to copulate is in many animals but little impaired, but during the earlier stages, when tumefaction of the prepuce and penis is present, the stallion fails in many cases to effect coition from excessive erection or other causes The same inability may arise late in the course of the disease from loss of power in the penis or from extreme paralysis of the posterior parts.

The urethral opening may or may not be abnormally red and swollen, and in some cases there is a muco-purulent discharge from the urethra, while in others involuntary emissions of semen occur. The animal may urinate frequently, and the act be accompanied with more or less pain. In some cases polyuria or diabetes is well marked.

In the majority of cases, as the malady advances, emaciation with a dry, staining coat is noted, which is of an intermittent character, stopping for a time, sometimes improving, and then again commencing, more virulent than ever, being especially marked on the hind quarters. The paralytic symptoms and intermittent lameness in the stallion are similar to those symptoms already alluded to when discussing the mare.

Pruritis or itching is more marked in the stallion than in the mare, causing him to violently rub and bite himself, producing large, unhealthy sores. The migratory swellings are more marked in the stallion than in the mare. The superficial inguinal lymphatic glands and its radicles on the scrotum are prone to suppuration, said tendency being well marked in the Illinois outbreak, where some of the abscesses formed discharged nearly a gallon of puss. In the same outbreak the lymphatics of the sheath are described as being still more prone to suppuration, but very indolent, and not extentive, causing indurations, which frequently pushed the testicle upwards toward the abdominal cavity, and occupyi. g its ordinary position, could easily be mistaken for that organ.

PROGRESS, DURATION AND TERMINATION.

It is always slow in its course, and is modified by intermittent symptoms, the duration being very variable.

Recovery may take place in two months, in mares especially, and animals may die within the same period, if they are of weak constitution or debilitated, and recovery is noted in the Illinois outbreak when the paralysis has been so complete that the animal could not rise without assistance.

The disease may last from three months to as many years, and recovery, either apparent or real, may take place at any intervening time.

CURATIVE MEASURES.

Dr. Williams says: "The chances of effecting a cure or exerting by any known treatment any marked influence on the course of the disease are very remote. Many different lines of treatment have been proposed, but their beneficial effects have not been well demonstrated. Castration is said to have a beneficial effect in stallions." Dr. Williams further says: "The history of the disease in foreign countries repeats the warning over and over, never under any consideration allow a mare affected with equine syphilis to be bred again." Hence, at whatever labor or cost, all affected mares should either be killed or held ridgedly in quarantine. Killing is certainly preferable whenever it can be readily done; otherwise, years of careful watching and supervision must ensue.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES.

Dr. William's principal recommendations to the Illinois Live Stock Commission were:—

1st. The wide distribution of the accompanying list of exposed stallions among stallion owners, along with such matter as said commissioners might deem best.

2nd. A brief summary of the laws regarding quarantines and their violation. (In this State we have none to violate.)

3d. A concise description of equine syphilis, and also of the benign exanthemons venereal disease of horses, equine chancroid.

4th. That no stallion be allowed to serve a mare that has any discharges from the vagina or swellings of the vulva, nor mares that show unusual, persistent oestrum (heat), nor mares that are extremely old, dibilitated or unthrifty in appearance, nor that present any discharge from the nostrils, or show unhealthy sores on any part of the body, or mares partially paralysed or unaccountably lame in the hinder parts, especially when accompanied by general bad health.

5th. That all stallion owners should take the precaution to have the penis of the stallion thoroughly washed immediately after serving each mare.

6th. That owners of mares should not permit them to be served by any stallions presenting any enlargement or swelling of testicles, scrotum, penis, sheath or prepuce, or any undue pendency of penis or testicles, or any unnatural discharge from the penis, or any abrasions, ulcers or sores of any kind on the penis, prepuce or sheath, or having any discharge from the nostrils, or any unhealthy sores on any part of the body, or any stallions showing an unaccountable lameness, stiffness, or weakness of loins, except the owner of such stallion produce a certificate from a qualified practitioner of undoubted standing certifying that said stallion is free from any contagious or infectious disease.

EQUINE CHANCROID OR BENIGN.

Exanthemons venercal disease of horses.—(By exanthemons is meant a disease accompanied with a rash or eruption.) This is a contagious disease of the genetal organs, in which the lesions are almost all exclusively localized. It is common to both male and female, affecting both solipeds and bovines, and assumes three or four distinct forms, but most frequently the pustular. (Fleming, in Sanitary Science and Police.)

The same author says regarding its nature: "It is essentially benignant; is in the majority of instances transmitted in the act of corpulation, but can also be artificially induced by inoculation. It appears to be due to a morbid change effected in the secretions of the genital mucous membrane by too frequent coition or constitutional derangement.

After due consideration and the examination of mares in the outbreak of this malady, I investigated in this State with Dr. Spencer, of San Jose. The benignity of the malady was noticed, as well as the fact that some mares were affected that were not yet bred, and as a solution of this phenomena we came to the conclusion that the unbred mares remaining with the already diseased ones obtained the virus of the malady by actual contact with the tails or hind parts of those already afflicted. Dr. Fleming says: "Infection occurs through corpulation, the stallion transmitting it to the mare, when they again transmit it to healthy males brought in contact with them.." It can also be conveyed in the act of sucking, as M. Dayot has furnished instances of transmission of genital eczeina in this way from dams to their progeny.

In enumerating the symptoms of equine chancroid we must bear in mind that this malady is described by Dr. Fleming as occuring in three distinct forms. 1. Eczematous variety. 2 Pustular variety. 3. Ecthymatous variety

Following the classification discribed by Dr. Fleming, I found the symptoms observed during the outbreak in this State to be more closely allied to the ecthymatous form of equine chancroid than any of the others, and in this outbreak Dr. Spencer and I traced the contagium in the first place to an old mare, that was suffering from chronic inflammation of the womb, and being served in that state all the mares served by the stallion; after serving her were taken sick as was also the stallion. He (the stallion got better quickly and served the same old mare mentioned in the first instance a second time, and when again bred to others after the second breeding of the old mare, affected them with the malady, and was himself again similarly affected. The following were the symptoms observed:

First mares—The disease was at first noticed on the vulva, and in most of the cases, the folds of skin which attach the labia to the thighs, (or practically speaking those parts around the anus and vulon devoid of hair) in from three to ten days after the copulation were the seat of hard lumps. These lumps are either isolated or clustered, and if the latter, the lips of vulva become tensified and swollen, the affected parts are painful, especially after repeated copulation and a seropurulent discharge appears. The discharge was not present in all cases, in fact in only a few, the general symptoms being the little hard lumps which only in one or two cases were in clusters. In a few days after the erruption appeared, the discharge from the lumps crusted over and healed up, leaving only white cicatrices due to the destruction of the pigment. About twelve days was as long as the symptoms generally lasted. In some of the cases they disappeared sooner, but leaving the characteristic white patches devoid of pigment.

Some of the worst cases were troubled with pain when voiding—urine—which passed away in a few days. In the sick mares we did not notice any constitutional symptoms, except in one case, which was affected with a slight catarrhal inflammation of the eyes. We examined all the mares internally, using a vaginal speculum, to prevent any doubt as the owner was particularly anxious to have no error in the diagnosis, and in no single instance did we find any signs of disease internally, with the exception of a slight vaginitis in one or two cases, and of such a mild nature as to scarcely require mentioning.

Second, The stallion—In thisoutbreak of equine chancroid we only had to examine one stallion as that was all that was exposed, and he was a healthy-looking animal when I saw him—good, shiny coat, fat, and ready for his work. On examination of his penis we found four or five small ulcers, situated on the sides of the penis, about the posterior third, and the remains of some ulcers in the form of a thickening about the glans The ulcers on the sides were situated just about the part of the penis that would be adjacent to the external lips of the vulva during coition. These ulcers went through the same course as in the mares, healing rapidly and leaving white cicatrices with a destruction of the pigment. The stallion exhibited no constitutional symptoms whatever.

Dr. Fleming says: "In aggravated and neglected cases the penis may swell as well as the sheath, and abscesses form, and the penis not capable of being retracted; but seeing only one stallion affected (and it in a mild form), we did not observe any of those symptoms." Again, the same author, under the heading "Immunity," says: "One attack does not confer immunity from another. It appears, and several repititions of the infection may occur in the same animal." This was found correct as the stallion above mentioned; was twice afflicted, as already mentioned.

PREVENTATIVE MEASURES.

Do not allow your stallion to be over-exerted during the covering season, nor the mare too frequently covered with different stallions within a short time. Give no food of a highly stimulating nature, nor any drugs, i. e., cantharidies, pepper, etc. Cleanliness and attention to hygienic measures should also be observed. Some of Dr. Williams' recommendations for the prevention of equine syphilis should be observed for the malidy also.

SUPPRESSIVE MEASURES.

Prevent direct contact between the diseased and healthy animals. We quaranteed the stallion in the outbreak in the State for about twenty days, and treated the mares. Dr. Fleming recommends smearing the gemtal organs of the male and female with some greasy substance; this may diminish infection and can be resorted to, provided copulation does not aggravate the symptoms, and the lesions oppose its accomplishments, contact between a diseased dam, and her progeny should be avoided.

CURATIAE MEASURES.

Cleanliness, cessations of copulation. Emollient and astringent applications in the form of a lotion or an injection generally bring every case to a favorable termination. Again nature generally restores the animal to a state of health, art only expediting recovery by perhaps a few days. This we found the case in this State as some of the mares for which nothing was done, were convalescent quicker by a few days than those that were treated when the ulcers become deep, they require dressing with caustics.

In conclusion, I may state having given an abbreviated account of the symptoms, etc., of equine syphilis and equine chancroid, as well as the principal recommendations advocated by Dr. Williams, of Illinois, for the prevention of equine syphilis, some of which apply to equine chancroid as well, although the latter leaves as already mentioned none of the fearful results that equine syphilis does. But nevertheless, breeders can do no harm by being cautious, as the initial symptoms of those above mentioned diseases bear such a resemblance that great discrimination is necessary to distinguish the one from the other. In writing the paper I have tried to avoid technical terms as much as possible, whilst endeavoring to give the readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN as concise a description as possible of both equine syphilis and equine chancroid, and I hope my attempt will meet with the approbation of every intelligent unbiased breeder and horseman in this State.

The nearest to four-minute race which was driven on Wednesday brought out ten starters. First prize was won by a chestnut horse hitched to a light express wagon entered by the Examiner, and driven by the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S representative. The ten contestants made the following times:

The Examiner's Monarch, 3:55; George Simpson's Adobe, 4:06; Fred Ohleyer's Jennie, 3:51½; Charles Silva's Yuba, 3:50; Theo. Neisen's Fredericksburg Beer, 4:43; W. P. Harkey's Bartlett, 3:23; A. C. Gray's Almond, 5:20; S. McClure's The Widow, 3:42; Geo. Van Buskirk's Excavator, 3:43; C. Sherman's Wapple, 3:35. The Examiner's Monarch received $20; Adobe $15, Jenny 10; Yuba $5. Wapple cou'd not be kept slow enough, to his driver's disgust.

THURSDAY.

A fairly representative gathering congregated on the track to witness the stock parade, and a much larger crowd in the afternoon to see the racing. The most noticeable feature was the absence of the ladies. The first race, a six-furlong and repeat, was won by Applause in slow time without turning a hair. The pacing special was won in straight heats by Snicklefritch, who could have gone six or seven seconds faster if necessary. The special three-year-old trot was left in an open state, three being left in at night, with St. Lucas two heats, Annie E. two (the last protested) and Sidney J. one.

Six Furlongs and Repeat—Running.

First Heat—Applause was considered such a moral, that pools sold with Applause barred, Hotspur bringing $8 to the field $10. Joker was very fractious at the post, delaying the start for a long while. When the flag fell Applause was a shade in front, and soon had a three lengths lead, which he kept all through, winning untouched. Johnny Gray finished second, half a length in front of Hotspur, both laying the heat up, and Joker, ridden hard, distanced. Time, 118.

Second Heat—Hotspur sold for $10 to Gray $7, very few pools being sold. Applause led from start to finish, winning easily by three lengths. Gray was two lengths in front of Hotspur all the way to the distance, seemingly going easy, while Hotspur was ridden hard from start to finish, getting the place by a neck. Time, 1:16½.

Special Pacing Race.

First Heat—After a good deal of chopping and changing, Wapple settled down favorite at $20, Snicklefritz bringing $16, and Doc $12. When they were sent off to a good start, Wapple showed in front to the turn, where Doc broke badly, and the other two left him; Fritz gradually drew out, and pacing fast, had a five lengths lead at the half in 1:11, and slowing up, won as he liked; Wapple, breaking in the straight, finished six lengths behind him, and Doc five further back. Time, 2:30.

Second Heat—Fritz now sold a red-hot favorite at $15 to the others, $5 each. While scoring up Doc broke, and ran away once round the track with Ober. When they were despatched Wapple left his feet, but catching, was only half a length behind Fritz at the turn. Fritz slowly but surely went away, having a two lengths lead all the way up the backstretch, and won as he pleased by three lengths. Doc ran most of the way, being unmanageable, and was distanced for running. Time, 2:31½.

Third Heat—Worth Ober was substituted behind Wapple, who sold for $5 against $20. The pair got away at the second attempt, Fritz, having a two lengths lead on the turn, kept it to the half, when Wapple broke, and going up again in the stretch, was beaten in a jog by ten lengths. Time, 2:34.

FRIDAY.

The unfinished race from Thursday was the first on the programme. The judges decided that there was not evidence enough to warrant them in punishing Kinney or altering their decision in the last heat. The colt was driven by his owner, Mr. Biggs, in the first three heats in the race, and though trotting fast at times could not be kept down. Every two hundred yards or so he would buck, jump for a few strides, and though he did not gain by it he never lost anything, and having been put back to third position once for running, Kinney dare not take any liberties with him, though he might possibly have made more use of him at the head of the stretch. S. Trefry drove him in the final heat, being easily beaten by Annie E, who made the best time in the race. The other two races were rather tame, Almonta having nothing to do to beat her opponents, while, although Ross S. got one heat in 2:25, the race was never in doubt, for Eva W., who, like Ross, is by Nutwood, took the fourth heat cleverly, again demonstrating her staunchness. Ross S. got a good honest record, for in the heat he never made a skip or break, and could have gone faster. In the other heats he could not be kept down. The running race was a gift for Johnny Allen. The ladies' tournament took place in the middle of the afternoon, the fair contestants being left in doubt until the evening as to which was the victress. The judges of equestrianism were Messrs. Billups, A. West and T. Sherwood.

Special Race, Trotting.

First Heat. Lucas sold a hot favorite at $30, Annie E. and the field bringing $10 each. The quartette got well away at the second attempt. Sidney broke before the turn, and Lucas cut the work, leading five lengths past the quarter, with Tart a bad last. Sidney closed gradually, and with Annie E was only two lengths behind at the head of the stretch, and all three, trotting steadily, were about level at the seven-eighths pole, when Lucas broke badly, Sidney winning by three lengths, Lucas half a length in front of Annie E., and Tart distanced. Time, 2:49.

Second Heat. Lucas was still favorite at $10 to Sidney $6 and Annie $3. When sent away Lucas broke, but getting down at once passed Sidney, who went to pieces on the turn. At the quarter the order was Lucas, Annie, Sidney three lengths between each. The favorite, despite several buck jumps, kept his lead to the three-quarters, Sidney, who broke on the turn, being last. A pretty race ensued down the straight, Lucas winning by a length from Annie E., with Sidney fifteen lengths back. Time 2:46.

Third Heat. Lucas sold for $10 to $4 for the field. Lucas broke immediately after leaving the wire, but catching well, went to the front round the turn, and with Sidney breaking had a four lengths lead up the back stretch, but slowing down round the turn all were on level terms when fairly in the straight. Lucas made several breaks in the stretch, and was ultimately beaten out a length, Sidney four further back. Lucas was placed third for running. Time 2:45.

Fourth Heat. Lucas now sold for $10 to Annie's $15 and Sidney's $4. Kinney drove Lucas, who scored up very fast, and when sent away soon had a two lengths lead, which he retained, despite two breaks on the first turn, to the head of the stretch, when he drew away from Annie, who made a bad break, finishing ten lengths behind him, Sidney last. Time 2:43¾.

Fifth Heat—It was now considered a foregone conclusion, and no pools were sold. When the trio were tapped off, Annie had a length the best of it, but Lucas went right past her, and trotting nicely, had three lengths the best of it at the half; the other two closed a little on the turn, and Sidney going to pieces in the stretch; Annie, trotting very gamely, caught Lucas at the top of the enclosure, and when half a length in front, both broke running under the wire. Time, 2:44¼.

Sixth Heat—When they came out on Friday, Trefry was behind Lucas, who had gone back in the betting, selling for $6 to Annie E. $10, and Sidney $2. Lucas went away well, having a two lengths lead on the turn, when he renewed his bucking tactics, but settling down, trotted away again, being three lengths in front of Annie at the half. Sullivan drove the mare hard, and closing the gap on the turn, and catching Lucas a furlong from home, carried him to an awkward break, and won handily by two lengths, Sidney four further in the rear. Time, 2:40.

First Heat—Almonta sold a scorching favorite at $20 to the field $5. They were soon dispatched on their way, Almonta leading all the way, won in a jog by three lengths from Blaine, who broke twice, but caught very handily, beating L. Almont five lengths for second. Time, 2:41¼.

Second Heat—Almonta was barred, and Blaine brought $10 to $6 for L. Almont. Almonta at once went to the front, and the race was nothing but a procession, the mare again jogging home two lengths in front of Blaine, who beat L. Almont six lengths. Time, 2:32¼.

Third Heat—No pools were sold. Blaine broke on the turn and dropped back, and L. Almont driven hard, was easily beaten a length and a half; Blaine two lengths behind L. Almont. Tim , 2:34.

2:27 Class—Trotting.

First Heat—Eva W. was a big favorite at $20 to $7 for the field. After scoring up three terms the bell was tapped and all three kept together to the turn when both Ross and Agnew broke, the latter badly, and Eva went on five lengths in front of Ross who settled down and trotting squarely was only two lengths behind at the head of the stretch, half way down the stretch he left his feet again and Eva won as she pleased by two lengths, Agnew just inside the flag. Time, 2:29.

Second Heat—Eva sold for $35, to the field $7. Eva went out half a length in front; Ross broke on the turn and again at the quarter but drew up to Agnew on the upper turn being level two lengths behind Eva. All three were driven hard down the straight, fifty yards home it looked any one's heat, but Ross broke and Eva responded to Chaboyes efforts beating Agnew an open length. Time, 2:28.

Third Heat—Eva W. was barred and Ross sold for $10 to Agnew $7.

The start was a poor one, Ross S. being a shade in front, while Agnew was two lengths behind, Ross trotting very fast was five lengths in front at the quarter and going right on passed the half in 1:12 with a six lengths lead, Eva second at the three-quarters. Ross was still six lengths to the good and showing up a trifle won by three open lengths from Agnew, who passed Eva in the stretch. Time, 2:25.

Fourth Heat—The box was resuscitated and Eva sold for $29 to the field $7. They were sent off the first time, all three being about level to the turn where the sulkys collided, Agnew breaking all topieces was fifty yards behind and never did fairly catch thoroughout the heat. Eva had half a length best of Ross all the way to the half, when the wheels again rattled together and both left their feet, Eva catching well was a length in front and though Ross closed the gap in the straight, he broke again about thirty yards from the wire, beaten a length and a half, Agnew sixty yards back. SATURDAY.

The last day wound up in good style, the attendance being very much better than it had been on any other day with the exception of Friday.

In the special Pasha upset a hot favorite in Don Marvin, while Creole had all his own way in the pace, although badly handled in the third heat, in which he was needlessly punished. The association had a fairly successful meeting; their liberality in returning every starter his entrance unless he obtained a portion of the purse, was well repaid, inducing, as it did, several horses to start, and making a race for second place several times where there would otherwise have only been two starters.

2:30 Class—Trotting.

First Heat—Don Marvin was at once installed favorite at $20 to $14 Pasha and $2 Dude After scoring up a few times, the trio were started. Pasha and Dude left their feet at once. The former catching readily, trotted clean away from Marvin, while Dude never did fairly catch. Pasha won as he liked by fifty yards, Dude badly distanced. Time, 2:27¾.

Second Heat—Pasha sold first choice for $20 to Marvin's $12. The pair were soon started. Both broke before the turn, and with Marvin breaking a ain before the quarter, Pasha had a good lead, and though Marvin got within three lengths of him in the stretch, a couple of breaks left him five lengths behind at the wire. Time, 2:29½.

Third Heat—Pasha was now a big favorite, six dollars being hard to find against his $20. They went off evenly for fifty yards, and then Pasha left his feet and was up, down all the way to the quarter, when he started, trotting two lengths behind Marvin, whom he collared and carried to a break before the turn was made in the stretch. Marvin, who was two lengths behind, rapidly overhauled the leader, leaving his feet again before the wire was reached, was beaten three-quarters of a length. Time, 2:28.

There was little or no betting at $20 Allen to $3 the field. They were started evenly, Moore making the run for a furlong, when Allen passed him, winning cleverly by two lengths, Dick a bad third.

Special Pacing.

First Heat. When the betting finally settled down Creole was bringing $20 to Fritz $6 and the field $5. Doc delayed the start for a long while; when the quartette eventually received the word Fritz had a little the best of it, but Creole at once went up to the head. Doc and Wapple broke, dropping out of the hunt, and Creole led Fritz a length all the way, winning easily by a length and a half, with Doc just inside the flag and Wapple outside. Time, 2:28.

Second Heat. Creole sold readily for $20 to the field $6. The beat was an exact repetition of the first, Doc broke on the turn and fell back, while Creole led Fritz a length all the way, winning hard held by two lengths, Doc fifty yards back. Time, 2:30.

Third Heat. Dennison drove Fritz. In what few pools were sold Creole brought $35 to the field $5 Creole and Fritz were a length behind, Doc to the turn, when Doc and Creole both broke, the latter making a standstill break, was a hundred and twenty yards behind when he passed the quarter, with Dennison sending Fritz on sixty yards in front of Doc, Creole closed a little, and when he got to the half was sharpened up going the next quarter in 0:36¾ seconds, and with shocking judgment Snyder drove him hard down the stretch closing the gap as though the others were standing still; he was only beaten a short length with Doc nicely inside the distance. Creole's last quarter was paced in 0.33. Time, 2:29¼.

Fourth Heat. No pools could be sold after Creole's exhibition, and Linden who got up behind him at Mr. Snyder's request made a slow race of it; when they were tapped off he was half a length behind with all three breaking on the turn. Creole was the first to catch, and going well in hand led Fritz five lengths to the six furlongs, when Fritz again broke, and Creole won as he pleased by four lengths, Fritz twenty in front of Doc. Time, 2:28.

The ladies' riding tournament took place on Friday. The first prize, presented by The Examiner, viz., a saddle bridle, whip and riding habit, was deservedly awarded to Miss Clara Richling, who was the winner at Chico in the preceding week.

The society's first prize of $30 they awarded to Miss Maud Woods of Marysville; the second, $25, to Miss Della Parks; the third, $20, to Miss Marguerita McGrath; the fourth, $15, to Mrs. Groves; the fifth, $10, to Miss Icard; the sixth, $10, to Miss Epperson; the seventh, $10, to Mrs. Paulsell; the eighth, $5, to Mrs. A. B. Hopkins. A special premium of $10 had been awarded to Mrs. R. Welch of Colusa, who resided outside the district and was not allowed to compete for the District prize.

Miss McGrath having won two first prizes in previous years, and also the first prize at the State Fair, was, in accordance with the rules, not eligible for the first premium awarded by the society.

The stock exhibits were not as numerous or as good as they should have been, but the Pavilion, which was packed every night with visitors, was one of the best displays of the natural products of a district that has been witnessed for some time.

The premiums in the live stock were awarded on Saturday evening.

The Property of Frederic Gebhard, Esq., Guenoc Stock Farm, Lake County, Cal.

It is with a great deal of pleasure that we call the attention of our readers to the outside cover of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week, as we present them the fac similes of two of the best thoroughbred horses in the country to-day. As will be seen, the artist, Mr. E. Wyttenbach, has produced the very best work ever seen in California, and those who have a chance to compare the pictures with this originals (they will be exhibited at the State fair) will at once pronounce the work superior to any heretofore attempted in the United States in the line of horse portraiture. We tender our congratulations to the artist and trust he may in the future present many more of the same kind to our patrons. A note from Mr. Gebhard, expresses extreme regret that he could not visit California during the holding of the annual fair, but there is an assurance that it will not be long ere he arrives, and there is a strong probability that the number of brood mares, at present on the ranch will be largely added to.

Jimmy Snowden once told the writer that the only thing trotters were good for, was to take gentlemen out to the course on a race day, and that the heighth of any wealthy man's ambition should be breed stake winners. While not agreeing with the world renowned jockey about the trotting proposition, still there is a great deal of self satisfaction in breeding a stake winner, and doubly so when you own both sire and dam. Mr. Gebhard when he determined to start the magnificent breeding establishment, which is now one of the sights of Lake County, began in the right way, by resolving to have the best bred stallions in the country, no matter at what cost.

As is well known he had already Eole and St. Savior, the former of which was killed in the Shoholo Glen disaster, the latter being saved by nothing short of a miracle, and as it was deemed necessary to have another, every farm was searched to get just what was wanted. The result of the inquiries, revealed the fact that imp. Greenback, was by far and away better than any thing else that money could purchase, so he was at once secured for the Guenoc farm. As will be seen by a glance at the picture he is as near perfection as it is possible for a horse to be. When the horse was originally consigned to Mr. Easton, of New York, for sale, judges pronounced him one of the best ever brought to America, for there is not a flaw to be picked with him anywhere. A rich brown in color, the artist has caught him while the sun's golden rays were shining on his sleek glossy coat which adds a peculiar color to any horse seen out of the stable. In going over the ground he has a sort of easy going action, which might be called "serpentine" as it seems to glide over the ground. In looks he much resembles the old pictures of the mighty "Beeswing," than whom there was no better mare ever produced in England. He has no bad traits and is a very gentle stallion. Of his breeding, the following tabulation will give a better idea than if expressed in any other way.

A short time ago an account of the Guenoc Stock Farm appeared in these columns and from that we take the following: Greenback is the son of the French Dollar, who was by flying Dutchman, dam Payment by Slave. Dollar's dam was the dam of Florin, the sire of Florentin, winner of the French Derby in 1866, and of Mantilla, the champion Frenchtwo-year-old of 1878. Dollar's merit as a sire is famous, as he got Salvator, St. Cyr, Peria, Almanza, Nethan, Fontainebleu, Salvanos, Torrent and Androcles. One of his daughters, Nellie James, produced Jack of Hearts, Jacobus, etc., in Mr. Belmont's stud. Salvator won the Grand Prix de Paris and French Derby in 1875, and Salvanos won the Cesarewitch in 1872. On the side of his dam Greenback is glorious. His dam was the Duke of Hamilton's great mare Music, the best brood mare in Europe. She has foaled Ossian, Fiddler, Song, Songstress, Nina, Poetry, etc., Nina being one of the best two-year-olds of 1885, winning the Clearwell, Bretby, and Homebred. As for Ossian, she won the St. Leger while Fiddler beat Foxball for the Alexandria Plate. Music is a daughter of Stockwell, from the invincible One Act by Annandale; 3rd dam Extravaganza by Voltaire, etc., gives Greenback an infusion of Blacklock blood. Greenback was a really good race horse, winning the Sketchworth Stakes, at Newmarket, as a two-year-old and the Earl Spencer Plate, at Northampton, as a three-year-old. The Peel Handicap, the Queen's Plate at Ayr, and the Caledonian Cup at the same place, also fell to his share. He has got several winners, having sired Greenlight, Greenjacket, Greenshank, Greenwave, Greenhorn, etc. He is the only direct representative of Bay Middleton's male line in America, and will be a grand outcross for our native mares.

St. Savior is a different type of the thoroughbred, being a light golden bay, with black legs and three white feet. He is almost, if not quite, 17 hands high, of great muscular power and immense proportions. His weight is nearly 1300 pounds, yet still he does not impress the beholder as being anything near it, as there is such a finish to him, that one only notices the handsome contour and the perfect conformation, and can hardly imagine when told that he is so heavy. He is so grandly proportioned that he immediately becomes a favorite wherever shown, and was the same during his racing career. And well he repaid his supporters, for he was never defeated but once, and that in the last race he ever ran, when he was cut down by Rataplan, and even then he came in second, on three legs. He was one of the gamest horses that ever faced a starter, and many a time has he carried the colors of his owner under the wire first. The mark of the blow struck by "Rat" is still to be seen on his leg and he will carry it until his death. Mr. Gebhard has been asked a great many times to put a price on him, but always refused as he wanted to save him for stallion service. His breeding is considered the choicest of all American strains, co-mingled as it is, with that of the great Leamington. St. Savior, by Eolus, he by imp. Leamington; 1st dam War Song, by War Dance; 2nd dam Eliza Davis, by imp. Knight of St. George; 3rd dam, imp. Melrose, by Melbourne; 4th dam, Clarkie, by Muley Moloch; 5th dam, Sister to Righton, by Palmerin (son of Amadis, out of our own sister to Orville); 6th dam Oceana, by Cerberus.

Since the advent of the two stallions into California, they have had liberal patronage, and already many mares are booked to them for next season; the terms will be the same as last year, $100, with the privilege of return, if the mare proves without foal. Every precaution will be taken to prevent accident or escape, but no responsibility will be assumed, should such occur.

Mares consigned to the Guenoc Stock Farm, St. Helena, care of St. Helena stables, will receive the best of attention. Pasturage at $5 per month; stabled and grain feed, (oats and hay) $10 per month. Mares from a distance can be sent to the farm to foal and every attention will be given them.

The Guenoc Stock Farm, is beautifully situated in one of the most lovely valleys imaginable, in which the "mantle of green" can be seen almost the whole year. Living springs of water are numerous, and there is plenty of side hill land, well timbered, which, during the heat of the day is used by the stock for shelter. Mammoth barns and stables have been erected by the management, and no expense has been spared to make it the thoroughbred farm of California, in fact it will occupy the same position here, that Nantura or Woodburn does to Kentucky. The stallions will be shown at the Sacramento Fair where our readers will be able to judge for themselves, whether we have exaggerated in our statement of these noble horses.

C. H. Nelson, owner of Nelson, had an offer of $50,000 for his horse before the Charter Oak Stake, the bidder stipulating that $10,000 was to be cut from that figure if the horse failed to win the event. When Alcryon won the race the owner of Nelson retired to the stable with tears of mortification and regret streaming from his eyes. His loss in money was not less than $30,000, and double that sum would not have compensated him for the chagrin and disappointment.

Guy Wilkes has now two three-year-olds with records of 2:18, which are faster than all other three year-old records, with the single exception of Axtell's 2:14, which latter horse was got by William L., a full brother to Guy Wilkes. We will find anon, remarks Hark Comstock, that the great Wilkes family are not equal, any more than the Hambletonian family before them were equal. This pronounced lead which the full brothers, Guy Wilkes and William L., have secured in the three-year-old records is a subject worth reflecting upon.

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although perfo med by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a 'Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

Owner of Eole, St Saviour, Eolist, etc, says; I have long used it in my stables, and find it to be all that is claimed for it in removing callous and unnatural bony growths, without leaving the slightest blemish. From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,

Never before were 100 live pigeons killed straightly in a similar match, under same conditions, until the L. C. SMITH GUN was made and did it. In the hands of Mr. Al Bandle, of the firm of Bandle Arms Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, this wonderful score was made. Capt. A. H. Bogardus scoring with a 12-gauge L. C. Smith in the match against Bandle, the very high score of 95. A remarkable score with a 12-guage.

HORSE DENTISTRY

Is growing in favor among breeders of fine horses, who are learning the close relation between the tooth of the horse and good health and digestion; closely allied as the latter is to the proper mastication of food.

In all hay great care should be taken to cut it at the right stage, cure it in a manner to retain the greatest possible amount of nutriment and sweetness, and protect it from all dust, sand, grit, clods and other impure substances, which generate disease and produce various injuries to horses, particularly the young.

ALL THIS CAN BE AVOIDED

BY THE USE OF THE

for cutting and binding hay. Any height of stubble desired can be cut.

No raking done or needed, hence no dirt is gathered with the hay. It cures sweetly in the bundle, and does not bleach nor mould.

The cost is no greater for the twine used in binding than for raking in the old way, while the hay is gathered and stored more readily, is far handier to feed in bundles, is less wasteful, and wholly dispenses with baling, while it packs as closely.

This system is no experiment, but has been followed for several years by some of the Most Notable Horsemen in California, and is continually growing in favor.

We will cheerfully furnish copies of letters written us, endorsing and recommending this process of cutting hay.

REMEMBER THE

is the only machine having sufficient motion, power and capacity to handle green hay.

Cut this out for future reference, and write us for full particulars, catalogue, prices, etc.

Address,

D. M. OSBORNE & CO.,

116 Bluxome St., San Francisco.

SELBY SMELTING & LEAD CO., S. F.

Gentlemen.—I have been shooting some of the twelve-gauge cartridges you loaded to my order, those sent to Tacoma, and I must say I never have used a load that so completely fills the bill. Shooting at chickens the other day, I killed bird after bird stone dead, all the way from 40 to 60 yards. They crack like a pistol in my old Parker, and smash a bird down in such shape, that every one who has seen the combination is simply amazed. I shot the other day with Mr. Macomber, inventor of the tin targets, and he simply threw up his hands when he saw bird after bird tumble at all sorts of distances.

If all who use Standard Cartridges have had the same experience as mine, it must be a source of great pleasure to you to hear your shells so highly spoken of. Of course, much depends on the gun, but no gun can do good work with improperly loaded shells, while an indifferent one will do tolerably good work if loaded just right.

Sincerely yours,

ARTHUR W. DU BRAY,

"Gaucho."

STAMBOUL

2:14¼, BY SULTAN, DAM FLEETWING BY RYSDYK'S HAMBLETONIAN. PROPERTY OF W. S. HOBART, SAN FRANCISCO.

STAMBOUL, 2:14 3-4.

The King of the Moor Family. Owned by W. S. Hobart San Francisco.

Some weeks ago we sent word to Hon. L. J. Rose asking if he would write up a history of Stamboul, feeling confident that there was no one better qualified to do the subject justice. The gentleman willingly consented, but, owing to a press of business, has been compelled to write us at the last moment the following letter:—

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.—After considering your request to write about Stamboul for your State Fair number, I find that I am pretty well written out. It is like writing about an actor without there having been any performance to eulogize or criticise. But I can refer you to my catalogue, which gives as good a history and description as I am able to give now. There will again appear in the near future some new facts, for Stamboul is now in training to start against his own record, and judging by his work, he will certainly beat it. There are very pleasant anticipations that he will win my wager and trot in 2:12. His first start will be at Stockton Fair, where, after that performance, a truer line can be formed of what his possibilities may be.

As a breeder he is a great success, for every colt is after his own perfect form, nor is there any deviation in color or gait. He again, too, follows himself in the gait he imparts to his colts, and although again like himself, none are phenomenally fast, but their frictionless gaits promise future development, and I believe he will sire some who will even excell himself.

This is shooting at a shining mark, but progress with each generation has been the history of trotting breeding, and I can't see why it should not be the rule in his case.

Respectfully, L. J. ROSE.

Acting on his suggestion, we have incorporated herewith the history of the Moor blood as detailed in his catalogue, and which takes the subject of our sketch up to the spring of 1888

Stamboul trotted as a 2-year-old in 2:37; as a 3-year-old in 2:26½; as a 4-year-old in 2:23; as a 5-year-old in 2:17½.

Alcazar trotted as a 2-year-old in 2:29½; as a 3-year-old in 2:23; and all this trotting was in hot contests, and at times against unfair competition by horses in the race helping some other horse.

I have often asked myself the cause of this phenomenal success, the reason why all the get of The Moor and his off spring in the third generation uniformly show good speed even before training, that this uniformity seems to gather momentum with each generation, and the great factor in this problem seems to be the CLAY CROSS IN THE MOOR. This fixes itself in my mind more firmly with each succeeding year. In subsequent years I bought other stock in Kentucky, and nearly all I bought were yearlings, and all were trained up to 3 years old and older. First I trained three by Bald Chief; two by Mambrino Pilot; two by Woodford Mambrino; two by Peck's Idol; two by Clark Chief; one by Mambrino Patchen; besides California bred colts by Guy Wilkes, Whipple's Hambletonian. Speculation, Patchen and others. Yet out of all these I never found one that had as much natural speed and improved so easily and quickly as the average produce of The Moor, Sultan or Stamboul, for Stamboul's success is no longer a belief but a reality, as can be seen by his oldest colts. Nor am I singular in such experience, as can be easily seen by looking at the phenomenal success of George Wilkes out of a Clay mare. Electioneer, again out of a Clay dam. That these should be by the records by far the best sons of Hambletonian cannot be a mere accident.

It may be claimed that the majority of record-breaking youngsters have Clay crosses. The produce of Beautiful Bells by Electioneer have three crosses; by Guy Wilkes and Sable, two crosses; and even the second yearling record, Sadie D., has a Clay dam. Then, again, look at the great brood mares, Green Mountain Maid, Minnehaha and Beautiful Bells.

Then, again, the greatest success of The Moor was Minnehaha, whose dam was by Cassius M. Clay, Jr., and Fleetwing, whose dam was by George M. Patchen.

Does not this tell a tale that cannot be controverted? It is not my desire to claim that all good grows from a Clay cross in a pedigree, but must confess I value it more than any other cross, and believe that the produce of Sultan, or Stamboul, or Alcazar, and of all their progeny, will become a very great factor in the future breeding of the trotter. And as far as the future can be predicted by the very short past, this is as sure as night follows day.

The breeding of The Moor becomes a matter of some moment to all breeders of the trotter, and it is with much regret that there is a doubt in my mind about the breeding of The Moor's dam. When I bought him his breeding was given as by Clay Pilot, dam Belle of Wabash, by Bassinger—Bassinger being quite or nearly thoroughbred. That the breeding of the Belle of Wabash (as given by Mr. Geo. C. Stephens, her owner) by Bassinger was her true pedigree, left no doubt on my mind for several reasons: First—there being no object, no sufficient motive, to give anything else except her true breeding, especially when it is remembered that the new version of the breeding of the Belle of Wabash, by Mr. Wallace, in his Trotting Register (Copperbottom and Morgan), is a much better trotting pedigree for a brood mare than the running-bred horse Bassinger. Second, Mr. Williams, yet residing in Stockton, California, but formerly from Indiana, where Belle of Wabash was raised, and was trained by him for some length of time, for he drove her in all or most of her races, besides worked for the man who owned, claimed and bred her (a Mr. Wissiger, who also owned Bassinger, her claimed sire) also claims that she was by Bassinger. Unfortunately, Mr. Wissiger is dead, but that such a man as Mr. Williams, who has been a trainer and horseman all his life—and it is yet his occupation—should claim this as by his own personal knowledge to be true, and having no direct or indirect interest whatever either for or against this matter, being a man free from theories or hobbies, and believing that trotting breeding is the best for trotting race horses, and accounting for the flightiness and hot-headedness of the Belle of Wabash in races on account of her running breeding—should say that she is by Bassinger, when the facts are otherwise, is hard to believe. And third, the greatest stumbling block to me is the form of the mare.

She was a black mare, about 16 hands high, a long, and might be termed a leggy mare. Her coat of hair was very short and fine, no hair about her fetlocks, her feet rather small for her size, and legs clean and rather deer-like, that is small and fine; her neck long and slim, and her head of peculiar fullness and roundness about the forehead and not very broad, tapering in from sides and back, almost making a dish profile; and a fineness of muzzle, lips and nostrils that I can't imagine as ever belonging to a Morgan or Copperbottom horse—at least I never saw such a type belonging to either family, or any trotting family, pure and simple; but have ever seen such forms in thoroughbreds or their immediate part-bred descendants, and have never seen it in any other breed of horses. For myself, I would prefer the pedigree as given by Mr. Wallace, and I know that the pedigree, as given by him, is not without careful inquiry, and his honest conviction. But to "err is human," and his informant may have mixed up this mare with some other. At any rate, either Mr. Williams or Mr. Wallace's informant is mistaken, and although I have seen Mr. Williams repeatedly and talked the matter over with him, also telling him about the new version of the Belle of Wabash's pedigree, yet he has never been shaken or varied his story. Then, too, the form of the mare I have critically examined, and I may claim much experience in thoroughbred types of horses, for I have owned them and raced them. All this makes it almost impossible to consent to accept, without doubt, the better pedigree, if you please, and go against all evidence as known and seen by myself. There is, however, one important agreement, that is: that Belle was a mare of more than ordinary capacity as a trotter, and no doubt the most important factor in this transmitting power of breeding on with increased momentum is contained in the pedigree of Clay Pilot, or the Clay and Pilot cross, both remarkable in their prepotency. Yet there is another quality which, experience teaches me, is not so uniform as the disposition to trot in the Clays, and that the dam has a marked influence on that quality, that is, endurance, game, staying qualities. I may claim that Beautiful Belle, Alcazar and others of the get of Sultan had that quality to a very marked degree; in fact, I never saw the gameness possessed by Alcazar equalled, for he can trot a sixth heat faster than a first In all his races, and some very trying and severe ones, I never saw him scarcely open his nostrils. For this reason it becomes an interesting inquiry where his gameness comes from. That it comes from the Belle of Wabash, is a reasonable certainty; for Clay Pilot was noted for his speed, but not for his gameness, whereas Belle of Wabash had the reputation of no road being too long for her. She started in a 10-mile race with Gipsy Queen and Capt. McGowan, but was withdrawn at the end of the seventh mile, not by reason of being tired, but for the reason that it was dangerous to win the race, on account of a rough element present that had betheavily on the race.

I am a believer in trotting pedigrees, and have had no success with high-bred or thoroughbred crosses; but I know, too, that such is not the universal experience; for instance, Echo, a son of Hambletonian, never had any marked success, except on running-bred dams, Bell Echo's dam was by Belmont, (California); Echo's dam was by Jack Hawkins; Annie Laurie was by Ten Broeck, a thoroughbred; Joe Hamilton and his brother's dam were by Belmont, (California); Gibraltar's dam was by Owen Dale.

While I am a believer in trotting pedigrees, on the other hand I remember, too, that the fastest mare, gelding and stallion, are close to the thoroughbred. When the comparison is made between the crossing of the greyhound and the pointer, or the hound and the pointer, the comparison is not a fair one; for it is a fact that the thoroughbred has two valuable qualities to a greater degree than any other bred horse in the world, which qualities are desired and very much desired in the trotters, namely: the power of enduring longer at high rate of speed and the power of speed, although at a different gait; whereas the greyhound or the foxhound has no quality whatever desired by the pointer.

As parties buying colts are ever desiring further information, it may not be out of place here to give the method of working my colts. Thus each one for himself can see what amount and kind of work such colts as they buy from me have had. The first handling a colt receives is at weaning time, and they are weaned when about six or seven months old. We then teach them to lead, to be curried and brushed, to have their feet picked up and rasped to an even bearing; also to be bridled, to have harness on, and work double by the side of a gentle horse, say five or six times. During this time they are fed grain (cracked barley) and alfalfa hay. This takes about two months, when they are turned out on green alfalfa and left to run for one year, or to the first of January, and when two years old. While they run out on pasture neither the colts nor dams are fed any grain, both remaining sleek and fat on green pasture, generally alfalfa.

When taken up in January, in their two-year-old form, they are broken to single harness, and given short but lively work, and we get as much trot into them as possible. This takes about four months, when they are ready for sale, and if not sold, again turned out to pasture. I do not, however, intend to keep over any colts, except for racing purposes, after they are two years old, and expect to have yearly auction sales, probably in New York City, and sell all the two-year-olds on hand, and will begin by having my first sale in the spring of 1889.

This formula of raising and training I do not give as perhaps the best way, although it has my approval, and gives the best results with the minimum of expense and work.

If this is done with judgment, not working the colts too long at a time, always stopping before they feel tired or dull, then it is a benefit to them, and gets them gentle and an amount of desire to trot into them, which is never forgotten, and will be found in each succeeding year with intensified desire and speed.

This also fits in with the work of a breeding and training farm in California, such as mine, and makes continual employment for the men.

Gentling the weanlings takes from October to the first of January; training two-year-olds until the first of May, and training the older horses and attending the fairs and race meetings until October.

This is my first catalogue, and even now and for a year yet I would not require any; but as there is much inquiry I indulge myself in the luxury in order to meet the wishes of the public. The reason, though none is required by me, is that I am making a new beginning with two new stallions, and I have nothing yet to show of their get, except their own records, and although records are a very large factor in gaining the favor of the public, yet to have the greatest benefit the performance of their offspring must be shown. I have some small prospects of doing this the coming year, for I have one three-year-old and two two-year-olds by Stamboul, and all are trotters, but this is a small number to rely on in this colt record breaking country. I have fourteen weanling Stambouls and nine weanling Alcazars, and, as I wish to be prepared in the future, will not, therefore, offer any of these for sale until a year hence. There are some half a dozen Sultans, and these are what I reserved as the best for race horses that I would sell; but I am so far from the market that there are but few horsemen who ever see them, which makes it difficult to sell, for description and writing are very unsatisfactory. For this reason I will have to rely on annual auction sales, and although I may not get the highest possible price, will not have so ready a market as breeders in Kentucky, yet will rely on the fact that I can raise them cheaper, and, by trying for the best, will hope to both make reputation and profit.

Formerly I was much engaged in fruit-growing and wine-making. This I have sold, and now I can give more time to the horse, which has never been a task, but a labor of love. I now have added largely to my brood mares, and sold some that were not fashionably bred, and a look through this catalogue will convince one of what I may claim—that I am keeping fully abreast in the most fashionable blood for my mares. For my two stallions, Alcazar (with three-year-old record of 2:23), out of that remarkable mare Minnehaha, with four in the 2:30 class and more coming, and with her daughter, Beautiful Bells, the most remarkable brood mare for her years, makes Alcazar without a better.

Then Stamboul with his royal breeding and his five-year-old record of 2:17½ under adverse conditions, this being the second best record for a five-year-old stallion ever made, and both of these stallions are sound, kind, stylish, and both will better their records this year.

Then, too, both of these stallions are from producing lines, with each generation being an improvement on the former. Who can say that he has two better or even their equal?

In order to show their true form and looks, and to make this a certainty, I have taken their photographs, and these cuts, or rather artotypes, are printed from photographs, and are fac-similes of the horses as the sun reflected them on the camera. This gives no opportunity of toning down defects or emphasizing fine points, but gives the "naked truth," and not perhaps in such harmonious proportion as an expert artist would do, for it is a fact that a camera enlarges the nearest part at the expense of that farthest away.

Both stallions are dark bays. 15 3 hands high; Alcazar weighs 1030 pounds (weighed February 1, 1888), Stamboul 1120 pounds.

In looking over what has been said, it sounds like boasting, as if I were tooting my own horn rather loudly, and yet something in that way may be overlooked by the reader when it is remembered that I bred and made these two stallions under my own supervision, and that both of them rank with the best, and I can't see how I could say less and tell it as I believe it. My success as a breeder does not indicate that I have cheated myself by any unwarrantably high opinion of my stock. L. J. ROSE.

Los Angeles, Cal.

As a six-year-old he started eight times, and fully verified Mr. Rose's predictions. On August 8th he made his first appearance for the year at Los Angeles, when he defeated Arab in three straight heats in 2:15, 2:17½ and 2:16¼. We next hear of him at Oakland on the 27th of the same month, where he received second money, winning the second and third heats against Guy Wilkes and Woodnut, the former winning the race. He next appeared at the state fair, but could get no better than third place to Guy Wilkes and Woodnut, the latter winning. At Stockton September 21st he met Arab and Lot Slocum, but only won the second heat in 2:15¾, the honors going to Arab. At San Jose he again proved too much for Stamboul, four heats being trotted in 2:15, 2:16, 2:16 and 2:16¾, the son of Sultan winning the third heat. The National Stallion Stake which came off October 20th had only three starters, Stamboul, Woodnut and Antevolo. Woodnut won the first heat in 2:17, but the next three fell to Stamboul in 2:17, 2:17¾, 2:17. On October 24th he was started to beat his record of 2:15 and accomplished the trick making his present record of 2:14¾, he was again started on October 27th to beat that time, but the scythe bearer was victor, 2:15¼ being his best effort. From this succession of races it will be seen that he is a dead game horse and possessed of extraordinary speed, and those who know him best claim that he will surely trot in 2:12 before the end of this season. In the spring of this year Mr. W. S. Hobart of San Francisco, purchased the stallion from Mr. Rose, there being at the time two offers for him from Eastern gentleman, but Hobart with a feeling of State of pride, bought him so that Californians might still be able to say that "we own the best stallion in the country."

ELECTIONEER.

The Noble Animal that Stands at the Head of the Great Living Sires of To-day.

Senator Leland Stanford has had horses for many years, and has always had a great love for the equine race. There are many who buy and keep horses because it is fashionable, or because they become rich and follow in the footsteps of other wealthy men and take to horses the same as they would to any other fad. Prior to 1876, when the first of the Palo Alto possessions were obtained, the nucleus of what is now the greatest breeding farm in the world, was kept on a ranch on the Sacramento River, while the Governor (as he was then called) was preparing the home for them, which has since become celebrated from the Atlantic to the Pacific; in fact, one might say from one end of the world to the other. Immediately on the completion of the original Palo Alto, for much has been added to it since, the proprietor began looking for a stallion to mate with a large number of mares which he had already accumulated. A trip was taken East and a visit paid to the breeding establishment of Mr. Backman at Stonyford, New York State. Accompanied by friends, the would-be purchaser looked over all the desirable stallions for sale at the farm, and much against the advice of those present he selected Electioneer and paid for him the good round figure of $12,500, which in 1877 was considered a fabulous sum. There was already quartered at the Sacramento ranch the well-known entire, Munroe Chief and also Gen. Benton, both of whom for some time after the arrival of Electioneer were considered to outrank him for pride of place. But it was not long that he occupied a secondary position for Fred Crocker, 2:25¼, as a two-year-old, burst forth on the trotting horizon and electrified the country with his great performance. Then it was that the eye of every breeder in the United States was turned toward Palo Alto. Electioneer had been offered to a great many gentlemen who desired first-class stallions, but each and all refused him, until the California millionaire saw and knew at once what a gem had gone begging for want of proper appreciation on the part of those who had in the past examined him.

There is an idea prevalent among those who do not know the gentleman personally that Mr. Stanford is no judge of horse flesh, and that he is simply a wonderfully lucky man in being able to produce so many trotting marvels from Palo Alto. And yet that is the height of ignorance, for it is doubtful if there be a better judge of a horse in the State than the owner of Electioneer. He seems to take in at a glance all the good points, and has an equally keen eye for the slightest blemish or imperfection. Can it be wondered at that when his would be advisers wished him to purchase Messenger Duroc, that he saw at once where the blood lines of the half brother were far preferable to those of the son of Hambletonian 10 and old Satinet? And as he rarely errs in passing judgment on a trotter, his opinion in the present case was far superior to those who thought they knew more than he did. It is true that the great roll of honor shows a long list to the credit of Messenger Duroc, but almost nothing when compared with that of the premier of Palo Alto. There are many who speak his name almost every day, yet little know what he is like. On the circuit the name of Electioneer is heard continuously, yet still there are comparatively few who have seen the noble animal that stands as the head of the great living sires of to-day.

Electioneer, at the good ripe age of twenty-one, still retains those qualities which compose the model American trotter.

The grand and immense development of his hind quarters is balanced by a large, clearly cut, and thoroughly refined head, borne on a strong and well formed neck. His full brown color and the great breadth between his eyes speak volumes for his disposition. His magnificently rounded body shows that lungs and digestive organs have reached that high standard which is so valuable in an animal whose greatest qualification is the transmission of speed and endurance, for the constitution of the colt does not depend upon that of the mother alone.

Sunol, whose two-year-old record in 2:18 has hind quarters fully 2½ inches higher than the fore; this gives her a greyhound like form, and a most beautiful and perfect one she has. Her mother Waxana is the daughter of Gen. Benton, many of whose produce reached the "thirty's," notably Sallie Benton 2:17¾, scored as a four-year-old.

Electioneer's neck and shoulders are very good, bearing well his fine, spirited head, and massive body respectively. Many of his progeny have this head, neck and shoulders, their quarters are not so highly developed. There is a younger brother of Sunol's, which will come very near it, however. The following list of those which have reached the 2:30 class, will give our readers an idea of their number and speed. There are a number of others on trial this year. 37 trotters—1 pacer

Commotion....2:30
Emaline....2:27½
Del Mar, two-year-old....2:30
Pedlar, two-year-old....2:27½
Hattie D., three-year-old....2:26¾
Campbell's Electioneer, three-year-old....2:22½
Norval....2:17½

Electioneer came to California in 1877. The yearly record of mares served and colts dropped will make an excellent supplement to the above:

In 1878 from ten mares bred....7 foals
In 1879 from 30 mares bred....21 foals
In 1880 from 19 mares bred....16 foals
In 1881 from 43 mares bred....23 foals
In 1882 from 69 mares bred....40 foals
In 1883 from 67 mares bred....32 foals
In 1884 from 50 mares bred....37 foals
In 1885 from 50 mares bred....35 foals
In 1886 from 52 mares bred....38 foals
In 1887 from 58 mares bred....33 foals
In 1888 from 71 mares bred....37 foals

As speed producers there is but little doubt but that most of the colt and aged trotters which have found, and will find, their way to other stables will never disappoint their owners. Electioneer's own blood lines are as follows: By Rysdyk's Hambletonian, out of Green Mountain Maid. One of his youngsters brought last year $12,000, and another son, Electric Bell, brought $12,500 at nine months old. These two cases are sufficient of themselves to show the esteem in which the public holds the blood of Green Mountain Maid.

No year has passed in which Electioneer has failed to add fresh laurels to his owner, to Mr. Charles Marvin and to his own record. In 1888 the grand performance of Sunol followed Norlain's (1887) yearling record of 2:31, the best so far recorded. In the preceeding year Manzanita placed the record for four-year-olds at 2:16. Bonita was the first to trot 2:18¾ as a four-year-old some years previously. The three-year-old championship was held by Hinda Rose for a length of time—2:19½. Wildflower's record as a two-year-old, 2:21, remained the best in the world until reduced by her half sister, Sunol, last year.

There is no telling where the great speed producing lines of the Electioneer family will stop. It is not only that his own progeny are fleet of foot, but the examples shown by the sons of Anteeo at Napa and Santa Rosa stamp the great sire as a perpetuator of speed for generations to come.

When Redwood made his winning mark, 2:24, at Napa, Orrin A. Hickok, the celebrated driver, made the remark that he had never sat behind a gamier horse. The writer saw still another son of Anteeo, Alfred G., make a record for himself of 2:23½ at Santa Rosa, and after that race, Mr. Dustin, who drove him, said that 2:20 would be no mark for him with a little more work. The same afternoon, Wanda, a daughter of Eros, 2:27, placed a credit to her name of 2:24, and it was clearly discernable to the veriest novice that she was in no condition for fast work. Elector, owned by Mr. Richards of Grayson, Stanislaus County, has also a lot of grandsons and grandaughters which only require handling to place them in the list. Writing of this horse brings to mind a remark made by a well known horseman who lately paid a visit to the farm of Mr. Richards, and on his return he ventured the assertion that there were twenty colts at that breeding establishment fit to go into the record book. These are only isolated cases, for it can truthfully be said that every son of Electioneer produces speed.

Some years ago Norval, the sire of Norlaine, was thrown out of work at Palo Alto, and relegated to the stud, as it was considered that his racing days were over. This spring he was sold to Col. Pepper of Lexington, Ky., who it seems put him in training, and less than thirty days ago he won a race in straight heats, making a record for himself in 2:21. Is it to be wondered at that the blood of Electioneer is eagerly sought for, not only by the breeders of California, but of the whole United States? The fact is at last recognized that the Electioneers "breed on," and whenever one of his get is offered for sale they are bid for with avidity. Palo Alto has done more to draw the attention of Eastern breeders to California than any other institution of its kind, but it could hardly have been the great success attained without the services of the son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and Green Mountain Maid. As a fitting conclusion to this article the following taken from the Breeders Gazette shows what is thought of Electioneer blood, away from California.

Whether or not Sunol, 2:18, as a two-year-old, is in shape this season for a race against the three-year-old mark of 2:14 set by Axtell is as yet uncertain. It will be remembered that several weeks ago there was a rumor to the effect that the great young daughter of Electioneer had gone wrong in her work and would not be trained further this season, but this was at once contradicted by Marvin, who said that up to that time he had given her no fast miles nor even quarters. About two weeks ago it was given out from Palo Alto that Sunol had been driven a mile in 2:21 and some enthusiastic individual added to this that the last quarter was done in 31 seconds, which was very good, if true. But since then there has been a chance for Sunol to trot in her class at the Napa, (Cal.) meeting which she did not improve. In the stake for three-year-olds at that meeting she would have had as an opponent Lillian Wilkes, a daughter of Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Flora Langford. It was pretty well estabiished that this filly could beat 2:20, but as Sunol had gone in 2:18 as a two-year-old it was not thought she would decline the contest. This was exactly what was done on her behalf, however, Marvin stating that the Palo Alto filly was not in shape. Lillian Wilkes, therefore, had a walk-over for the stakes, but in order that she might have a good mark as a brood mare in case anything happened, and also to boom her sire, Lillian was driven the mile in 2:18 flat by John Goldsmith, thus equaling the best previous three-year-old record, except that of Axtell, and giving her sire two in the 2:20 list at that age. It was thought a wonderful thing a few years ago when Hinda Rose beat 2:20 at three years, and when Patron joined her in the honor those two were a class by themselves, only to be succeeded by Sable Wilkes with his mark of 2:18. This season three colts have at three years beaten 2:20, they being Axtell, 2:14, Lillian Wilkes 2:18, and Allerton 2:18¼ in the third heat of a race. It may be within the possibilities for Sunol to equal the 2:14 of Axtell, but it should not be forgotten that the Iowa wonder is very liable to do it himself, much more so in fact, than is Sunol.

The other fast record obtained by a stallion last week was the 2:17½ of Norval, and it was even more sensational than that of Bonnie McGregor, since the previous mark of 2:16 obtained by the last-named horse was proof of his extreme speed, while in the case of Norval there was not until recently any knowledge of such capacity. Norval will be remembered as the son of Electioneer that sired Norlaine the yearling filly whose record of 2:31½ at the age named is the best. This record by Norlaine was obtained in 1887, and it at once drew attention to her sire as the first son of Electioneer to become conspicuous in the breeding ranks. At the time Norval was bred to Elaine, a daughter of Messenger Duroc with a 2:20 record, he was but three years old having been foaled in 1882, and while the dam of Norlain was a remarkably well-bred mare on her dam's side, as well as a fast trotter herself, it was considered a great thing that a three year old stallion should sire the fastest yearling trotter in the world. Norlaine's destruction by fire before she was trained as a two-year-old prevented her sire's name from being kept before the public by further performance on her part, but his blood lines were of the right kind, his dam being Norma by Alexander's Norman, and as the Electioneer boom was "on" Senator Stanford found no difficulty in selling him last winter for $15,000 to a Kentucky breeder with enterprise and judgment. After Norval had made his season in the stud he was taken in hand by the trainer of the establishment, George Hayes, and very soon showed such speed that it was evident he would enter the 2:30 list at the first time of asking. But 2:30 was no clip for the son of Electioneer, once he was straightened away, and then 2:20 was the mark. At the Maysville meeting week before last he beat 2:20 in his first start, trotting one of his heats in 2:19¼, and then came the performance at Lexington last week, where in the third heat of the 2:40 he distanced all but one of his competitors in 2:17½, the previous heat having been done in 2:29½, 2:26¼. Norval is now seven years old, and as the sire of the fastest yearling added to a record better than 2:20 for himself, his prospect are indeed bright.

The following is his pedigree:

The Frazier Patent Axle.

The crowning excellence of the Frazier Sulky is in its stiffened axle. It has the most rigid and unbending axle yet put into a sulky, and on the quality of the axle the success of any modern shaped sulky must largely depend. It has also another great advantage in that it has wheels interchangeable. Every time you oil the sulky change the wheels. They will wear much longer, as every driver knows, and if a wheel gets injured in a collision it can be changed to that side of the sulky for the next heat where the strain is least. Mr. Ames, the representative of the Messrs. Studebaker on this coast, will be pleased to furnish any further information regarding them. We commend the advertisement of these sulkies to the attention of our readers.

Grim's Gossip.

Geraldine has won eleven races this year.

Snicklefritz returned to Oakland on Monday from Marysville.

Remember, Norval's 2:17½ was made in a race, and not against time.

All the San Francisco and Oakland horsemen are in attendance at the State Fair.

And now the agents of a wealthy South American Syndicate are trying to buy Guy 2:10¾.

The Oakland Meeting was a financial success; The attendance was large, and the racing first class.

Frank Morgan, the well known carriage stallion, will be sold at Sacramento Tuesday, Sept. 17th, by Killip & Co.

An attempt will be made to buy the running quantities of El Rio Rey for next year, by a prominent Eistern horseman.

Strideaway is now owned by T. H. French. Once the horse was cut loose from Tucker he began to win.

Remember the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake should have an entry from every farm in the State.

Several breeders havs made offer for Jim McDonalds Brigadier mare (Fedora). She is moving well at Sacramento.

Aubine (2:20½) is now in Budd Doble's hands. Barring accidents she is liable to get down close to Belle Hamlin's record of 2:12¾.

The six furlong course at Sheapshead Bay, where a number of fast "three-quarters" have been made lately, is about 50 yards short.

Dan Dennison has taken down first money twice the last fortnight with Rabe without taking him out of the stable—a pretty useful horse to have.

H. M. Johnson, of Los Angeles will take a lot of choice youngsters East very soon to offer them at Woodard's October combination sale.

Alcryon (2:16¼) was bought by his present owner, A. L. Noble, of Michigan, for $700 when seven months. He has lost the sight of his right eye.

Homestake on Tuesday afternoon at Sacramento, worked an easy mile in 2:28½, earlier in the day Marvin drove Pedlar in 2:28 with a runner alongside.

Mr. Laird, formerly connected with Palo Alto as one of the drivers at that establishment, has gone East to drive Susie S., the mare that is expected to beat Alcryon.

In reporting the Petaluma races last week, a typographical error caused us to give the time of the last heat, in the three year-old district trotting race, as 2:34. It should have been 2:30.

The display made by the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN at the Sacramento pavilion, is attracting a good deal of attention. The handsome pictures draw large crowds and the booth is continuously thronged.

Another of the get of Elmo has gone into the 2:30 list. Pasha, at Marysville, performed the trick in an easy manner. As St. Nicholas is out of Towhead by Elmo, John Rowen is correspondingly happy.

Old John Moore has an old-fashioned but pretty speedy horse in his namesake, who is a full brother to the Adam's mare, and if his hat had not bothered him, might have beaten Johnny Allen at Marysville.

Wapple was shod with tips behind, winning a good race in them at Chico. After losing at Marysville, they were taken off and shoes put on, but the horse was dead off and was distanced the first heat on Saturday.

It is currently rumored in racing circles, that the gentlemen who own Alfred G. have refused a very large offer for him. He is one of the best youngsters seen in many a day and should be worth a lot of money.

Adrian Wilkes, Electioneer, and Guy Wilkes are the only stallions living at the present time having two three-year-olds to their credit in the 2:30 list. Electioneer is a trifle ahead, as his two-year-old daughter, Sunol, has a record of 2:18.

It is rather absurd trotting a race at night, and yet it was nearly so in the Allarita race at Marysville. The judges had to send for candles to read the rules directly after the heat, in which, of course, there was a complaint of running.

Bonnie McGregor now holds the fastest record of any stallion living, having reduced his to 2:13½ in Kentucky last week. He is by Robert McGregor (2:27½), by Major Edsall (2:29), of son Alexander's Abdallah. His dam was by Reconstruction (2:24¾), by Vermont Boy, by French Charley.

Jack Cochrane thinks he is in hard luck. He got his sulky smashed up, and then his mare is given a record of 2:26½ and shown up—for what—$200 possibly, as there was not much betting. She will bear watching, though, as she has not shown her best.

If there are any gentlemen who desire to send horses back East between September 25th and 28th, they can hear of an excellent opportunity by sending early notice to this office. This is a splendid chance, and should not be neglected.

On Monday, Henry Walsh took all the conceit out of Sacramento, by sending Racine six furlongs on the inside track in 1:18½. The colt only seemed to be exercising, while several local youngsters had to be ridden out to get round in 1:20. Peel went the same distance in 1:17½.

Nutwood has two more in the thirty list, Rose S and Redwood, since the fairs started. The latter has returned to Pleasanton, and will be given a rest. Eva W, his sister, will go to Sacramento, Stockton and San Jose, and should lower her record a notch or two at one of the meetings.

I did not have time to get shaved, prior to starting for Oakland on Friday last, and when I visited the shop of the track barber, found he had shut up the tent, having bought a ticket on Hello, with which he was fortunate enough to make a weeks wages. Lucky barber.

Golden Gate Livery and Riding Academy.

Pre-eminently the leading and pioneer liverman and general horseman on the Pacific Coast is C. S. Crittenden. His aim has always been to keep pace with the times and to bring to the aid of intelligent workmen all modern appliances that his judgment and experience suggest as means to the end of thoroughly providing for the wants of not only his horses, and those entrusted to his care, but to have the welfare and style of his patrons receive a like attention. At all of the sales of fine horses the well-known face of Mr. Crittenden is seen, and when not buying for himself he is universally consulted by would-be buyers as to the advisability of this or that purchase, as it is generally conceded that he is one of the best judges of the points of a horse in the city. In his vast establishment he has no horses that do not excel in the particular line for which they are kept. In this, his new venture, he has done the one great act of his life and realized a dream conceived years ago of having the best and most complete livery stable in the United States.

From a visit paid to the stables by our reporter we learn that in his opinion it not only compares favorably with the largest and best in the East, but in his judgment, taking it in its entirety it stands in the front rank of all similar establishments in this or any other county. The following description, published in one of our dailies, will give the reader some idea of the immensity and perfection of what is justly termed the perfection of a livery stable and riding academy combined.

The building is 82 by 127½ feet, four stories and basement. The front, which is of pressed brick with trimmings of San Jose sandstone, presents a handsome architectural appearance. The interior finishing is in keeping with the attractive exterior. The spacious entrance, the office, toilet rooms, harness and saddle rooms are all finished and ceiled in Oregon pine, trimmed with stained redwood in the natural grain, and made brilliant with varnish. The office will be fitted up as handsomely as a parlor, with new Brussels carpet, elegant mantelpiece, solid antique oak furniture and with pictures. A ladies' dressing room, fitted with lavatories, etc., will be a great convenience to ladies after a dusty drive. Back of this is a large room expressly for saddles. On the other side of the main passage is a gentlemen's dressing room. It will be seen that Mr. Crittenden has arranged every thing in the most modern fashion for the comfort and convenience of patrons.

The second floor is reached by a "horse stairway" which consists of an incline carpeted with thick rubber. This is expensive, but it makes it impossible for horses to slip or fall in ascending or descending. The flooring of the second story is three inches thick and thoroughly corked. The stalls, 82 in number, are models of convenience. The sides are built of two-inch Oregon pine. In one corner of each is a galvanized iron feed trough, in another corner a water trough of the same material, each supplied by water pipe and faucet. Each stall is furnished with a patent compressed salt roll. On the same floor are sixteen large box stalls for pampered, aristocratic horses. All of these have already been let to owners of private teams. The floor inclines toward the center both ways, at a slight angle, thus insuring perfect drainage.

No expense has been spared to make the entire building as solid and safe as possible. Every part of the structure is made of the best material, with extra thick walls and floors. There are fire plugs, stand pipes and hose reels on every floor. There will be from 4 to 16 men about the place night and day, besides a night watchman

His new stables are admirably located, being on Golden Gate Avenue, the main driveway to the park, half a block from the junction of Market, Sixth and Taylor Streets, and close to all the leading cable lines.

Instantaneous photography has recently been used to record the true positions of birds, at the moment of being struck by shot. The revelations of the camera are as much of a blow to preconceived notions in this matter, as in the case of those which formerly prevailed in regard to animals in motion. But few of these photographs have so far been made. The difficulties are many and hard to overcome. In the near future, however, sportsmen and artists will have the opportunity in studying them, to learn how completely at fault they have been in their conception of the attitudes of birds when wounded, or at the instant of the shock of death.

Colton Scores.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I enclose the scores of a live bird match between two members of the Colton Gun Club, shot Sept. 4th, loser to pay for birds. Conditions, 12 live birds, American Rules to govern. Wiley used an L. C. Smith 12 gun, weight 7¾ pounds, 28-inch barrels, loaded with the Selby A. B. Schultze No. 8 cartridge in right, and No. 7 cartridge in left barrel. Taber used an L. C. Smith 12 gun, weight 7¾ pounds, 30-inch barrels, loaded with A. B. Schultze No. 7 cartridge in both barrels.

The Colton Gun Club expects to be in the field with a team for the Selby Inter-Club trophy match at San Jose on October 9th. I want to say to my shooting brothers, any of you that are not satisfied with your scores at the trap or in the field must give the Selby shells a trial. A. W. B.

To Sportsmen from the Fish Commission.

The Fish Commission sends the following letter for publiction: Sportsmen should meet the desire of the commission squarely and indicate the game birds preferred. The offer of the Commission is a most generous one and infinitely creditable to that body.

To the various Gun Clubs and to all Sportsmen of the State:

The Fish Commissioners of the State of California are by an Act of the Legislature, approved March 16, 1889, charged with the duty of importing into the State various game birds for propagation. Among these are wild turkeys, prairie chickens, quails, pheasants, and other well-known game birds. For the purposes of the law, the sum of $2000 is appropriated by the Legislature, to be used by the State Board of Fish Commissioners in defraying the costs incidental to said importation.

The birds, when procured, will be distributed throughtout the State in such quantities and to such localities as from their best information may, to the Board, seem proper. And for the purpose of obtaining this information, the officers of all gun clubs and other sporting associations, as well as all individuals feeling an interest in the objects of this scheme to stock the State with game birds non-existent here, are respectfully invited to correspond with the State Board of Fish Commissioners, P. O. Box 327, Sacramento, Cal., and offer such suggestions as they deem best touching any matters relating to this subject. Like suggestions are also invited from the press of this and other States, to the end that this laudable endeavor of the Legislature may be made entirely successful.

The regular monthly meeting will be held at the State Capitol, Sacramento, on Tuesday, September 17, 1889, at which time representatives of the clubs and others interested are invited to meet with the Board for consultation on this subject.

Respectfully,

JOSEPH ROUTIER,
J. DOWNEY HARVEY,
State Board of Fish Commissioners.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I believe I can report the first snipe of the season. Mr. Z. Job, President of Corvallis Rod and Gun Club, bagged two Wilson snipe on the mud flats of a small pond near town. Several others were seen feeding among the cow lily pads. C. A. LOUD.

Corvallis, Or.

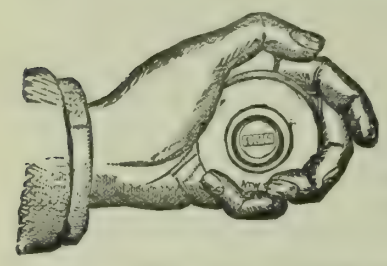
A Day Among the Blue Grouse in Oregon.

The writer, in company with O. McClegen, one of Corvallis' crack shots, and his staunch old pointer Spot and Romeo the writer's Llewellin setter, left Corvallis on Friday morning for the foothills. We are obliged to go in the hills now to find the grouse, as the Mongolian pheasants have driven them from the valleys. After a drive of about ten miles, we pulled up at the cabin of a bachelor friend, unhitched our horse, donned our hunting coats, well filled with shells loaded with 3½ drachms of wood powder and one ounce No. 8 shot. We sallied forth to the battlefield among the ferns and oaks. We had not gone far when old Sport began to show signs of game, when Romeo came up, and the sight would please the heart of any sportsman; both dogs stood rigid when we stepped in, and up went a brace of grouse. The first to shoot made a clean miss, the next slobbered his bird and he got away and could not be found in the thick cover.

"Well, Mac," I said, "this will not do, old boy, the dogs did better work than we." A few hundred yards further on old Romeo stiffened up and was well backed by Sport, and in this covey of six five went to grass and were all finely retrieved. The ball was fairly opened, and we found several fine coveys; the birds were not wild, and they laid well to the dog. As we were passing beside a small point of thick cover, Romeo made game, when up flushed four birds. Mac was the first to pull trigger with both barrels, followed closely by the writer, and four fine grouse lay dead in the ferns, and we each scored a double; at the same time we marked a large covey down about two hundred yards off among the low ferns, and we were soon among them, and such work by two dogs for the next hour could not be beaten. It was point and back, and while the dogs were doing such fine work the shooters were also having good luck, and only one bird out of nineteen was seen to get away. After this clean-up we returned to the cabin, made a pot of coffee, and cooked ourselves a lunch, and took a good rest until 4 o'clock, when we took a long hard hunt with poor success, only bagging seven birds. We could not seem to find them, and the birds we bagged were scattering ones, so we returned to the cabin tired and footsore, but happy over the day's sport, and in counting our bags we found forty-five grouse. We soon had all traps stowed away in the wagon with plenty of room for Spot and Romeo. Mac and the writer pulled out for home, which we reached at 8 o'clock all O. K.

Corvallis, Or., Sept. 1st. C. A LOUD.

T. E. Owen of Bakersfield saw two Chinese killing fish in Kern River, by the use of giant powder, and immediately caused their arrest. The men were bailed out, but the evidence is conclusive, and they will be put through at a lively pace. No more unsportsmanlike or dastardly practice is in vogue than that of blasting fish. The pity is that the users of explosives cannot be hoist by their own petards.



The gross winnings of the leading racing stables this season, up to August 30, are as follows: A. Belmont, $97,100; Dwyer Bros., $89 000. J. B. Haggin, $88,200; J. A. & A. H. Allender's Kennels.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I recently paid a visit to Watsonville and had the pleasure of seeing Geo. Allender's Kennels, who has proved himself the most successful of all dog trainers here by winning the prizes for the past four years at the Pacific Coast field trials. Mr. Allender's kennels are located about five miles from Watsonville at a place called Camp Goodall about five hundred yards from the Pacific Ocean. Are nicely situated, plenty of water, quail a short distance from the house. There is a half mile speed track there and a number of box-stalls, and he keeps his dogs in the box stalls, two or three dogs in each stall. He has a portion of it partitioned off, with nice clean straw in it. Nice clean water is kept for the dogs and changed every day. The dogs are taken out and exercised twice a day. There are no neighbors within a half mile of his place, so the dogs have plenty of room to run around. They are all in a healthy condition, and looks as if they had good care. A great many of them are fine specimens of their breed. He has a very fine water spaniel there, a full blooded Irish, owned Mr. Goodall, and a very fine lemon and white pointer bitch owned by Mr. Schreiber of this city, also an extra fine lemon and white setter bitch, Queen by Harold-Sweetheart, fit to be shown in any company, owned by C. N. Post, of Sacramento. Mr. R. K. Gardners pointer pup, Tennis by Rush T. champion Patti Croxteth T. winner of the second prize, San Francisco, 1889, puppy class. Mr Talbot's Irish red setter bitch Katie T., by champion Mike, champion Lady Elcho T. winner of the first prize San Francisco, 1888. A. B. Truman's pointer bitch champion Patti Croxteth by champion Croxteth, champion Patti M. and a number of other handsome ones. He has twelve all told, dogs and bitches. He stated that his kennels were full for this season, as no man could break any more and do justice to them. I wish to say that I agree with him after twenty years of experience. BRADFORD.

Some of our English setter fancying readers may remember that Mr. Philip McShane, now gathered to his fathers, brought to California, in 1876, an English setter dog. The dog, Gloucester, was of the rarest breeding, by Leicester out of Dart, and was a full brother to Carl R., whose puppies, Kittle's Luke, Linville's Florine, Lucas' Bruiser, Cummin's Max and othes are all superb animals. The fact that two Leicester—Darts have come to the State and left so few descendants is a sad reflection upon the alertness and taste of local breeders. If any one chances to recall anything about Mr. McShane's setter, we shall be pleased to receive the information. It is just possible that the dog may have been bred here and that some of the progeny may be accessible.

Mr. Perham W. Nahl, who has been advertising Great Dane puppies by Cæsar—Lea for sale, changes his advertisement this week, and now offers youngsters by Cæsar—Dora, the latter having presented him with a fine litter. Mr. Nahl also has some beautiful young cross-breds by Cæsar out of a fine mastiff bitch. The cross is worth nothing.

Mr. A. W. Knox, a son of Mr. John R. Knox, who imported Belton, and who owned Belton II and Belle in this State a few years ago, offers, through the advertising columns, a fine Gordon setter dog six months old. Mr. Knox knows what a good dog is, and fanciers may profitably correspond with him.

The death of Mr. H. T. Payne's Princess Claude removes one of the best English setter brood bitches in the world. Claude was bred by R. H. Boyd, and whelped on July 27, 1883. Her sire was Bergundthal's Rake, 212 A. K. S. B., and her dam Iowa Queen, 2014 A. K. S. B. Iowa Queen was a daughter of Rake, so that Princess Claude was three-quarters Rake in blood, as strong an infusion of the blood of Llewellin's Dan as is to be found, in fact, relying solely upon memory, we think that Claude was stronger in the Duke and Rhoebe blood than any other bitch. She was a well-sized, finely proportioned, roomy and strong animal, and won first and several specials, the only time shown, at the Southern California Kennel Show, held at Los Angeles in June last. At that show, in the open class for dogs, three of her sons, all from the same litter, were awarded first, second and third respectively, a distinction never before enjoyed by any bitch of any breed in America, thus proving her superiority as a dam. While old Claude, intelligent, affectionate and loveable—the especial pet of every one who knew her—has gone to the happy hunting grounds, it is to be hoped that her progeny—large, strong animals, full of vigor, quality and bird sense—will impress upon the setter interest of the coast many of the estimable qualities of their dam.

Mr. Payne writes us: "Claude died on the evening of the 2d inst. from inflammation of the uterus caused by a dead pup. She was my baby, and feel the loss very much indeed. It seems too hard to loose her."

If Mr. Arthur W. du Bray, whose writings as "Gancho" have given him prominence on two continents, had done no other service to his fellow-sportsmen than to impress upon them the excellence of the Standard cartridges as loaded by the Selby Smelting and Lead Company, 416 Montgomery street, San Francisco, he would have established clear title to regard. The cartridges met some little opposition at first from the more cranky and stupid among the dealers, but that imperious ruler of all tradesmen, stern demand, soon compelled them to handle the Standard cartridges, and they are now to be found in every hamlet and wayside store. Solid, unvarying goodness in all the qualities necessary to fine shooting have done the work in making the Selby ammunition indispensable to the best shots at the trap and in the field. A deal of credit is to be ascribed to Major Sheldon I. Kellogg, manager of the cartridge department of the Selby Company, through whose energy, fine business tact and invariable courtesy, together with a deep knowledge of arms, powders and ammunition generally, the quick introduction of the cartridges is largely due. Readers are advised to consult the advertisement of the Standard cartridges, which appears in another column, and then to go to the nearest first-class gun house and secure enough for the coming season, which is now opening so auspiciously.

BILLIARDS.

The billiard match made for $500 a side, open for $2,000, between Mr. Saylor of San Jose and champion McCleery of this city, is creating much comment billiardistical. Mc plays 1,200 points against Saylor's 900. Saylor's backers seem very anxious to increase the stake, while the admirers of McCleery are confident that he will not only cover their coin, but assert boldly that "Mc will bet them to a stand still."

On looking over the records of the past seven years, we find that the above players have played several matches for stakes ranging from $100 to $1,500 a side, and strange to say, they stand about even as winners, and every game shows the confidence the public has in the integrity of the contestants, mention being made of large and small wagers being made that in the agregate would mean a small fortune. In a practice play at the Baldwin last week, McCleery ran the game out from the "lay off" (250 points), his opponent being kept busy, simply holding his cue.

The Baldwin billiard room has been thoroughly refitted at an enormous outlay, and is one of the sights of the city. Mr. McCleery is the manager, and cordially extends a general invitation to ladies as well as gentlemen to call and inspect the premises.

Everyone who plays billiards should have a copy of the McCleery Method of Billiard Playing, the title of a very interesting and useful work on the game that will be issued about September 25th, and will be on sale at all bookstores.

For those who would like to have the records of the game for the past twenty years, Bullock's Manual is very complete; published by T. R. Bullock, Esq., Manager Naragansett Hotel Billiard Room, Providence, R. I. Copies can be had from Prof. McCleery at the Baldwin; price 25 cents.

A very interested audience watched the contest at the Cafe Royal one evening last week between Mr. Chesly, cashier of the Chronicle, and another leading amateur; in fact hardly a day passess without a quiet match being on, as there are many who play the beautiful game, and play it well; McCleery favors contests of that character, holding that it improves one's game faster, and gives self-reliance to the player. Many of the prominent breeders were present at the beginning of the Oakland meeting, they being called to the city to attend a meeting of the Directors of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. Mr. Wilfred Page informs me from the entries made and the money at present in the treasury of the association, that the first racing season will be an assured success. This is as it should be, or rather as it should have been for the past ten years. We will now have a chance to see the breeders combating among themselves for superiority and a gala time may be expected.

LILLIAN WILKES

Lillian Wilkes, 2:17 3-4.

The Phenomenal Young Filly. The property of Wm. Corbitt, Esq.

There is not a person in the United States interested in horse flesh but who has heard of Lillian Wilkes, 2:17¾, and yet less than six weeks ago she had no record. Such a story told ten years ago would have seemed a fable, but it all arises from the art of breeding that has developed so materially in the past decade. There is no keener observer nor deeper student of breeding in California than Mr. William Corbitt of the San Mateo stock farm, who is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as a shrewd and careful man in all matters that appertain to the trotting horse. It is now many years since he first went into the business, bringing to this coast Irvington and Arthurton. When Irvington was sold, Guy Wilkes was brought out to take his place, and although there are many who say "Corbitt's luck" was what enabled him to secure such a great horse, we are inclined to the belief that there was no luck in the transaction whatever, but the settled conviction from close observation that the Wilkes blood was what was required to cross with his well chosen band of broodmares. There are any quantity of persons that think Mr. Williams of Axtell fame, a fortunate man in breeding his mares to William L. and Jay Bird. There was no chance work about it whatever; the mares were bred after almost every prominent stallion in Kentucky had been inspected, and it was simply good judgment that has produced to the world Axtell and Allerton. It was judgment of the same kind that told Mr. Corbitt Guy Wilkes was the horse of all others to bring out, and although he paid a great price for the then young stallion, there is no man can deny but that he would have been cheap at $100,000. He has mated wonderfully well with all classes of mares, and his progeny are of the best, their legs particularly, enhancing their value, as he has the happy faculty of putting remarkably good underpinning on all his get. Many years ago Mr. Corbitt purchased a very fast pacing mare known as Flora Longford, and she was bred to Guy Wilkes, the foal being Lillian Wilkes. Mr. Corbitt laughs to-day when he thinks how many times he offered Flora Longford for sale for $100 when she was carrying Lillian, yet no one would buy her. It seems that the mare, from extreme old age was little better than a wreck, and for the last five months of her life had to be lifted up and down with block and tackle. The foal was ultimately born, but the mare died in foaling; so, consequently, Lillian Wilkes was brought up by hand. From her birth until the 11th of November of last year she was allowed to roam over the broad acres of the farm, but on that date she was taken up and broken. The writer had frequently heard Mr. Corbitt speak in the highest terms of this young filly, and considered that enthusiasm played a prominent part in stories that were heard. A visit to the ranch in March last dissipated any erroneous impression that might hitherto have been held in regard to Lillian Wilkes, for she impresses the beholder at once with her beauty and great speed. Although only three years old, and her record as yet only 2:17¾, she will, if nothing happens, run a close race with her relative, Axtell, for record honors. She has made three public appearances, once at Napa, where she was allowed to "walk over" for the three-year old stake, once at Petaluma, where she lowered the colors of the mighty Sunol, and again at Oakland, where she had to bow to the inevitable and was beaten by Sunol, thus reversing the decision. It must be said in extenuation that the filly was far from being herself that day, but is now inproving rapidly. The walk-over at Napa was accomplished in the magnificent time of 2:18, and in that connection it might not be out of place to print the following excerpt from a prominent Eastern paper, the American Cultivator, accompanied by a letter from a well posted gentleman who was on the coast at the time and saw the Napa walk over.

Another three-year-old trotting wonder has burst out in California. She is known as Lillian Wilkes. Her owner and breeder is Mr. Corbitt, owner of Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, and Sable Wilkes, 2:18, San Mateo, Cal. She was entered in the three-year-old stakes, along with the world renowned Sunol, two-year-old 2:18, and Margaret S., a very speedy daughter of Director, but when the bell rang, Lillian Wilkes was the only one of the lot to respond. She had a walk-over in 2:18. Mr. Isaiah Thomas, who spent last winter in California, pronounces Lillian Wilkes one of the very best gaited trotters that he ever saw.

Lillian Wilkes' sire is Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼. Her dam is Flora Langford, who is credited with pacing a trial mile in 2:24, and is also the dam of Joe Arthurton, 2:20½. Flora Langford is by the running-bred horse Langford, whose sire was Williamson's Belmont, which, though a thoroughbred, recorded in "Bruce's American Stud Book," Vol. I., is the sire of the trotter Venture, 2:27¼, and got the dams of several that are found in the 2:30 list. Langford's dam was Liz Givens, a thoroughbred daughter of the renowned Sir Archy, the best son of imported Diomed.

This brings the warm current nearer the surface than most breeders of trotting stock like, particularly when the sire is so strongly backed by warm crosses as Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼. She got there just the same, however, and is liable to prove a troublesome customer for the best three-year-olds on the Pacific Coast. As she has been proved a diamond of the first water, the following account of her, sent to Mr. Wesley P. Balch from a friend of his in California, will prove interesting:

"SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Aug. 16, 1889.

"DEAR WESLEY:—

"Yesterday was Lillian Wilkes first appearance on the track at Napa, where she was entered against Sunol and Margaret S., all three-year-olds. The last two failed to put in an appearance when time was called. They were said to be off, consequently Lillian had a walk-over in 2:18 as announced, some making the time as low as 2:17¾, 2:17¼. The quarters were trotted respectfully in 34, 34½, 35½, 34¾ seconds. She could have knocked off seconds had it been desirable to do so. The track is new, and not a fast one. A better gaited trotter was never seen on any race track, and if nothing happens to her, you will hear from her again before the season is over. She was taken up on the 11th of November last, unbroken."

That will give an idea of what outsiders thought of the performance, where bias was thrown entirely to one side. At Petaluma, Sunol and Margaret S. came to the post, ready to give battle to the young filly that had made a record at Napa.

Thousands were in attendance, all eager to witness what was likely to prove the sensation of the year, and there was no disappointment, inasmuch as almost every one supposed that Sunol would win easy.

The first heat went to the Electioneer filly in 2:21½, but when Lillian won the second in 2:17¾, it was like pandemonium broke loose. The spectators shouted themselves hoarse, but the big betters rushed to the pool-box with the knowledge that there was something that could down Sunol, and they all wanted to hedge. When the third and fourth heats also fell to the San Mateo representative, the applause was terrific, for the outcome had proved sensational, and that is what the people wanted.

At Oakland the tables were turned, and Sunol got away with the Stakes, but the chances are, the honors are easy for a short duration only, as Mr. Goldsmith, before the season closes, will bring out the daughter of Flora Langford to try and beat the world's best record for a three-year-old. Of course whether he can do it or not is only problematical at present, but to the believers in the thoroughbred cross in the trotters, Lillian Wilkes seems to be the best there is at present, and if she should fail to reach the point at which her owner is at present aiming, it will not detract from her merits, as she is the best filly, as regards time, that has ever appeared on any track.

It is only a few weeks ago that the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN said in its columns that there was a younger half sister that showed every evidence of being able to beat anything on the farm, but after the great performances of Lillian Wilkes, it seems almost like profanation to suggest that one of the others can be anything like the equal of Lillian Wilkes. Before the season closes there will be many chances to see the young marvel on the track, and if she does not make a much lower record than she has at present, it will be on account of some accident that may happen in the future.

The sons of George Wilkes and Lady Bunker are great sires of three-year-olds. It is not so long ago that Sable Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, sent the banner of San Mateo to the topmast with the champion three-year-old record, 2:18, inscribed thereon. Then when the three-year-old record is beaten it is by Axtell, son of the brother of Guy Wilkes. And now comes Lillian Wilkes, daughter of Guy Wilkes, and trots at Napa, Cal., in 2:18, surpassing all three-year-old records excepting those of her brother and the son of her sire's brother. This is a very handsome and finely turned daughter of Guy Wilkes, and as far back as January, on my first visit to San Mateo, Mr. Corbitt showed her to me with pride, and said, with the most positive confidence, that she was a coming star. One day in early February, while Mr. Marvin was looking her over at San Mateo, in company with the writer and others, Mr. Corbitt said to him that he expected to beat the San Mateo three-year-old record with Lillian, but did not count on breaking the record which Sunol might make for Palo Alto. It was expected that Sunol and Lillian would meet at Napa; but the great daughter of Electioneer was suffering from sexual troubles, and Marvin is too discreet a man to start Sunol, when not on edge, against so good a mare as Lillian Wilkes.

One factor that tells greatly in Mr. Corbitt's favor as a breeder is his good judgment of the individual quality of horses and his especial care in selecting brood mares. Excepting the collection of H. L. & F. D. Stout, the owners of Nutwood, there is not, as far as I am aware, a harem of broodmares in all this country that averages as high in individuality as those at San Mateo. I except Stout's collection, for, though not the largest, it is, in blood and individual excellence, the best stud of brood-mares in this country—bar none. Mr. Corbitt knows what good blood is, and knows what a good individual is; and in looking over the mares at San Mateo one can see, without being told, that he does not take many chances experimenting with blood of doubtful trotting value, nor does he breed from a pedigree without a good mare behind it. It is a strong point, in the eyes of a buyer who buys an animal without seeing its dam or sire, to know that not only is the sire a good horse and well bred but that the mare is a good mare herself, irrespective of her breeding. It is a fact never to be overlooked that, while a horse without a pedigree is of little value, a pedigree without a horse is of no value.

Hail, El Rio Rey.

The Californian Makes the Wonderful Record of 1:11 for Three-Quarters of a Mile With 126 Pounds up.

Four new records have never before been made over a new track during an inaugural meeting of ten days, says the New York World. With the meeting that ended at Morris Park yesterday, such, however, is a fact—half a mile in 46 seconds by Geraldine, with 122 pounds; three-quarters of a mile in 1:11 by El Rio Rey, with 126 pounds; a mile and five furlongs in 2:48 by Hindoocraft, with 75 pounds. But little credit is claimed for the last named event. The first three, however, stand good; they were made with weight up and are most creditable performances. That they were made over a straight track will be shown in the records. Straight tracks for records of three-quarters of a mile and under will be hereafter almost an absolute necessity. Few may complain that they cannot distinguish the horses. But take the Eclipse Stables with fifteen starters, run a week ago, and the White Plains Handicap, run yesterday with the same number of starters, and all followers of racing must admit that never before had they witnessed two such true-ran races. That the great Californian colt, El Rio Rey, won both of them not only adds to his greatness, but proves how true races can be run on straight tracks. The Eclipse was won with something to spare; the contending horses were running at weight for age. The race yesterday was a handicap, with El Rio Rey at 116 pounds, and Ruperta 110 pounds; allowing the latter 3 pounds for her sex, El Rio Rey was giving her 13 pounds This was a great handicap, for Ruperta is a filly of more than ordinary form, she having won the Larchmont Stakes on the first day, at 105 pounds, in 1:14. But El Rio Rey was handicapped even more. He was ridden by a light-weight boy named Winchell, of no great ability or strength, who weighed about 105 pounds, making it necessary for the colt to carry some 18 or 20 pounds of dead weight. This alone accounted for Ruperta getting up so close. Had McLaughlin, Garrison or any man been "up," he would have brought the colt along at half the distance, winning probably by three or four lengths. How weak Winchell was could be seen by his puny efforts in trying to whip, ride and use his spurs at the same time. The effort was well meant. The colt won on his merits, and he stands to-day one of the best two-year-olds ever seen in this or any country, for proof of which note the weight he carried, the time made, that he was ridden by a light weight boy, who, to his great credit, did his best. At the same time note where St. Carlo, Magnate, June Day, Masterlode, Leighton, Banquet, Gramercy, Prince Fonso, and Cayuga, all good two-year-olds, finished.

Of the other races Tenny won the Pelham Bay Handicap easily, beating among others the famous Kentucky Derby and American Derby winner Spokane. Next to El Rio Rey the honors of the meeting are due to Tenny. The other winners of the day were Britannic, whose flying five furlongs in 59 seconds broke the ill luck that has attended all the efforts of Mr. Morris's stable during the meeting. Kingston was also a winner under the Dwyer "red and blue," Elyton under the Durham "orange and white," and Golden Reel under the Excelsior Stable's "red and blue stripes." It was a great day for backers and the way they captured the money left the bookmakers but little to take home.

As to the crowd, it was an immense one. It showed the magnitude of the stand, lawn, betting ring and other accommodations at Morris Park. At any other track the crowd would have been uncomfortably "jammed" at all points. It had ample room to sit and move about yesterday. If the weather had been a little cooler it would have been more pleasant. But that little discomfort was forgotten in the excellence of the racing and the success of El Rio Rey and Tenny.

MORRIS PARK, Westchester, N. Y., Aug. 31st.—Tenth and last day of the inaugural meeting of the New York Jockey Club.

The Race—Among the first horses to show on the track was El Rio Rey, and with a good, stout stable lad in the saddle he slowly galloped around the full track. Of those that did their preliminary gallops in colors Iago and Cayuga were the most prominent. Promptly at Hecker's bugle call "to the post" the fifteen announced starters filed out of the paddock as follows: Gunwad, Prince Fonso, June Day, Eccola colt, Masterlode, Ruperta, Gramercy, Cayuga, Banquet, Leighton, W. G. Morris, St. Carlo in (blinkers), Magnate, Iago, El Rio Rey. The last named was loudly applauded, as his superb appearance deserved. All slowly cantered to the post, where they arrived in ample time to be in the starters' hands at 3:40 P. M., the time fixed for the race. But little time was lost in giving the jockeys their positions as drawn. Iago had the inside, with W. G. Morris' Cayuga, Ruperta and Gramercy. On the outside were June Day, Magnate, Banquet, Leighton and Prince Fonso, while in the middle were Gunwad, Eccola, colt; El Rio Rey, St. Carlo and Masterlode. Fortunately all were, for two-year-olds, good starters, and after some little delay in taking positions they moved up like well-drilled cavalry for the flag, which Mr. Caldwell gave them at the very first break.

It was a superb start, and so little difference was there that it was not until they had run several strides before W. G. Morris, Ruperta and St. Carlo showed in the advance. The whole fifteen continued in close order for the first quarter, and as they made the turn Ruperta, Magnate, El Rio Rey, Cayuga and Gramercy were leading on nearly equal terms. The pace from the start had been very fast, but the field kept in close order, and at the bottom of the dip it was difficult to say who really had the advantage. Gunwad was about the most prominent, with Ruperta and June Day close up in the middle of the track, with Gramercy, Eccola colt and El Rio Rey on the inside, and W. G. Morris leading those laying on the outside. As they breasted the hill El Rio Rey took the lead, followed by Ruperta and St. Carlo. The field then gradually began to tail out. In the run down the second incline El Rio Rey took a decided lead, and it really looked, as many in the crowd shouted, "Only El Rio Rey." But Allen on Ruperta bided his time, and with out of his whip and a sharp dig with his spurs, he suddenly shot up on the left side of El Rio Rey with Ruperta, the winner of the Larchmont stakes. So quick had Ruperta closed up that Winchell seemed frightened at her sudden appearance, while the crowd, especially the colored element, began to shout, "Ruperta wins." Winchell at once got right down, and although he had but little strength, he in turn got to work. Whip, heels and hands were all doing their best, and backed up by as honest a horse as ever looked through a bridle, the big Californian responded so well that he quickly settled Ruperta's chances, winning the race amid thunders of applause by a neck, Ruperta second three lengths in front of St. Carlo, followed by W. G. Morris, Magnate, June Day, and the others as above. Time, 1:11, the showing of which brought out renewed cheering, for it not only beat Tenny's and Tipstaff's 1:12 by one full second, but it reduced the record from what it was when the meeting began by two seconds. Gross value of the stake, $11,120.

DIRECT, 2:19 1-4.

For many years Monroe Salisbury, Esq., has taken an active interest in trotting horses, and has an extensive establishment at Pleasanton for the breeding and training of the youngsters that have made his name famous. When a retrospective view is taken, it does not seem very long since Mr. Salisbury first appeared upon the scene as the owner of one of the gamest horses that America has ever seen. Monroe Chief was the first purchase and bought at a time when many considered him as the most wonderful horse that had appeared up to that date. It is true there were several who had faster records, but every now and again he would meet and conquer them, especially when it came to long drawn out races. The following article, lately taken from the Breeders' Gazette, is slightly wrong in some of the minor details, but it goes to show what the old horse is still thought of.

Monroe Chief, a stallion whose name calls up a host of memories to those who have followed the fortunes of the trotting turf, is reported from California to be in training again, and more than that, he has as much speed as ever, notwithstanding that he is nineteen years old. The Chief was not a precocious horse in the matter of trotting fast, being a big colt, but yet at six years of age he made his maiden effort in a race, and at that time could beat 2:35 a little. The following winter he was sold to A. W. Longley of Chicago, then as now an enthusiast on the subject of the trotter, and placed in the hands of Peter Johnston, the price paid for him being $1,600. How Peter developed the stallion's speed, until three years later he made a record of 2:18¼ in the third heat of a race, trotting the last half of the third mile in 1:07½, is a matter of history. During one of the years that the Chief was under the guidance of Johnston, he made a clean sweep in his class down the Central Circuit, and after his best record was obtained he was sold for $18,000 to Monroe Salisbury, a wealthy Californian who was just then putting some money into horseflesh, and who saw in Monroe Chief a grand stallion. Like some other Californians, Mr. Salisbury was lucky as well as rich, for about the time he purchased Monroe Chief he also got hold of Director, then a four-year-old, and saw him develop into one of the fastest stallions in the country, getting a record of 2:17, and at the same time show himself to be as game a trotter as ever looked through a bridle. After Salisbury bought Monroe Chief, the horse was handled for awhile by John Goldsmith, Budd Doble having previously had him in charge for a season, and after going to California he showed more speed than ever, being timed a quarter in 33 seconds flat, which was a better clip than he could strike when on this side of the Rocky Mountains While Goldsmith was giving the Chief jogging work one morning, the horse became playful, and managed to get one of his hind legs over the shaft, producing a strain which it was thought at the time would prove serious, but luckily no bad results followed. After this he was given a chance in the stud for two or three season, and his colts are said to be good ones. Now, when nearly twenty years old, he is in training again at the Bay District track, San Francisco, and is one of the probable starters in the free-to-all race at the State Fair.

Monroe Chief was a remarkably game trotter, and never failed to evoke the enthusiasm of the crowd by his gallant finishes, coming down the home-stretch with ears laid back, mouth wide open, and a bold way of going that seemed to say he would get there first or find out the reason why Nearly every one of his heats was won in this manner, he being generally well to the rear at the half-mile pole, and this naturally showed him to the best advantage. One of his best races was during the summer of 1880, over the West Side track in Chicago. It was a purse for stallions, and Hannis, Wedgewood, and Bonesetter, all cracks, were his opponents. It was the field against Monroe Chief, and as the other horses were able to get away faster than the brown fellow, and to take the pole from him every heat, he had a long road to go. This fact was accentuated by reason of the track being heavy and wet from rain, so that even the pole horse was well out in the middle of the track. Hannis won the first and second heats in 2:24¼, 2:21½, and then the Chief, trotting clear around the others in every mile, took the next three in 2:21¼, 2:20½, 2:20½, winning each heat by a nose right under the wire. Four days later he made his record of 2:18¼, and after passing into Doble's stable he won a grand race at Lexington from Rosa Wilkes, record 2:18¼, six heats, all better than 2:22, and three of them better than 2:20, being required to decide the contest. The old horse can still do a mile in 2:20, and should he again win, there will be plenty of people in this section of the country who will feel a thrill of joy when they hear the news.

The next purchase of Mr. Salisbury was Director, by Dictator, which under the able handling of John A. Goldsmith, proved a veritable gold mine. The black horse had the unkindness to almost always win the majority of heats, notwithstanding any quantity of jobs that were put up to beat him. It is only a few weeks ago that the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN had a full and correct account of all the stock at the Pleasanton Stock Farm and among the others noticed was the premier of the place Director. And by the way that suggests an idea, or rather the correction of an erroneous statement that has been going the rounds of the Eastern papers for sometime, that Thomas Jefferson was the stallion to which should be accredited the honor of winning the largest amount of money while on the track. If the statisticians will compute the winnings once more they will find a large error in the result, as Director won more money than Jefferson is given credit for. Be that as it may, we only have to speak of him as a sire, and if his only progeny were Direct he would have made an indelible name for himself. Mr. Salisbury has always kept the old horse as a public stallion and any quantity of gentlemen have colts by him that should be on the track adding laurels to the great campaigner's brow, but unfortunately he has been robbed of a great deal of credit that should have been his by right. When Direct first appeared upon the scene of action the breeding qualities of the premier stallion of the farm were an unknown quantity, however, it took but very few races to show to the world that Director was a great sire, for in his three-year-old form Direct made a record of 2:23. Since this season opened he has made several appearances before the public, gaining a record of 2:19¼ at Napa, beating his only opponent Victor in three straight heats. At Oakland he was declared beaten by the judges when the seventh heat of the race should have been his by right, which would have given him the race. The gentlemen in the stand made a series of blunders each more faulty than the one that preceeded it, and which finally wrested the victory from Direct. He is entered throughout the circuit and his driver Mr. McDowell is positive in the assertion that the game little black will lower his present record very materially. Mr. Salisbury will in all probability put Direct in the stud next season, and send his sire Director for a low record, as the old horse gives every indication of being faster than ever he was. The breeding of Direct is so well known that comment is hardly necessary, by Director 2:17¼, dam Echora 2:23½, she by Echo 462; 2nd dam "The young mare," by Jack Hawkins, a son of Boston.

Director 1989, is by Dictator 113, he by Hambletonian 10, dam Clara (dam of Dexter, 2:17¼ etc.) by American Star 14 Director's dam is Dolly by Mambrino Chief 11, out of a thoroughbred mare. Dolly is the dam of Thorndale, 2:22¼, (sire of Daisydale, 2:19¼, Edwin Thorne 2:16¼, and four more in thirty class), Onward, 2:25¼, (sire of 16 in thirty class), and several others. Dictator himself has twenty in the thirty list, Jay-Eye-See, 2.10, heading the list. Where can you find a horse so closely allied to so many performers and with such an untarnished reputation as Director, 2:17?

Santa Barbara County.

Much has been written of Santa Barbara, and its fame has reached all corners of our mundane sphere, To those who have dwelt here since childhood, its surroundings, its locality, its richness of soil and its beauty have made it a spot to which they cling fondly, and a place from which they could not part. The eloquence of it's grand scenery, the mystery hidden by the mighty mountains, good old oak trees, and sweet mountain streams, enhance the interest to the strangers. They wander back centuries, when these valleys, hills and mountains were inhabited by the savages of a lost race. Today the wealthy seeking homes where health, beauty and divine inspirations of joy and ineffable felicity abound, locate in Santa Barbara. Its natural attractions are unexcelled, if equalled. Its little bay is protected from the storms by high coast range mountains on one side, and by large islands on the other. The beach is a paradise to those who love sea bathing. Its adobe dwellings, with red tiles, are disappearing, but handsome residences of modern architecture have taken their places, and the large, stone-front, substantial business buildings make the city look full of mercantile energy and financial activity.

The good old mission, built over one hundred years ago, is the handsomest and best-preserved one in the State, and the only one in the possession of the Franciscan friars. The mission has a commanding location. Standing on the arched corridors of stone, you overlook the city that appears to be slumbering in unmolested sleep, and you see the fishermen's boats that sail swiftly over the smooth waters of the channel. From the two high towers, in whose belfries still hang the old bells the savages, years ago, learned to answer devoutly, you have an extended view for miles up and down the coast. The Temple of Worship is just such a place as one would enter for devout inspirations.

"Oft have I seen at some cathedral door
A laborer, pausing in the dust and heat,
Lay down his burden, and with reverent feet
Enter and cross himself, and on the floor
Kneel to repeat his paternoster o'er;
Far off the noises of the world retreat,
The loud vociferations of the street
Become an undistinguishable roar."

Santa Barbara is coming to the front as a country in which are bred and raised many fine horses. The Santa Barbara Agricultural Association will give its nineteenth fair this year and the speed programme will bring out many fine stallions, mares and geldings. At the track there are many excellent horses in training to compete in the coming races, which will begin Oct. 1st. Gus Walters, the Los Angeles trainer and favorite driver, well known for integrity, honor, and energy, has come to Santa Barbara to locate permanently. The following are the most prominent in his string: Don Patricio, by A. W. Richmond, 1687, dam Bridget, is an iron gray stallion that will strive to win the great stallion race. He is owned by I. K. Fisher of Santa Barbara. Rosnal is owned by Assemblyman C. A. Storke. Rosnal is six years old, light gray, and stands 15½ hands high. He is handsomely built, has a pure wide gait, and has shown himself to be a stallion of wonderful endurance. He has a record of 2:34, made in a fourth heat, and has trotted in 2:28. Rosnal was sired by A. W. Richmond, 1st dam Mileta, she by Crichton, 2nd dam Lady Ballard, with a record of 2:40.

Glenwood is a handsome chestnut sorrel stallion, 15½ hands high, possessing great power. He has a record of 2:39 at three years old and has shown a trial at a 16½ gait. He was sired by Nutwood, his dam by Chieftain; second dam by Messenger stock. Glenwood's dam could pace in 2:30 and has produced four foals that could beat 2:35 with very little handling and one trotted a trial in 2:27 as a three-year-old. She is the dam of Lady Washington 2:35. Glenwood is owned by A. F. McPhail, of Santa Barbara.

Nigger Baby is a small, symmetrically built gelding by Allo, he by Altoona 8850. Allo has a record of 2:22½. Nigger Baby has trotted in 2:26, and is improving under the supervision of Gus Walters. The gelding is owned by N. A. Covarrubias, of Santa Barbara.

Tono is a sorrel gelding, three years old. He is by Salisbury, he by Nutwood. First dam Herminia. Tono is a promising colt that has trotted in 2:32 and can trot quarters at a 2:20 gait. He is owned by James T. Hope.

Walters has also a gray, two-year-old by Cashmere, he by Sultan. His dam's pedigree is untraced, but she can trot in 2:50 and is a very handsome mare. Walters has also a promising two-year-old runner by Wildidle, dam Dotty Dimple, record half mile 48¾.

F. Merechosa has eight runners that are showing up well. The most promising are: Athello, three-year-old bay stallion by Hock Hocking; first dam Sunday by Monday, second dam Peel by Belmont.

Laura E by Wildidler, first dam Phoebe Hall by Joe Daniels, 2nd dam Mary Wade by Woodburn, 3rd dam Viola by imported Kt. of St. George.

Ella Hill by Wildidler, first dam Mary Wade by Woodburn.

In the city of Santa Barbara there are many beautiful carriage horses. Hiram C. Pierce owns two bay geldings well matched and hitched up very handsomely. They can trot in 2:50 or better He calls them Bob Burns and Diamond. Bob Burns is by Reliance, he by Alexander's Patchen, dam Lady Baxter by Belmont. Diamond is by Norwood, he by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Diamond's dam was a Longford running mare.

I. G. Waterman owns as handsome a gelding as was ever hitched to a buggy. The horse is called Dixie, and has trotted in 2:35.

Leland of this city has a promising stallion he calls Accident by Monday. Accident has many colts in the country. Several two-year-olds and many yearlings, and the most promising yearling is a black colt owned by George C. Sherman. The colt is called Midnight, and his first dam is by Newry, he by Lexington, 2nd dam by Rifleman. Midnight looks like all best ones by Monday. He has fine shoulders, a beautiful head, coupled closely, and propelling powers that will develope as he grows old. George is very proud of his colt and he has a good right to be.

John S Bell has as fine a suckling horse colt as ever walked. He is very large, has an intelligent little head, and only knows how to trot. He is called Harry Stamboul, by Stamboul, he by Sultan. Harry Stamboul's first dam is Carrie B by A. W. Richmond 2nd dam, Lillian by Crichton. Alfonso L. Den has a beautiful filly two years old by Batcheller, first dam Monte Belle, she by Ten Broeck, 2nd dam Granny.

Neely's Royal George is a beautiful chestnut, 15¾ hands high, strong boned, with good action, owned by Low and Wilson. Sired by Byron, record 2:25½; sire of Ottawa Chief, 2:25; he by Field's Royal George, sire of General Burnish, record 2:26¼; General Lowe, record 2:30; he by Royal George; he by Black Warrior; he by Tippoo; he by Ogden's Messenger; he by Imported Messenger, dam American Girl, by Tempest, by Old Tempest, by Old Royal George, the sire of Field's Royal George that sired Byron; 2nd dam, Black Maria, by the Warner horse, son of Long Island Black Hawk; 3rd dam, by Fireman, Thoroughbred, son of Sir William.

In Los Alamos lives J. M. Rochin, who bought twelve years ago the handsome bay stallion Newry, son of the great Lexington, he by Boston. Mr. Rochin has many excellent broodmares by Newry, out of which he has fine young trotters by his stallion Antioch by A. W. Richmond, first dam Monte Belle, 2nd dam Granny, dam of Tom Stout, record of 2:24. All of Mr. Rochin's colts by Antioch promise well, and he will surely have some fast three-year olds. Although Antioch is four years old, he has never been trained till this summer, and only for two months, and he can trot in 2:40 handily.

In Santa Maria is located the stock farm of Merriit and Murray who have begun to breed to their fashionably bred black stallion Electro by Electioneer. Electro trots in 2:26, and promises to trot much faster. He is four years old and has a steady, even gait, and is a handy horse to drive. Merritt and Murray are energetic men who love equine sports and they will do much to instill the farmers of the country with the sound idea that it pays to breed to fine bred horses. The good people of Santa Maria advertise their third annual fair and they offer good purses. James Morse, Esq., the president of the Santa Maria Agricultural and Stock Association is a very busy man, doing all within his power to make this fair a great success He is ably assisted by R. W. Nuttall, secretary, whose energy and activity assure success.

The bay stallion Bashaw is in training at Santa Maria. Bashaw has a record of 2:31½, made at Santa Barbara last year in a hot race against Rosnal and others. Bashaw has a very promising three-year-old owned by L. W. Lawrence, of this city.

There are many fine bred and promising colts in the county that want of space will keep out of this article, but some future day we will give a complete list. It is an assured fact that Santa Barbara will be a great county for fine horses in the near future. There are many ranches in the county that are particularly adapted for horse farms. The rich soil of the valleys, so well protected by large oak trees and well watered by mountain streams, will raise very superior horses, if all farmers will breed to good horses, horses about whose pedigree there is no question, and horses that have shown their good qualities in a hot contested race, or by their colts. Santa Barbara 50 or 60 years ago, was noted for its fine Arabian horses that ran over these fertile hills and valleys.

The native grasses of the county are very superior, Alfileria and oats predominating. The lay of the country is favorable for horses, and the climate is so mild that the colts and mares require no shelter in winter or summer, Santa Barbara will surely give to the world many a fast horse. Arrow was raised here and he owes his great speed and endurance to the climate of Santa Barbara. Arrow paced a mile in 2:13½. Next year the world will hear of the wonderful performances of colts bred and raised in this county.

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. '89. T. M.

Domestic animals seem to acquire some additional faculties, as they may perhaps lose others, by their association with man. They are less able to look out for themselves than in their wild state. But in every other respect we believe their intelligence is increased. They become partly humanized by their human associations, and would perhaps be more so if those caring for them had developed a higher human character. In nerve force will undoubtedly be found the supplementary secret of the greatest turf successes. The horse on a race-track takes as intelligent an interest in the result as do the spectators. The horse that has been most thoroughly trained has developed intelligence which adds to his muscular strength. He has learned the important art of all physical training, how to handle his whole body so as to produce the greatest effects from all muscular effort of which he is capable. Added to this is a determination to succeed, which to any observer must look wonderfully like human ambition, as if he had caught this by association with man.—Exchange.

EL RIO REY,

By Norfolk, dam Marion by Malcolm. The property of Theodore Winters, El Arroyo Stud, California.

Owing to the press on our columns last week, we were unable to add another California horse to the galaxy of talent then presented, but still one that has caused the name of California to be heralded from one end of the world to the other, deserved space in our picture gallery, and we now hasten to present to our readers the portrait of Mr. Winters' celebrated colt, El Rio Rey. In speaking of this great colt the New York Spirit of the Times says:—

"El Rio Rey is a bright chestnut, with a narrow blaze in his face extending over the nose, the near fore and both hind legs white. He has a beautifully expressive face and a large eye full of intelligence, large nostrils, long tapering ears, a round muzzle, high cheeks, an exquisite neck, full throttle, short from the throat latch to the breast, which is full but narrow, well inclined shoulders, a grand back and deep ribs closely coupled, and full flanks. His best and most striking point is his enormous quarters, which are as massive as those of a steer, and run away down full to the gaskin; his arms are very big and broad, and his legs are good, as are his feet. His worst point is his ankles, which are not the best. His action is rather slovenly and sluggish in his slow paces, but when extended is very taking and his propelling power enormous. In short, he is like his brother Emperor of Norfolk in style—enormous size, bone and substance joined to high quality. He is rather a prettier horse to the eye than the Emperor, his color being in his favor in that respect."

Every one of our readers is aware how the colt was brought to San Francisco to take part in the spring meeting of the Blood Horse Association, but it was deemed expedient to save him for his Eastern engagements. This was more particularly by the desire of Mr. McCormick, the trainer, who fancied that the colt was hardly at himself during the early spring months, and was rather dubious of the result. El Rio Rey has an unbroken record of victories, the performances being as follows:

San Diego Gossip.

Your State Fair edition is away ahead of anything ever seen on this coast. Dr. Aby looms up in great shape and looks even younger than when he was wont to expatiate upon the merits of Cannon Ball as a great thirty mile horse. It must be below zero when Aby does not come to time, and he scored a great beat by securing the front page for Imported Greenback.

The first County Fair of this new district is to be held at Escondido on the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th of next month. The people who have homes in this fertile valley are hustling to make the affair a big success. The track is almost completed. I am going there for the Union and will send you a detailed report.

San Diegans are very much elated over the success of Ben Hill, and a happy shout generally goes up when the news is flashed over the wires that Mikado has won another race.

Editor Waite of the bright and breezy San Diegan is one of the best posted men on trotting topics in the State. Mr. Waite is a great admirer of fast trotters and in former years reported many of the gallant struggles on the grand circuit. The San Diegan is not a gigantic paper, but its horse news is far ahead of any of the San Francisco dailies for accuracy.

Missoula Races.

Sept. 3, 1889.—The opening of the Missoula Fair and racing Association was greeted by a beautifully clear and sunny sky, and a stiff western wind. The breeze having cleared the atmosphere sufficiently, we are happily free from aching eyes caused by vainly trying to discern the colors and horses through the muck of smoke, as we have been here-to-fore on the circuit. The rain of a few days past, also aiding much in the good work by partially extinguishing the mountain fires.

This being the first annual meeting of this association it naturally was quite an auspicious event to the good folks of Missoula. The track is three miles from town, and the only mode of reaching it is by carriages, or the railroad, which runs one train each way daily—and leaves still a long walk to the gate. The grounds are very new, the carpenters hammers are still heard completing the pool stands.

A long row of roomy box stalls extends the full length of the grounds, immediately in the rear of the commodious grand stand.

Although the wind blows quite a gale, such efficient work has been accomplished by the watering cart that the annoying element, dirt, is in the minority.

The very excellent band comprised of sixteen colored men from the Missoula Fort is in attendance; the new music stand undoubtedly inspires them to do their best for indeed it would be a difficult task, to find more excellent music, than is discoursed by them.

The track itself is all a race-horseman can desire, as it is springy and fast, without being too hard, the homestretch is on a perceptible down grade, making a fast come-home.

The town by night is all light and music, licensed gambling-houses are running full blast, and the usual order of a western town during fair week prevails, fights and arrests being numerous. The "Florence," the principal hotel of Missoula, and headquarters of the horsemen, was filled to-night, and many familiar faces are to be seen in the reading room. Mr. Marcus Daly was prominent in one group; Tim Lynch of California, shone forth in another; Cris. Peterson, the owner of Jubilee, was expatiating oh some of the performances of his prodigy, much to the entertainment of his friends, who know he has a "good one" in Jubilee.

The first race of the meeting was a ⅝ dash. The horses all got a very even send off, but Bob Wade took the lead at the head of the stretch, and held it to within a few lengths of the wire, when Sunday forged ahead in his supreme style and won in 35½.

The second race was a ⅝ dash, with five starters. This was a great job, and such racing will do no credit to any Association. At first pools sold, Asa $15, Bingo $6 Nettie H. and Monte $2 respectively, but before the horses went to the post Bingo was a hot favorite, Asa bringing comparatively nothing. After the start she was never in the race, although she outclassed all her competitors. When the starter's flag fell all pulled up with the exception of Bingo, who was then well in the lead, and had the race won from the start.

The third race of the day was a trot for Missoula County green horses, with two entries. The first heat Sc'at Kaho took the lead at the pole and kept it by ten lengths until he came under the wire.

The second and third heats were repetitions of the first.

The fourth and last race was a walk-over for Blondie, for the Bitter Root Stakes for two-year-olds. Time, 3 min.

The second day, like its predecessor, is cold and windy, with a slim attendance and slow betting.

The first race was a ⅝ dash with six to go. Pools sold Jack Pot $45, Red Bird $15, Ladd $60, the field with Monte Bingo and Nellie H. bringing $30. After quite a delay at the post they finally got away well. Red Bird soon took the lead and won by a couple of lengths.

The second race was a dash of half a mile with three starters. Sunday won, with Kitten a good second.

The third race was the Derby, 1½ miles, three entries. Jubilee, in his usual style, took the lead at the start and held it to the finish.

The fourth race was a special for trotters, with three entries. In the first heat Lady Maud took the pole immediately after getting the word, and was never headed, winning easily without a skip

In the second heat Maud again took the lead, but broke at the quarter and was passed by Singleton. Both of the leaders took turns in breaking until they reached the last quarter, when Bishop came up trotting squarely and passed them both, but left his feet when close to the wire. The judges gave the heat to Hero.

The third heat was trotted much in the same style as the last one, Bishop Hero winning by downright good trotting.

The fourth heat was won by Lady Maud, and the race postponed until Thursday morning. Fourth and last heat of the race was won by Lady Maud, giving her the race.

The third day of the meeting was an improvement over the two first by being warm and pleasant, a slight increase in attendance, but betting still slow.

First race on the programme is ¾ dash, with three to face the flag. Kittie Van set the pace and was never headed, Roly Boly a good second.

Second race was a quarter run, with the usual number of three starters, Bob Wade who was favorite, ran neck and neck with Nettie S, but pulled away near the wire and won by half a length.

Race number 3 was a mile and a quarter dash, with another trio to start. Jubilee sold favorite in the pools. When the starter's flag went down Jubilee was soon at the lead and continued to set the pace to the end. Pilot ran second to the head of the stretch when Keeverna took his position from him and kept it.

Fourth race was a free for all, list 3 in 5, with four to sulkies, and Clatawa the pacer, to cart.

First Heat Clatawa took lead to the half when she went up, and was soon the fifth in the heat. Palatina broke at the first turn, but caught readily and came first under the wire.

Second heat they all got off well in first trial. Palatina and Fantasie competed for supremacy to the half mile when Palatina again got the heat, never making a break.

Third heat was a close contest. They were sent away at second score, Clatawa led to the ¾ when he broke, Fantasie and Palatina had a hot race home, but Palatina got there first, thus ending the race.

The fourth and last day was rather sparsely attended, being rather cold and windy. The first race on the programme was a mile handicap with four to start. Rolly Bolly sold favorite, and her backers were surprised to see Kee Vee Na come in victorious, with Rolly a good second.

The second race was a special half-mile dash, with four to go. Indian Tom bolted three times running to the quarter pole. They were finally got off with Tom in the lead, but he was soon overhauled by Red Bird, who won the race.

The third race was half mile heats, with three good ones. Rolly Bolly got away with the first heat, but Red Elm still sold favorite, and won the second heat. Kittie Van then went to the stable and Red Elm beat Rolly in the third heat, winning the race.

The fourth race was the novelty of the week, being a three mile race between Basil and Grass Valley. Grass Valley took the lead and ran ten lengths ahead of Basil for two miles and a half, when Basil suddenly gained upon him. Hazlett began riding at the eighth pole on Basil, and easily pulled ahead and won.

From Missoula.

The associations of Montana, have expressed themselves as being most desirous of uniting with and forming a part of the California circuit, especially Butte, Anaconda and Missoula are united in their petition for admission.

Mr. Sloan, the obliging and ambitious secretary, of the Missoula Association, also suggested that the Montana meetings convene earlier, giving an opportunity for the California horsemen to be represented here and still return in time for their home racing. Many Montana horses would then go that way instead of going East, as they now do, thus combining, there would be one grand Western Circuit.

Mr. Marshall, president of the Missoula Association, and Secretary Wynne, of Butte, are seriously agitating the question among those it most concerns, and expatiating on the beneficiary results to both race men and breeders.

Montana is closely following in the list of thoroughbred stock farms. The most extensive one in the State is owned by Mr. Marcus Daly, of Anaconda. He has a fine lot of trotting horses as well as thoroughbreds. Mr. Daly has spared no attention nor expense to make this enterprise a grand success.

Mr. Bielenberg, of Deer Lodge, is another prominent breeder. He owns Regent, by Bonnie Scotland. Regent is the sire of Montana Regent and Nevada, who started in nine races this circuit, and won eight of them. She is owned by Kuykendall and Baker.

Mr. Bielenberg is still in possession of her dam Miss Ella, who is a grand looking brood mare. He has a fine yearling filly of great promise, Carmen, and also a suckling both being full sisters of Nevada.

Mr. Kuykendall, of Helena, is devoting his time and money also to the industry, and has a fine lot of brood mares and colts, and has just sent a string of good ones East, some of which we may expect to hear from.

Mr. Larabie, of Deer Lodge, owner of the trotter Ranchero and many other good ones, has his own track on his farm and has shown up fast ones on the turf. He has recently sent a number of thoroughbred brood mares to Rancho del Paso to be bred.

This is only a partial list of many engaged in the business up this way. The climate being much colder and the warm season being short, it naturally is not conductive to the earlier development of colts, without much care and expense not to be met with in rearing fine blooded stock in California.

Notwithstanding these difficulties to be mastered by man over the elements, the breeding of fine stock is an estabiished and undoubted success in the State; and Montana, the home of Spokane, promises in the near future, to be a formible rival in the industry to Our Own California.

Would it not then show wisdom on our part to do all in our power to help Montana by working for her interests in making this proposed circuit, as the benefits would be mutual. What we do for her will still be a benefit to our own Circuit, and yet reflect a halo of philanthropic glory on our generosity.

Marion Biggs, Jr. has purchased 360 acres of land in South Theramalito, about two miles below Oroville. He has great plans for improving his new place. He intends to devote it largely to horse-breeding, and has already planned a mile speeding track.

The Record Union has the following, for which many thanks: "The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has a neat little booth, where sample copies of the papers are to be seen. That journal is now justly regarded as one of the foremost sportsmen's papers in the country."

Captain S. S. Brown, the wealthy Pittsburg turfman, has commenced suit against the New York Times to recover $100,000 for libel, in consequence of some severe comments in that paper on the running and management of his horses at the Monmouth Park meeting.

The Breeders Gazette volunteers the information that "the dam of Lillian Wilkes was not by Belmont, although she was said to be". It will be in order next week, to say that Sunol is not by Norfolk, or that the dam of Electioneer was not by Grinstead.

Hurrah for the Hearst Stable. It has won the "Great Eastern", one of the notable Coney Island Stakes, with Tournament by Sir Modred. But with the usual perspicacity, the stable backed King Thomas heavily, but my telegram does not say whether the selection has arrived at the wire yet or not.

D. L. Hall, superintendent of the Overland Jockey Club, Denver, Col., who has just returned from Montana and witnessed the late races there, said to a Denver reported: "Yolo Maid is a very fast mare. She is a wonder as a three-year-old, but in my judgment she can't beat one side of L. C. Lee in a race. Lee is a great horse, and I know of what I speak."

"What's the matter with Tournament winning the Great Eastern Handicap?" was asked in one of the pool-rooms yesterday. The answer was short and decisive. "Nothing, only he belongs to Senator Hearst." That settled it, and no one could be found to bet even a dollar on him.—Sporting World.

Charley Underhill, of Santa Rosa has returned from Kansas City whither he travelled some three weeks since. Mr Underhill was accompanied on his way back by what he thinks is one of the best youngsters in the country. He calls her Mrs. Underhill. Many happy days to you and yours, Charley.

Mr. W. H. Wilson of Abdallah Park, Cynthiana, Ky., has purchased from Edwin D. Bither of Bacine, Wis., the bay five-year old stallion Raymond, No. 6081, sired by Simmons, 2:28, dam Lady Raymond by Carlisle, 395; second dam by Dixie, son of Brown Dick; third dam by Edwin Forrest, No. 49. Raymond has a full brother in California called Raymon, that promises to be a fast horse; he has already shown miles in 2:25 this year.

Mr W. C. France has recently refused a cash offer of $60,000 for the brown stallion Wilton, by George Wilkes, dam Alley, by Hambletonian. His record is 2:19½, and raw, if any, of his get are old enough to have enhanced his fame. The price named seems an enormous one, but he has forty mares, at $500 each, booked to him for next season; he will earn, if he lives, several times $60,000 in a few years.

The gray gelding Sensation should soon win a race, says the Horseman. He can beat 2:20 three times away off, but is badly driven. His heat at Buffalo, when he carried Nelson to the wire, was one of the fastest trotted the season, which is, by long odds, the most phenomenal in the way of record-breaking that has ever been since a trotting horse first beat three minutes.

Budd Doble says that much of the succes this season of the five-year old trotter Jack is due to the fact that he was wintered in California, says the Breeders Gazette. Ever since Doble took Goldsmith Maid to the Pacific coast during the winter months and noted how she was improved and kept fresh by the sojourn in a mild climate he has been an entnusiastic advocate of the scheme, and last fall, after Jack had finished a hard campaign, he sent the gray across the continent with his other horses, George Starr having charge of the lot The pacer Johnston was also in the party, and the good that the trip did him has been shown by his fast miles this year. When the trotting in this part of the country is over the best horses in the Doble string will again go to California, and come back in the spring ready for business as soon as the money is hung up by the tracks hereabouts.

It seems that when Col. John W. Conley, of Chicago, asked young Williams if he would take $100,000 for Axtell he was talking in the interest of a couple of men who had decided to give that much for the Iowa phenomenon. Had the sale been made, Axtell would undoubtedly have gone into Budd Doble's Stable. Both Axtell and Allerton are now in Iowa, Allerton being lame from having hit himself in a race last week.

We have received the following letter, which speaks for itself:—

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Our Association has decided to declare off the fall meeting dated Oct. 8th to 12th, owing to the scarcity of water supply to put the track in proper condition before the racing season. Kindly make note of it. The track promises to be very fast, and we do not intend to have any drawback at our first meeting, hence our action. Respectfully yours,

F. W. TRULL,
Secretary V. J. C.

VALLEJO, Sept. 12th.

The associated press is nothing if not sensational. A recent telegram says that Mrs. Langtry has been interviewed in London, and that she is going into the horse breeding business very extensively on her California Stock Farm, and also adds the information that she has bought Hermit, to send to America. How any daily paper could publish such bosh is beyond any horseman's comprehension. As every Hermit filly is worth her weight in solid silver, I wonder how much Mrs. Langtry paid the Blankney Stud Farm for the old horse.

A farmer named Hilton, says the Savannah Republican, hired a very inexperienced boy to help him about the place. One morning he told the lad to go and salt the calf over in the pasture. The boy took about a quart of salt and rubbed it all over the calf, working it into the hair. A gang of colts in the pasture scented the salt and got after the calf. They licked the hair all off the calf's back and tried to lick the hide off, too. The farmer tried to catch the calf to wash it, but the creature, thinking he wanted to lick too, kept out of his way. The boy, calf and farmer are all unhappy. The colts are the only ones that got any fun out of it.

are getting in their work at San Pedro, N. M., the following being from the local paper. "The horse race the other day was a fake. If the boys put up jobs on each other and keep it among themselves all well, but they mustn't try to play the general public for Chinamen. Mr. Barton was greatly annoyed at the way Dandy was jockeyed, and did his best to prevent any betting. It is dead wrong, but we will give the boys another chance, and mention no names, but if there is any more of it we will roast the perpetrators unsparingly. Square sport we can't get enough of, but we won't have flimbo such as we got upon this occasion."

There are strange events happen at race meetings some times. When Victor won at Santa Rosa, Andy McDowell had been backing one of the other horses in the rece, not thinking that Victor could win. When requested to take the reins in the fifth heat, he did so, and won with the Hayseed horse in three straight heats, but he lost his money that was in the box, all the same. Two weeks ago at Oakland, the same thing was repeated, Andy was up behind Direct, and Johnny Goldsmith was backing the black colt, when he was requested t take the seat behind Victor. Johnny drove the race out, and Victor won, but as in Andy's case, he lost money by winning. I wonder how many of the drivers throughout the country would have done the same thing.

A Scotch paper (the Aberdeen Free Press) gives the following interesting statement: "The stock of ponies in Shetland is running very low. Mares, formerly obtainable at from 50s. to 80s. cannot be had to-day at much under £10 to £12. The average size of a Shetland pony is 44 inches. If they are higher than that they are not so valuable; but the highest prices are obtainable for those that are only 40 inches or under, those being scarce and much sought after. A good many years ago Sir Anthony Nicholson, Fetlar, introduced an Arab stallion into Orkney, which he crossed with the native mares. The product was a large pony, very hardy, swift and active, but too big, except for some purposes.

Recent investigations in France go to prove that the horse has no ear for music and only a very slight understanding of time and military signals. Several circus men confessed to the investigators that they had never seen a horse with musical instincts. The popular delusions that a trained horse occasionally waltzes in time to music, they said, was unsupported by experience. The music was always played to suit the step of the horse, which was regulated by signs from the trainer. Most war horses were found to pay little attention to a signal for a charge save when aroused by the significant movements of a rider. A troop of fearless cavalry horses were unmoved by martial trumpet calls. Altogether the investigations concerning horses on the field of battle went to prove that the traditionally intelligent war-horse could not make a correct movement in a fight save under the rider's guidance.

I can readily believe that the sporting editors who are holding up the time of the great Axtell to beat, would almost fall paralyzed if such a thing should occur. From New Orleans on the South to the Twin Cities on the North, the editor (like Uriah Heap) rubs his hands with invisible soap and water, after he has written "Sunol and Lillian Wilkes are sad disappointments, Axtell with the record of 2:14 etc". Still it is just within the bounds of possibility that both of them may touch or surpass Axtel's mark before the season closes, and listen to this: I know a gentleman who before the month closes may challange both of them, and Axtell will be acceptable company, if each will put up $2,500 or $5,000 a corner; and the unknown only a three year old at that.

On Saturday evening last, the members of the Porterville (Tulare County) Blood Horse Association, held a meeting in the Enterprise office for the purpose of discussing the question of a fall meeting this year. There were present the following officers, in addition to a large number of members: Captain Hayes, president; L. J. Redfield, vice-president; S. J. W. Tyler, treasurer; J E. Shuey, secretary, and directors W. H. Hall and M. B. Crawford. After a few well appointed remarks, by the president as to the success of the July meeting, and the reading of several letters from strangers who had taken part in our first races, asking what the prospects were for another meeting, it was unanimously decided to hold a race meeting about the last week in October, and a committee of five—C. S. O'Bannon, L. J. Redfield, M. B. Crawford, We A. Hall and J. E. Shuey—was appointed to take the matter in hand and visit the merchants and prominent citizens of the town for the purpose of ascertaining what kind of a purse can be offered to induce outside racing men to enter their horses.—(Porterville Enterprise)

SACRAMENTO.

A large throng congregated in the Park early on Saturday and an hour before the parade commenced were busy wandering among the cattle in the centre of the track, idling among the horses or lounging on the stands. At 10 o'clock sharp the Artillery Band commenced playing and Marshal Cox started the parade, which was conceded on all sides to be one of the best ever witnessed at the State Fair. The horse department was so well filled that when strung out it reached a furlong over a mile. The parade was led by a good looking gray team of E. M. Leitch's, then a serviceable pair of black geldings, the property of E C. Fortier. Seven other teams were shown, including A. L. Nichols' nicely matched bay browns and J. L. Clark's Fallis colts

The buggies were led by E. C. Oppenheim's chestnut roadster, followed by twelve useful looking horses, the most noticeable among which were S, C. Tryon's two year old Magister, a standard bred horse who trotted at the Capital Turf Club meeting in the spring; M. Storn's bay roadster, L. Whitmore's two year old, and Chas. Welby's chestnut. The sulky brigade was headed by W. W. Coomb's black four year old Lady M. In the procession were Worth Ober behind Stoneman, a good looking brown, Matt Storn guiding his big two year old Belvidere, by Le Grand, E. H. Miller's Arabella, A. D. Miller's Western, Old Berlin, as lovely and playful as a kitten, Wilber Smith holding the lines over a good looking two year old by Dawn, Edward Tannant driving a slashing black filly four years old, called Lizette, by Abdallah Wilkes dam Musette Chas. Scott with Wilkes Pasha, 2618, a beautiful dark bay, over 16 hands high, and an ideal of the trotter. He is by Onward, 1411, dam Fasher, by American Clay, 34; W. A. French, handling a nice bay two year old, T. C. Snider with his brown stallion Corsair, W. R. Merrill behind Clarence Wilkes, F. H. Burke's Daylight, two or three Norman's, B. C. Holly's two year old Kaffir, Jim McDonald steering Fedora, W. Vigoet with a happy smile as he drove Eros (Mr. Burke's handsome Electioneer stallion), J. A. McCloud's Mount Vernon, G. W. Woodward' Alexander Button, Jr., Jim Sullivan with Belle A., Lige Downer and L. Almont, Banta behind Rosa M., and a host of others whipped by the handsome pacing stallion Creole, who astonished the talent at Napa.

Immediately following the wheels was Dr. C. W. Aby, on a cobby looking horse with a J. C. brand on his quarters, carrying the Guenoe Stud Farm's superintendent. All eyes were turned on the three horses following in his wake. St. Saviour, a big slashing bay, led the van; his shining coat and commanding appearance made him a general favorite; he is a full brother to Eole, being by Eolus, out of War Song, and was one of the few survivors of the memorable railroad accident at Sholola Glen. Greenback, a compact, short-legged brown, with splendid shoulders, good back and powerful quarters, a good set of legs, and sound as a dollar all over, was selected by most of the connoisseurs as one of the best thoroughbreds on the ground. He is an imported horse by Dollar out of Music, by Stockwell, one of England's great brood mares. Friar Tuck (the Langtry Farm's entry) was eagerly looked over on account of his relationship to Gorgo, Faustine and Flambeau. He is full brother to their dam, Flirt, being a son of Hermit, the greatest living sire in the world, out of Romping Girl, by Wild Dayrell. He was not so much admired as either of the other two, although he came in for a good deal of praise for his handsome bearing. Mr. Aby also had a big, good looking yearling chestnut colt by Rutherford, dam Leveret by Lever. W. L Pritchard exhibited Lizzie Dunbar, one of the handsomest thoroughbred brood mares on the coast, and also Lizzie P. The former had a good looking filly foal by Sir Modred at her side, and a grand yearling by Darebin well deserved compliments on his appearance and conformation. B. C. Holly fell into line with a fine brood mare with a splendid bay Woodnut colt alongside. The mare is by Albert W., dam by Echo. A bay yearling colt (by Stamboul out of an Echo mare) who resembles his sire to a marked degree; Woodside, a good looking chestnut yearling colt, by Woodnut, dam by Echo, and his celebrated mule "John Mackey," by Geo. Washington, dam by Echo. Chas. Boots had several representatives in the thoroughbred class. The Cook Farm exhibited four of their well known Cleveland Bays, and the procession was whipped in by Clydes, Percherons, jacks and mules. F. C. Chalmers had six head of grand animals in the Percheron Class, led by a six year old gray mare, who must tip the beam at close to nineteen hundred; a yearling black colt, two two year old fillies, a two year old stallion and a compact, short-legged brown three year old stallion. James Harrison, of Salinas, had a big, strong, active representative in the Clydesdales in a lightish bay stallion with a good intelligent head, good shoulders, strong back and legs with plenty of bone and the characteristic hairy fetlocks.

The cattle parade was then started, Durhams leading the van. The first lead was Col. Younger's Forest Home herd, with eighteen head. Each individual has been a winner in the ring, The old bull who led the way and the roan were very much admired. The latter is very good all over, except behind the shoulders, where he is very hollow.

The second herd, sixteen in number, were entered by P. S. Chiles, Davisville, led by Kirklevington Oxford Count, and all showed up in good condition. P. Peterson's twenty head were led by Councellor, a twenty-five hundred pound bull. J. M. Mansfield exhibited a big heavy bull, and J. A. Brewer a useful looking two-year-old.

Joe Marzen's eight head followed. Kaweah Duke 2d was in front of the herd; he is a magnificent bull, weighing 2,400 pounds, by Henrietta Duke out of Miss Leslie 4th. The best of the remainder was a grand four-year-old heifer, Amelia Lonan, who is a typical shorthort, close to the ground, and in grand condition. She is in calf for the first time, weighing rather over 1,500 pounds. The others were in very good order, and favorably impressed the on-looker.

William Jacobs' eleven head followed in fair trim. Five head of E. S. Drivers and eleven from Cal. Past and Agricultural Society's herd in Merced. T. G. Baty had three and R. J. Merkley eleven useful animals.

Messrs. Prewitt & Goff, who have over a hundred head outside the track, has thirty-one fine looking ones in the Parade, and Heilbron Bros. had eighteen Shorthorns and ten Herefords. The Shorthorns were headed by 2d Earl of Aberdeen, a good red bull, who is a pure Cruickshank. The next (probably the best Shorthorn bull on the ground) was 28th Grand Duke of Gloster, by imp. Double Gloster, out a Renicke cow; he is a splendid bull, with a good masculine head, wide level back and close to the ground; he is only two years old, but is very powerful, and in excellent condition, with fat laid on evenly all over him. Earl of Aylesby 2d is a nice appearing red, with a little white here and there, by 2d Earl of Aberdeen, out of Telluria Welcome, who has in her a good deal of the Booth blood, which is celebrated all over the world for its beef qualities; the yearling roan bull has a grand pedigree, backed up by good looks. Mayflower 3d is a descendant of Duke of Devonshires; likely backed up with several good Bates crosses, she is a good, hard, roan three-year-old heifer. Walter Sparkle is another roan, having generous mixture of Booth and Bates blood running through her veins; she is five years old.

Henry Vaughan's twelve head of Hersfords which followed caused general excitement by their appearance and splendid condition. Their white faces, rich red coats, wide level backs, deep expansive chests and short legs and general activity, despite their tremendous proportions, making them friends everywhere.

R. McEnespy's seven Devons looked good, hardy cattle, in nice trim. J. E. Camp had six good Polled Angus that were rather thrown in the shade by Dr. Dixon's celebrated Argonaut herd, which were as sleek and trim as could be.

The Interstate Galloway Cattle Company's entry were close up with nineteen head, principally Galloways.

Holsteins were represented by three large entries, G. B. Polhemus leading the way with twenty-four head, followed by Senator Stanford's Vina Ranch herd, also twenty-four strong, and Frank Burke's La Siesta herd, with twenty-two. All were in excellent trim, and milk should be cheap in Sacramento while they are in the vicinity.

Geo. Bement's twelve Ayrshires received very favorable notice from the spectators. Jerseys brought up the rear of the best cattle parade ever seen in California. H. S. Sargent had twelve, A. L. Nichols ten, W. C. Smith eight, P. C. Anderson five, and F Warren two.

In the pens at the H Street end of the track, sheep, goats, swine and poultry are suitably located. The sheep exhibits, although few in number, were all of high class Andrew Smith, of Redwood, has twenty good Shropshires. Royal Duke, an aptly named ram, was brought from England by Mr. Vaughan with five ewes, which are exhibited; they all came from the flock of Mr. Farmer, one of the most noted breeders of England, having been almost invincible at the Royal and Yorshire shows. The others exhibited are all by Royal Duke, from imported ewes. T. F. Bullard has thirty-five Spanish Merinoes, J. H. Glide nine good Shropshires and twenty-five French Merinoes.

T. H. Harlan shows twenty Angora goats; last year he took every premium, this time C. P. Bailey, of San Jose, has twenty-six from his Monterey ranch. Mr. Bailey is one of the largest owners of goats in America, having over ten thousand head in Nevada, Mariposa and Monterey counties, but owing to the depressed trade in mohair, does not exhibit as much as usual.

Swine are very well represented, Andrew Smith having a large entry. Model Duke, a two and a half year-old boar, weighing 950 pounds, was brought from the East for Mr. Smith by H. Vaughan at a cost of $750, having as a yearling beaten all the crack Berkshires in the East. There are also in Mr. Smith's entry two good sows, with eight and seven young pigs, two grand gilts Redwood Sallie and Redwood Duchess, a yearling boar by imp. Redwood, who was bought from Swanneck's Cirencester farm, two yearling gilts and two six months old gilts, a fine six months old boar by Baronet, and a nice litter of six by Peploe. Mr. Smith also exhibits five Poland Chinas.

J. McFarling has in Berkshires three boars, a sow, a sow and a litter of six and two gilts under a year old, very good specimens of their class. T. C. Waite, Redwood, has two good boars, a sow, two young sows, two gilts and three small pigs, all Berkshires. W. Jacobs exhibits thirteen Berkshires, including two tremendous sows.

J. Melvin has twenty-five good Poland Chinas. Essex are well represented by Geo. Bement's thirteen, including a mammoth boar, and P. Shepper's yearling boar and son, with two lively youngsters.

In the poultry department, H. L. Nichols has a fine display of Leghorns and Hamburgs, with three Pekin ducks. The Sacramento poultry Yard has a large entry of Bantams, Leghorns, Black Spanish, Cochins, Brahmas, Plymouth Rocks and Guinea fowls. W. Jacobs has some good specimen of Langshans and Wyandottes. T. C. Waite has a good entry of Plymouth Rocks, Brahmas, Houdans Polish, Hamburgs and others, including a pen of very pretty black-breasted red game bantams. G. Trefzer exhibits Cochins, Houdans and Wyandottes. W. Tracy, Wyandottes; Messrs. Miller and Bates have each three Torlouse geese.

Judging commenced on Monday morning. In the Thoroughbred department W. M. Williamson, Col. Mayhew and Henry Walsh officiated, and after a careful and critical examination placed Imported Greenback first Friar Tuck second, leaving St. Savior in the cold. The winner, Greenback, was certainly entitled to the premium as he has proved himself a race horse, while his breeding is exceptional. The fast bay Middleton blood, intermingled with Stockwell, should prove valuable here. Friar Tuck's reputation is based on the fact that he is brother to Flirt, the dam of Gorgo, Faustine and Flambeau, and consequently is a son of Hermit, the best living sire in the world.

St. Savior is rather too leggy, while his shoulders might be better.

In Shippee's King Ban colt walked over for the two-year-olds; and though he should race, he is too big and leggy to do much good as a youngster. The first in yearlings was given to Mr. Shippee's Longfellow, Carrie Phillips, a good-looking bay, who shows more quality all over than the second one of the sturdy, useful-looking colts, a son of Darebin and Lizzie Dunbar. Broodmares was readily won by Lizzie Dunbar, who has ripened into one of the best looking matrons in the country. Mr. Haggin's cast-off Annie Laurie won in four and over mares, Nerva second, and Lizzie P. was overlooked.

Two-year-old fillies was an easy win for Farsalara, who is a deceiver, good-looking all over, but not much good on the track.

In yearlings the Shippee entry was one, two with two Falsettos.

Normans and Percherons were small in number and quantity, F. D. Chandler having the only good entry.

Clydesdales were poorly represented. The second prize horse was more of a true Clyde than the winner in the stallion class.

Draft horses other than Clydes, etc., were a very hard lot to judge. Merkley's entries were very good, and he got away with most of the money.

Horses of all work were very hard to separate in the stallion class, thoroughbreds, and trotters being entered, Ferncliffe eventually getting the ribbon. Mules, Jacks, etc., were only noticeable by the amusement created by Holly's historic mule.

CATTLE.

In Holsteins Americans a hard struggle was made all through by the three heads. F. H. Burke, although not the most successful, can be congratulated on the fact that he has improved the other herds by selling some of his choice stock to them in former years. His aged bull won first prize, but in the herd premium he was beaten by S. Polhemus, while the Vina Ranch was to the fore several times. Ayrshires and Devons produced no competition, but Galloway and Angus premiums were fought out to the end by the Suterstall Argonaut herd and J. Camps.

Racing.

The racing part of the State Fair began upon Thursday, Sept. 12th, in the presence of a good crowd. Good crowds indeed were the rule of the first week, the attendance averaging away above the attendance upon similar days of last year. Everybody knows what the programme was. Good contests of speed and fast time have been the result as an opening feature. Sunol made her walk over in the Occident Stakes, going the circle in 2:16½, the quarters being 0:34, 1:09, 1:43, 2:16½. Marvin drove the filly. She tired perceptibly on the straight, but a few light taps from the whip gave her an impetus which carried her under the wire in the time mentioned above, trotting strong.

When the cheering over Sunol's work had ceased, the 2:30 Class came out. They were W. F. Smith's blk g Thapsin, G. A. Doherty's b h Victor, Pleasanton Stock Farm's b g Homestake and Marcus Daly's b s Senator. The hayseed bay, on account of his previous bruising races, was named to win by the talent, and when the pool box opened, he sold for $70, Thapsin going at $55, Senator at $20, and Homestake at $25.

First Heat—The crowd were sent away well bunched, Victor leading on the first turn Senator lost his feet, and just before they reached the quarter Homestake lost his feet as well. At the quarter Victor lead Thapsin by an open length. Going down the backstretch Thapsin crawled up to Victor inch by inch, and when they got to the half was at his wheel. Half way around the second turn they were wheel to wheel. Senator and Homestake were fifteen lengths behind, both breaking continually. Victor and Thapsin came on together at a clipping gait until they reached the drawgate, when Victor lost his feet under the pressure, and Thapsin came in winner by half a length. Senator was back ten lengths. Homestake ran almost the entire mile and was distanced. Time, 2:24½

Second Heat—Thapsin was at once made favorite in the pools, selling at $40 against $23 for Victor and $8 for Senator. Around the first turn they trotted well together and at the quarter Thapsin led with Senator lapping him and Victor close up. Victor broke just past the quarter and gave Thapsin a good lead. A second break put him four lengths behind at the half, Senator still on Thapsin's wheel. When they entered the straight the positions were unchanged, except that Senator had reached Thapsin's head. Down the straight they came together, but half way home, when he stood a fair chance of winning, Senator lost his feet and Thapsin went in, placing a second heat to his credit, Senator finishing at his wheel, Victor six lengths away. Time, 2:22½.

Third Heat—Both Senator and Victor broke on the first turn, but Victor lost little and when Thapsin, in front, got to the quarter, Victor was at his shoulder. On the backstretch Victor held on, and at the half he was still at Thapsin's shoulder, Senator coming four lengths back. Going into the second turn Victor again broke, and before they reached the straight went off his feet a second time, giving Thapsin an open length the lead. They entered the straight this way, Senator two lengths from them. Down the straight both Senator and Victor fought hard for the heat, but Victor broke and Senator was not fast enough, and Thapsin going steadily, took the third heat and the race, Senator a length behind, second, and Victor two lengths, third. Time, 2:22.

Pacing—2:30 Class.

The above event for a purse of $600 had as starters Johnson's b g Edwin C., A. C. Dietz's b s Longworth, Jno. Patterson's blk m Princess Alice, J. L. McCord's blk g Ned Winslow, G. M. Woodward's br m Belle Button and B. C. Holly's ch g Frank. As has been the case all through the circuit, it was a long, hard fought race and fell at last to an outsider.

First Heat—J. R. Hodgsin's gr g Johnnie Skelton was to have started, but after scoring a few times he was taken to the stable lame. It was with much difficulty that the six starters were sent off, but when they did get the bell, Belle Button shot away in front and at the quarter she lead, Princess Alice off her feet in second place, Frank third, Winslow fourth and Longworth and Edwin C. behind. On the backstretch there was a general see-saw of positions and when Belle Button reached the half, Winslow was at her head, Frank was two lengths back and Princess Alice four lengths with Longworth and Edwin C. with her. On the second turn the positions were unchanged. In the straight Ned Winslow caught Belle and Frank after making one or two gaining breaks reached her wheel. Winslow made a slight break at the drawgate. Frank passed Belle and made for the leader. Both broke and went under the wire in a gallop, Winslow first by a length, Frank second. Belle Button third, Princess Alice fourth, Edwin C. fifth, and Longworth sixth. Frank was set back to fourth place for running. Time, 2:18.

Second Heat—By this time the pool boxes which had been closed by the police were reopened, and the betting became lively, Ned Winslow going at $50. Longworth $25, and the field $50. There was a series of scores which lasted twenty minutes before they could be sent off to anything like a decent start. Winslow made a skip just after leaving the wire. Around the turn he was in front and at the quarter he was first, Princess Alice at his wheel, Longworth lapping her wheel, Belle Button fourth, and Edwin C. trailing. Winslow reached the half with the Princess hanging on, Longworth a length back, Belle Button four lengths away. There was no change on the turn but when the race home in the straight began, Longworth put out a burst of speed and got up to Winslow's head. The black got the whip heavily, but Longworth outspeeded him and went under first by a length, Princess Alice third, Frank fourth, Belle Button fifth and Edwin C. sixth. Frank was away behind at the go and never made a showing until he got into the straight when he paced home at a two minute gait. Time for the heat, 2:19¼.

Third Heat.—The field was made favorite at $25 to $18 for Longworth and $10 for Ned Winslow. Half an hour was consumed this time in scoring, Frank and Princess Alice persistently coming up behind and delaying the start. It was not until the judges threatened to fine both drivers that they would score up at all. When the word came Longworth went away around the turn in front, and when they were straightened out at the quarter he led, with Belle Button on his wheel, Winslow two lengths third, Edwin C. fourth, Princess Alice fifth and Frank sixth. On the backstretch they bunched, and at the half Longworth and Belle Button were head and head in the lead, Edwin C. and Ned Winslow going like a team two lengths back. On the second turn Edwin C. and Winslow went up on either side of Belle Button, and at the three-quarter post the three were abreast, Longworth leading them by a length. Belle Button quit. Edwin C. caught Longworth at the drawgate, and between them there was one of the hottest finishes ever seen on the track. Goldsmith who was piloting Longworth and Hickok who was driving Edwin C. punished their horses terribly, shaking them up, shouting and lashing with their whips. Edwin C. held his gait and when Longworth tired under the hot work, Edwin C. passed him and finished first by three-quarters of a length, Winslow getting a poor third, Frank fourth, Princess Alice fifth and Belle Button sixth. Time, 2:18½.

Fourth Heat—It was growing late when they were called out for the fourth. Edwin C. was installed now as favorite, selling at $25, the field bringing $15 and Longworth $12. They were sent off with Longworth in the lead, and at the quarter it was Longworth, Edwin C, Ned Winslow, Frank, Belle Button and Princess Alice in the order named about a length apart. Edwin C. and Longworth were the only ones in the heat, and they fought it out between them. On the backstretch Edwin C. caught the bay, and on the second turn passed him and lead him into the straight by a length. Goldsmith punished his horses severely, but the race was over at the drawgate and Edwin C. won the heat by two length, Belle Button finishing third, Ned Winslow fourth, Princess Alice fifth and Frank sixth. Time 2:20¾.

The finish of the race was then postponed to 12 o'clock the next day. The betting during the night did not materially change. In the fifth and last heat Edwin C. took the lead at the start closely followed by Frank, Longworth third. The positions were never changed Edwin C. taking the heat and race in 2:19½.

Friday, Sept. 13th.

Friday was the first runner's day, and there was a large and enthusiastic crowd out to see some truly good sport. The initial event was the introduction stake for two-year-olds, three-quarters of a mile.

Running ¾ mile.

The starters were Palo Alto's ch c Flambeau, Palo Alto's b c Racine, Kelly & Samuels' b c Pliny, W. M. Murry's ch c Kiro, and J. W. Donathan's ch c Hubert Earl. The Palo Alto stable was barred in the betting, and pools were sold for place only, Pliny bringing $50 against $30 for the field. Dr. C. W. Aby held the red flag, and with very little trouble sent them away to a good start. Kiro jumped off in front, with Hubert Earl and the pack at his heels. Pliny came out of the crowd and at the half Hubert Earl and Kiro were together, Racine and Flambeau two lengths behind. In these positions they went half way around the turn and then the Palo Alto colts closed up and went around to the straight nicely bunched. Well into the straight Racine went to the front, followed closely by Flambeau, and the pair came on home, finishing easy, Racine half a length in front of Flambeau, Pliny third. Time, 1:15¾.

Appleby's c c Wild Oats. Pools opened at $60 for G. W., $57 for Louis P., $42 for Picnic, and $30 for Wild Oats. Another good send-off was given, Wild Oats and G. W. going away in front. As they passed the wire and strung out on the first turn, Wild Oats, Louis P., G. W. and Picnic was the order, all a length apart. These positions were maintained to the second turn, where they bunched, coming into the straight with Louis P. slightly in front. Before they got to the seven-eighths post Wild Oats and Picnic had passed up upon either side of Louis P., and then as the whips began to crack Picnic went away from the crowd as if they were oxen, and won by three open lengths, Louis P. second and Wild Oats third. When the flag went down, Alfarata was in front and came down the straight and into the turn half a length in front, Hello leading the crowd. At the quarter Lurline showed out of the crowd and got into second place, while Hello went back into the nick who were headed by Ali. Alfarata and Lurline stayed in front to the three-quarters, but as they entered the straight, Peel showed out from the crowd and came home at a clip that put him in first place at the drawgate. A $300 selling purse closed the day. The starters were J. E. Fallon's br s Birdcatcher, H. H. Hobb's b c Duke Spencer, Matt Storn's ch g Forrester, G. W. Trahern's b h Dave Douglas and Ben Hill's ch g Mikado, pools selling Duke Spencer $80, Mikado, $50, field $30. Starter Aby had a deal of trouble in sending them away, Forrester and Birdcatcher both acting badly, and when the flag fell Forrester made a dash across the track and fouled Dave Douglas, causing him to get off eight lengths to the lead. Duke Spencer got away well in front, and as they went around the first turn he led by a length, Birdcatcher second, Mikado third, the other two back. Mikado closed up his gap on the backstretch, and at the half was head and head with Spencer. They went around the turn together, Mikado drawing away at the head of the straight. Spencer got the whip as the gelding passed him, but he could not respond. Dave Douglas came very fast on the straight, and when Mikado went under the wire winner of the heat, Douglas was two lengths second, Birdcatcher third, Duke Spencer fourth, and Forrester fifth. Time, 1:44¼.

Second Heat—There was a heavy chop in the pools, and Mikado was made favorite at $60 against $12 for Spencer and $15 for the field. Mikado jumped off in front and was never headed. Duke Spencer and Dave Douglas see-sawed in second place close up all around, Forrester running fourth. Mikado won easily, Dave Douglas getting second and Duke Spencer third. Time, 1:44.

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 14th.

The first race of the day was a two-old-old trotting race, in which Palo Alto's b c Pedlar, by Electioneer, dam Penelope by Mohawk Chief, driven by Marvin; B. E. Harris' br f Lorena, by Jim Mulvenna, dam by Elmo, driven by Shaner; Valensin's stock Farm's b f Fleet by Sydney, dam Flight, driven by Dustan, and William Corbett's b c Regal Wilkes by Guy Wilkes, dam Margaret by Sultan, driven by Goldsmith, started.

First Heat.—In the pool box Regal Wilkes sold favorite at $25 to $20 for Lorena, $15 for Fleet and $12 for Pedlar. The first heat was taken by Fleet. She went off in the lead, with Regal Wilkes on her wheel. Padlar broke on the first turn and when they passed the quarter it was Fleet first by a length. Regal Wilkes second, Pedlar and Lorena back four lengths. Just past the the quarter Lorena broke, and a few yards farther Pedlar, lost his feet and both were out of the heat. Fleet came on, leading Regal Wilkes by two open lengths. On the straight Goldsmith made a great effort to carry Wilkes to the front, but failed, and Valensin's filly won the heat by an open length, Regal Wilkes second, Lorena a poor third. Pedlar ran from the half home and was distanced. Time 2:28½.

Second Heat—Before the second heat pools sold; Fleet $70, Regal Wilkes $22, Lorena $19. Fleet again went off in the lead, but going unsteady, Wilkes in second place, Lorena third. Down the backstretch Fleet was on her toes all the way. As they turned the half Lorena began to move up, and at the half had caught Regal Wilkes. She then made a play for the lead, and half way around the second turn was at Fleet's head. Fleet broke, and from there home Lorena had it all her own way. Regal Wilkes passed Fleet at the head of the straight, and they came home at an easy gait. Lorena first in a jog, Regal Wilkes second, Fleet third. Time, 2:30¼.

Third Heat—After the second heat Lorena was made the favorite, selling at $100 to $30 for Regal Wilkes and $25 for Fleet. When they were sent off after a few scores Lorena took the lead, Regal Wilkes second, Fleet behind. These positions were never altered. Lorena was three lengths in front when they entered the straight. Goldsmith made one effort with Wilkes, but the filly was too far in front and going too steadily for him. Fleet was away back and finished ished at the distance post, Dustin whipping her hard to get her in. Time; 2:31¼.

THE PACIFIC STALLION STAKE.

First Heat—Direct won the first heat of the stallion stake, 2:21 class, in a jog. He sold at $200, Bay Rose $40, Ross S. $11. Ross led to a good start, with Direct close on his wheel, and Rose in a bad break many lengths behind. Half way down the backstretch Rose was up again. Direct pressed Ross off his feet at the half post and assumed the lead, retaining it to the finish. Ross broke within 100 feet of the wire and took third place, Rose second. Time, 2:29¾.

Second Heat—There was a rush for the favorite at the pool box, Direct selling at $100 and the field at $20. Rose made the circuit hot for Direct, who won by a length. Ross broke on the first turn and down the homestretch, barely saving his distance. Direct was a length ahead at the quarter, but was only a nose to the best at the half, when Rose quit and fell back. Hickok sent Rose ahead on the homestretch, finishing a good second. Time, 2:23½.

Third Heat—Direct was beyond price in the pools before the third heat. Dustin went up behind Bay Rose, put there at the request of Hickok. Direct won with little effort, Ross making a good race until half way down the stretch, where he broke and ran in under the wire, when it was seen that his breeching had burst. Time, 2:20.

2:30 Class—Trotting.

First Heat—Six starters showed up in the 2:30 class trot for $1 000. Rex was the favorite at $100, Byron $45, field $80. In the latter were Rabe, Margaret S., Alfred G. and Pink. Rex broke at the first turn. Margaret S. was two lengths ahead of Alfred G. at the quarter, Pink and Byron strung out behind. Byron did good work on the stretch, where he was a close second. He went off his feet when nearing the wire. Margaret S. won by a length, Byron second, Alfred G. third, Pink, Rex and Rabe in the order named. Time, 2:19¼.

Second Heat—After several attempts the horses had a fair send off, but Atto Rex, the favorite, got in a pocket at the turn, and had to pull out on the turn to get an opportunity to forge ahead. Margaret S. led to the quarter in 35 seconds, Lord Byron second, Atto Rex third. At the three-eighths pole Lord Byron passed Margaret S, and led at the quarter in 1:09¾. On the upper turn Atto Rex went to second place, and forced out Lord Byron in the fast time of 2:18; Alfred G. third, Margaret S. fourth, Pink fifth, and Rabe bringing up in the rear.

Third Heat—For the third heat Lord Byron was the favorite at $100, Atto Rex $60 and field $16. They were off on the third score with Lord Byron first at the quarter, and Atto Rex second. Lord Byron broke near the half, and let Margaret S. lead. Up the backstretch nearly all broke, but Margaret S. steadied the quickest, and led Atto Rex at the three-quarters. Byron went up in the stretch, and Margaret S. came very fast, and beat Atto Rex out at the wire by two lengths, with Alfred G. third.

Fourth Heat. Prior to the fourth heat the field jumped to favorite at $125, Byron $127 and Rex $64. In the fourth heat Margaret led at the quarter, Alto Rex second, Alfred and Byron following. The three last named horses broke simultaneously, giving Margaret a great opportunity to increase her lead. She did so, and it looked as though she would never be reached. Byron, however, settled down, and in the stretch showed a great burst of speed and finished neck and neck at the wire with Margaret. The judges gave the horse the heat, and a cry of dissatisfaction arose. At best, the heat was a dead one, especially as the mare trotted flat during the entire mile, while the horse varied the monotony by running, even when under the wire. Time, 2:19½. Owing to the darkness, the race was postponed until Monday.

At the conclusion of the running races on Monday the horsemen were called up for the Fifth Heat. Pools sold, field $50, Lord Byron, $37 50, Alto Rex, $21. After a few scorings the horses had a very good send-off. Margaret and Lord Byron led to the quarter almost side by side in :35½, with Rex close on their wheels. These positions were maintained to the half in 1:09. On the upper turn Rex went to the second place. Lord Byron had the race at all times, from the score to the finish, and jogged under the wire an easy winner by two lengths from Alto Rex in the fast time of 2:18.

At the three-quarter post Louis P. went to the front, but Lurline soon passed him in a spurt and won by a length from Louis P., Songstress third and Alfarata fourth. Time, 1:49½.

After several attempts, in which Raindrop behaved badly, the colts had a good send off, Jessie C. taking the lead and keeping it to the end of the race, winning by a length from Marigold; Raindrop, the favorite, third, Eda bringing up the rear.

TUESDAY.

Another good crowd was in. The day was exceedingly warm, the track fast. On the card the first event was the Three-year-old Trot.

First Heat—Only Palo Alto's Sunol and Pleasanton's Margaret S. started, and Sunol was so great a favorite that there was no pool selling on the contest. Margaret S. had the pole; they got the word to a head and head start. Sunol took first place on the turn and at the quarter was a head in front. At the half there was a length of daylight between them, which was never closed, Sunol winning in a jog in 2:20¼.

Second Heat—Another walkover for the Palo Alto filly. She lead from the wire, going with that smooth gait peculiar to her, and finished easy by a length in front of Margaret in 2:21¾.

Third Heat—The heat was a repetition of the preceding ones except that Marvin had received instructions to speed the mare a little. He let her go the three-quarters at a fair clip and then came down the straight with a burst of speed. Once or twice he encouraged her with the whip and she finished just a little tired in 2:18, Margaret S. within a length of her, winning for herself a race record in the notch of her two-year-old record against time.

Trotting—2:20 Class.

The real sport of the day began when the starters for the above event came out. They were Davis & Co.'s blk g Franklin, G. A. Doherty's bh Victor, B. C. Holly's b g Valentine, E. B. Gifford's blk g Don Tomas and J. A. Linscott's b h Jim L. When the pool boxes opened Franklin was installed as favorite at $50 to $22 for Don Tomas, $13 for Victor and $13 for the field.

First Heat—Jim L. lost his feet at the word and Don Tomas broke on the turn. When they got to the quarter Franklin was first, Valentine lapped on his wheel, Jim L. two lengths back in third place, Victor and Don Tomas bringing up the rear. Going up the backstretch they strung out and at the half Franklin was still in front, Valentine close up and Jim L, Victor and Don Tomas in the order named a length apart. They bunched on the second turn, Franklin half a length from Valentine, by a length from Jim L and Victor. Jim L., Valentine and Victor were almost abreast a length behind Franklin at the head of the straight. Victor made a strong bid for the heat but lost his feet in the effort and Franklin went in winner by half a length, Valentine second, Victor third, Jim L. fourth and Don Tomas fifth. Time, 2;24¾.

Second Heat—Pools sold: Franklin $60, Victor $14, Don Tomas $6, and the field $9. Franklin was in front of the crowd when the bell tapped, and when they were strung out on the turn, Franklin was first, Jim L. second, Victor and Valentine together, Don Tomas last. Before they reached the quarter, Valentine broke, and ran to the middle of the backstretch before Holly got him down, and when the crowd got to the half, Franklin flashed by first, Jim L second, Victor third, in a slight break, Valentine fifth, Don Tomas with him. On the second turn they crowded closer together, Victor passing to second place, and entering the straight hardly a length behind Franklin. They came down home, with Victor gaining by inches. He was on even terms with Franklin, when the latter broke, and the "hayseed" trotted out winner of the heat, Don Tomas coming for second by rapid work on the straight, Franklin third, Valentine fourth and Jim L. fifth. Time, 2:24½.

Third Heat—Victor's price went up a little, he bringing $23 to $40 for Franklin, and $16 for the field. Valentine was the leader this time at the quarter, trotting strong, Victor following him closely, Don Tomas third on the outside and Franklin fourth at the pole. Jim L. was lame, and trotting away back. On the backstretch Franklin passed Victor for second place, and at the half it was Valentine, Franklin, Victor and Don Tomas half a length apart. This was the order to the head of the straight; there Franklin crowded ahead of Valentine followed by Victor. Valentine lost his feet, and when Holly attempted to settle him, he tangled himself and fell down. Franklin made a break, but quickly recovered himself, and closely pressed by Victor, won the heat in 2:21½, Don Tomas well up, third, Jim L. distanced. Valentine's injury from the fall sent him to the stable.

Fourth Heat.—There were but three horses to score for the fourth heat, and Franklin sold against them at $40 to $10. When the word came Franklin went away around the turn with Don Tomas on his wheel and Victor a length behind him. The positions were not greatly altered until they reached the straight, and then Victor made a last effort. Don Tomas broke and the fight was left to the heat winners, but Franklin outspeeded "hayseed," and took the heat and race from him by three lengths. Time 2:21½.

La Siesta Ranch's b m Wanda, San Mateo Stock Farm's ch m Hazel Wilkes, J. L. McCord's ch m Mary Lou, J. Cockran's ch m Alloretta, Pleasanton Stock Farm's b g Homestake, and B. C. Holly's b g San Diego started. It the pools Hazel Wilkes sold at $40, Wanda at $16, and the field at $20.

First Heat—As they swung into the turn Homestake made a break and was never heard from again. Mary Lou also lost her feet, and when they reached the quarter Wanda was first, Alloretta second, Hazel Wilkes third, San Diego fourth half a length apart. Allaretta clung tenaciously to Wanda, and was head and head with her when they passed the half, Hazel Wilkes two lengths back, with San Diego at her wheel. Around the second turn there was no great change, but when Wanda and Allaretta swung into the straight Goldsmith began to bring Hazel up. Wanda drew away from Allaretta, but Hazel came on faster, and at the ⅞ post caught and passed her, taking the heat by two lengths, Wanda second, Alloretta third, San Diego fourth, Mary Lou fifth. Homestake was distanced. Time, 2:22¼.

Second Heat—Ten to one were the odds Hazel's backers offered against the whole field, and the confidence in her was well placed. When the bell tapped to a good start Wanda went to the front, and at the quarter she was first by a length, Hazel Wilkes second, San Diego third, Mary Lou fourth, and Allaretta back some distance in fifth place. These positions were unchanged until they came into the straight, every man seeming content with his position. When the race for home began Hazel crawled up on Wanda, got to her wheel, then to her head, then in front, and the mare quit, the heat going to Hazel Wilkes, Wanda second, San Diego third, Mary Lou fourth, Allaretta, who had been laid back for the heat, fourth. Time, 2:22½.

Third Heat—No pools were sold. San Diego was in front as they went around the turn, Hazel Wilkes at her wheel, Wanda third, Allaretta fourth and Mary Lou fifth. Hazel Wilkes and Wanda continued to close on the leader up the backstretch, and at the half were lapped on his wheel. Hazel Wilkes got the lead on the turn, and they never caught her again. Wanda quit on the straight. Mary Lou was driven for the heat, but the best she could do was to finish second a length away from Hazel Wilkes, Allaretta third, San Diego fourth, and Wanda fifth. WEDNESDAY.

Another runners' day brought another good attendance. The events were all first-class and interested the crowd. The weather was fair, but oppressively hot, track fast. "Doc" Aby was starter and did his work well. First thing of the afternoon was

Two-year-olds; ¾ mile.

Palo Alto had in the two invincibles, Racine and Flambeau, and L. U Shippee started his right good Longfellow colt, Fellowcharm. There was no bteting to speak of. Racine had Morton up at 115 pounds, Flambeau Scofield at 110, and Fellowcharm Narvice at 105. When the flag went down Racine was a head in front of Flambeau and half a length to the good of Fellowcharm. They went down the backstretch at a good clip, Racine first at the half, Flambeau at his flank, Fellowcharm at his heels. There was no change in the positions except that the Palo Alto pair drew away from Fellowcharm on the straight. Narvice tried to bring Fellowcharm up, but failed. Racine went in a gallop, Flambeau at his saddle girths, Fellowcharm two lengths away. Time, 1:15.

Next thing on the programme was the Shafter Stake for three-year-olds and had as starters, Matt Storn's b f Lurline 119, L. U. Shippee's b f Songstress 109, and Jo McBride's ch c Longshot, 122. Pools sold Lurline $40, field $16, Lurline's recent performance entitled her to favorite's place and confidence in her was renewed when it became known that Morton was to ride her. It was a great fall down, Shippee sending another outsider to victory. At the send-off Longshot was a head in front of Lurline and they passed the wire for the first time Songstress leading, Lurline at the break, Songstress laying back two lengths. On the first turn Lurline showed in front and stayed there to the middle of the backstretch when Longshot collared her; she ran with him a short distance and then quit altogether both Longshot and Songstress pressing her with ease. On the second turn Songstress was an open length behind Longshot, but she was going fast and when they entered the straight she had closed the gap and was leading him by a head. From there she drew away from him easy. He got the whip and quit and the race was over. Songstress galloped in four lengths in front of Longshot, Lurline away back third. Time, 1:58.

Two Year Old Handicap, 5 Furlongs,

The Palo Alto Stake, a handicap for two year olds, followed, in which the starters were Palo Alto's b f Raindrop, 105, Kelly & Samuel's b g Pliny, 108, W. M. Murray's ch c Kiro, 100, L. U. Shippee's b c Take Notice, 100, and J. W. Donathan's ch c Hubert Earl, 112. Pools opened with Hubert Earl favorite at $50, Pliny bringing $40, Kiro $32 and the field $41. It was another good thing for the short end buyers. After some little delay at the start the flag went down with Raindrop in front. She went off like the wind, and when they got to the half was two lengths in front of the crowd lead by Kiro. They straightened out on the turn, and it was Raindrop first by two lengths, Kiro second, with Pliny at his heels, Take Notice in fourth place, Hubert Earl at his heels. Kiro made play for the lead as they entered the straight, and got up to Raindrop's flank, Pliny third, close to him. Raindrop and Kiro drew away from the pack, Pliny following them. Williams, on Pliny, began work at the ⅞ post, and carried his horse up to Kiro, but Williams made an error in going to the pole, and he was very cleverly pocketed. Raindrop won without punishment, Kiro at her heels, Pliny third and Hubert Earl last. Time 1:02:

All Ages—Mile Heats.

Number four on the programme was the Del Paso Stake, mile heats, for all ages. Ben Hill's ch g Tycoon, Kelly & Samuels' b h Ed McGinnis, and Matt Storn's ch g Forester starting. Pools sold: Ed McGinnis $50, field $12. The first heat was a surprise. Tycoon jumped off in front, and as they went around the turn he was first by a length, Ed McGinnis second and Forester third, at McGinnis' flank. They were going at a fast clip, and there was no change in the positions until they got into the second turn, where Tycoon opened a length of daylight ahead of McGinnis, and Forester began to quit. In the straight McGinnis came up to Tycoon's shoulder and looked like a winner, but Hitchcock put his spurs into Tycoon, and he poked his nose in front of McGinnis. Cook then drew his whip; Hitchcock did the same, and under a terrific drive they came down to the wire, Tycoon winning by a bare head, the crowd yelling itself hoarse. Forester was six lengths back. The board was hung out with 1:42½ as the time.

The field went up before the second heat, McGinnis still selling favorite at $65, the field bringing $40. They were slightly tangled up at the start, Forester away on the outside of the track. As they passed the wire Forester swerved into the fence and fouled Tycoon and pocketed Ed McGinnis, so that when Tycoon shook Forester off, he got a lead of three lengths, going around the turn before McGinnis could get out of the pocket and away. Once he got to running he flew over the ground, leaving Forester away behind, and steadily closing up the gap, and when Tycoon reached the three-quarters, McGinnis was barely a length behind him. Both riders began their work at the head of the straight. McGinnis stayed at Tycoon's neck for a short distance, but his long drive had winded him, and Tycoon drew away as they neared the wire, and finished first by two lengths. Forester was back a dozen lengths. Time, 1:42¾.

All Ages—One mile.

A free purse of $300, for all ages, one mile, was the closing event on the regular programme and had ten starters, Welcome, Lorimer, Longshot, G. W. Glen Ellen, Duke Spencer, Daisy D, Retta B., Abi and Hotspur, Abi and Lorimer, were sold in the stable at $300, Daisy D. bringing $165, Welcome $105 and the field $280. Piles of money went into the box on the event. The biggest pool sold was Thornton's stable $350, Daisy D., $250, Welcome $175 and the field $325. For a big crowd they got a good start, Lorimer going away in front, attended by G. W. At the quarter G. W. and Lorimer were on even terms, Ab third with Glen Ellen at her flank. On the backstretch G. W. moved to the front and at the half lead by a length, Retta B and Glen Ellen together in third place and Daisy D. in front of the ruck. They bunched slightly on the turn and came into the straight well together. Longshot made a run out of the crowd followed by Daisy D, but neither of them could catch the leaders. Glen Ellen and Abi were together in third place when Glen Ellen came out with a burst of speed and got in front at the distance post. She made the lead two lengths and won handily that distance, Abi snatching second by a head from G. W. Time, 1:42¾.

A gentleman jocks race was made up for the day, Tom Williams riding Bryant W., A. S. Ashe riding Vinco, and E. N. Garnett on Billy D, all up at 160 pounds. A few pools were sold, Williams bringing $25, Ashe $25, and Garnett $6. Williams on Bryant W. went off in front, closely followed by Ashe, Garnett laying his mount back. The positions did not change until they got into the straight; then Ashe got his mount in front and looked like a winner, when Garnett got Billy D. to his speed and brought him to the front with a rush, winning by a head from Ashe in 1:47¼.

Sacramento Gossip.

Edwin C. the pacer has been placed in Orrin Hickok's hands and he will handle him the remainder of the season.

The State Fair has produced the best mile and repeat race of the year. Tycoon taking the Del Paso Stake in 1:42½ 1:42¾.

And seldom sees a better race than the 2:30 class Saturday. Five heats from 2:18 to 2:19½ is great racing for that class of horses.

The three minute class is getting to be pretty fast when they force a winner to go three heats in 2:22¼, 2:22½ and 2:24¼.

Quinton gave Yolo Maid a little warming up Saturday, and she was driven to the half in 1:06, the last quarter being done in 0:31½ seconds.

Jessie C. was a nice little pick-up in the Sunny Slope Stak for two year olds. Betting was $130 to $25 against her, and she was never headed. The pair-mutuals paid handsomely.

Before the beginning of the races Saturday, Orrin Hickok drove Stamboale a couple of miles, sending him the last half of one mile in 1:07, unaccompanied by a runner.

By the time Shippee sends two or three more dark horses out to snatch races from hot favorites, as he has done with Picnic and Songstress, the talent will begin to look out for his starters, and understands that a horse must be fit when the Shippee lets him face the flag.

Theo. Winters is one of the celebreties at the track. He went up into the country last week to purchase the Adams Ranch near the Langtry Farm, but the sale somehow fell through.

Sunol's race record of 2:18 is very acceptable to Palo Alto. Senator Stanford was on the track that day with some Eastern friends, and special instructions were given Marvin to drive her one fast heat in the race.

Nobody seems to be able to get anything out of Pleasanton's b g Homestake. He is not a bad horse, but such a breaker that he has twice this week been distanced in the first heat of the only races in which he started. Miller drove him once, then McDonell made an unsuccessful effort with him. Next time I shall expect to see Mr. Salisbury give him a trial.

Margaret S. has several defeats to acknowledge this season. Three-year-old Lillian Wilkes and Sunol have both beaten her at every meeting with ease, but for a bruising race of five or six heats she is the best three-year-old of the year. I don't think Andy McDowell ever showed what the filly was capable of in her races with the other three-year-olds.

I am told that Stamboul will start for the first time at Stockton next week in an endeavor to go in 2:12, and win that bet of $5,000. Failing there, he will probably go next at the Breeder's meeting at the Bay District.

Jolly, genial "Doc" Aby makes a splendid starter. He hasn't made a bull of it yet. He has the peculiar faculty of brow-beating cheeky jockeys into submission, and they obey him. He doesn't let a sulky skate keep a crowd at the post either. Monday he run the programme of four races off in three hours, I would like to see him wield the flag at the Blood Horse meeting this fall.

The end of the Dawn-Lillie Stanley race is not yet. Andy McDowell it very sore over the widespread accusation that he pulled Stanley, and he proposes to have it proved that he did it. He said to me the other day: "If I were guilty of the charge I would not make so much noise about it, but I want it investigated. I can prove that there was no job in the race by the manner in which the pools sold, and by the testimoney of horsemen as to the mare's condition. I propose to have this thing sifted to the bottom, and then I propose to sue somebody for defamation of character." It is understood that A. L. Whitney will take a hand in an investigation also.

President Christopher Green has held the bell at every day's races since the fair began, and I have yet to hear the first kick against his starting. All the judges have done well, only one decision so for calling out any criticism.

Fleet did not make the showing which was expected of her in the race for two-year-olds, Saturday. Her failure is ascribed to severe work before the race began. They wanted to send her with company so as to quiet her before going to the score, and she was driven two miles in 5:10, the last one in 2:29, and then another in 2:30. The thing was over-done, and it was an already tired filly which started in the race.

How fast will the 2:25 class pacers go before the season ends. Edwin C. a dark horse in the class, surprised everybody the other day by winning a heat in 2:18½, and then taking the race in 2:20¾ and 2:19½. The first heat of the race was paced in 2:18, and the second in 2:19½, giving both Ned Winslow and Longworth records. As a betting race it has no equal, the Lord only knowing what is going to win.

A match race between Atto Rex and Lord Byron for $5,000 a side is one of the things spoken of this week. The other night E. B. Gifford, Scott Quinton and a lot of other horsemen were sitting in front of the Golden Eagle discussing the merits of the several starters in Atto Rex's class, and Mr. Gifford offered to match his colt against any of them. It wasn't long until he got an offer for a $5,000 match from the Lord Byron people. He accepted with the understanding that the race should be trotted at Los Angeles during the meeting there. Byron's friends wouldn't go to Los Angeles, and the selection of a track was under discussion when the two horses met in Saturday's race. Byron made a great showing there, and I haven't heard of the match since. I am of the opinion that Byron can go in 2:15 without much trouble, and I don't think Atto Rex can do it.

In the stallion race of Friday in which Direct, Bay Rose and Ross S. started, some man who had money on Bay Rose complained that the horse was not being driven out. He offered to bet that he could find a man who could drive him the third heat better than 2:20. Hickok produced the money to cover the bet, but the gentleman didn't come to time. Hickok then went to the stand and asked that another driver be put up, and Jimmy Dustin mounted the sulky and finished the race. The horse was not in condition for a bruiser, and Direct was too speedy for him.

Peel is a mighty good colt, and he will do to put money on every time. I was glad to see him go the mile and a quarter in the Prize Stake in 2:08¼, and I believe he can, good day and good course, run the distance in 2:08. Laura Gardner, that very good daughter of Jim Brown, beat Idalene Cotton out by a head in 2:08¼ at Los Angeles a year ago, but it has been said that she had the advantage of the match that day, and did not go in better than 2:09. Dry Monopole ran the distance at Brooklyn in 1887 in 2:07, and I want to see Peel do it this year. Ed McGinnis could come very near it himself. It was currently reported that he was not right Monday, still he ran a good race, and had Peel straightened out and going for all there was in him. Henry Welsh thought at one time on the straight that his colt was beaten.

One of the heaviest plungers on the track during the fair has been a woman, a stranger to the Western tracks. She goes altogether upon public form and hits with the average of an old timer. She is not a bad judge of a horse and scans them closely as they come out for the preliminary gallop. When Picnic came out in the mile and a quarter dash Friday the woman saw and fancied her. Her money went on the mare at any odds. As everybody knows Picnic was the only thing in it, and the female plunger won a goodly sum, which she placed upon Mikado and won again in the selling purse. Monday she picked Lurline for the capital city stake and won, but she made an error in McGinnis for the prize stakes the same day, though the Grinstead colt made it very warm work for Peel. The lady does not go very heavily on trotters, but lays a few dollars on them now and then.

THE GUN.

Best Length for Short Barrels.

The query, What is the best length for short gun barrels in the different bores? is one of the unanswered questions. The practice of gun-makers who commonly send out thirty-inch barrels, unless otherwise ordered, might suggest a fixed belief that thirty inches was the best length, but conversation with any gun-maker will soon dispel that notion. In so far as we have been able to ascertain, the matter of balance has had as much or more to do with determining length than any one factor. Certain it is that discussion about length of barrels affords unending entertainment whenever sportsmen meet.

Most readers would say that the length should depend somewhat on the bore, but just how the length should compare with the bore is the real question. The chief object in view in determining the length of barrel is at get such a length that all the powder will be consumed in the barrel, and the shot at an ordinary shotgun range—say, forty yards—be spread evenly over the largest target possible, and yet kept so close together that the game could by no means escape alive were it within the limits of that target.

With a view of aiding owners of shotguns in deciding how long a pair of tubes ought to be, the London Field recently instituted a series of experiments. Two guns were constructed, each a single barrel of 12-bore. One of these was choked and the other was a relieved cylinder—that is, the muzzle was opened out a little after the most approved fashion for the modern so-called cylinders. As first constructed, the barrels were 28 inches long, a circumstance that indicates that very good English authority thinks that length quite enough. At this length a series of shots was fired at a registering target, by which it could be definitely determined how many pellets out of a given charge struck inside of a 30-inch circle; how many struck on a square, 10 inches on a side, in the center; the force with which these pellets struck; the average force of a pellet

Then, inasmuch as some sorts of powder might do much better work in a short barrel than some other sorts, it was thought advisable to repeat the series of shots fired with each of seven different makes and sizes of powder, including the black and the nitro-compounds.

With regard to the charges of powder and shot used, the Field says:

"We adopted with each kind of powder exactly the same charge for all lengths of barrel, using 42 grains of the nitro-compounds and 3 drachms or 82 grains with No 4 black powder; but with brown powder, and with black of smaller or larger grain than that above stated, we adopted the charges recommended by Messrs. Curtis and Harvey as imparting the same velocity to the shot as 3 drachms of No. 4, viz., 76 grains of No 2, 86 grains of No. 6, and 87 grains of brown. The respective charges o powder were all used with 1⅛ ounces of No. 6 chilled shot, (270 pellets to the ounce), in Eley's best cases, loaded with 11⅛ black and pink wad over the powder, then a ⅜-inch best felt, a white card between felt and shot, and another white card over the shot With the brown powder, however, owing to the large amount of space it occupied, it was found requisite to omit the card between felt and shot, in order to afford a sufficient amount of turnover in the case. The black powders used, however, were not all made by Messrs. Curtis and Harvey. It had been represented to us with reference to previous experiments, that by using the black powder of one firm exclusively it looked as if there were no other manufacturers of similar powder in existence, so in the present instance we adopted the No. 4 of Messrs. Curtis and Harvey (which is usually chosen as the standard of comparison in trials against nitro-compounds), while for No. 2 grain we took that of Messrs. Hall, and for No. 6 that of Messrs. Pigor, Wilks and Laurence, these being the three firms that had been represented in the Field gun trials some years ago."

In all, thirty-five charges were fired from each tube, choked and cylinder, and then the tubes were cut down two inches. Of course, this materially altered the form of the interiors. To remedy this the muzzle of the choke was compressed and then bored out with the same tool that had been used in boring out the original 28 inch barrel, to give a choke of the same form as near as might be. The cylinder was in like manner relieved by opening out to its original diameter at the muzzle. Then the shots were repeated.

It is not unlikely the reader will think that the barrels might better have been cut off at the butt and the muzzles left untampered with, but this would have been more expensive, and would really have been no more satisfactory. From 26 inches the tubes were reduced to 24, and then to 22. Of the records made by the whole series of shots the experimenter says:—

When the barrel was 28 inches long, and again when it had been reduced to 26 inches, the shooting was fairly regular with the whole of the powders; but when the gun had been cut down to 24 inches, and again to 22 inches, some wild shooting occurred with most of the powders, though not with the whole of them, the wildness generally taking the form of a scattering of the pellets round the circumference of the 30-inch circle, leaving a blank in the centre, so that in half a dozen instances not a single pellet out of a charge containing 304 was placed on the 10-inch square plate of the force guage, fixed in the middle of the 30-inch circle and consequently no record of force was made. In other instances the pellets in the centre were few in number. only 4, 6, 7 or 9 pellets striking the 10-inch circle, although its area of 100 square inches comprised about one-seventh of the entire space of the 30-inch circle.

Generally speaking, when there are very few pellets thrown on the centre plate, the force recorded was feeble; but occasionally it was otherwise, when the pellets came in a cluster, as in the case of seven pellets with No 6 black powder, from the 24-inch barrel, the force then being much higher than was shown with the same powder at any time during the series of experiments.

In the summary of the records made, which appears below, the reader will observe that the force recorded for the 26 inch barrel was less than that for either the 28-inch or the 24 inch barrel. This, the experimenter explains, was due to unfavorable weather, and not to the length of the barrel.

The averages taken that are marked with an asterisk (*) are those in which the wild shots were fired; that is, those shots in which the pellets were gathered in a ring that almost wholly missed the force recording target, ten inches square, in the 30-inch circle

The summary of it all is that in general averages one length is about as good as another, but that the two short lengths, 22 and 24 inch, are untrustworthy. Without apparent reason very wild and erratic results were obtained. With the ordinary slow-burning No. 6 black powder, the sort used by a majority of gunners on account of its cheapness, the 26-inch barrel made the very high average of 1.54 pellets in the circle. The shooting was quite as regular, too, as that in any of the trials with other powders, or longer or shorter barrels. In number of pellets it was the highest average recorded, while the force, when the state of the weather is considered, was satisfactory.

A well-posted correspondent of the Field writes in criticism of the experiments to say that had special efforts been made to regulate the boring of the short barrels so as to obtain the best patterns possible, just as good results would have been obtained from 24-inch barrels as from the longer ones. In other words, instead of keeping the relief or the choke in the short barrel just as it was when the barrel was long, it ought to have been tickled up until the pattern and force were satisfactory. Certain guns which had been so modified with excellent results are referred to.

Among American makers the 30-inch barrel is the standard length, but the shorter lengths, with a guaranteed pattern, can be had of well-known makers to order at a small advance in price.

From this it appears that the day of 30-inch barrels of 12-bore is past, save for special purposes. The two objections to long barrels are their weight and the greater difficulty of handling them in a thicket.

To the Top of Mt. Whitney.

By C. E. Sherman.

II.

With dawning day the Pilgrims were astir, refreshed by the peaceful slumbers of a gracious night. After morning orisons sonorously chanted by Chaplain Condict (sub-Deacon Daggett responding with a short-handled shovel), breakfast disappeared in the easy manner possible only to hungry beings with great clearness of conscience. And then right into the very hearts of the pilgrim band came inspiration for valorous deeds, for steadfast endeavor, for persistence through the narrow and never straight ways, for a time, times and more times, even to the very end of things. The heart of the artist alone was exceeding heavy, for smoke from the great mountain fires on Mt. Breckenridge made it beyond question impossible to take views of the Basin in any wise worthy of its beauty. Counselor Miller, in his even-tempered way, soothed the ruffled artistic plumes by proving: 1—Fire cannot burn forever; 2—No fire, no smoke; 3—Clear enough when we return. After all this and considerably more considerably like it, at 6 A. M., July 21st, the cavalcade set forth upon the second day's journey. A long level stretch, and then a winding climb up Beulah Mountains, where, at the very summit, the first photograph was taken by the modern Pilgrims. Then through a long, narrow, landlocked canyon, in the main of gentle descent, but all the time down and down, in due time the now decrepit town of

HAVILAH

Was reached. Time was when Havilah shone brilliantly in the bright light of its own proper glory, but its days of power have passed away; its Doges have for the last time wedded Kern River, at the mouth of Clear Creek by the Sea; foreign powers, concealed under the guise of Eastern Mining Companies, have ceased paying tribute, but it still lives, enjoying a lovely old age. The winds of Heaven are now as clear, as invigorating, as delightful, as in its mightiest days; its incomparable climate recks not of business decay; the Spirit of Health dwells on every hillside and encompasses each lovely glen. However men may come and and go, it is set in the Crown of Nature as one of her choicest jewels. Amen!

Havilah is a Greek word signifying a circle. It has always been supposed that some Biblical student named this town from the eleventh verse of the second chapter of Genesis which says, "The whole land of Havilah, where there is gold." Careful research among the archæological records so ably kept by County Clerk N. R. Packard, leads to another conclusion, which is this: Old Mr. Noah, who was born some years ago, had three sons, Shem, Ham and Japheth. At 100 years of age, and two years before the Sacramento flood, Sham begat Arphaxed, who at 35 begat Salah, and he at 30 begat Eber, who at 430 years of age begat Joktan for his second son. Joktan's twelfth son was named Havilah. From him, right down to the Fall of '49, the family tree flourishes with members. In the Spring of '50 the roots of the said tree appear worm eaten, and there is a slight hitch somewhere, but that is of no consequence. It is evident, it has to be, that some lineal descendant of Mr. Shem wandered over into that beautiful nook, and named the town in memory of his forefathers and to perpetuate the family line. The proof of this thing would be ample, if the wanderer aforesaid could be found, but he must have been gathered to his uncles. (At this junction the Pilgrims wearied with musty researches, entered into a grotto dedicated to Gambrinus, and there, in quiet retreat they can be left until further on in this chapter.)

III.

Accidents are disorderly and to even the keenest human perception, the most unruly members of the realm of unreason. Yet the crash of accident is often enough followed by an orderly sequence of incident to warrant the assumption that far and away beyond human ken, there may exist a law for accidents—perhap even a rule for impossibilities—by which their order, purpose and plan are fashioned after the manner of an exact science.

The discovery of the rich gold mines which have yielded so largely in Havilah is a feather in the cap of this presumption. It was yet in the early days of the war when parties who were wanted by the United States for feats in blockade running, preferred anything rather than strict governmental jurisdiction, and so took rapidly to the rear of civilization. In the region of Havilah they were a long ways from anywhere, and equally from danger. Near to the canon in which the present town is located, there is a huge dyke of white rock. There are quartzite, limestone, feldspar, and perhaps other substances, but the great ledge was barren of precious metals in its womb, and will ever remain so. These active-minded, early day prospectors, however, took a chunk of the white rock one day to Kernville, where there then was some mining going on. They put it in the fire of a blacksmith and heated it red hot.

It must be admitted to this day that the average prospector believes in the Divine Sovereignty of a blacksmith's fire. It relieves his feelings to blow the bellows; he likes to blow into the meek and tender blacksmith all about his ledge, and his relations and everything else that is of no consequence; and if at the end, he finds no gold in his sample it has anyhow pulverized the easier for the burning, and he is content. And the blacksmith—well, he is a temporary lamb. He mildly lets almost anyone take his fire, get sulphur into it, solder or any other vicious substance, and generally on the eve of an important weld. And he smiles a kind of a half-cooked smile illumined by charcoal smudge, so long as his friendly enemy is in possession. But afterward, phew! coals scatter all over the shop; tongs fly all about the place; the blueness of indigo invades the atmosphere, and the son of Vulcan does not resume happiness until he has kicked over the slack tub.

This barren chunk, prospector like, was put into the first blacksmith fire within reach, heated as before told, then carefully taken out and left to cool off, while all hands could go around the corner to see an interesting man, and warm up. The blacksmith had a ten dollar gold piece in his pocket, and either not being invited, or not wishing to join the gang, had a quiet shop all to himself. So, upon the now cooling rock, even to the smallest fragment, and with great care, he rubbed the edges of his gold piece. This was a very thin way to make gold leaf, yet it resulted in very handsome, and apparently, very rich specimens. As the Costa Ricans say, being interpreted, "a little gold greases a large palm;" so judicious rubbing upon a hot rock, makes a beautiful surface—of veneer. In due time the clan returned, and at first sight became visibly agitated. Every bit of the precious rock was carefully gathered, and impressed to silence by the golden possibilities before them, the crowd silently left the shop. The blacksmith was mum; he dared not be otherwise, after seeing the tremendous effect of a bit of get-even fun. That evening there were whisped consultations quiet corner button-holings, straight "tips" to next friend, and before dawn of day, a party of thirty or thereabouts had left the camp, in the mysterious way of excited gold hunters. The big, ugly, barren white dyke was soon thereafter claimed and located for nearly two miles in length No one seemed to think of prospecting the rock; it was enough that it "showed gold," and all were anxious with the unduly haste of excitement, to get a claim and take out quartz for milling as soon as possible. So, while some mined on the dyke, others built trails, and still others constructed five arastras to be worked by horse power. And still, according to the incomprehensible law of accidents, no one ever thought of prospecting the rock, and no one at that day ever did prospect it, so far as known.

The stuff was mined, packed to the arastras and there ground by night and by day, until at the end of five months, the time for cleaning up came, and not an ounce of gold was found as the result of all his labor. The miner's hopes were founded upon the sand, and their rewards fell down. Buoyed by excitement, laboring with hope, allured by the expectation of a harvest of gold, they came to an everlasting smash against the impassible barrier of no results. The fame of this "rich discovery", and the record of active work had spread after the manner of all legends, and other gold seekers had flocked into the camp, but the big white dyke was all appropriated and jealously guarded. So overflow discoveries were made per force, and they proved to be rich in truth and almost poured out golden rewards. They were up hill, and down dale, away from the canon, and but for the peculiar occurrence of things as portrayed, might be even now, lying undiscovered.

And to this day, the white dyke lies barren, scarred indeed, by the zealous hands of misguided enthusiasts; the rich mines may or may not be worked out—that is for the Court of the future to decide, but: the accident of war set stirring men afloat; a bit of fun made them excited; their useless work created a drawing reputation; others than they, found rich mines. Q E. D.

Killed a Deer.

Says the Gridley Herald of September 12th: "Monday, of last week, the herders engaged in driving Miller & Lux's cattle from Oregon to the range in Southern California, found three deer—buck and two does—in their herd on the Hutchins ranch, Central House. The men had no firearms with them, but they gave chase on horseback until the game took to the river, swam across, and disappeared in the brush on this side. Wednesday afternoon the deer were seen by the driver of a butcher wagon in the vicinity of the gravel pit. That night some hounds scented and chased them. They crossed Stone's field, south of town, and passed between the schoolhouse and Mrs. Quimby's. One of Dr. Harris' dogs tackled them as they crossed the street, about 9:30, and the band separated—the does going west on the country road, the buck running into the thicket next to the Methodist Church, thence into the alley, where he vaulted into C. N. Reed's, going over the gate. The gate is only about four feet high, while the pickets around the corral are twelve feet in height. When Mr. Reed went home at 10:30 he saw the buck drinking out of the water trough. Sneaking around to the gateway unperceived by the deer, he picked up a brick and threw it with such accuracy and force as to hit the animal behind the right ear and knock it unconscious. He then entered the corral and, seating himself on the deer's neck, began yelling for help. Dr. Harris hastened to the rescue with a butcher knife, with which the venison was soon secured. Quite a number of our people had venison for breakfast last Thursday. Mr. Reed presented the head and antlers—and they are magnificent five-pronged ones—to D. Sheridan, who sent them to Marysville, where they are now being stuffed and preserved by an expert taxidermist. After they are thus treated and properly mounted Mr. Sheridan will give the trophies a post of honor in his place of business.

Lillian F. Smith Returned.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Thinking that you and many of my California friends would like to hear from me, I thought, with your permission, I would use the columns of your valuable paper to let them know I have arrived from my European and Eastern tour, which was a very successful one. I am spending a few weeks at this famous resort during the hot weather. I am enjoying myself immensely, and expect to go on a deer hunt in a few days, in company with my father and a party of friends. I intend shortly to make a tour of California and Oregon and then go to Australia and give exhibitions of my shooting specialties. It may be pleasing to my California friends to know that while in Europe I never met any one that could equal me in the use of fire arms.

In the Pheasant-Breeding Field.

Before lunch, on a blazing day at the end of June, or as it passes into July, when it is perfectly hopeless to seek the trout stream, there is no pleasanter walk at a country house than that which leeds to the keeper's cottage, says an English writer. Somewhere near it the field will be found where young pheasants are reared. It is always a pretty sight to see them toddling round their foster mothers, while a chat with a well-informed keeper largely increases a man's knowledge of game, shooting and natural history. The flower garden is a brilliant spectacle, and the ladies probably determine that they will stay there under the shade of trellises covered with roses. We push on through the pleasant walks which hem it in, on the edge of the park, and crossing by a rustic bridge, a stream which bounds the "policies" (as the Scotch would call them), find ourselves, as soon as a gate is unlocked, on the home farm. Its pleasing sward opens before us, swelling upwards towards a wood. After a broiling walk the cool shade is most refreshing, while the turpentine fragrance of its firs delights the nose as much as its spires of foxgloves and coronets of ferns do the eye. A couple of fields on the other side lies the keeper's cottage, at the back of which is a kind of miniature encampment among the short grass which runs down to the sandhills, beyond which flows the river. These dark coops contain each a foster mother, and around her are running from a dozen to eighteen young pheasants, their dark brown hues contrasting well with the vivid green of the grass. Near each coop the careful keeper has placed a large bushy bough, under which the little ones may run, either for shelter from too great heat or to escape from a hawk. A falcon's wings are of inestimable importance to it. Should they be injured, the feathers broken and the like, it looses in great measure the power of gaining a livelihood, so it instinctively refuses to plunge into brushwood or branches; it will rather soar aloft for a moment, and then sweep off disappointed.

Here comes the keeper. He tells us that he first searches by the roads and paths for pheasants' eggs, and then goes farther afield into the plantations. The eggs thus procured are put under healthy domestic hens, each in its own hencoop, and each has to sit on from fourteen to eighteen eggs or even more. These hencoops can be lifted, as it conduces greatly towards health if fresh patches of grass can be secured from time to time. It is a good plan to confine the foster mothers in the coops before putting the pheasants' eggs under them, as they will probably lay there and be more easily induced to take the game eggs. The grassy field ought not to be used more than two or three years in succession, as disease is almost sure to show itself, probably that dire ailment the gapes. This is now discovered to arise from germs which occupy the common earth worm as their "host," and pushing their way into the young pheasants' gullet speedily kill it, if it has not strength to cough them up. We walk round, and the keeper shows us an old hen shepherding three ducklings, ten pheasants and two chickens, a strangely assorted family. He has an assistant who is now prowling round the field, gun in hand looking out of course for crows, jackdaws, magpies, any bird in short bigger than a blackbird. We defend the jay, and are told (and correctly, we believe) that it only attacks eggs. The owl is another bird for which we take up the cudgels. The keeper acquits the barn owl of any nefarious designs upon his chicks. It may happen, he says, that when the owl has young it sallies forth, and will at such a time attack even a young pheasant.

But this is quite the exception, and he almost always spares this owl. Its brother, the brown owl, is undoubtedly destructive to game, and we are afraid nothing can be said in its favour. Kestrels as a rule only carry off the young chicks when they have broods clamorous at home for sustenance. Mice are the proper food for the kestrel. Of all birds the keeper hates none so much as "them blue hawks," i. e sparrow hawks. They will swoop upon their victim in a moment as they unsuspiciously flit along by the hedgerow, and are by far the most destructive of winged plagues. Traps are set all round the field for weasels, stoats, and rats. Should a dog appear at night he will be remorselessly shot, as a stray dog not only harasses sheep but also frightens the old hens and devours the tender game chicks. After the little ones are hatched they need no food for the first twelve hours. Then eggs should be boiled hard and chapped fine for them Afterwards some of the innumerable patent foods may be served out of them. Custard and meal, rice and greaves, will form the staple of their food supplies, and of course an ant's hill dug up and thrown to them is a continual source of delight to the little things as they scratch about round it and secure dainties.

What the cost of thus rearing pheasants comes to is variously stated, perhaps about 1s. 7d. or 2s. per bird represents it fairly enough. When eggs have thus been gathered and hatched a good keeper should bring from seventy to seventy-five per cent of the birds hatched to the gun. (See Badminton treatise on "Field and Covert Shooting," p. 234) It is well not to pay him by results. When the cheepers have grown up and left their foster-mothers, besides hand feeding night and morning it is a good thing to place in the plantations frequented by the birds a box filled with buck wheat, or to throw down a pile of barley straw or the like at a fixed place, for the birds to resort to. This will keep them together for shooting in October. While speaking of the cost of this method of rearing pheasants no more trustworthy statistics can be found than those quoted by Lord Walsingham in the above treatise.

"If we allow three men, or two men with a boy to assist in preparing food, this will be an amply sufficient staff to rear 1,000 pheasants. Their services would be required for about sixteen weeks—say up to September 1st—and if we take their wages at an average of 15s. a week, the cost is £36. A peck measure of chopped food will be about sufficient for each feeding round, and during the whole time £50 should be amply sufficient to provide the necessary food. This sum allows 1s. for the feeding of each pheasant. Hens may be bought in February or March at about 2s. to 2s. 4d. each, and should be sold again in August at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 8d.; allow 30 s. for wear and tear of coops, and without calculating anything for the rent of the land occupied, the cost of each pheasant when turned off into the covert will be about 1s. 7d. from the time of hatching."

The author goes on to consider that this estimate will, in certain cases, be much exceeded. On the other hand we fancy it will be found that when fewer birds—say six or seven hundred only—are reared, the cost per bird will not be so great.

The lunch bell will soon ring from the hall turret, and we must be going. A few well-deserved compliments having been paid to the keeper, and he having expressed his hope that by October he shall have a numerous body of pheasants for gentlemen to shoot, we bid him good-bye. It is impossible to avoid the obvious reflection while walking home, how marvelously has the practice of shooting, together with its appliances, altered in the last forty years. What further developments remain for our grandchildren?

The San Jose Tournament.

Mr. Frank E Coykendall of the Garden City Gun Club, San Jose, was in San Francisco on Tuesday last, and reported preparations for the tournament of the California State Sportsman's Association, well advanced. The shooting will be done on the race track near the city, than which a better place could not be found, the plat being short stubble. A very greatly reduced rate of fare has been granted over all rail lines of the Southern Pacific Company, the round trip, to San Jose and return will cost a fare and a third. Those who intend being present will do well to note these directions for securing the reduction.

H. H. Briggs, at 313 Bush street, San Francisco, will furnish to all applicants certificates which must be presented to the ticket agents at starting points. The agent will make necessary entries upon the certificates and return them to those who buy tickets. The certificates must be taken to San Jose and signed there by the Secretary of the State Association. After being so signed they will entitle bearers to return to their homes on payment of one-third of the regular fares. This reduction also covers the families of those who wish to attend the tournament. Certificates will be sent out to all sportsmen who have indicated an intention to be present at San Jose, and if any others wish them a postal card request should be sent to Mr. Briggs immediately. The tournament will be a great one, and most enjoyable as well. Never have such rich trophies and such large amounts of coin been contested for in California, nor have previous programmes been so attractive. The first match, for the Selby trophy, will occupy all of Wednesday, Oct. 9th, and the four days will be well filled.

The list of special prizes secured by Messrs. Frank E. Coykendall, George C. Anderson and A. W. Ingalsbee of the Garden City Club is very long, and the prizes are exceedingly valuable. Such as have been listed at this writing, Thursday, are as follows:—

The Garden City Gun Club offers a Silver Pitcher, value $40, for the best individual score at Blue Rocks on October 12th, contestants to compete in all matches listed for that day.

The Chicago Burlington and Quincy Railway by W. D. Sanborn, San Francisco agent, offers a silver cigar stand for best average score during the tournament, competitors to take part in every listed match.

F. E Smith, San Jose, offers a silver smoking set, I. Lasky, San Jose, offers best pair of gent's shoes; J. Koenig & Son, a pair of wading boots; Cherrie & Co., an extra fine pearl-handled pocket knife; H. Boschken, a fine set of carvers; Fred Stern, a $5 buggy whip; Hill & Franklin, one dozen photographs; T. W. Hobson & Co., a $16 pair of pants.

The prizes will be allotted in the various matches and the list made up before the meeting begins. The list is a splendid one and is not yet complete. Clubs intending to compete should at once notify the secretary of the association.

The Blue Rock Club of this city, the Garden City Club of San Jose, the Los Gatos Club, the Pacific Gun Club of Sacramento, the Stockton Gun Club, the California Wing Shooting Club of San Francisco, the Vacaville Gun Club, the San Diego Gun Club, the Los Angeles Gun Club, and the Colton Gun Club, will certainly send teams, and some of the clubs two teams. To those who have been present at former meetings of the association, nothing need be said of the pleasures incident to them but to the numberless fine shots and genial men who have not felt interest enough hitherto to make them take part it may be hinted that no more delightful recreation can be had than in such company as gathers yearly as the State Association.

Mr. Lundy Gossips.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Your sample copy of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, the first I have seen in quite a time found me taking after-luncheon nap in a delightfully cool office. Of course, nap was off, not even "dead out of bounds," and the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN scored "Point" unclaimed. After I had lighted up the "pipe" (and smoking a new beauty just from abroad), started in with "Petaluma" down ahrough all its details, ably and concisely described; from there took flying trip over to "Chico," quartered in Grim's Gossipy company, none better, until on page 184 I ran bang up against "Best Trotting Record." Say, are you dead in line? I have not the Record by me, but if you'll refer to that one there on your desk you'll see that "H. B. Winship" at Providence, R. I., August, '86, "against time," before "official judges," on "Registered Track," trotted for purse," with running mate, and obtained record of, I think, 2:06, possibly a fraction over. I quote from memory, but there is many a bottle in it for you if I am not mistaken. Look it up and have some sport with some of the "know alls." Apropos to record, our new full mile course was opened Tuesday, and the first race came within ½ second of splitting "Yolo Maid," 14¾. Don Pizarro a Kentucky horse is worth a whole lot of money now.

But a truce to horses; I love them none the less, but the dog more. How I did enjoy your production of my letter to you, or rather the lively merriment it caused my portly, judicial brother, who still on all occasions recites "The Boy's Kentucky Case," but I got the bitch after all, even if I did have a big fight.

I enclose clipping from Times—Star, to show that I have not entirely forgotten all sports, and when I get a chance to select suitable present, choose one in that line; its a beauty, and some time I hope to hold it on some of your flyers. I also send clip from Enquirer of this date, showing my election as President of O. V. A. C. You see I am still in line.

Will, with your permission, when it gets a bit cooler, send you presentable letter for publication under my old nom de plume.

C. L. LUNDY.

CINTI, OHIO, September 12, '89.

[Mr. Lundy is right about the best trotting record, and the correction is gratefully received. The clipping which he enclosed is as follows, and we offer congratulations:

"Mr. Chas. L. Lundy, the well-known young attorney, is wearing an elegant, double-split-second-fly-back gold watch, with heavy gold chain and diamond pendant bearing the inscription, showing that it was presented to him in recognition of legal services, by the president of a national bank of a neighboring city.—Cincinnati Times, Sept. 6, '89."

A Model Game Preserve.

In view of the recent intimations that the Fish and Game Commission intended to introduce several sorts of foreign game birds to California, any information about the experience of those who have entered upon similar labors in other parts of America becomes particularly desirable, and it is with pleasure that some notes are presented about an American game preserve established in New Jersey, where climatic and all other conditions are less favorable to success than in California:

"The preserve is known as Tranquillity Farm. It is in Warren County, and is the property of Mr. Stuyvesant. Mr. Stuyvesant brought over Donald McVicar, a British gamekeeper. McVicar began work in 1887. First of all he imported 500 pheasant eggs. They turned out badly, for only 80 of them hatched. Of the chicks 71 were reared. Part of these were turned loose in the coverts and part were penned up for egg supply.

Last year (1888) nearly 1,000 birds were reared and turned loose in the coverts, a few being kept penned up for eggs. From these 2,000 eggs were obtained last spring, and about 2,000 birds reared during the summer.

No trace of disease has been discovered, but the heat of the summer seemed to be so oppressive to them that thick shades were erected in the fields where the birds lived.

Meantime the birds turned loose have been breeding and doing well. The winters in Jersey are much more severe than in the native haunts of the birds, but the pheasants stand the cold, McVicar says, as well as the native partridges do. But on account of the length of time during which the snow lies on the ground, a good deal of attention has to be given to feeding the birds, by scattering food by hand. Not a single bird was lost in the blizzard of 1888, although the birds in the pens were covered out of sight with snow. It is likely that the fact that they were so covered saved them. It is well known to woodsmen that partridges bury themselves in the snow when a storm comes on. Of course native as well as imported birds were fed in the winter.

The rearing ground was encased by a wire netting to keep away predatory animals. Among the animals to be kept down are foxes, skunks, raccoons, mink, weasels and hawks. The mountains about Tranquillity Farm are covered with woods that abound in the objectionable animals. Trapping and poisoning are resorted to to destroy the beasts, while a kennel of fox terriers makes the killing of foxes a sport. On account of the surroundings the keeper and his assistants have had to wage a constant war on vermin. He says, however, that he does not think much harm is now done by the predatory beasts."

As the rearing of game was a new thing, McVicar had to begin at the bottom, which he did by creating coverts for the birds. The natives about Tranquillity Farm were at first, somewhat jealous of Mr. Stuyvesant's scheme for preserving game. They could not, of course, go shooting in Mr. Stuyvesant's woods. But they found eventually, that if

The Pacific Coast Trotting Association.

At last the call has been made for delegates to assemble to form a trotting association, separate and distinct from the two now in existance. The trotting horse interests of the Pacific Coast have grown so large within the past few years that the slow methods of the older associations do not seem to agree with the young breeders residing in the great extent of country lying to the west of the Rocky Mountains. It is only a few weeks ago, that a circular letter was sent to representatives of each society in Oregon, Nevada, Montana and California, and with only two exceptions, all the answers were in favor of a new association. That a new association seems desirable can only be attributed to the fact that there is altogether too much red tape, in everything that appertains to the Eastern organizations, and business that should ordinarily take two or three weeks at the most, now takes almost as many years.

The "American" and the "National" have brought this on themselves and the blame lies at their doors. There is no doubt but that one great parent organization would be better than so many subdivisions, but as we cannot receive the attention which we think we deserve, it will probably be better to start a Western organization and try what we can do for ourselves. The call is made by Mr. Wilfred Page, and under the auspicies of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, which is guarantee enough that what ever is done, will be with an eye single to the Pacific Coast interests. It is to be hoped that every trotting, driving and track society, will send a representative or at least appoint some one to act for them.

An Omission.

Occasionally an oversight causes such a blunder that apology is necessary. In the issue of last week there was unintentionally left out of the get of Mambrino Wilkes. Clara P., who on the 11th of last month "gained unto herself a name" by winning three straight heats from Mr. Thornquist's Gerster the second heat being trotted in 2:29½. This makes four of the get of Mambrino Wilkes in the list, Gus Wilkes 2:22, Alpheus 2:27, Balkan 2:29½ and Clara P. 2:29½.

Margaret S.

The trim and speedy daughter of Director and May Day will be shipped from Stockton some time next week, her destination being Cleveland, where she goes to take part in the New York Spirit's Futurity Stake. She will be accompanied by M. Salisbury, Esq., and Andy McDowell, owner and driver. The game mare goes to battle with the best wishes of every California horseman behind her, and we hope to be able to congratulate her gentlemanly owner, on winning the first money in the race that he journeys so far to contest in. Such pluck is deserving of the highest praise, and if successful, owner, driver and filly will receive many a hearty cheer on their return. And now a word to the Eastern gentlemen who have horses in the race. When the conclusion has been arrived at, and the other eight are shaking hands with the fortunate one, he may rest assured that he has an animal that can put three heats inside of 2:20, that is if the Californian representative is beaten.

Margaret S. is as honest as the day is long; has plenty of speed, and her gameness cannot be questioned. So here is good luck to all concerned in the trip.

The Breeder and Sportsman's Futurity Stake.

The compositor causes many annoyances in a publishing office, but when the proof reader is also at fault the combination plant the seed that is liable to result in "curses loud and deep." The advertisement in last week's issue of the Futurity Stake offered by the proprietor of this paper, for the produce of mares covered in 1889, had two lines left out, which, now that it is corrected, reads somewhat different. The great hurry and bustle incidental to the getting out of such a paper as the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN was last week, must be our apology for the oversight. As will be seen by reading the notice, the proprietor of the only paper on the Pacific Coast, devoted to horse interests opens up a Futurity Stake and guarantees that there will be $3,000 to divide among the winners. The nominations must be made by January 1, 1890, at which time the first payment of $10, is due. The nominator must name the mare and by what stallion served. The second payment is due on Aug. 1, 1890, by which time it is fair to presume that all mares will have given births to their foals.

Race to be mile heats three in five in harness; to be trotted on a track in California offering the largest amount of added money, and will take place during the fall of 1893. Race to be governed by the rules of the association, of which the selected track is a member. Nominators not making all payments forfeit former ones, and the entire amount of forfeits and payments, together with added money, will be divided as follows: 65 per cent. to first horse, 20 per cent, to second horse, 15 per cent. to third horse.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN guarantees $3,000 to be divided as above stated.

If the payments, etc., amount to more than $3,000, the additional amount, after deducting cost of advertising, will also be divided in the same proportion to the winning horses.

Nominators whose mares prove not to be in foal will be refunded the amounts paid upon furnishing a written statement to that effect before August 1, 1890.

In nominating, give name of mare and stallion to whom she is bred, and within sixty days after foaling forward description of foal.

The great advantages to be derived from having foals entered in this stake must be self-evident to all, as at all periods up to the time of the last payment the value of the youngster is very materially enhanced, and from a financial standpoint it is a good investment. The intention is to have this the most popular three-year-old stake in California, and it will be repeated each year.

There are many who fancy that the large breeding farms might make so many entries that there will be no chance for the smaller class of breeders, but this is a great mistake, for the golden prize is nearly as liable to fall to the party making one entry as to he who makes a dozen. Talk this matter up among your neighbors, and see that the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN guaranteed $3,000 Futurity Stake has a large entry list.

A Letter From a Blackguard.

We have received the following letter, which it is deemed best to publish so that the writer may see how it looks in print:

TABLE BLUFF, Cal., Sept. 10, '89.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I see by your paper of Sept. 7th, that you take sides with the judges in the Susie S. and Stoneman race. I say that when you connect the owners of Stoneman with any fraud in that race, you are a damned liar. You say that if Cook had wanted the first heat he could have taken it easy. How do you know that Stoneman's rider was instructed to win if possible? If the judges saw anything wrong with Cook, why didn't they put up another rider? If Cook did wrong in the race, why did they allow him to ride in the next race?

I stood at the judges' stand and saw that race and had as good an opportunity to judge it as any one on the track. I think the judges of that race, through ignorance or fraud, did the owners of Stoneman a great wrong.

You say, "in the second heat the decision was greeted with a shout, and one small crowd went off and kicked itself."

I say again you are a damned liar. The owners of Stoneman went into the stand with Mr. Culver. T. J. KNIGHT.

The beautiful specimen of humanity who wrote the above, at one time owned Stoneman, and to show what sort of a man he is, we take the following from the Eurkea Times, published the day following the opening of the spring races at Eureka, Humboldt County:

"The next was a running race, half mile and repeat, for a $150 purse, for horses owned in Humboldt or Del Norte counties prior to April 1, 1889. The entries were little Cap, Jo Hooker and Stoneman, assigned positions as given above. In the pools Little Cap sold choice for $10, Stoneman second for $6, and Jo Hooker brought $6. They were flagged off the first time they came up to the half mile post well together. Stoneman soon took the lead, closely followed by Little Cap, with Joe Hooker close after Hooker commenced to gain before the quarter pole was reached, and came down the homestretch at a grand pace, making a dead heat with Stoneman in 0:52½. The time was remarkably fast, and as is always the case in close races, there was considerable discontent expressed at the decision of the judges. T. J. Knight being dissatisfied with the decision of the judges, sent Stoneman to the stables, when the judges called him up into the stand and notified him that they would rule him off the track unless he brought his horse back. The language he used to the judges and before ladies present was anything but gentlemanly, and resulted in the judges announcing from the stand that T. J. Knight was forever barred from the track of the Eureka Jockey Club. This decision elicited another profane epithet from Knight, when the judges ordered the officers to remove him from the grounds, which was done. The pools for the race were declared off."

There is probably no work connected with a horse paper that gives so much self-satisfaction to the worker in this particular line of sport as answering the questions sent in by subscribers, especially when there is some little point elucidated that has hitherto been a secret from the world at large, and the acquirement of which has not required too much trouble. We are always pleased to answer any questions that can by any possible means be ferrated out, but at times we strike a snag that tends greatly toward dampening our ardor and makes us express a wish to be in some other business. But on the other hand, think of the gratification derived when a long-hidden pedigree is finally put forth to the world and every point fully established. There is as much pleasure in the publication as there was to the ten-year-old boy when he for the first time accomplished the feat of putting all the pigs in clover.

This train of thought is brought about by the fact that several letters have been received in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN office this week which are rather disheartening to the "enquirer after truth," as Mr. Wallace puts it. Several months ago the idea occurred to one of the staff of this paper that as Mr. Brewster, the Secretary of the Washington Park Club, Chicago, was in California with the party that brought out Dolly McMahon, there was a slight possibility that he might know the parentage of the dam of Lillie Stanley. After a long and tedious wait an answer has been received, not from Mr. Brewster, but from the gentlemen to whom he had passed the question, and the following is the rather ambiguous reply:

"I have answered every sporting paper in the United States and done everything can be done.

A. L. GAGE."

We are very pleased to think that the gentleman has answered every sporting paper in the United States, but what was his answer? We fail to perceive any reply to the query in the above.

At the same time that Dolly McMahon was sold there was auctioned off by the same parties a mare called Lottie, which is now the property of Mr. Truman of this city. In the advertisements and catalogues of the sale the breeder's name was given as Capt. Tufft, of Leavensworth, Kansas. There have been hundreds of letters in the past ten years sent to "Capt. Tufft," but all have failed to reach the aforesaid Captain, until some months ago, by accident, it turned out that the name had been spelled wrong, and that the communications should have been sent to Capt. Tough, now of Kansas City. A note was immediately addressed to that gentleman, but although many weeks have elapsed, no reply has been received. This is part of the unsatisfactory work, and is almost on a par with the pedigree of "Gracie," in reference to which letters have been sent to eight different States and three territories, but the long looked for information seems just as far off as ever. This mare was trotted by J. Eoff and Tim Kennedy through California from 1875 to 1878, and got a record of 2:37¾. There is a "said to be" pedigree, but the sharpest kind of work has so far failed to elicit the information required.

There are received in the office of all sporting papers the most absurd questions, which are really so ludicrous that they furnish the humor in this particular line of work; the following is a fair sample: "Please let me know the pedigree of a bay mare that was brought to this State some years ago from Kentucky." Does it seem possible that anyone could pen the above, except in a spirit of fun, and yet the party who wrote it, called in all seriousness to know why the question had not been answered.

Another trouble we are called upon to face is "alleged pedigress." A gentleman purchased two mares some time ago in one of the northern counties, being told they were by —— a very fast trotter, with a record low in the twenties. When he wanted to breed them this season, the party owning the stallion, to which they were sent, rather doubted the authenticity of the genealogy given and wrote to this office in reference to the matter. Inquiry was made and it revealed the fact that the reputed sire had been castrated when only nine months old, and yet the owner of the mares is loth to believe that he has no established pedigree for his animals. Every trouble is taken to answer every question sent in but sometimes the parties to whom letters are sent, put them to one side or think it too much trouble to answer. Whenever information is desired our subscribers may rest assured that we will leave no stone unturned toward getting the desired knowledge if it can be secured, but we particularly request all persons sending in queries to give us all the information they may have about the question asked as many times we receive a clue in that way, that we might hunt months for.

Catalogues.

We have received by mail the mammouth catalogue of Ashland Park Stock Farm, Lexington, Ky. Heading the list of the stallions we find Bermuda 2:20½, one of the gamest stallions that ever graced a Kentucky farm. There is also Fayette Wilkes (trial 2:23½), Macey's Hambletonian (sire of Bosque Bonita three-year-old 2:26½), and Woodford Abdallah (trial 2:29.) The balance of the 283 pages are taken up with brood mares and foals of various ages. The book is well worthy of a corner in any breeders library, and contains much valuable information. In his announcement, Mr. Treacy says: "Prejudice is a poor commodity to go to market with, and hence is not cultivated at Ashland Park, but merit weighs as many ounces to the pound at this breeding farm as at any place in America. Its standard for the measurement of that excellence requisite in the choice of its brood mares and the sires to which they shall be bred, is merit —in the individual as well as in the family. If any sentiment has been permitted to influence the management it is liberality. Thus, nearly every known trotting family has been tested in Ashland Park Stud, and measured by the scale of performance."

W. C. France, the propritor of Highland Farm, Lexington, Ky., has also forwarded his mid-summer catalogue, the place of honor in this case, being occupied by Red Wilkes 1749, sire of twenty three in the 2:30 list. Then follows Wilton 5982, (record 2:19¼). Allandorf 7462; Sentinal Wilkes 2499; Dark Night 2858, and Pilot Mambrino 632. We then find seventy eight selected brood mares and any quantity of weanlings and yearlings. There are so many good ones that to do justice to them would require more space than we can spare. Send for one of the catalogues.

The Uinta Stock Farm is situated at Evanston, Wyoming Territory, and is the property of A. C. Beckwith, Esq, who sends us an excendingly well executed catalogue, containing the names and pedigrees of thirteen stallions, sixteen brood mares, six fillies and four geldings. The principal stallion is Ned Wilkes 4775, by Baron Wilkes, record 2,18, dam Steinette by Steinway 2:25¾. Mr. Beckwith says of him:

The blood lines alone of Ned Wilkes are enough to attract the attention of the most critical student of the trotting pedigree. His two crosses of Hambletonian through those two great speed-giving sires, George Wilkes and Strathmore; his three crosses of Mambrino Chief, two of them from Mambrino Patchen and Sally Chorister; his one cross of each, Edwin Forrest, Old Pilot, Black Hawk and Albion, to say nothing of his thoroughbred strains, (which come from the most illustrious descendants of the great fountain heads of speed, Imp. Messenger and Imp. Diomed), give him an inheritance of blood on which an enthusiast could write or talk by the hour.

We also find in the catalogue the grey gelding Faust, who beat all comers on the Montana Circuit getting a record of 2:18½. He is by Florida 482, dam Blaire by Bayard 53.

The phenomenal time of 1:10 made by Gregory, over the short straight at Coney Island on last Tuesday week was questi ned by many on the grounds, but there can be no doubt of its accuracy, as it was timed by dozens of outside watches. The fact that the horses should have run it faster over the muddy track then they have over a dry one explained by the fact that a terrific northeasterly gale was blowing on their backs all the way and literally lifted them along.

The Dawn-Lillie Stanley Race.

We have received the following letters, they require no comment:

PETALUMA, CAL., Sept. 18, '89.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Enclosed you will please find an open letter to Mr. Page, that I wish you would publish. My conviction now is that Mr. Page is the one that is mainly responsible for the talk with reference to the Dawn-Lillie Stanley race, and as I demanded an investigation, as suggested by you, from our Board, and they replied that there was nothing to investigate, the only course I now see left is to ask Mr. Page to make good his assertions.

Hoping that you will help me to carry out the idea as suggested by yourselves, I remain

Yours truly, ARTHUR L. WHITNEY.

Dear Sir: You have made the unequivocal assertion that Lillie Stanley was "pulled" in her race at Petaluma with Dawn. This is a very serious accusation, and one that no honest man would make, without proof positive that such was the case. I therefore demand, on behalf of the drivers, whom I believe to be innocent of any such action, and on behalf of my horse and myself, upon whom your remarks reflect, that you produce such evidence in as public a manner as I make this demand. Yours truly,

ARTHUR L. WHITNEY.

Killip and Co. sold by auction last Tuesday, several colts, property of R. P. Ashe. Mr. Pritchards were all bought in. W. Donathan increased his running stable by giving $160 for a useful looking yearling chestnut colt whose breeding is perfection, by Big Sandy, (Australian—Genevra by Lexington) out of Smilax by Saxon, with a Leamington Lexington Glencoe cross behind it, how can you beat it! A. C. Dietz also joined the thoroughbreds, outstaying his fellow bidders on Col. Thornton's El Rayo, by Grinstead—Sunlit by Monday and getting him a shade under two hundred.

Our State Fair Edition.

Last week we presented to our readers the best paper that was ever issued from this office, in fact the best ever issued on the Pacific Coast. Hundreds of letters have been received, congratulating the management on the magnificent edition, and the press has likewise been profuse in its praise. The following are a few of the notices received:

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is out with an exceeedingly handsome Fair number full of splendidly drawn pictures of celebrated horses, together with full information of the pedigree and history of each. Interesting details of past and forthcoming race meetings and fairs are also given, and the whole is enclosed in a colored cover presenting lithographs, one in front, the other on the back, of two celebrated racers. The pictures are admirable delineations. The production is certainly a credit to its proprietor, James P. Kerr.—S. F. Call.

A splendid piece of newspaper work, valuable as well for its reading, is the current number of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. Its lithographed cover is handsome, and it contains in addition striking pictures of the celebrated horses of the State.—Vallejo Chronicle.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has issued a very handsome State Fair edition. It is chock full of good things, and especially of horse lore. There are nine full page pictures of the leading horses of the Pacific Coast, which are a marvel of engraving and printing. This special edition is a credit to the turf of the coast, and should have a very large circulation. —S. F. Post.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of last week was a handsome number, the covers containing splendid lithograph portraits of Imp Greenback and St. Savior that should delight every lover of horse flesh. As a representative of the stock raising interests and of the sportsmen of this coast, this journal stands at the head of its class, and no one can keep well posted in these matters without regularly consulting its pages.—[Contra Costa Gazette]

Belle City Cutters.

The old-time of feeding was to fork a lot of fodder into a cattle yard leaving the stock to pick up what was not fouled by trampling on it. The method was wastefull and costly, but served in the absence of really good, effective, and lasting cutters. Messrs. Baker & Hamilton established so long in San Francisco and Sacramento as to make a history of the firm, an epitome of the agricultural history of the State, are now presenting what they style the Belle City, hay, feed and ensilage cutters. The affixing of the firm name is a sufficient guarantee of excellence of workmanship. The cutter in principle is infinitely better than any hitherto offered. It does a third more work with a third less power. It has a safety attachment which makes all danger to the operator impossible. They are strong, durable and of great capacity, the frames being of the best wood, firmly bolted together with long rods running through the frame, the irons are all well finished, boxes for the shaftings are babbited, and the machine runs as smoothly as a lathe. Its crowning merit is its cheapness. Readers should write the firm for its special catalogue.

Can you give me the pedigred of a stallion named Alexander II, now owned in Petaluma, I think?

Answer.—We do not know the horse, but probably some of our readers can give the desired information.

W. N. N.

Has Bracelet any record; if so, what is it?

Answer—Not that we know of.

I should be much obliged if you could tell me whether a mare by Algerine, out of Lady Fisher, both by Captain Fisher, is eligible to be registered according to rule No. 7. I should also like to know if I can obtain Wallace's Trotting Register through you, or if it is nncessary to write to New York.

Answer—If the other mares were registered (which they are not) you would have no trouble in registering your mare. For the books you require, send to J. H. Wallace, 280 Broadway, N. Y.

Sydney.

Can you give me the measurement of the two Australian cracks, Carbine and Mentor?

they could not go after game in his woods, the game could and would come out of his woods to be shot elsewhere. They are now kindly disposed toward the Tranquillity game preserve.

Mr. Stuyvesant is now fencing a stretch of mountain land for a deer park, wherein he will try to rear Cervus Virginianus, and perhaps other sorts as well. The feasibility of this, has already been demonstrated near Chicago, where a wealthy gentleman, Judge Caton, has an immense deer park, with specimens of nearly every sort of American wild ruminants.

The opening of the quail season has been more than usually warm. Streams have run dry, water is scarce in the hills, and dog and master find shade preferable to hard tramping after birds that are not fully grown. Quails are very plenty everywhere, but tney should be let alone at least until October 1st if not October 15th.

ROD.

The past week was rather an unprofitable one for the anglers, only a few good catches of rock-cod being reported.

At Military Point, Angel Island, on Sunday, some of the rock-cod that were hooked weighed over four pounds. At the same point on Tuesday a San Francisco gentleman caught five fish that weighed on an average three pounds. He also captured two cod fish.

"Pop" Chapin was high hook at Point Tiburon on Sunday last. His catch being as follows: Eighty-seven rock cod; five perch; one blue cod and one skate. Total weight fifty-three pounds.

The tides have been running unusually strong in the neighbourhood of Lime Point for some weeks past and small boats found much difficulty in holding anchor.

Anglers are constantly complaning about the early h ur, 5:30 P. M., at which the last boat leaves Tiburon for San Francisco.

We think the N. P. R. R. Co. could easily change the time for the departure of the last boat, or else make an extra trip on Sunday evenings, which would give the fishermen a chance to fish late in the afternoon.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

The amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the California Amateur Athletic Club was a decided success. The exhibition given at the Occidental Club rooms on Monday evening attracted a large crowd. The amateur athletes are slowly getting themselves into condition for coming events.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

McGee, of the University A. C., expects to do a fine performance in the "quarter" at the O. A. C. games.

Moffett, of the U. A. C., has not started in to train yet, but when the time comes he will give a good account of himself.

T. Powers, the amateur sprinter, took his departure for Oregon, some time ago.

The athletes are anxiously awaiting some definite news in regard to the in-door tournament proposed to be held under the auspices of the F. C. A. A. A.

It is time the O. A. C. was issuing its programme of games for November 28th.

The Thanksgiving Day athletic meeting of the Olympic Club will be held just two months from next Thursday, and the athletes should bear this fact in mind. Two months is little enough time in which to train properly before essaying to make good records.

Henry G. Klink walked one mile heel and toe in Pensacola, Florida, on Aug. 14th, in 6 minutes and 20 seconds, but the record will not be accepted until duly authenticated. George Perkins, an Englishman, walked a mile heel and toe in 6 minutes, 23 seconds, which is the world's record.

The Toronto police force have the heaviest and best tug-of-war team in the world, and they are ready to meet any police tug-of-war team, twelve men aside, for $1,000 a side.

The third annual Labor Day celebration of the Staten Island Athletic Club was held September 2d:

The official times as published in all the daily newspapers were: Wulf, 7m 26.4-5s; Nicoll, 6 m, 53.4-5s. It would, however, puzzle the time-keepers to explain how a 30-second man finishing in 7m 26.4-5s, could beat a scratch man whose time was 6m 53 4-5s.

440-yard handicap run—A. W. S. Cochrane, N. Y. A. C., 10 yards, 50.1-5s; D. I Tompkins, M. A. C., 22 yards, 2, by 3 yards; E. L. Sarre, M. A. C, 35 yards, 3 by 2 yards.

Exhibition one-mile run, by S. Thomas, Ranelagh Harriers, England. Mr. Thomas, who arrived the day before, was, of course, unable to run fast, but he gave an exhibition of his neat style, finishing in 5m 1⅗s.

Running high jump, handicap—F. J. Hosp, S. I A. C., 3 inches, 1, 5ft 6¾in; A. Nickerson, S. I. A. C, 1 inch, 2, 5ft 7¾in.; H. L Hallock, S I. A. C., scratch, 3, 5ft. 7½ in.

John W. Flynn and W. J. Keneally may take part in the November games of their club. Flynn can cover a hundred in fast time, while Keneally is one of the best quarter-mile runners on the coast when in good condition.

THE WHEELMEN.

A Chicago wheelman is preparing for a gigantic trip on his wheel. He intends to outdo Stevens, and visit every known country. Starting from Chicago on January 1, 1889, he will go first to Mexico, and expects to take water at San Francisco about October. While away he will write for several magazines and papers.

Some of the local wheelmen train in the Park early in the morning. The coming tournaments will no doubt revive affairs in the cycling world.

It is expected that a ladies' wheel club will soon be organized in San Francisco. There are quite a number of lady riders here, and if a club was organized it would tend to bring them together.

AT THE OARS.

The bay was in good condition for rowing on Sunday. The weather, perhaps, was a trifle too warm for this kind of exercise, but still the boys were out in full force, and a good many pounds of superfluous flesh were dropped during the day.

There will be considerable betting on the result of the professional championship race. A good many of the sporting men claim that the South End Crew will win.

Edward Hanlan recently presented Frank Smith, the well-known athletic club swinger and member of the Toronto Fire Department, with an elegant pin, which he brought specially from Australia. Smith trained Hanlan in several races.

The first Fall championship regatta of the New England Rowing Association was held on Charles River, Boston, Mass., Sept. 2nd. The water was calm, and the day just cool enough to be pleasant. The management was excellent. Appended are the results:

Padding canoes, 1 mile with one turn—E. B., Richardson, Arlington, B. C., 10m. 39s; W. L. Perry, Crescent, B. C. Boston, 2, by 100 yards; F. Kelly, C. B. C., 3; J. McQueeney, Columbia B. C., Boston, 4; G. L. Libby, A. B. C., 5. The winner held an easy lead from the start.

Junior single scull shells, 2 miles with one turn—M. T. Quigley, Atalanta B. C., New York) 14m. 7⅘s,; T. Higgins, Wachusett B. C., Worcester, 2, by 2 lengths; W. Panton, Shawmut B. C. Boston, 3; R H. Pelton, Seawanhaka B. C. Brooklyn, 4; J J. Rand, City Point R. A., South Boston. 5; W. Dwyer, C. B. B., 6; H. Flannigan, C. B C., 7; J. B. Sutcliff, C. P. R A., 8; D. O'Leary, Riverside B. C., Cambridge, 9.

Quigley had to work to hold the lead, which he secured in the beginning, but he was successful, although Higgins pressed him closely towards the end. Owing to there being but eight turning buoys Rand and Pelton fouled Intermediate single scull-shells, two miles, with one turn—J. Bergin, S. B. C., 13m. 58s.; E. Haas, W. B. C., 2, by a length; A. A. Frates, Cumberland, B. C., Portland, Me., 3, by 2 lengths; G J. Kirby, Narragansett B. C., Providence, R. L., 4, by 5 lengths; M. J. Coleman, Central, B. C., South Boston, 5. Bergin and Frates fought hard for first place on the way up to turn, with the advantage to the former until near the stake, where Frates turned first. On the way home Bergin overtook him, and later he rowed such an irregular course that Haas, who was a good third, became second.

Senior single-scull shells; 2 miles, with one turn—E. D. Rogers, Albany (N. Y.) R. C., 13m. 55⅗ s.; W Caffrey, C. B. C., 2, by 2 lengths; E. J. Mahoney, Bradford B. C., Cambridge, 3; J. J. Murphy, S B. C., 4; E. J. Carney, Institute B. C., 5; H. F. Corcoran, C. B. C., 6; E. N. Atherton, Metropolitan, B. C., New York, 7. For a little way it was anybody's race, but as the turn was neared Rogers began to show his bow to the front, and after the stake was rounded he opened out a couple of lengths of clear water, and at almost a practice spin led the way to the finish.

Double-scull shells—Babenswood B. C., Long Island City, J. Platt, Jr. (bow), A. Buschman (strok), 12m 6⅗s; Metropolitan E. C., J. E. Nagle (bow), J Pilkington (stroke), 2, by 3 lengths; Wachusett B. C., F. Haas (bow), J. O'Malley (stroke), 3, by 6 lengths. By the time the bridge was reached the Ravenswood had the race, barring accidents.

Junior four-oared shells; 2 miles with a turn—King Philip Club, Fall River, Mass., F. Splaine (bow), T. Philbin, W. Booth, J. F. Murphy (stroke), 13m 12s; Metropolitan B. C., New York City, D. Brasfield (bow), W Goodbody, C. Stransky, T. J. McManus (stroke), C. Mase, substitute. 2. From the start the victors showed the way and opened water, until at the finish they were three lengths ahead

Junior four-oared working boats; same course—Riverside B. C., Cambridge, M. Anglin (bow), W. Robinson, E. Hayes, P. Fitzgerald (stroke), 14m 26s; West End B. C., Boston, J. F. Mullaly (baw), J. Von Enden, J. Ronan, J. W. Palmen (stroke), ruled out. It was a bow and bow race about half way up the course, when the West Ends fouled the Riversides and were disqualified. The Riversides rowed the rest of the course alone.

Senior four-oared working boats, same course—Bradford B. C., J. Skelton (bow), D. A. McPhee, O. W. Dyer, John F. Cumming (stroke), 13m 4s; Central B. C., South Boston, M. J. Coleman (bow), H. F. Corcoran, D. J Casey, M. Cosgrove (stroke), 2; West End B. C., Boston, D. T. King (bow), T. Fitzpatrick, M. J Quinn, J. F. Fogarty (stroke), 3. The Centrals and Bradfords were about abreast until the bridge was reached, when the Bradfords pulled ahead, and were not thereafter troubled. The Centrals and West Ends lost a number of open lengths in the vicinity of the stake, but good sprinting, especially on the part of the former, closed the distance at the finish to a couple of lengths.

Senior four-oared shells, same course—Atalanta B. C., New York City, J. A. Dempsey (bow), W. Lau, M. Lau, G. C. Dempsey (stroke), 12m 52⅘s; Varuna B. C., Brooklyn, W. H. Reid (bow), E. Dunn, W. C. Johnson, E. S. McGrath (stroke), 2; King Philip B. C., Fall River, F. Sploine (bow), T. Philbin, W. Booth, J. F. Murphy (stroke), 3. The Atalantas and King Philip went spurt and spurt with alternate bows over the first half-mile, but the pace proved too hot for the latter after their junior pull, and the Atalantas then forged ahead, and thereafter pursued the even tenor of their way.

Eight-oared shells, 1½ miles straightaway—Bradford B. C., J. R. Murray (bow), J. Brogan, C. H. Monroe, J. A. McPhee, E. Buckley, D. A. McPhee, J. F. Cumming, J. Skelton (stroke), J. F. Neal (coxswain), 7m 39s; Shawmut R. C., W. Keenan (bow), T. Keenan, G. Mitchel, G. Bergin, W. Panton, D. Hefferan, F. Giblin, C. Murphy (stroke), A. McGlinchy (coxswain). 2, by 2 lengths; Crescent B. C., J. Walters (bow), J. Marshall, C. Hoeffner J. Quinn, A. Dowling, P. Fleming, J. Sloan, W F. Lyons (stroke), J. P Fox (coxswain), 3, by 6 lengths. The Shawmuts got the lead, but the Bradfords pulled a magnificent stern race, and, overtaking them, won by a length. It was a pretty race and worthy wind-up.

IN THE SURF.

E C Pinckham of San Francisco, and Alfred Sundstrom of New York, will probably meet again in a match race. If the race is not over one hundred, or one hundred and fifty yards, the Pacific Coast Champion should turn the tables on the New Yorker.

Dr. Riehl is also a frequent visitor at these baths, and he takes great delight in teaching young boys how to swim.

The different bath houses were crowded on Sunday last.

Capt. Volmer is getting his men into good shape at the Terrace Baths.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

Work on the new grounds of the O. A. C. is progressing rapidly.

The Directors of the C. A. C. and the Manager of the Harbor View Park have not as yet been able to agree on the lease subject.

The regular monthly exhibition and meeting of the Occidental Club was held at the club rooms, corner of Grove and Laguna streets, on Monday evening last. The usual three-round exhibition preceded the event of the evening.

The membership of the Lurline Swimming and Boating Club is rapidly increasing. A swimming instructor will shortly be engaged.

The members of the P. A. C. made a good move in re-electing C. Giry President of the Club. Mr. Giry is a genuine lover of out door sports, and it will not be his fault if the club does not go ahead.

Now that the boxing tournament is over the Directors of the C. A. C. may arrange for the holding of an out-door amateur meeting

Should the P. C. A. A. A. decide to hold an in-door meeting in November, the in-door athletic meeting of the Pacific Athletic Club will be postponed until January or February.

A boxing and wrestling tournament under the auspices of the Golden Gate Amateur Athletic Club will shortly be held.

The Pacific Athletic Club has removed to the Mission Rink on Misson street, near 20th street, where it has one of the largest gymnasiums in this city. The move is undoubtedly a favorable one for the club, as it is now comfortably located for its members.

Amateur Boxers.

The following report of the P. A. C. exhibition came in too late for our last issue:

The gymnasium of the Pacific Athletic Club on Market street, near Tenth, was packed with members on Thursday evening last to witness the regular monthly exhibition of the club.

Previous to the commencement of the entertainment, the following officers were elected by acclamation: President, C. Giry; First Vice-President, —— Benjamin; Second Vice-President, R. E. Nunan; Secretary, G. F. Kelly; Recording Secretary, C. C. Johnson; Financial Secretary, T. Baker; Treasurer, Mr. Troutwell; Master-at-arms, Mr. Shea; Investigation Committee—Messrs. Dwyer, Brady, Cusack, Hogan, Abble, Sullivan and McKinnon. The election of officers consumed a considerable portion of the evening, and it was half past nine before the first event was announced. C. Giry, President of the club was chosen as master of ceremonies. Two members of the club, Messrs. Palmer and McLoughlin, opened the proceedings with a three-round contest. There was no disguising the fact that both men were novices with the gloves. McLoughlin, who was very much lighter than his opponent, was soon convinced that ordinary tactics would not help him to get the best of his much heavier antagonist, so he essayed those of La Blanche, the Mariene, and quickly turning clear around, he tried to wipe the unsuspecting Palmer off the face of the earth with a single blow. The blow, however, was neatly dodged, and McLoughlin lay sprawling on the floor. The contest ended in favor of Palmer, who, by the way, if properly handled, may yet develop into a decent boxer.

The next event proved to be a very funny one. Two young men, Reynolason and Reardon, amused the audience by giving a two-round exhibition of "original" slogging. The effort was successful, and the audience yelled themselves hoarse at the amusing antics of both men. Professor Ingrams of the P. A. C., and Professor La Rue of Paris, next followed in a fencing exhibition. Fifteen points was to decide the contest. Both gentlemen are very skillful fencers, and the contest was very exciting. Professor Ingrams won with a score of 15 to 13.

After the fencers had left the ring Messrs. Wood and Sullivan appeared, and Master of Ceremonies Giry stated that they would box three rounds. Sullivan, who is a member of the P. A. C., proved himself to be the better of the two, and in the last round came very near knocking his man out. The event of the evening, a ten-round contest between Joe Hesketh, of the Pacific Athlethic Club, and George Napthally, commenced at 10.15. Ed Graney, of the Golden Gate Athletic Club, was chosen referee; Shortly after Hesketh entered the ring he was presented with a very handsome bouquet. The young man who presented it remarked that it was from a "lady admirer." The contest was a one-sided affair. Napthally appeared to be scared out of his wits even before the gong called time. The first round was decidedly a hot one, both men striking each other repeatedly with terrific force. Veritably, it was a slogging match from the word go. The round ended with Napthally very groggy. He was still very weak when the gong called time for the second round, and Hesketh seemed to be fully aware of the fact. He abandoned science, and relied solely on his strength. He was successful. Before the round was half over Napthally received some punishing smashes that caused him to do as Killen had done the night before, "throw up the sponge." He was a badly defeated man. The fight was a bloody one from start to finish, and the large audience slowly filed out of the club rooms, highly satisfied with the evening's fun. The winner of the contest will receive a handsome diamond medal emblematic of the club amateur championship.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Death.

Mr. S. E. Fisher, San Francisco, has lost by death the Virginia foxhound Don.

The Field Trials.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I am not at present fully prepared to make suggestions relative to our next Field Trials, but I have been thinking about it so much of late that I feel that it will be a relief to write you and post a letter on the subject to-day. Birds are plentiful this year—that is, so far as I have noticed in my regular rounds. I have not yet visited the grounds, but will in a few days, and ascertain, if possible, the prospect there; then will notify you. From what I have heard there are more birds! is year than have been for some years past. And in the event that our old ground is not well stocked we can easily find another. The question, however, of accommodation is what is puzzling me now. The Hotel people claimed a few weeks ago that they would have the Arlington completed by the end of the year If they do, we will be all right. If they do not, we will be all wrong, and will be compelled to make a camp. The camp scheme can be easily handled so far as location and house is concerned, only the question o beds and bedding is difficult to settle. Perhaps Nick White would be a good person to consult on that question. When I go to town again I will interview the hotel men, and ascertain, if possible, when the building will be completed, and we (the boys) will talk the matter over and arrive at some satisfactory conclusion, which I will communicate to you. "You can't stop us." It is unfortutate that the town was burned in more ways than one, but I anticipate an excellent time this year I was unfortunate in losing two dogs which I should like to have entered. But I am reconciled to the fates.

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 17, 1889. D. F. PYLE.

The death of Mr. S. E Fisher's foxhound Don, noted elsewhere, occurred under peculiarly exasperating circumstances. Mr. Fisher had wounded a big buck near Novato, and the dog fastened to the deer. The buck trampled him badly, and then impaled the poor beast on his horns.

The Parson's Cob.

"There—dear-a-me—there! Whoa! Hold up! Now that makes five times since we left the rectory. Really, John, I think I shall have to part with Billy, or we shall be having an accident one of these days. I know we shall. The old cob must be getting worn out, for I have had him—now let me think—yes—whoa!—there he goes again, dear a-me—seven years at least," said the Reverend James Lughes, addressing his groom and general factotum, who was seated beside him in the low basket cart.

"Beg pardon, sir, Billy only wants wakening up; he's only a bit idle. He's as sound and fresh on his legs as the day you bought him," replied the groom, a smile lurking in the corner of his mouth, which developed into an unmistakable grin as the cob again tripped and stumbled, this time jerking about four inches of rein through the reverend's hand.

"Dear-a-me—dear-a-me. He will be down, I know he will. Come, Billy, come; you are too bad," said the driver, whose temper must have been slightly ruffled by the repeated stumbling, for he withdrew a light holly stick from its socket, swished it through the air as though he was trying to kill flies, and eventually got the lash tangled round the rein turrets.

The cob seemed quite used to this proceeding, and pulled up almost of his own accord to allow the groom to get out and release the lash.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the man, as he stepped back into the cart, "try hitting 'im underneath or across the forebows."

"No, John, no," replied his master, with a look of horror. "I have heard on good authority that punishment applied in the latter locality is conducive to kicking, and the latter I could not reach without bending forward and relaxing my hold on his mouth; the back is the proper place for chasti—Oh, dear a-me; he was almost down then—those horrid loose stones. Whoa, Billy; hold up. Really, I cannot bear this. My mind is made up, and unless he improves between now and August fair I shall really have to part with him. There, Billy, steady now. Walk, Billy, walk.

It was the Tuesday in August fair week. The basket trap was waiting to convey the parson, on horse-dealing intent, to the busy scene of cracking whips, clattering hoofs and shouting riders. Billy, ungratefully Billy, stood sleepily between the shafts, his beefy sides swelling with fat, and from his half-closed lazy eyes hung two tears. Were they from remorse or fly bites? I almost fear the latter, for on the journey to Horncastle Billy made no attempt to retrieve his lost character, but, if possible, tripped and stumbled worse than ever. When they entered the town they found the streets almost impassable, a mass of men and horses. The unaccustomed sights and sounds showed Billy to be possessed of more mettle than he had been given credit for; once he ran the near wheel bang into a stall of rugs and halters that projected into the roadway, twice he cannoned against passing horses, and many times he and his driver were the recipients of anything but complimentary or parliamentary language as they progressed in spasmodic jumps and starts through the crowded streets. At last the Bull Hotel was reached, and excited Billy was unharnessed and led forth by unwilling John to be sold, his hard-hearted and determined master following in the rear Hardly had they passed the archway when a seedy-looking tout caught John by the sleeve aed asked in beery tones, "How much?"

"There's the meester," John replied, halting and indicating a gentleman in black who was close behind.

To him the tout then applied, repeating bis query with the respectful addition, "sir."

"You wish to buy my cob Bill?" answered the parson, hurriedly stepping aside, just in time to escape being knocked down by a huge dray-horse that was thundering past. "Well, really I hardly know what his market value should be. Would you be willing to give me twenty-five pounds?"

"Mebee. That depends," said the man, with a knowing grin. "Bring him down this lane, and I'll get my partner to have a look at him," he added, pointing to a by-street near hand, and giving a horsey-looking man who was standing near a meaning wink. The cob accordingly was led into the lane, and after a few hurried words with the recipient of his wink the tout and his confrere followed.

"Whoa. Let him stand there," said the new-comer, who in less time than it takes me to write these words had examined Billy's teeth, felt his legs, tried him for a roarer, and passed his whip down his hind legs to see if he was quiet. "Run on a few yards, young man," he said, familiarly addressing obese John. "Loose his head, young man. Telk! elk!" he said, bringing his sharp whip beneath astonished Billy's body. "Why, he's lame," he exclaimed, turning to the parson, who had been a silent and mystified spectator of the dealer's action. "Lame as a cat. Swings his near fore leg," he continued, pointing to the cob.

"Lame?" Dear-a-me. You don't say so? Really!" exclaimed the astonished owner vainly trying to remember what part of the horse is named the near fore leg, and so discover the fault complained of.

"Lame as a tree. Just look," said the dealer, as Billy and his perspiring attendant approached.

"Lame? Really! John, do you know how—" began the perplexed parson, making a movement towards his servant; but before he could reach him, or finished the sentence, the dealer had caught him by the sleeve and led him away for a few paces.

"Now, look here, guvnor, lame or not lame, I'll take him with all his faults and failings, and give you ten sovereigns for him. It's what he's worth; but I've got a commission to buy a quiet old nag for an invalid's bath chair, and this seems just the thing. He'll never have to go out of a walk. Say I'm to have him. It's a big price—come, knock him down," he said coaxingly, holding out a rather dirty palm.

For a few moments the parson hesitated. "But what a capital home for Billy," he thought; "and really, ten pounds must be a good price for him if he swings the near fore leg. Perhaps I had better take the offer. Yes, I will," and aloud he said to the expectant dealer: "Yes; upon consideration, and taking into account the prospect of the kind treatment you promise for my aged cob, I have decided you may have him and I trust his new owner will use him as well as I have done."

Almost before he had finished speaking the dealer had a greasy purse from his pocket and had counted out ten pounds, which he handed to the seller with a cool demand for "ten bob back for luck."

He was turning to go, when the man stopped him.

"Beg pardon, sir. Did you say you wanted to buy a hoss? Now, I've got the very thing to suit you, just about the size of your old nag, but as stylish and showy as they make 'em. Quiet as a sheep. Five years old, and can pass a vet. Should you like to have a look at him?"

"Certainly. Really! Dear-a-me, how fortunate. Where can I see the animal you describe?" said the parson, highly delighted at the prospect of thus easily solving the purchasing difficulty.

"I'll have him at the Greyhound stables in half an hour sir. Do you know where that is? Just on the Spilsby road, sir. Don't be late, sir, as there's a man coming to look at him as is very keen—wants him for a bishop. He's just your hoss, sir. You'll have a look at him, then?"

"I shall be delighted," answered the parson with a smile, "and am much obliged to you for offering me first chance of the animal. I will go and find my friend Mr. Helson, who is a good judge of a horse, and asked him to inspect the cob with me. Good day, good day. I will be there in half an hour"

Punctually, after an interval of thirty minutes, the Rev. James Lughes entered the Grayhound stable-yard; but, alas! he was unaccompanied by his horsey friend Helson, and considerably vexed because he had been unable to find him. "However," he argued with himself as with some trepidation he walked up the straw-covered yard, "I have kept horses all my life, and really I think I know enough about them to be able to purchase a suitable animal."

The cob was trotted into the street, and gave the groom no little difficulty in holding him and keeping pace with his movements as he rattled along the stones. He seemed full of mettle, stepping gaily, arching his closely-cropped neck and carrying his short tail erect like a hand-brush.

"Yes, he trots very nicely, but he seems very excitable; I almost think I require a more sober animal. You say he is quiet?" said the parson with some misgivings, as the cob drew up in front of him, snorting and straining on the bits.

"Quiet, sir? I should say he was quiet. Why, the party who put him into my hands to sell used to let her little five-year-old girl go out riding on him alone. Quiet? Why, if you could have seen him, as I have many a time, standing in the street with no one near him, waiting for his missus while she was shopping, you wouldn't ask that question. Quiet? Why, you might take a nap between his hind legs," replied the dealer, passing his hand over the cob's quarters and tugging his tail to convince the questioner the truth of his statements. "Well, sir," he continued, "there he is. Will you buy him? I'm not asking a big figure for such a stamp. He ought to make fifty; but, there, you let me have your old crock at my price, and so if you like to take him for forty he's yours. Will you have him?"

"Forty pounds! Dear-a-me, I wish my friend could see him," said the parson, who now, when it came to the point, had some misgivings as to his own capabilities of proper judgment. "If you could wait five minutes I will step up to the Bull Hotel and see if Mr. Helson has yet arrived. Do you mind waiting?"

"Can't do it, sir. Expect the bishop's buyer here directly. Come, sir, he's certain to suit you. You can't find a better in the fair. It don't want two to buy one like him. Come, sir, make me a bid any way, though I don't think I shall bait much of forty," replied the dealer, who did not seem to relish the idea of Mr. Helson's intervention at all.

"Forty pounds. Dear-a-me. I did not intend to spend more than thirty, and I suppose you could not entertain that offer?" asked the parson, with considerable surprise at his own audacity for making such a bid for the handsome cob

"No, sir. Much obliged all the same. I can't do it. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give you a quid out of forty, but I can't go no lower. My instructions were, forty pound, or bring him back. Look at him, sir, look at him. Why, he's dirt cheap. Whoa, then; whoa, my pink," said the dealer, playfully dropping his whip round the cob's hind legs, which had the effect of making him attempt to climb over the groom.

"Yes, sir, perhaps he is cheap; but before I decide I will see if I can find my friend. I will go and see," said the parson, turning on his heel.

"Come here, sir," quickly exclaimed the dealer, afraid that he might lose his chance. "Come here, sir. You won't give more than thirty? Then you shall have him, though I don't know what the widdy'll say, Thirty pounds, sold, and you've got a bargain. Come to the bank, sir. Yes, sir. Where's the cob to be taken to? The Bull, sir? Yes, sir. Tom, put a new halter on him and take him to the Bull for the Reverend ——? Thank you, sir. The Reverend Mr. Lughes."

"There, John," exclaimed the horse-dealing parson, delighted with his success, to his man, whom he found inspecting the new purchase in the Bull stables, "I have just bought him. Nice animal, I think; though I fear rather high-spirited. I am sorry they cut his mane and tail so short. for I think when in their full beauty they are the chief adornments of the horse. However, they will soon grow again. Put the harness on, John, and we'll get away from this noisy place."

"Very nice cob, sir. Takes old Billy's harness well," said the groom with a grin, as he pushed on the collar, which fitted to a nicety.

"Yes, John, I remarked upon his similarity to Billy the moment I saw him; but the old cob had a lot of hair on his legs, and a white foot, or fetlock, I believe is the proper term," replied the parson, airing with some pride his knowledge of horsey terms.

"Yes, sir," said the groom, with a more pronounced grin as he fitted on the crupper, which did not require the slightest alteration. "About the same length of head," he added, still grinning, as the bridle and bit slipped on as though the cob had been measured for them. "Now that's odd," he exclaimed, almost bursting his livery as the cob solemnly lifted up his near fore foot after the harnessing was completed and when the few straws had been taken out of the hoof he lifted the other three in succession. "That's just what I taught old Billy."

"Yes, most singular," concurred his master, with a growing expression of wonder on his face, as the new purchase, of his own accord, turned in his stall and followed John to the basket trap that was standing near. "Seems very tractable," he remarked as he got into the trap, "very tractable."

"Yes, sir," said John, handing him the reins and taking his place beside his master, grinning more than ever.

The town was cleared without much difficulty, as the crowds had thinned considerably since the morning, but so long as the crackings of whips sounded, the new cob pulled violently, and made the low wheels hum and rattle till the parson almost feared he was running away. But when the country was reached the cob relapsed into a more sober gait, greatly to the satisfaction of his driver, who remarked, as though he had rather approved of the quick pace they had been traveling, but still not daring to take his eyes off the cob:

"Goes nicely, John?"

"Yes, sir," replied the man; "rather high-mettled, but none the worse for that."

"Hello!" exclaimed the parson as the cob got into a walk of his own accord, when the bottom of a rise in the road was reached. "Why, this is just the place where Billy always wished to walk. Come! Come! we won't have a repetition of the old horse. Come! Telk! telk!" and the holly whip swished through the air, and as usual became tangled in the harness. Oh, horror! the new cob stopped. Good heavens! it was Billy. And three silver-plated buttons bearing the reverend's crest and motto were plainly to be seen flying from red-faced John's bursting livery.—[London Sporting and Dramatic News.

The Seat of Power in the Horse.

Some of the ablest writers on the horse have made careful study and exposition of the mechanism of the horse, and accorded to this subject the full measure of importance that it deserves. Yet, so little have such writings penetrated to the masses of horsemen, says an exchange, so little have they crowded out the inclination toward individual reckless conclusions, that even in places where high authority directs the methods of dealing with the equine species, where the collective value of many animals, if nothing else, should prompt the application of true scientific principle, even there, in many instances nature's intentions are either disregarded or faultily construed.

The mechanism of the horse is wonderful, graceful, complicated, yet so practical that most of man's great achievements in mechanical constructions are eclipsed thereby. It is a common human weakness, an assertion of the inherent egotism in man, to judge of such a matter in the light of its adaptability to human purposes; the correct principle, however, would lead us to shape and adapt our requirements to the capabilities embodied in nature's groundwork, in this case specifically, the horse's mechanism. And as all the use and aid that we derive from the horse implies an expenditure of power and progressive motion on his part, the problem first in order is manifestly to locate the true seat of power in the horse, and to ascertain the natural ways in which such power is made available.

All progressive motion in organized beings is produced by the alternate contraction and extension of their propelling members. Quadrupeds propel themselves by their legs, the bird by its wings, fish by their tails or fins, reptiles by the annular process; with all of them the propelling member is in a state of contraction when it comes in contact with the resisting surface, and through the extension of the member a forward motion takes place, the body moving in the direction of the least resistance. The velocity of the motion corresponds with the power exerted in the extension of the contracted propelling member.

In the case of a healthy horse the fore leg always comes to the ground in an extended shape, all its bones, with the exception of those at the pastern joint, abutting on one another in very nearly a straight line, from the point of the shoulder to the extremity of the leg, so that being manifestly incapable of further extension, it must be concluded, on the principle laid down, that it is equally incapable of exerting any propelling energy, and consequently that the only purpose it can serve is that of sustaining the weight of the incumbent fore quarter during the successive advances of the hind legs. Add to this that the bony structure of the fore leg is joined to the rest of the frame by mere muscular attachments, calculated not to communicate impulse, but to break concussion, and we will come to the conclusion that the propelling power of the horse does not reside in the fore legs.

The hind legs, however, instead of being merely united by a flexible and elastic muscular attachment with the rest of the fame, are inserted into the extremity of the spinal column by connecting-bones of large dimensions and eminently calculated, from their direction, to impart impulse to the whole figure. The limb is brought to the ground with all its parts in a high state of contraction, the shank-bone forming an angle with the upper leg bone at the hock, the upper leg bone forming an angle with the thigh-bone at the stifle joint, and the thigh-bone forming another angle with the haunch-bone, which abuts directly on the lumbar vertebræ, and is the immediate agent in conveying the impulsive force of the hind legs to that center of the system. Here, then, we have a series of no less than three angles, not to speak of the elastic apparatus of the pastern in the successive openings out of which, by the contraction of the limb at every stride, all the muscular energy of the hind quarters is called into play, and thus, the foot forming the point of resistance, the body of the animal at every stretch of the hind legs, is shot forward with a velocity proportioned to the amount of muscular action exerted in that process of extension.

The extent of this muscular action is, of course, governed by the natural conformation of the individual animal. It being proved that the fore legs are merely pillars to sustain weight, and to receive and support the center of gravity, which is alternately advancing and receding with the motion of the animal, we must look to the more or less acute angles at which the levers of the hind quarters are inclined toward each other for the extent of contraction of which they are capably. Hence the practiced eye ranges over the entire symmetry, from the point of the haunch to the articulation pastern, estimating the amount and the character of the power the horse is capably of exercising. The high haunch-bone and lengthy thigh-bone will characterize the speed of the racer, the acute angle of the thigh-bone with the upper leg bone will denote the agile power that confers trotting-action while the requisites for slow draft will be the reverse of both, demanding not so much rapid and successive contraction as strong muscular efforts to move shorter levers.—National Sportsman.

It seems a pity that Lee and Keating have got their grey gelding Sensation into such hot company back East, he has not won a race yet but has driven out Nelson in 2:15 being beaten only by a head. He also trotted at Springfield in better than 2:19 but could only get second money.

Sale of Elector.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—We have sold to the Springfield Stock Farm, Springfield, Ill., the stallion Elector with a record of 2:21¼. As is probably well known, Elector is by Electioneer, dam the famous Lady Babcock by Whipple's Hambletonian. Lady Babcock never produced but three foals. The first Elector, 2:21¼; second Soudan, three-year-old record 2:30, capable of touching 2:20, and Lady Graves by Nutwood, owned by Senator Rose of California. Lady Graves was never worked for speed, but Senator Rose informs us that she is one of the best, if not the best daughter that Nutwood produced in California. She breeds a high rate of speed, and we own one of her get that can this year beat 2:30 with ease.

We purchased Elector, 2:21¼, at Kellogg's sale of Governor Stanford's consignment at the low price of $2,200, owing to the fact that some one either through malice or foolishness circulated the report that Elector was troubled with spring halt, and from the further fact that he had been brought over in a car with twelve other horses and mares which had kept him in a state of sexual excitement, and had caused him to grow very thin in flesh and tucked about the flanks. We have known Elector for many years before coming East, and always regarded him as one of the grandest sons of Electioneer. He never took a spring-halt in his life that we have ever seen, or that has ever been seen by Mr. Charles Marvin or Mr. Orrin Hickok, who owned and drove the horse. In style and action he is the showiest of any of the get of Electioneer we have ever seen. Very few if any stallions, can outshow him in harness. He is a grand dispositioned horse, and can be safely handled by a lady, yet he is full of spirit. Few if any of the sons of Electioneer are faster than Elector, and, except for an accident which threw him out of training last season, he would undoubtedly have had as low a record as any of the family. While in California he sired a few colts, and they are full of promise. The oldest are now, we think, three years old, and either four or five are reported as capable of entering the 2:30 list this season. In general appearance we know of no two sons of Electioneer bearing closer resemblance to each other than Elector, 2:21¼, and Norval, 2:17½.

Given the opportunity that he will have at the Springfield Stock Farm on such grandly bred mares, we believe that within the next five years he will rank among the greatest speed producing sons of Electioneer.

We received $7,500 for this horse, and we believe him the cheapest horse and one of the best that ever went into the State of Illinois. We have bred a number of our choice mares to him, and shall develop their progeny in the full belief that a horse with such grand action and breeding cannot fail to produce a uniformly high rate of speed. Yours,

Miller & Sibley.

Donovan Wins the St. Ledger.

London, Sept. 11th.—The 114th race for the Doncaster St. Leger was run over the Town Moor to-day, and those who expected to see a great race, North versus South, between the Yorkshire trained colt Chitabob and the Newmarket-trained Donovan were badly disappointed. Chitabob utterly failed to sustain the good opinions had of him on the strength of his winning the Yorkshire Stakes at York. He started a good second favorite, but did not get a place, the mighty Donovan winning easily by three lengths from Mr. Gretton's Miguel, who was the same distance in front of Lord Bradford's Davenport. The betting and other starters were: 3 to 2 on Donovan, 4 to 1 against Chitabob, 17 to 1 Enthusiast, 20 to 1 each Davenport and Pinzon, 33 to 1 Miguel, 40 to 1 Workington, 66 to 1 against l'Abbesse de Juaree, 100 to 1 each Gay Hampton and Lord Lorne and 200 to 1 each Scottish Fusileer and Cherot. The race was run in 3:13, as against Seabreeze last year in 3:11 4-5 and Kilwarlin in 1887 in 3:36. The slowest time record is 3:32 by Robert the Devil, the sire of Chitabob, in 1880, that by Seabreeze last year being the fastest.

One hundred and fourteenth running of the St. Leger Stakes, for three-year-olds, at £25 each, the owner of the second to have £200 and the third £100 out of stakes; closed Sept. 23, 188 , with 204 subs; about one mile, six furlongs and 132 yards.

Lord Bradford's b c Davenport, by Chippendale—Hemlock, by Wenlock, 126..... 3

C. Perkin's ch c Chitabob, 126 (Fagan); D. Baird's ch c Enthusiast, 126 (T. Cannon); Lord's Zetland's b c Pinzon, 126 (Watts); J. Lowther's ch c Workington, 126 (Bruckshaw); Lord R. Churchill's blk f l'Abbesse de Jouarre, 123 (J. Woodburn); Sir R. Jardine's ch c Lord Lorne 123 (Osborne); W. Low's b c Gay Hampton, 123 (G. Barrett); Duke of Hamilton's ch c Scottish Fusileer, 123 (Driscoll), and J. Lowther's ch c Cherott, 123 (Morgan), ran unplaced.

But few winners of the St. Ledger have had a career like that of Donovan. The above is his nineteenth race, of which he has won sixteen. He ran in all thirteen times as a two-year-old, beginning at the first meeting of the year, and ending late in October at Newmarket. He won eleven of the thirteen, and his defeats include second to Chitabob for the Whitsuntide Plate at Manchester, and third for the Prince of Wales Stakes at Goodwood. This year he was just beaten for the Two Thousand Guineas. He had previously won the Prince of Wales Stakes of £11,000 at Leicester, and has since won the Newmarket Stakes of £6,000, the Derby of £4,050, the Prince of Wales Stakes at Ascot, £2,225, and with the St. Ledger, worth £5,000, Donovan has won a total of £45,363. He has yet several engagements that will add about £10,000 or £12,000 to that amount.

The New York Spirit of Times claims to have received private informations, that Sunol will beat the record in October.

Mr. Wallace, the owner of the celebrated Australian horse Carbine, contemplates sending him to England. If both are in form next year what a race it would make between him and Donovan!

W. L. Appleby has purchased from the Palo Alto Stock Farm, the two year old filly, Raindrop by Wildidle, dam imp Teardrop. The price paid was $1,000. When she won on Wednesday, Mr. Appleby very nearly got his money back from the pool box.

A short time ago a prominent Californian breeder offered $10,000 for Exile, but the answer came from Mr. Lakeland that$ 20,000 would not buy the horse. Apropos "Roundabout" says:

Billy Lakeland is the only man that could have kept Exile on the turf as long as he has. His feet are almost entirely gone. They have been that way for over a year, and yet Billy keeps on pulling off an important stake every now and then. He pulls up with bleeding feet after almost every hard gallop, and yet he is such a gross fellow that dozens of hard gallops are required to get him fit. All the long summer through Billy has been kept busy in patching up his feet, and galloping him, and then patching up his feet again. Some two or three weeks ago, word came up from the Beach that his feet were holding together, and that Billy had half an eye on the rich Twin City. There was a mad rush for the up-town bookies, but they were too busy to have any time to waste on future events. On Tuesday, everybody had him as a cinch. The bookies that started in to buy 3 to 1 against him were almost carried off their boxes. Many of them held up bodly against the torrent, however, and took all that was offered them. At one time, too, it looked as though they would not have to give it back again. Hamilton was riding Lakeland's crack as he only rides Lakeland's cracks, but he did not seem to gain a bit under it. As they straightened out for home, however, Billy's crack seemed to recollect that he had business at the head of the line. It was soon all over then.

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, MICH., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used OSSIDINE for the past two years, and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone, and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours,
S. A. BROWNE & CO., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish.

Acknowledged by leading horsemen of the world to be the ONLY preparation that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

We have authority also to refer to
Mr. JEROME I. CASE, Mr. FRED. GEBHARD, Mr. JOHN PORTER (Trainer to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales),
And hundreds of others from whom we have very flattering testimonials.

FIVE DOLLARS A YEAR.

STOCK AWARDS,
SACRAMENTO.

On Friday morning the ladies' tournament brought a large crowd to the Park. Thirteen ladies turned out, and after an interesting set of exercises had been gone through, tilting at the ring, hurdle jumping, etc., the prizes were awarded:—

First prize, Miss McGrath, riding habit, saddle, bridle, etc., given by The Examiner, and valued at $250; second prize, Miss Kembler, $70; third prize, Miss Le May, $55: fourth prize, Mrs. Mrs. Collier, $40; fifth prize, Miss McIntosh, $35; sixth prize, Miss Dixon, $30; seventh prize, Miss Miller, $25; eighth prize, Miss Bradley, $20; ninth prize, Mrs. Ware, $15: tenth prize, Miss P. Goetz, $10; special prize for best riding, Miss Le May, $50. Miss Gremsha, Miss Clarke and Mrs. Trefry were awarded extra prizes of $10 each.

Judging was carried on all through the week. The carriage teams were soon judged, W. Crabbs receiving first, while H. L. Nichol's pair of bay brown roadsters, by Fallis and Tom Benton, won still easier in third class. Standard trotters were judged by Messrs. Salisbury, H. L. Nichols and T. P. Hendricks, who had a long and unthankful duty in deciding which should have the ribbons, objections and counter objections following one another so that it was late on Saturday before they were finally settled. The Berkshires shown by A. Smith were generally acknowledged to be the best collection ever seen in Sacramento. They were practically walkovers in almost every instance.

The judges in the Hereford class were evidently on the reciprocity lay out, i. e. did not want to give too much to one man. Vaughan's aged bull was beaten in the class, but in the sweepstakes they reversed their decision, giving the premium to Vaughan's bull.

The herd sweepstakes had eleven entries, Messrs. Heilbron and Vaughan representing the Hereford breed, while Dr. Dixon's and M. Weedon's Angus, with Mr. McEnespy's Devons and six Shorthorn entries, completed the list. Mr. Chiles, who did not get among the blue ribbons in his own breed, was awarded the prize over the Herefords, Vaughan's receiving especial mention, and certainly should have had first prize.

In Durhams, Col. Younger & Son took both herd premiums, and J. Marzen the sweepstakes. Messrs. Heilbron and Chiles were unfortunate, for Heilbron's two-year-old bull was certainly the best, while Chiles' yearling was good enough for any company.

THURSDAY.

Crowds of people were out, the largest attendance in fact of the fair being present. The weather was oppressively hot and close. The track was in good shape and fast. The first event of the day was the

2:27 Class—Trotting

The starters were E. B. Gifford's b h Atto Rex, Geo. Cropsey's ch m Eva W., J. A. Goldsmith's blk h Memo, John Green's br g Melrose, and B. C. Holly's ch m Pink. A few pools were sold at $100 for Atto Rex to $12 for the field.

First Heat.—Memo and Atto Rex went around the turn together, and at the quarter Memo led by a head, Melrose in third place close up, Eva W. a bad fourth, and Pink, who broke at the send off, out of it. The positions were unchanged at the half, Melrose making a a slight break on the backstretch. On the second turn Atto Rex passed Memo and came into the straight two lengths to the good. On the straight Johnny Green sent Melrose along at a fast clip and passed Memo for second place. Atto Rex trotted in as he pleased winner of the heat by three lengths, Melrose second, Memo third, Eva W. fourth, Pink fifth. Time, 2:24¼.

Second Heat.—Atto Rex was considered the only thing in it, and there was no money to be had against him after the first heat. When the bell sounded he went away in the lead, and at the quarter it was Atto Rex first by a length, Melrose second, Memo at his wheel, Pink close up. The positions remained the same until they got to the second turn when Atto Rex drew away with a lead of three lengths and Melrose left Memo two lengths behind. In the straight there was a strong fight for second place. Pink came up from fourth place very fast and collared Melrose at the drawgate, coming home second a length behind Atto Rex, breaking at the wire. Melrose finished third, and Eva W. fourth, but she was set back for running. Time, 2:26.

Third Heat—Atto Rex took the third heat with the same ease with which he took the other two, going in front all the way, Pink second. On the backstretch Memo in third place was passed by Eva W., who was running. Melrose made a tangled break and lost his chances, trotting last the entire distance. In the fight for second money Memo and Eva W. both made play at Pink in the straight, but they could not catch her and she finished second two lengths behind Atto Rex, running under the wire, Eva W. third, Memo fourth, Melrose fifth. Eva W. was breaking at intervals through the entire mile and was set back to fifth place for running. Time, 2:26¾.

Trotting—Four-year-olds.

The next event on the card was the above, Irvin Ayres' br h Balkan, L. U. Shippee's b h Moses S. and Pleasanton Stock Farm's blk h Direct coming out for it. It was another one-sided affair productive of no contest of speed.

First Heat—A few pools were sold Direct against the field at $160 to $12. At the send-off, Balkan broke and was not in it. Direct and Moses S. went around the turn together. Andy held the little black back and allowed Moses S. to stay at his wheel until they reached the drawgate when he gently drew away and took the heat easy by two lengths from Moses S. Balkan was never nearer than eighth lengths of them. Time, 2:24¾.

Second Heat—No more pools were sold on the race after the first heat. When they got the word, Direct went away and trotting around the turn with Moses S. at his wheel. At the quarter Direct was a length in front of Moses S. and three lengths away from Balkan. Going down the backstretch Moses got up to Direct's wheel, but at the half, Direct again led him a length, Balkan four lengths away. They entered the straight in those positions. Coming home Balkan made a play for second place and succeeded in getting within two lengths of Moses S., but broke. Direct took the heat by two open lengths, Moses S. the same distance ahead of Balkan. Time, 2:25¼.

Third Heat—Direct went off fast and at the quarter was 2 lengths from Moses S., and 6 from Balkan. Andy had the colt going fast and steady and kept him at it, drawing clear away from his field and finishing the mile in 2:18¼, six lengths from Moses S, Balkan just saving his distance.

The free-for-all pace did not fill, and instead the directors substituted a special for Yolo Maid, Adonis and Gold Leaf. The betting on the event was heavy and fast, Yolo Maid selling favorite at $200, Adonis second choice at $160, and Gold Leaf going at $25

First Heat—Yolo Maid took the lead as they swung into the turn, Gold Leaf close up to her, Adonis a length back in third place. At the quarter in 0:33½, Maid was a length in front, Gold Leaf a length from Adonis. The pace was very fast on the backstretch. The Maid went on in front. Adonis began to crowd up to Gold Leaf, and at the five-eighths post collared, and passed her. At the half in 1:03½, Yolo Maid was three lengths in front of Adonis, and he two lengths from Gold Leaf. Andy was laying the heat up. The leaders gradually drew away from her on the second turn, and when the straight was reached, the Maid was two lengths in front of Adonis and eight from Gold Leaf.

In the straight Hickok began to move Adonis up, closing his gap steadily. His driver gave him the whip, and he got to Yolo Maid's wheel. She, too, was given a few taps, and with the crowd cheering like mad, she went under winner, Adonis at her wheel, Gold Leaf ten lengths behind. When the time, 2:12½, was hung out, the crowd yelled.

Second Heat—Pools sold: field $110, Yolo Maid $100. Adonis had half a length the advantage at the go, but Yolo Maid swung into the turn first, Adonis a length from her, and Gold Leaf a length from him. The Maid was going fast, and at the quarter, 0:33½, she was three lengths from Adonis and five from Gold Leaf. Down the backstretch she drew away still further, and as she flashed past the half-mile post in 1:05½, she was four lengths from Adonis and eight from Gold Leaf. When she came into the straight she was still four lengths to the good of Adonis, Gold Leaf five lengths behind him. Adonis was again driven for the heat, and got up within two lengths of the Maid. Quinton sent the mare along at her best speed, and would have finished the mile in 2:13, but his brother, who was standing at the distance post, ran out on the track and waved him back. He slowed the mare down, and jogged her under in 2:14½, Adonis finishing three lengths behind her, Gold Leaf eight lengths.

Third Heat. $60 for the Maid and $8 for the field was the pooling. Andy was moving his filly pretty strong while they were scoring, and it looked very much as if he were out for the heat. The filly had done nothing as yet, and was as fresh as a daisy. She was not going steadily when the bell tapped, and as they swung round the turn she went off her feet and lost every chance. When she got down again Yolo Maid was at the quarter fifteen lengths from her and six lengths in front of Adonis. Even that distance away, Andy made a try for the heat, and he sent the filly along at a two-minute gait. She caught and passed Adonis in the middle of the backstretch and was within four lengths of the Maid when she passed the half in 1:05½. She could get up no closer, and after doing a stern chase around the turn, Andy took her back. Adonis was six lengths behind the leader when they entered the straight, but he made for the lead and forced her out in 2:15½, Quinton giving her the whip at the drawgate, where she tired. Adonis was two lengths from her at the finish, Gold Leaf away back.

FRIDAY.

The attendance increased in size as the fair grew older, and upon Friday there was another crush out to see the runners go. The programme was a good one, the opening event being the California Annual Stake.

A sweepstakes for two-year-olds, one mile and had in it Palo Alto's b c Flambeau, 110, L. U. Shippee's b c Fellowcharm 105, and A. Wakeman's ch c Kiro 105, Flambeau selling in the pools at $100 to $10 for Fellowcharm, and $9 for Kiro. There was nothing in it but Flambeau. He went off around the turn with Kiro at his side. He played with them, hard held, a length in front until they got into the straight, when he drew away as he pleased and galloped home without punishment or urging in 1:43. Kiro quit up the straight, and Fellowcharm finished second, two lengths back.

California Derby.

The above event for foals of 1886, one mile and a half brought to the post, W. L. Appleby's b c Wild Oats, 118, L. U. Shippee's br f Picnic, 115, H. H. Hobb's b c Duke Spencer, 118, and W. B. Todhunter's b c Hotspur, 118. Picnic was named to win by the talent, going in the box at $60, Wild Oats selling second choice at $35 and the field going at $30.

The result was another of the unexpected things. Picnic was sluggish at the post and delayed the start considerably. When starter Aby dropped the flag, Wild Oats was moving well and Hitchcook took him away in front, and when straightened out on the turn he was five lengths to the good of them, Duke Spencer running in second place, Picnic and Hotspur galloping two lengths behind him. Wild Oats was five lengths in front as they entered the straight and coming down to the wire for the first time he held his advantage lead, Picnic, Duke Spencer and Hotspur running together. They entered the first turn that way, but there the pace grew a little faster, and at the quarter they were strung out again, Wild Oats three lengths away from Picnic in second place, Duke Spencer a length from her, Hotspur the same distance from Duke. Duke Spencer commenced to quit on the backstretch and Hotspur ran past him into second place. At the half post Wild Oats was three lengths from Picnic, Hotspur that distance behind the mare, Duke Spencer no more in it. Picnic began her run on the turn, drawing away from Hotspur and getting up to within a length of Wild Oats at the head of the straight. Hitchcock sat down on Wild Oats and at the same moment Dan Dennison got Hotspur going and brought him up to them with a rush. Picnic got to Wild Oats' shoulder, both under a drive. Hotspur was on the inside at Wild Oats' heels until they got down to the drawgate when Dennison slashed him once or twice and like a flash his head showed in front and opening a gap of a length, came home an easy two lengths in front, Wild Oats and Picnic finishing head and head in second place, Duke Spencer a poor third. Time, 2:40.

Nighthawk Stake. One Mile.

The above event for all ages had in it Palo Alto's b c Rico, Ben Hill's ch g Mikado, H. I. Thornton's br m Abi, M. Storn's ch f Glen Ellen. Rico sold in the pools at $200, Mikado bringing $55, Abi $45, and Glen Ellen $40. There was nothing in it except Rico. He jumped off in the lead and went around the turn with Mikado hanging one length behind him, Glen Ellen and Abi together in the rear. The only change until the second turn was that Glen Ellen got a head in front of Abi. On the turn Rico began to open daylight, and when he started down the straight he was four lengths ahead of the crowd. Madden commenced working his whip as if the colt was quitting, but he didn't touch him at all and he won under a free rein, Mikado eight lengths second, Abi, two lengths behind him, third. Time 1:42.

La Rue Stake One-half Mile,

The next event was the La Rue stake, an all age handicap, 1½ miles. The starters were Thos. Boyle's ch c Louis P. 3, 102, Matt Storn's ch f Lurline, 3, 107, W. L Appleby's b f Alfarata, 3, 100 and Ben Hill's ch g Tycoon 4, 116. Pools sold Tycoon $50, Louis P. $35, field $32. Murphy, on Alfarata, had the filly going strong when the flag fell, and he took her away two lengths in front of the crowd on the turn. At the three-quarter post she was two lengths in front, Louis P. second, with Lurline and Tycoon at his heels. The positions did not change until they were on the upper turn when Louis P. got up to Alfarata's flank and Tycoon moved up to Louis P's shoulder. Lurline dropped out of the race on the backstretch. Lonis P. and Tycoon were at Alfarata's flanks on either side as they approached the half. At the half Tycoon was slightly in front, but dropped back again, and they came around the turn as they ran down the backstretch. When well in the stretch Alfarata gave up and dropped to the rear. Louis P. showed in front for a few yards and then Tycoon shot by him and led him home winning by half a length, Alfarata eight lengths third. Time 2:40½.

Consolation Purse. One and one-sixteenth and repeat.

The last appearance of the bang tails was in the free purse for beaten horses, and there came to the post Kelly & Samuels' br m Welcome, 4,109, Matt Storn's b m Fannie F., 4,109, J. McBride's ch c Longshot, 3,100, and H. I. Thornton's b g Lorimer, 4,110. Betting on the event was, Welcome $100, Longshot $45, and the field $23.

First Heat—Fanny F. was first away, and went under the wire a length ahead of Longshot, and two lengths from Welcome and Lorimer. As they went round the turn Lorimer flew the track, and Morton, who was riding him, had the greatest difficulty in preventing him from going into the fence, and when he got him to running again the crowd was so far away that his chances were nil. Longshot was in front at the quarter, Fanny F. at his flank, and Welcome at his heels. Down the backstretch Fenny F. got to the front, Welcome staying at her flank, and when they got inio the second turn Longshot was a length behind. Welcome hung on to Fanny F. until they reached the drawgate, and then forged past her, winning the heat by a length, Fanny F. second, Longshot third three lengths back. Lorimer never got up to the crowd after his bad action, and was distanced. Time, 1:51¾.

Second Heat—Welcome sold for $60 to $22 for the field. When the flag fell Welcome and Longshot went away together, but on the first turn Welcome showed in front, and when the quarter was reached she was half a length in front of Longshot, and a length from Fanny F. The positions were unchanged until they got into the second turn, when Welcome's tail went up and she got the whip. She was dead tired, and Longshot came away and won the heat as he pleased, Welcome getting second four lengths back. Time, 1:52.

Third Heat—Welcome was so plainly done for that the talent forsook her and hedged on Longshot at odds of $70 to $20. Welcome was ridden from the start, but was never in it. Longshot ran the distance with his mouth open, and won in 1:56, Welcome ten lengths from him.

SATURDAY.

The programme for the closing day was not the kind to have drawn a large crowd of people, and yet they were there in the same proportion as upon the good days. The day opened with a for named horses—T. H. Snider's blk h Creole, R. H. Newton's br g Thomas Ryder, Napa Stock Farm's b g Gold Medal, and Worth Ober's br g Little Doc coming to the score; pools selling Creole $50, Thomas Ryder $17, and the field $10.

First Heat—Creole went off at the word, with Thos. Ryder at his wheel. When they strung out on the turn Creole was first, Thomas Ryder at his wheel, Little Doc two lengths behind them, and Gold Medal fourth. The order was the same until they got to the middle of the backstretch, where Thomas Ryder went to the lead, and from there to the straight lead Creole by a length. Creole began to come in the straight, passed Thomas Ryder at the distance post, and took the heat by half a length, Little Doc getting third, Gold Medal fourth. Time, 2:23½.

Second Heat—Pools sold, Creole 100, Ryder $17, Field $14. Thos. Ryder's chances were better thought of when he jogged out with Orrin Hickok behind him. Creole had the best of the start and went off fast. Thos. Ryder succeeded in staying within a length of him, Little Doc third, four lengths away, Gold Medal fourth. Thos. Ryder was pacing at his best speed for the entire mile while Creole in front of him was going well in hand, and when they fairly well into the straight drew away and finished in a jog three lengths to the good of Ryder, Gold Medal coming in third. Time, 2:22½. Little Doc broke on the second turn and was distanced.

Third Heat—No pools were sold. Creole got away first and went around the turn attended by Gold Medal, Ryder in third place four lengths away. There was no change until the straight was reached when Gold Medal made a tangled break and Thos. Ryder passed him. Creole finished first in a jog, Ryder second. Time, 2:23.

The above event for a purse of $1000 was the second event of the day's programme, and had in it La Siesta Ranch's b m Wanda, San Mateo Stock Farm's blk m Flora Belle, A. L. Hart's b m Almonta and Napa Stock Farm's b m Nona Y. Pools opened with Wanda favorite at $25, Flora Belle second choice at $20 and the field going at $15.

First Heat. The bell tapped with Wanda in the lead and going strong, when they went around the first turn she was a length in front, Nona Y. in second place, Flora Belle third. Wanda drew away from the crowd on the backstretch, and at the half was two lengths clear of Nona Y., who had twice gone off her feet. The other two were not in the heat. Wanda held her lead of two lengths to the wire. Almonta finished a poor third and Flora Belle fourth. Time, 2:30.

Second Heat. Wanda sold against the field at $100 to $25. She again went away in the lead, attended by Nona Y. Nona, who is a handy breaker, does lots of it and loses nothing, was up when they passed the quarter and broke twice between the quarter and half. Wanda led her by a length all the way from the wire to the drawgate, when for the first time in a race she broke. Nona Y. came in winner of the heat, Almonta, who had trotted the mile five lengths back, passing Wanda and getting second, Wanda third, Flora Belle fourth. Time 2:25¾. a record for Nona Y.

Third Heat—The field was made favorite after the heat, selling at $100 to $40 for Wanda, and $8 for Flora Belle. Around the first turn Nona Y. lead, Wanda in second place. Nona broke and made a good run before they reached the quarter. She led Wanda down the backstretch by three lengths, running over before they got to the half. Around the second turn it was the same thing, Nona making another run. In the straight Wanda got up to her wheel, but she broke, and got away from her again, going under the wire half a length in front of Wanda, Almonta third by five lengths, Flora Belle fourth. On account of her running, Nona Y. was set back to second, and the heat was given to Wanda. Time, 2:28½.

Fourth Heat—Pools sold: Wanda $60, field $60. There was nothing in it but Wanda, with Hickok behind her. He sent her to the front at the start, and made the pace; Nona Y. stayed with her, and Almonta was at Nona Y.'s wheel to the second turn and then went to the front, but the effort amounted to nothing. Wanda passed her before they got to the straight, and came home unattended, taking the heat and race, Almonta second, Flora Belle third. Nona Y. made a tired break on the straight, and was taken back. Time, 2:30½.

There were four starters in the 2:20 class pace, N. S. Johnson's b g Edwin C., J. L. McCord's blk g Ned Winslow, G. N. Woodward's br m Belle Button, and Marcus Daly's b h St. Patrick. Edwin C. was the favorite in the betting which was heavy, going at $190 to $100 St. Patrick, and $40 for the field.

First Heat—Ned Winslow led as they went around the turn, and when they reached the quarter the order was Winslow, Edwin C., St Patrick and Belle Button, all a length apart. The order was unchanged until they came into the straight, then St. Patrick and Edwin C. closed up to Ned Winslow, passed him and began a hot fight for the heat, Edwin C. was severely punished and responded well, beating St. Patrick out by a length in 2:15, Ned Winslow four lengths back, Belle Button fourth.

Second Heat—St. Patrick's people backed him strong after the first heat, buying him rapidly at $220 to $110 for Edwin C. and $9 for the field. Edwin C. went off in the lead, but broke rounding into the turn, and when the quarter was reached St. Patrick was two lengths in the lead, Ned Winslow second, Belle Button third and Edwin C. fourth acting badly. The crowd went away from Edwin C., and when he finally settled down at the middle of the backstretch, St. Patrick was leading at the half, Ned Winslow in second place, Belle Button five lengths away from them in third place. The positions remained the same to the wire, St. Patrick winning as he pleased, Ned Winslow four lengths back, second, Belle Button third. Hickok drove Edwin C. like a hurricane from the half, and just got him inside the distance post. Time, 2:19¾.

to be distanced. The horse was off his feet when he went under the wire, but the bell tapped them off. Hickok evidently did not hear the bell and pulled up. He saw the others going and started after them, but they were already at the quarter pole, and catching them was out of the question. Hickok went to the middle of the backstretch and then came back and took Edwin C. to the stable. With Edwin C. out of it, St. Patrick had things his own way, leading from start to finish, Ned Winslow in second place. St. Patrick finished in a jog, Ned Winslow five lengths from him and Belle Button third. Time, 2:22.

Fourth Heat—The race already belonged to St. Patrick. He went off in the lead attended by Ned Winslow, pacing slowly. He allowed Winslow to stay with him until they reached the ¼ post and then he drew away and took the heat by a length, Ned Winslow second, Belle Button third. Time, 2:27½.

An Interview with Splan.

John Splan was in Canada last week, and this is the way he is reported by the Hamilton Herald:

"I don't think Guy will ever beat the record of Maud S. He is not the horse to do it. Just think of it, in order to beat her time you must drive a horse to the half-mile pole in 1:04½ and come home in 1:04. It looks impossible, for how many horses can go even the first half of the journey: I tell you they are few and far between."

"Then you don't think a trotter will ever cover a mile in two minutes?

"Well, I think that some day they will come very close to it. How soon? Oh, I can't say how soon, but it will be done. If Maud S., when she was young, had been given to Budd Doble to do with her as he saw fit, I believe he could have driven her a mile close to two minutes. She is one in a thousand, and goes away like a horse running off.

"One mistake that the trotting horse owners have made is that they have paid too much attention to breeding on fashionable lines of blood and have overlooked the early but good blood lines. Take Toronto Chief or the Morgan family, for instance; they had trotting instincts and qualities, but did not have the opportunities. They would have got fast trotters with the opportunities given a fashionable sire. I remember the first horse I ever drove in a race. Pelham Tartar. He was level gaited, level headed and sensible, and I will never forget him. He possessed the qualities essential to the trotter that will make a fast performance in harness.

"Where will you find Dexter's equal?" he continued. "I will tell you, just as I told a gentleman at Cleveland. We were talking about trotters and Dexter's name was mentioned. My friend remarked that Dexter would be nowhere to-day. I made this assertion. If Dexter was alive to-day, and was as good as he was twenty years ago, show me the horse that could beat him one mile, two miles or three miles in harness, under saddle or to a wagon. The horse don't live that could beat him. Men who have only been on the turf 15 years don't know anything about the quality and class of the horses 20 or 25 years ago, or how good they were.

'Some people have great idea about their own horses. When a man comes to me now and tells me that he has a wonderful horse that can trot fast enough to break a watch, I never pay any more attention to him than I would if he had remarked that it was a fine day. People don't figure on the chances of their horses going lame, dying, etc. Why, when a man has a good, sound horse the chances are 20 against 100 that he will never get the word "go" in a race

The Bellfounder Blood.

"Imp. Bellfounder was a blood-bay in color, with a bony, strong head, good eyes and well set; his ears were thick and rather heavy; neck well formed, but short; shoulders thick and very strong; body round and back very strong, with immensely strong quarters, well let down, and joined to a crooked hind leg and a large bushy tail. In height he stood about 15¼ hands. When brought out to exhibit his speed, he seemed full of game and mettle, but very controllable. His knee action was very attractive and high, and when Obid (his groom) would get upon his bare back and give him his head, I remember of but one horse that could approximate him in speed this way rigged, which was the famous George M. Patchen.

Bellfounder was remarkably honest. Having seen him exhibited a number of times at full speed, I never saw him leave his feet. Hambletonian's dam was by this great horse, and her speed, at four year old, was very great, seldom equalled, even in these fast times. Her colt, by Abdallah, was the famous Hambletonian. In color he is a dark bay; height, 15¼ hands, with rather a coarse head, and ears large and heavy; his eyes are large and very prominent, but mild; neck short but thin, and well formed; shoulders thick and rather low, but very powerful; body round and well formed; back strong and well coupled, hips long but narrow; quarters immense, and the muscles well let down to the hock; hind legs crooked and very clean, broad and strong, and joined to as good a foot as ever pressed the earth. His tail is high set and heavy, and when let out he carries it low or close to his body. In disposition he is mild, and when started up on a fast gait his action is good, being open-gaited behind, with knee action very like his grandsire, Bellfounder. His late owner, I think, was always proud of his Bellfounder cross, and many good horsemen think him indebted to this cross for his mild and docile qualities. Let this be as it may, the combination certainly produced the most successful stallion of modern times. Alden Goldsmith."

The pavilion exhibit at the State Fair was the best ever seen there. Every county seemed to vie with its neighbor in the magnificence and multiplicity of the exhibits, while the local tradesmen and dealers made an extremely creditable showing. The Breeder and Sportsman's booth was constantly thronged, everyone stopping to admire the picture gallery of noted horses, and secure copies of the great State Fair edition.

CATTLE.

How To Improve Dairy Cows.

The dairy interest in New York State is represented by a capital of over $300,000,000, and more than 1,500,000 dairy cows.

These cows average an annual product of a little over 3,000 lbs. of milk; valued at a cent a pound, makes a yearly income of $30 a head. When we realize that exceptional herds average 5,000, 8,000, 10,000 lbs. of milk, and even more, it behooves us to inquire the reason. Animals are of a plastic nature, and vary to a remarkable extent in form and other characteristics, according to climatic influences, their surroundings, methods of handling and breeding.

Witness the Shetland pony, in whose native land it has suffered so much from the cold and scanty feed that we find as the result a diminutive horse. In contrast to the Shetland is the large draught horse of the Netherlands and certain parts of Belgium and France, which weighs from five to ten times as much as the Shetland, owing principally, if not solely, to the difference in climate, feed and surroundings. These different types may be intensified or improved when exported to other countries, according to circumstances. It is the same with cattle. In the mountains of Wales, in the rocky hills of Ireland, and the Island of Jersey is found a small and medium sized cow; whereas, in the rich, succulent pastures of the Netherlands (Holland), in the rich valley of the Tees in England and similar localities we find large cattle, as the Holstein-Friesian, the Shorthorn-Durham and the like. As an illustration of the power of man to vary the forms and characteristics of animals at will, note a breed of sheep in Massachusetts, which was bred from one that had an unusually long back and short legs. The owner, in the course of time, bred his sheep with such long backs and short legs that they could neither jump fences nor stone walls. Another case is that of Miss Nott, of this State, who bred all the feathers off her chickens, so that down was their only cover, and hence they were unable to fly. Thus it is seen from the number of instances cited, which might be increased, that it is within our power to alter certain characteristics of sheep and chickens. We can also change the characteristics of our cows, and have already the cow producing in her normal condition milk sufficient for her calf only. Now an instance is recorded of one cow's producing over 30,000 pounds of milk in one year, and over 100 pounds in a day has been given by several cows. If we desire to change our cows we must breed on the same principle as that followed by the breeder of the sheep, by Miss Nott with her chickens, and those who have made great milk and butter producers of certain breeds of the bovine family, viz: Retain only those animals which possess the desired qualities, and those which approach them in the greatest degree.

First, we must study the surroundings and causes which have resulted in producing what we want, and then proceed in accordance with them. Suppose my cows give but 3,000 lbs. of milk in a year, go dry four months, live on poor pasture, are barely kept alive in winter, are forced to stand in cold barns with icy winds whistling through the cracks! Suppose they have to be tailed up in the spring, and helped out to the pasture where it takes them half the season to gain enough strength to return any profit! When they do get strong the best of the grass is gone and pastures begin to dry up, and then the poor creatures have to use their hard earned strength to get feed enough to keep alive, leaving profit entirely out of the question. With this treatment cows are not profitable. How can they be made to return a profitable income? It can be done by following the methods practised by successful dairymen, whose cows produce twice or three times as much as those just described. This can be learned by talking with and writing to these successful men, by taking good dairy and live-stock newspapers, and profiting by the experience of others, which is constantly described in such papers. The colder barns are the more feed it takes to keep the cows warm which are housed in them, when necessary, by battening up the cracks, as this is cheaper than heating cows up with feed.

Then the feed which was used to counteract the temperature of the cold barn will in the warm one produce beef or milk. It is important to bear in mind that the chief advantage in keeping improved stock is that it gives a better return for abundant feed and good keep than ordinary stock. If you have easy keepers, cows that consume little, you have as a rule poor producers, cows that will run you in debt. It takes a certain amount of food to sustain life, before any milk or beef can be produced, and the more feed a cow converts into beef or milk the better the cow. Hence the profitable cow is a large feeder. In order to find out the money makers and the robbers in the dairy it is necessary to keep an accurate account with each cow, charging her with the cost of keep, and crediting her product. Many dairymen know the cost of keeping their entire herds, and also what they produce, but few are aware of what each cow makes or steals, that is, consumes more than she produces. This can be told only by keeping an individual account with each cow, as the banker keeps a separate account with each depositor, crediting each with what he pays in, and charging him with what he draws out. It is a very simple matter to number each cow in the herd, if not named, and enter their numbers or names on the top line of a blank milk record (a sheet of paper ruled for the purpose with the dates on the left, so arranged as to leave a line for each day of the month, with sufficient space for morning and evening milkings). Tack this record blank to a board, and hang it up in a stable, also a spring scale in a convenient place near the milker, who weighs and records in the proper place the amount of milk each cow gives, which is footed up monthly, and at the end of the year the totals are footed, when the profit or loss may be ascertained, by comparing the value of the product with the cost for keep. Every fall the poor cows, better named robbers, should be sold, or better yet, fattened and killed, and their places filled with profitable cows. This practice of weeding out annually the unprofitable, and those cows which produce the least, will result in the success of whoever follows it.

With sufficient time and intelligence, wise handling and breeding, it might be possible to succeed without buying stock of the improved breeds in which the much coveted good qualities have been so strongly fixed that they are reproduced with a great degree of certainty.

It requires a lifetime, and sometimes several lifetimes, to fix these good qualities so thoroughly in any breed that we can reasonably expect to reproduce them at will. Hence, it is more economical and profitable for us to purchase an individual that has, and whose direct antecendents and descendants have the desired qualities, and breed from it. If sufficient means are at hand, buy several of this kind but if you have not enough to buy one alone, get some of your neighbors to join with you in the purchase of a superior bull, and soon you will be on the road to success.—[Address before N. Y. State Dairymen's Association, by Dudley Miller.

The Standard.

[AS REVISED AND ADOPTED BY THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF TROTTING-HORSE BREEDERS, DECEMBER 14, 1887.]

In order to define what constitutes a trotting-bred horse and to establish a BREED of trotters on a more intelligent basis, the following rules are adopted to control admission to the records of pedigrees. When an animal meets the requirements of admission and is duly registered, it shall be accepted as a standard trotting-bred animal:—

FIRST.—Any stallion that has himself a record of two minutes and thirty seconds (2:30) or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:35 or better, or provided his sire or his dam is already a standard animal.

SECOND.—Any mare or gelding that has a record of 2:30 or better.

THIRD.—Any horse that is the sire of two animals with a record of 2:30 or better.

FOURTH.—Any horse that is the sire of one animal with a record of 2:30 or better, provided he has either of the additional qualifications: (1) A record himself of 2:35 or better. (2) Is the sire of two other animals with a record of 2:35 or better. (3) Has a sire or dam that is already a standard animal.

FIFTH.—Any mare that has produced an animal with a record of 2:30 or better.

SIXTH.—The progeny of a standard horse when out of a standard mare.

SEVENTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare by a standard horse.

EIGHTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare whose dam is a standard mare.

NINTH.—Any mare that has a record of 2:35 or better, and whose sire or dam is a standard animal.

Making Important Changes.

Notwithstanding that the racing season is over, Secretary Pope is still a busy man. Besides winding up the business of the meeting he is attending to the affairs of the association for the coming season. A reorganization will be effected, as the M. A. M. and M. A. will soon have been in existence twenty years, the period of time designated in the incorporating articles. The new organization will be called the State Fair, and will practically be under the same management.

Surveyors are now at work laying out the location for a regulation race course. The new course will be long and narrow, having two straight quarter stretches on either side, while the ends will have a gradual curve. The present track is D shape. A new high board fence will also be erected very soon, and a contract will be let for the building of a very large and commodious grand stand, as well as a new floral hall. The new stand will cost about $10,000, and is to be located about 100 feet west of the present one. The many stables now situated near the approach to the grounds are to be torn down, and a large driveway will be built around the course for teams to drive.

At the north side new stables will be built. It is expected that the improvements will cost about $20,000, and if more is necessary Secretary Pope says it will be expended, as he proposes having the finest fair and racing grounds in the west.—Helena, Montana, Independent.

Santa Maria Races.

[By our Special Commissioner.]

The attendance at the fair grounds was larger than any one could expect. Where so many people came from I could not imagine, but it was soon explained to me that the country was thickly settled, and all came to encourage the races and exhibition of stock and agriculture. The race track is one mile, and will make a fast one if they will grade the turns correctly and water it often, and not spare the water. The judges for the first day were: W. N. Johnston of Santa Barbara, Dr. Lucas of Santa Maria, and Lew Warden of San Luis Obispo. Time keepers were John S. Bell of Santa Barbara, and the representative of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The races opened with a two-year-old trot, in which were entered a bay filly Neva, a bay colt Monte, and a bay colt Peanuts. Dr. Lucas sent them off to a splendid start. Neva took the lead, and was never headed, and she finished in a slow jog.

The second heat was a repetition of the first. Neva winning the heat and race.

The next race was a good one. The time is good, for the track is heavy. When the pool-box was opened there was a great rush made, and money was thrown into the box much faster than the clerks could make out the tickets, Othello bringing $7.50 and the other three in the field for $4. The starter sent them off all in a bunch, and around the turn the bay filly Artemisa was ahead, and she won the heat by a full length. Time, 0:50½.

The pool-box was again opened, and there were many pools sold. Othello $3, and field $5. The horses were again started all in a bunch, and the bay filly in this heat was behind, and Othello came in ahead. Time, 0:51.

The rider came to the stand and complained of a foul. He swore positively that Othello had fouled him around the first turn. Othello's rider was called, and he swore positively that he was always in the lead, and that it was impossible for him to have fouled the mare. The jockey who rode the roan horse came to the stand, and he positively swore that the bay filly had fouled him, and that if it had not been for the foul, that his horse would have procured at least second place. The starters were called, and they thought that the rider of Othello had taken the pole too soon. So two horses were fouled, one came in ahead and the fourth distanced. The judges consulted long, and finally decided the heat a dead one, and the horses were ordered out again. The heat was uninteresting, as Othello came in an easy winner. Time, 0:53. Othello is a grand-looking colt, and has speed, and is much better for a mile or mile and a quarter.

The next trot was for stallions, and there was much interest on the race. Com. Nutwood from San Luis Obispo was backed by the people of his city, and Electro by Santa Maria boys. Com. Nutwood has a kind disposition and is an easy horse to handle. Electro has always been considered a steady, level-headed son of Electioneer, but to-day he was nervous and would not trot. Considerable time was taken up in scoring; finally they got off to a good start. Electro broke soon after he left the wire and Commodore went easily to the quarter in 0:39 and to the half in 1:19. Electro acted badly and did not settle down till he came into the home-stretch. He came in very rapidly and was only a length behind when Commodore passed the wire in 2:33½.

The second and third heats were easily won by Commodore. Electro would not settle down.

Thursday morning Mr. Murray came from the stock farm and drove three of us from Santa Barbara to his farm. Just as we arrived we noticed a horse on Mr. Murray's private track and we drove there to see what was going on. It was Electro, driven by Mr. Ferguson, and he was out exercising the stallion. Mr. Murray asked us to pull out our watches, and he ordered the driver to give Electro a mile. The stallion came up rapidly and trotted to the first quarter in 0:39, to the half in 1:15. He was slackened around the turn, and he came home trotting easily, and our watches marked 2:32½. We were taken to the large barn and shown many fine colts by Electro.

The second day of the races was largely attended. There must have been eight hundred there.

The first race was the 2:50 class. Rondy, 3 years old sold favorite for $5 and the field, Altoonita and Harry for $4 The horses were soon started. The favorite led all the way and won easily. Time, 2:43½.

The second heat was a repetition of the first. Time, 2:47½. The third heat was closely contested Harry collared Rondy on the backstretch, and around the last turn Rondy broke. He soon settled down and a hot finish was made. Pete Doyle did his best, but old Harry won the heat by a neck. Time, 2:42½. There was no change in the pools. Rondy won the race easily. Time, 2:45½.

After this race the young ladies competing for premiums came onto the track escorted by the gallant young man of Santa Maria, T. C. Nance, who is widely known as a great favorite amongst the ladies. Miss Clarke, of Point Sal, rode bareback, and she rode most gracefully and handled her sorrel gelding with ease and confidence. Miss Rachel Bradley rode very well and so did Miss Nellie Sunnell. Miss Gilbert, ten years old, rode a sorrel pony, and well did she ride him. Mr. Nance smiled and looked happy when he was ordered by the judges to tie the ribbons around the young ladies' arms. Miss Clarke received the first premium, Miss Bradley second, Miss Sunnell third, and an extra premium was given to Miss Gilbert.

Pools sold—Rucker, $10; Field $3

No. 8 was the most interesting race that was witnessed. Ella Hill sold for $10, and the other three in the field for $4. There was a great deal of money placed at these odds. It was a half mile and repeat race and Ella Hill was thought by many invincible, but if they had seen the mare, a horseman would have said that she was too fleshy and short of work. The four horses were started and Comet beat the favorite by half a length. Time, :50¾.

There was no change in the pools. The horses were started for the second run and Comet again won easily. Time, :51¼.

SATURDAY.

The last day's races were attended by many from San Luis Obispo. There were twelve hundred people on the grounds, and race No. 10 for a purse of $250 was looked on with great interest. Topsey, by Brigadier, was the favorite in the start, selling for $10 against $7.50 for Miss Monroe, by Monroe Chief, and Fred Arnold; but the San Luis boys soon made Miss Monroe the favorite. Topsey acted so badly scoring that she was considered by many as out of the race. Her owner, after Mr. Ferguson had tried for half an hour to start her, was placed in the sulky, and he tried to make Topsey trot, and after scoring for twenty minutes he nodded for the word go, although two lengths behind. After she passed the wire she settled down and trotted very rapidly, catching the leader, Fred Arnold, in the backstretch. She was ahead at the half and won handily. Time 2:36½. In the second heat Topsey was driven by Mr. Ferguson and the three horses were sent off to a fair start. Topsey trotted fast in the lead, and Fred Arnold two lengths behind. Topsey won, Fred Arnold second, and Miss Monroe almost distanced. Time 2:32. Harry Leig, driver of Miss Monroe, asked to withdraw her, and the judges, after hearing testimony and finding the mare too sick to trot, she was withdrawn. Fred Arnold and Topsey jogged around and trotted the mile in 2:53½.

The novelty race was exciting, as the quarter dash was closely contested between Sid San and Rucker, and it resulted in a dead heat. The other quarters were easily won by Ella Hill. The novelty race ended the Third Annual Fair of the Santa Maria Valley Agricultural and Stock Association, and the Directors who worked so arduously for the success of their fair deserve much credit for their indefatigable energies, and they should feel proud of their success.

Santa Maria Valley is most picturesque, and the soil of the richest sandy loam. The large ranches are being divided into small farms, and the farmers are improving their little farms with substantial fences and barns. The people take much interest in equine races, and they all feel that it pays to breed to fine stallions. Merritt & Murry's Stock Farm has many fine-bred mares that he will breed to Electro and Saxton. The exhibition of stock at the fair grounds was very good. Many Clydesdale stallions and mares were exhibited, and the sucklings from Electro and Fred Arnold were fine-looking colts.

The races were satisfactory to most, but of some there are always "kickers," and those who loose here naturally "kick" the harder. One man was heard to say that Mr. Den should be dismissed from the track, and also his mare, Ella Hill, for losing the half-mile and repeat. Mr. Lew Warden said that Fred Arnold and driver should have been severely punished. Mr. Warden made a most popular judge, and he knows a good horse, and knows how to lecture them when they begin their "funny work."

Walter Elliott, the general superintendent of the races, did all within his power to make it pleasant for the co respondent of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, as also did R. W. Nuttall, Secretary. All the directors of the association are ju ilant over their successful fair work, and they say that if the State will assist them next year, that they will have much larger purses next year.

The exhibition of fruit at the pavilion was very good, and it showed that the soil of Santa Maria is adapted for such fruits as apples, peaches, apricots and walnuts. Dr. L. W. Lucas had on exhibition a plate of fine quinces. J. E. Card had five varieties of apples, and sample of King Phillip's corn. Wm. Hudson had a fine exhibit of apples, pears, peaches, nectarines, grapes and tomatoes. T. C. Nance had a fine exhibition of fruits, but the best display of fruits at the pavilion was exhibited by Abraham Ontiveros. His apples and peaches were the finest I ever saw, and Mr. Ontiveros deserves much credit, and the valley owes him a great deal, for his exhibit shows what the soil can raise if the farmers will take pains with their orchards.

I would like to remain longer in Santa Maria, but the fair at San Luis Obispo calls me away. Santa Maria will surely make a large town. A bank will soon be opened, and other business will be started. The Narrow Gauge Railroad is doing much for the valley.

SANTA MARIA, September 21, 1889.

The Denver Meeting.

DENVER, Colorado, September 21st:—The fall meeting of the Oakland Park Club was commenced this afternoon at its track near this city. The weather was quite disagreeable, a drizzling rain falling during the first part of the afternoon.

This course is one of the finest in the West, a good fast track for trotters—a full mile—surrounding the seven furlongs for the gallopers. Although the tracks were rather heavy some good time was made both in the trotting and running events.

The new club house was thrown open to visitors to-day, and a large number of ladies viewed the races from its galleries. J. K. Choate, vice-president of the club, kindly showed the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S commissioner through the edifice, which is a model of elegance and comfort. The main entrance opens from the boulevard, and on the first floor are the bar room, bath room, ice box, kitchen and toilet closets. Upon ascending the broad stairway the guests are ushered into the main hall and sitting room, which is finely finished in oiled native woods and has large open fire places. This room can easily be converted into a dancing hall. At the north end is the ladies' reception room, and at the south end a safe. The next floor is elegantly furnished as a parlor, with bedrooms adjoining for the accommodations of guests. Two large verandas extend from the north end around the east side, the full length of the building. The cost of the building and furnishings was $20,000.

Something about this club and the grounds may not be amiss as a prelude to the account of the meeting.

Only the elite of Denver's admirers of horse flesh are admitted to membership, and then by paying a $100 initiation fee. The officers are: D. D. Streeter, president; J. K. Choate, vice-president; J. H. Peevor, secretary; and D. L. Hall, superintendent. The latter gentlemen also acts as starter at this meeting.

The grounds are densely covered with magnificent shade trees, and cool and pleasant drives intersect them. All barren spots are being sodded, and concrete walks will extend from the grand stand to the house. In the garden back of the club house will be a cricket ground and tennis court. It is the intention of the club to build an iron grand stand next year that will rival those of any of the wealthy eastern clubs.

Patsy Duffy is here, and had two mounts to-day. Although Patsy rides as well as ever, neither of his mounts attained a place, the company being too fast entirely. Patsy is settling down a little and is liable to come to the front next season on some good horses. He can have good mounts if he will.

A. C. Beckwith's three year old Faust, 2:18¾, by Florida, dam Claire by Baywood, would have distanced the others in the trot had his driver so willed, but he simply jogged and let them in for second and third monies. Faust will meet Axtell next month at St. Louis, and there are many who think Axtell will have to "go some" to beat him.

Races at Petaluma.

The late fair at Petaluma, seems to have stired up a spirit of strife among horse owners and trainers, and discussions are frequent about the relative merits of horses, from a speed stand point. On the 14th of the present month, there was a match race of which we have received no official notification from the secretary, but the following is an excerpt from the Argus of that Town.

A large number of people witnessed the match trotting race Saturday between J. H. White's Kitty Almont, and J. P. Rodehaver's bay stallion Alcona, Jr. While the horses did not make as good time as we expected, the second heat, won by Kitty Almont 2:26½ places her in the "charmed circle" and was a credit to her, and the trainer and driver, A. N. Burrell, especially when it is considered that the mare has been too lame for very sharp work this fall. As she comes from a family that trains on, we may expect to hear from her at a later day. Her sire, Tilton Almont, was by Almont, and his dam was by Clark Chief. Almont, 33, was by Abdallah, 15; and his dam was by Mambrino Chief, 11.

Gracy, the dam of Kitty Almont, was by Hamlet, he by Volunteer, 55, (Goldsmith's). When we come to analyze the blood of Kitty Almont, it will be seen that she combines the best strains of trotting blood, and if she never trots again, Mr. White will have in her a brood mare of great promise.

In this race Alcona J., showed some great bursts of speed, but did not stick to his work. In fact, he never before behaved so badly. He had shown quarters at a 2:18 gait, which led his friends to believe that he would win a heat, or force Kitty Almont to trot in 2:26—but it was not his day. We understand that he will be given another trial one or two weeks from to-day, when it is to be hoped that he will do better.

From Dr. Maclay, we learn that still another race took place last Saturday, between J. H. White's Alice, J. B. Hinkle's Whalebone, and J. R. Rose's Minnie R. Alice won in three straight heats, the time being 2:40 2:41½ and 2:40. The winner is a four year old, by Hernani, (a son of Electioneer), dam Annie by Gen McClellan, 2nd dam by imp The Lawyer.

The 2:15 Stallions.

Wiley Brasfield, who gave the stallion Bonnie McGregor a record of 2:13½ over the Lexington track not long ago, is confident that before the season closes he will have reduced that mark to 2:13 or better, and in view of the fact that in his miles at Lexington Bonnie McGregor went the first half in 1:05¼, this does not seem unreasonable, says the Breeders' Gazette. Seven stallions have now trotted a mile in 2:15 or better, they being Maxey Cobb, 2:12¼; Bonnie McGregor, 2:13½; Phallas, 2:13¾; Axtell, 2:14; Patron, 2:14¼; Nelson 2:14¼; and Stamboul, 2:14¾. It is a significant fact, and one that people who are interested in the breeding of trotters will do well not to overlook, that with the single exception of Axtell the sires of these seven best stallions in the world were either horses with records better that 2:30 or had shown the ability to beat those figures. The sire of Maxey Cobb, for instance, was Happy Medium. In 1867 this stallion, then four years old, distanced Guy Miller and Honesty in a race over the track at Paterson, N. J., trotting the second heat in 2:32½. No sensible man will argue for an instant that 2:32½ by a four-year-old is not proof positive that with age the animal making such a record would be capable of 2:30, and as a matter of fact 2:32½ by a four-year-old in 1867 was equal to 2:25 to the present day, especially when one considers the improvements that have been made in track, sulkies, and the manner of handling trotters. The sire of Bonnie McGregor, 2:13½ is Robert McGregor, whose record of 2:17¼ was made but a few years ago, and he in turn was sired by Maj. Edsall, a son of Alexander's Abdallah that was one of the best known and most resolute trotters of his day. He was foaled in 1890, and his record as a matured horse, made over a poor track, was 2:29, so we see that in the case of Bonnie McGregor his sire beat 2:20 in a race and his grandsire won a contested heat in 2:29 more than twenty years ago.

Third on the list is Axtell, the greatest young trotter ever seen, and his 2:14 at three years of age is not likely to soon be beaten. The sire of Axtell has no record, not having been trained, but he is a full brother to Guy Wilkes, record 2:15½, and the sire of Lillian Wilkes, 2:17¾ at three years, and Sable Wilkes, 2:18 at the same age, so that the blood lines that have performed so well on the track are there all right. Wm. L. was in turn sired by George Wilkes, one of the foremost trotters of his day, and a horse whose record of 2:22 was no measure of his speed. The dam of Axtell was by Mambrino Boy, a horse with a record of 2:23½, so that in his case there are performing lines close up on both sides. Patron and Nelson have records of 2:14¼, and the sire of each is in the 2:30 list. Patron is by Pancoast, and made a record of 2:21¾ after a season in the stud, and Pancoast was in turn sired by Woodford Mambrino, that in his old age scored 2:21½ in a well-contested race. There are two generations of developed trotters in the male line of Patron's pedigree, both his sire and grandsire having records better than 2:22, and in addition to this his dam is a full sister to Elvira, that as a four-year-old beat all the records for trotters of that age by doing a mile in 2:18½. It is not difficult to see where Patron gets the ability to trot fast at an early age. The sire of Nelson was Young Rolfe, a trotter with a record of 2:21½, and he was by Tom Rolfe, another trotter. Phallas was by Dictator, a full brother to Dexter, 2:17¼, and Major McDowell, a man whose word no one will dispute, says that in his younger days Dictator could at any time show a quarter in 35 seconds, which proves him to have better than a 2:30 horse. Stamboul, 2:14¾, is by Sultan, 2:24. That completes the list, and if after reading the facts any man can still assert that the developed stallions are not the ones that are getting extreme speed with the most certainty then his case is hopeless.

The preponderance of Hambletonian blood in the pedigree of most of these horses is noticeable. Maxey Cobb and Phallas, two of the three that have beaten 2:14, are by sons of Hambletonian, and the other member of the trio, Bonnie McGregor, is by a great-grandson of the same horse. Axtell, 2:14, and next on the list, is by a grandson of Hambletonian, and the dams of Patron and Nelson, the two remaining stallions that have beaten 2:15, are by sons of Rysdyk's Hambletonion, the dam of Patron being by Cuyler and that of Nelson by Gideon. The dam of Stamboul is by Rysdyk's Hambletonian himself. Was there ever a more conclusive and wonderful showing of the potency of the Hambletonian blood than this one made by a little investigation of the seven entire horses that have beaten 2:15? There are surely enough of them to give these deductions force, even with men who are prejudiced in favor of other strains of blood. The Gazette is being howled at and carped about all the time by a few inconsequential journals that seek to belittle the influence of Hambletonian blood and to make their readers believe that the way to raise trotters is to breed running mares to trotting stallions. It has been asserted that this paper is unduly prejudiced in favor of the Hambletonian family, but such is not the case. The Gazette gives the results of the races in which 2:30, the recognized standard, is beaten, and from these results its conclusions as to what strains of blood are the best are drawn. There is no theory or guess-work about it. The facts are eloquent and irrefutable arguments.

The Horse In History.

Some weeks ago a readable little article appeared in Grim's best style. As he lay upon a sick-editor-bearing couch the entymon of the word horse was sought for, found, and laid before his readers in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN How many of the native sons of the Golden West give a thought of how much they owe to this noble animal, which bore their forefathers to victory in revolutionary days, across the plains in happier times, and ploughed the virgin soil that gave to the world California's golden grain. And now speedy trotters are stepping out from the ranks, and a fresh glory is added to California's laurels by our friend the horse.

The word horse is derived from the Anglo-Saxon; the early form in England was hors, and this before the Norman Conquest. The Teutonic languages have all preserved the same form, more or less modified. Dutch, ros; German, ross; Icelandic, hross.

This term was applied to the horse from its fleetness, for the Teutonic hos or har meant running swiftly. Early Hindoo writings frequently allude to him as acva—acus, meaning swift, and acan, an arrow.

The Latin name was equus, and as a symbol of water (aqua) we find in the fabulous traditions of many countries our swift-running friend again. Are not the white crested billows of the ocean on a stormy day called to this day the white horses of Poseidon? The god of the sea was Poseidon, and the ancient Greeks were in the habit of throwing into the sea their best and most richly caparisoned horses as a sacrifice to him. In the Island of Rhodes whole teams and chariots were ruthlessly tumbled over the cliffs as a propitiation to this god.

Ancient writers refer to the horse and chariot, describing their use in battle alone. Riding on horseback was not then practised, the Romans being the first who used the horse to bear their cavalry, called equites, from equus, a horse. As European civilization advanced the ploughing ox gave place to the horse, and our present domestic animal is the outcome of centuries of careful breeding and training.

Babylonist inscriptions do not give us the horse and his rider. He is invariably found harnessed to the war chariot, the ox taking the humbler place at the plough.

In Central Asia the wild horse known as the Tarpan is still found, and he is the generally acknowledged ancestor of our present one. The finest horses were those of the Medes and Persians. Herodotus mentions the great horses of the plains of Nisaion in Media; and Strabo says that "the Satrap of Armenia sends the King of Persia 20,000 horses every year for the festival of Mithras. The ancient Persians worshipped Mithras as their sun-god; we have here the swift animal sacrificed to the swiftly moving sun." Homer uses the epithet never-tired when alluding to the sun.

The white horse was held peculiarly sacred, even the ancient Saxon consecrated his white horse to the sun. This custom had the same origin as the sun worship of ancient Persia, where as history tells us Darius became king because his horse was the first to neigh to the rising sun.

Horses were compared to the wind—Æolus, the king of the winds, was a son of H-i-pp-o-tes, i. e. the horseman. In the mythology of Scandinavia, Wuodan, from whom was named our Wednesday, possessed a giant horse eight feet high, of a grey color like the fog and mist; his name was Sleipnir. In many Scandinavian legends, mention is made of the horse.

Egyptian records first picture the horse about the year 1700 B. C. The Arabian horse is of later descent, for Strabo says: "In Arabia Felix there are neither horses or mules to be found, their place being taken by camels."

Horse flesh was in early days looked upon as a dainty meat. One thousand years ago the monks of St. Gall, in Switzerland, had a special blessing for this dish. Camiss (Koumis) is the fermented milk of the mare, and has been highly relished for centuries among the wild tribes of Central Asia, eastern Europe and Arabia.

In England the horse has a long history. The British horse is mentioned by Cæsar as being very powerful, and suitable for purposes of war by reason of their stature and training. Many ancient British coins bear the image of this their favorite animal. Under Athelstane, German and Spanish horses were introduced to improve the breed, originally started by the Angles, Jutes and Saxons.

William the Conqueror won the crown of England through the superiority of his Norman cavalry, and ever afterwards devoted much care to the improvement of the breed of English horses.

King John introduced one hundred Flemish stallions, and a large number of Spanish and Arabian mares were imported by Edward III.

Charles II. should be remembered by all good sportsmen, as it was during his reign that the silver bell, the then prize for winners of great races, was converted into the present "cup."

The great superiority of the English horse to his ancestor the Tarpan, is well exemplified in our present American trotter.

The latter is fully sustaining, in his own more useful sphere, the renown of his English brother, and in many instances promises to excel him. The history of celebrated sires and dams in this country is, or ought to be, familiar to every reader of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. It is impossible to bring it within the scope of this article.

WM. G. HODSON.

A prominent owner of trotters says: "I am strongly impressed with what seems to be a defect in the system of the National Trotting Association. I started a horse last year over a track belonging to the association and I detected a ringer in the race. Under my protest the ringer won the race and the money was, of course sent to the National Association. I spent time and money to obtain the evidence upon which the ringer and the parties to the fraud were expelled, but have been unable after nearly a year to recover even the entrance money that I paid. I was offered far more than I could have won to drop my prosecution of the affair, and now I feel that I shall not again refuse such an offer, but will keep my mouth shut when I detect a fraud. It seems to me that when the entrance money was accepted from me there was an implied guarantee of protection against ringers, and that at the least the entrance money should have been refunded when the fraud was exposed."

The above is one reason why we need a Pacific Coast Association.

STOCKTON.

Coming immediately in the wake of the State Fair, the Stockton fair did not begin under the most favorable auspices. The attendance upon the first day at the track was very poor. The association was also unfortunate in its first day's racing events, two of them failing to fill, and a special had to be made up to fill out.

The opening event was the free-for-all two-year-old stake, which had four entries, but all were drawn except San Mateo Stock Farm's b c Regal Wilkes. He had a walk-over, driven by Johnny Goldsmith, and was driven to beat 2:30, making a record of 2:26½.

The second event was the three-year-old free-for-all, with five entries, four of which were scratched, leaving Wm. Murray's br c J. R. to walk-over. He did it, making a mile in 2:26. Then the first race of the day was called.

Trotting—2:26 Class.

The starters were Geo. Cropsey's ch m Eva W., L. J. Rose' blk m Moro, J. L. McCord's s m Mary Lou, J. Cochran's ch m Alloretta, Palo Alto's b m Arrol, B. C. Holly's b g San Diego, John A Goldsmith's s m Nina D, and D. J. Murphy's blk h Soudan. Pools opened: Alloretta $25, Nina D. $22, Eva W. $5, field $29.

Arrol had the best of the go, and when they straightened out on the turn, she was in front, Eva W. second, Mary Lou third, and the crowd bunched behind. The positions remained about the same until they got to the second turn, where Mary Lou began to crowd up to the leaders. At the head of the straight she passed Eva W. in second place, and crowded after Arrol in front, catching her at the seven-eighth post, and coming home, both hard driven, head and head, Mary Lou slipping under the wire a bare nose in front. Alloretta got third place, San Diego fourth, Soudan fifth, Moro sixth, Nina D. seventh, and Eva W. eighth. Time, 2:25¼.

Second Heat—Arrol and Mary Lou were very tired horses after the first heat, and their stock went low. Alloretta sold against the field at $30, even money, Nina D. bringing $11 and Eva W. $3. Arrol appeared slightly lame when they came to the score, but the heat was fought out entirely between her and Alloretta. Arrol established himself in the lead as they went around the turn, Alloretta following close up, and the field strung out away behind and out of the race. The positions were never materially changed, Arrol staying in front and Alloretta hanging doggedly to her wheel. There was a sharp fight in the straight, Alloretta trying hard to collar Arrol, but the Palo Alto mare was too fleet, and went under the wire winner by a length, Alloretta second, Soudan third, Nina D. fourth, Mary Lou fifth, Eva W. sixth, San Diego seventh. Time, 2:24½

Third Heat—Arrol was made favorite in the boxes at $25, Alloretta going at $20, and the field at $12. There was nothing in it except Arrol, although Mary Lou gave him something of a race at the finish. Arrol trotted well, and finished a length in front of Mary Lou, San Diego five lengths third, Eva W. fourth, Nina D. fifth, Soudan sixth, Alloretta seventh. Time, 2:24

Fourth Heat—No pools were sold. Arrol went away fast at the word and took a long lead, Alloretta coming in front of the crowd well bunched. On the backstretch the crowd, with Alloretta two lengths in front of them, crowded up slightly upon Arrol, but when they rounded the second turn and came into the straight, she again opened a wide gap. Alloretta made an effort to get up to her, but failed, and Arrol took the heat and race, Alloretta second, San Diego third, Nina D. fourth, Mary Lou fifth, Soudan sixth, Moro seventh and Eva W. eighth. Time, 2:25½.

Trotting, Special.

The second event of the day was a special trot in which E. B. Gifford's blk g Don Tomas, James Dustin's b h Gus Wilkes, B. C. Holly's ch m Pink and John Green's b g Melrose, started, pools selling at $30 each for Don Tomas and Pink and $10 for the field.

First Heat—Gus Wilkes was the leader as they went around the turn, Don Tomas at his wheel, Melrose a length from Tomas and Pink several lengths away. Those positions were held until they came into the straight. There Bayliss began to drive Don Tomas for the heat and got to Gus Wilkes' neck, but he went off his feet and Gus Wilkes came in winner of the heat, Tomas at his wheel, Melrose three lengths third, and Pink a bad fourth. Time, 2:25¾.

Second Heat—Don Tomas went up in the pools, selling at $30 to $13 for Pink and $10 for the field. When the word came Don Tomas got in front and lead Gus Wilkes by a length around the first turn, Melrose in third place. Tomas held the lead until near the half, when he broke and Gus Wilkes passed him, making the half in 1:12 Wilkes lead the black into the straight and there both horses broke. Wilkes caught first and went away in the lead with the race almost won, but when Don Tomas got down again he came home with a great flight of speed, passing Wilkes near the distance post and coming under the wire first with Gus Wilkes at his wheel, Pink two lengths away in third place, Melrose fourth. Time, 2:24.

Third Heat—In the opinion of the betters, Don Tomas already had the race and there were no more pools sold except one or two in which Don Tomas brought $30 to $9 for the entire field. The horses were given the bell at the first score, but as they went away Melrose broke and ran to the quarter, Gus Wilkes following him with Don Tomas close up On the backstretch Melrose settled, and Don Tomas went to the front. Gus Wilkes was second, and Pink in third place at the half. Around the turn the positions were unchanged, but in the straight Holly made an effort to get Pink up to the leader and drove her hard, but Tomas stayed on his feet and went under the wire with the mare at his wheel, Gus Wilkes a good third, Melrose fourth. Time, 2:25.

Fourth Heat—It was growing dark when they came out for the fourth heat. They were sent off well together, and went around the turn in a bunch, but at the quarter Don Tomas showed in front, Pink close to him, Gus Wilkes at Pink's wheel, and Melrose close to Pink. On the backstretch the several gaps were opened wider until they reached the straight. There was no great change, but there Holly again started Pink for the heat. At the ¾ post she was a length to the bad, but was crawling up at every stride, and the two passed the drawgate and came to the wire almost head and head, Don Tomas just saving the heat by a nose, Gus Wilkes getting third, Melrose fourth. Time, 2:27¼.

WEDNESDAY.

There was a great increase in the crowd of Wednesday over that of the second day. Both the new and old grandstands were fairly well filled with people. The betting was lively, lots of money going into the mutual boxes. It was the first of the running days and the programme was begun with the Pavilion Stakes, ¾ mile.

The event was a sweepstake for two year olds, $300 added money. There were 18 nominations made but there were but three starters, Palo Alto's b c Racine, 115, Palo Alto's ch c Flambeau, 115, and A. G. Tod's b f Jessie C., 110. Palo Alto's stable was of course such a favorite that there was no betting of any consequence. W. S. Donathan held the starter's flag and sent them off to a head and head start. Jessie C Jumped away to a lead of half a length; Racine went to her, Flambeau at Racine's flank. They ran closely bunched in this order to the middle of the turn, when Jessie C. went back to them and Racine took the lead, Flambeau staying with him. The two colts came down the straight together, both running easy, and Racine went under the wire first by half a length, Jessie C. four lengths back from them. Time 1:01½.

Big Tree Stakes—One Mile.

The above event, a sweepstakes for three-year-olds, with $400 added money, had six nominations of which three, L. U. Shippee's b f Songstress, 115, Jno. Reavey's b f Bessie Shannon 115, and W. L. Pritchard's ch c Louis P. 118, started. Pools sold on the event, Louis P. $70, Songstress $50 and Bessie Shannon $15. As the flag went down Louis P. got off in the lead and set the pace. Bessie Shannon followed a length behind him and Songstress trailed two lengths back. These were the positions when they reached the quarter. Going down the backstretch Bessie Shannon went up to Louis P. and passed the half post at his shoulder but the effort was short lived and before they got to the middle of the second turn Louis P. had drawn away from her and Songstress had gone up to second place at Louis P's heels. They reached the straight in this order and immediately past the three-quarter post Louis P. got the whip. Songstress hung on at his heels until they reached the drawgate and then Sengstress' rider called on her. She responded with a burst of speed and shot by Louis P. and went under the wire an easy winner by a length, Bessie Shannon away back. Time, 1:43½.

Street Railway Stakes 1¼ miles.

The Street Railway Stakes for all ages, $250 added, one mile and a quarter, brought to the post L. U. Shippee's br f Picnic, carrying 114 pounds and Ben Hill's ch g Tycoon, with 129 pounds up. With that kind of a handicap Tycoon was considered no match for the mare at the distance, and nothing better than $27 against $50 would the betters lay on him. When the play dropped Picnic jumped off as if she was in a ¾ dash and came down the straight with her jock sawing her head off to hold her in. She passed the wire a length in front of Tycoon, but on the first turn he got up to her head and from there to the head of the straight they galloped nose to nose. Coming into the straight, Appleby on Tycoon began his riding and took the horse a length in front. Then Picnic got the whip, but she did not respond as was expected of her, and though she was driven hard at Tycoon she was tired and Tycoon shot under the wire winner by a length. Time, 2:14¼.

Whittaker Stakes, One Mile.

The regular programme closed with the above event for all ages, open to San Joaquin, Stanislaus and Calavreras Counties. $150 added money. There were but three starters, A. Harrison's ch g Hello, 122, G. W. Trahern's ch f Retta B, 85, Sam Miller's ch c Dutch, 112. Betting was even money on Hello against the field. Retta B. was fractious at the post and delayed the start considerably, and when they got away with Hello in front she made a run and took the lead in the turn, setting the pace. At the quarter she was a length from Dutch in second place, and three lengths from Hello. At the half the three were in the same order a length apart, but as they swung into the second turn Hello closed up and passed Dutch and made play for the lead, coming into the straight at Retta B's head. The filly was already being ridden, but her run had cooked her. Hello gradually drew away from her and came home easy, finishing a length in front of the filly. Dutch was out of it entirely and finished away back. Time 1:44.

Trotting Match.

A match race between P. Visher's b h Lynwood and C. Dunham's b m Cleo was given after the running programme was completed. Some betting was done, Cleo being favorite at $25 to $12 for the horse. In the first heat Cleo took the lead at the start and was never headed. Lynwood making a bad break when he attempted to collar her on the straight. Time, 2:41½.

The betting men put $50 against $11 on Cleo after the heat. She repeated her performance by going away in the lead and staying there. Lynwood made several bad breaks. Time, 2:40.

"Buster" was put up behind the horse in the third heat. He succeeded in keeping him in front once he got him there, and won the heat easily in 2:45. Cleo made a tangled break on the straight. Lynwood stock went up after his winning, an average quotation being Cleo $80, Lynwood $35. Cleo had the good of the start, and at the quarter was two lengths in front. At the half she was four lengths away, and from there had it all her own way, winning the heat and race in 2:44.

Stockton Gossip.

Outside Napa the Stockton track is one of the fastest in the state. It is in especially good condition for the meeting, and all the horsemen speak well of it.

The association has just competed a new grandstand, which is an elegant structure, built in the latest style and capable of seating 2000 people. The old grandstand is now free for all visitors.

Stockton sports are in love with the Pari-mutuals, and half the money on the races go in at the $5 clip. On the second day of the races there was such a crowd trying to get to the box that a line had to be formed. That is something unusual on a western track.

Half the horses upon the track are afflicted with this new disease somewhat similar to epizootic. The disease is manifested by coughing and sneezing, and by a weakness in the coupling and a swelling of the ankles. The horses out in town all have it. It has been in the racing stables to a slight degree since the Oakland meeting, but was not widespread until the horses were quarted here.

Billy Donathan had the misfortune to lose his colt Hubert Earl by John A. out of Hattie J. last Tuesday. He was sick with epizootic when he left Sacramento and steadily grew worse until his death took place. He was a right good two-year-old and Donathan placed a high value upon him.

Orrin Hickok tell me that Stamboul will not start here for a record. He, like the others, is sneezing and until he get entirely well he will not appear. The breeder's meeting may probably find him in condition.

Tuesday, Jimmy Dustin drove Valensin's b f Fleet, a couple of miles. She went the first in 2:25¼, and then trotted a second in 2:24½, by far her best performance yet.

Johnny Goldsmith had quite a lively little discussion with the judges Tuesday in regard to the National Association rules upon walkovers. Regal Wilkes was to walkover, for the two-year-old stake. At the first attempt, the bell tapped, but the colt was not going to suit Johnny, and he pulled him up on the turn, and jogged back for another go. The judges informed Goldsmith, that he could not come back, and take the bell a second time. Goldsmith held, that he could start as many times as he wished. The discussion was rather warm, Johnny then drove the colt for the stake, a mile in about seven minutes. Having taken the stake to his own satisfaction, he sent the colt to beat 2:30, and he rounded the mile in 2:26½. The matter of the stake money will go before the Board of Appeals.

When Racine won the ¾ dash Wednesday, the official time was 1:01½, but there were a dozen men in the timers' stand, who caught it 1:01, and he went the distance very close to that time. One of the official timers caught it 1:01 2-5, another 1:01 3 5, and still another 1:01½, and the latter was the only work which they could give the colt. He finished easy and I am satisfied that he could have run it, in an even minute. He is a great colt.

It was a poor piece of generalship which instructed Narvice to ride Picnic as he did in he Street Railway Stakes Wednesday, Tycoon had up 129 pounds while she carried but 114 The ordinary tactics would have been to have let the mare go out and make the pace, killing the handicaped got horse in the mile, but Narvice heed the mare hard until they well into the straight and when they called on her she was naturally outspeeded by Tycoon who in the slow pace had not felt his weight.

Don Tomas has won his first race this season in the special. I am glad to see him at the front one time. He is a wonderfully speedy horse, but he is outclassed this season by faster one and better stayers. Still if Bayless could only keep him on his feet he would make a good showing with the others in the 2:20 class.

Billy Appleby was up on Tycoon Wednesday, his first race in some time. There was an old-time familiar look about him as he rode past the stand, and a lot of men who had seen him carry many a good horse to victory in the days gone by, greeted him with a yell when he appeared. He made a very clever winning, too.

There was a horse race at Sheepshead Bay last week, and when the winner had covered three-quarters of a mile in 1 minute 16 4-5 seconds, his owner was nearly $60,000 richer. It was the struggle for the great Futurity Stakes, and twenty-three fashionably bred two year olds received a perfect send-off and raced for blood every inch of the way. The finish was close and exciting, and amid the cheers and shouts of nearly 20,000 people Millionaire ex-Congressman Scott's colt Chaos won by a neck. Millionaire Belmont's St. Carlo was second and Millionaire Baldwin's Sinaloa II. third. There were other rich men's horses behind, and one of the worst beaten of the lot was the ungainly youngster King Thomas, for which Senator Hearst paid $38,000. The millionaires had an inning this time.—N. Y. Herald.

Grim's Gossip.

Now, where do you go next week; to Fresno, San Jose, Reno, Santa Barbara or Ukiah?

Sidney Ashe bought a yearling at his brother's sale, and has since turned him over to Tom Boyle to train.

Since the Bay District track has been recovered, it is now considered by horsemen the fastest in the United States.

Haggin has not entered a horse at the Brooklyn meeting owing to his troubles with the Dwyers over the Omnibus strkes.

Tom Williams presented Bryant W. to Crittenden's riding school. Surely the old horse was worthy of a better ending.

White Hat McCarty is now offering his running horses for sale, including Sorrento. He has lost a lot of money on them this year.

Margaret S. was shipped from Stockton this week, on her way to Cleveland, Ohio, where she will take part in the Spirit Futurity Stake.

Caliente, of the Baldwin Stable, won a very creditable victory at Gravesend, last Monday, defeating Belle d'Or and Joe Lee, a mile and an eighth, in 1:57¼.

P. J. Shafter, of Olema, has lost a very fine Antevolo colt. He was very badly injured, from jumping on a picket fence, and died from the effects of the wounds.

"West" George, one of the old time racehorse men of California, has purchased an interest in Applause and has the fleety son of Three Cheers at Quincy this week.

Sam Gamble is paying a visit to all the prominent breeding farms throughout the East, and if he can get any good fillies that suit his fancy he will bring back a carload or two.

I heard some one say last spring that Henry Walsh was getting too old to train any more, and it may be so, but it is surprising, if age plays any part in training, that his horses win nine out of ten.

Foxhall, the American-bred winner of the Grand Prix de Paris, Cesarwitch, Cambridgeshire, and Ascot Gold Cup is announced for sale at the Newmarket second October meeting.

Regal Wilkos won a prise of $1. at Stockton on Tuesday. That Mr. Corbitt is annoyed, is but stating the case mildly and he vows that no more of of his horses shall ever start at Stockton.

A typographical error caused me to say week before last that Pasha 2:27¾ (made at Marysville) was by Elmo, when it should have been Echo. His dam was Fashion filly by Corect, he by Belmont.

One of the best finishes, seen for many a day, was that of young Dan Dennison, on Hotspur in the mile and a half race, on Friday of last week. It will generally pay to have a few dollars on the boy's mounts.

The special train on Saturday night was a great accommodation to the thousands who wanted to get home, and many a blessing was quietly uttered for the Railroad Company, and the foresight displayed by them.

Taken all in all, the betting talent lost heavily at Sacramento. The last race of the last day recouped many an almost broken sport, the pacer St. Patrick coming to the aid of the fraternity just in the nick of time.

Mr. William Easton has received instructions from Mr. Walter Gratz to sell his entire stable of race-horses in training, including Elkwood. The sale will be held during the first week of the autumn meeting at Westchester.

Dr. C. W. Aby is a success as a starter. During the two weeks' meeting there was but very little trouble, and when any one of the horses failed to get well off it was the result of the rider not obeying the starter's instructions.

What crowds there were at the speed contests at Sacramento. The mammoth grand stand was always filled, while the thousands who congregated in and around the pool box put one in mind of Sheepshead Bay on a Futurity day.

Mr. Swan, the superintendent of Col. Thornton's stock farm, has had a number of the trotters at Pleasanton lately, giving them gentle work. The stallion James Madison (Anteeo—Lucy Patchen) is moving in excellent shape and is a colt of much promise.

We have received the last number of Goodwin's Official Turf Guide, which is, as usual, full of interesting information to all turfites. It contains a full record of all races run since the 1st of January up to and including the finish of the Coney Island Jockey Club.

Thomas Burns is driving a pacer through Montana named W. H. that is owned by an Indian woman who goes along, and when anything don't go to suit her she puts on her war paint and swears like a pirate. The boys all keep their weather-eye out for W. H. and the old squaw.

One of the sensational youngsters of the year is Don Pizarro, by Gambetta Wilkes. He made a pacing record of 2:14½ recently and will be started at Cincinnati against the three-year-old record of Yolo Maid, 2:14. Pizzarro is owned by Cecil Bros., Danville, Ky.

The Fresno meeting promises to be a great success. A good deal of work has been gone through with and now every thing is ready for the opening day, Manager Baldwin has done everything in his power to make Fresno a great racing center and if there is a failure it will not be his fault.

The Directors of the Healdsburg Driving Park Association announce this week a good programme for three days racing at that charming little city, on October 16th, 17th, and 18th. The track has been placed in excellent condition, and from the promises received from prominent horsemen, the meeting is already an assured success.

I am sorry to announce that Lillian Wilkes will not be seen in public again this year. She failed to fulfill expectations with the shoes used, so an alteration was made by the addition of toe weights. The game daughter of Guy Wilkes has received a severe sprain from the use of the "extras" while going at full speed and will have to take a good long rest.

There was considerable complaint among the drivers at Sacramento that they could not work their horses on the track, it being so occupied with stock parades, and judging competitions, together with ladies equestrian turnouts, that they could not do the proper amount of exercising.

A large number of pacing horse breeders met in Nashville on the 18th of this month and organized the Pacing Horse Breeders' Association of Tennessee. Frank G. Buford, of Giles county, was elected President; W. P. Woldridge, of Maury county, Secretary, and Lewis T. Baxter, of Davidson county, Treasurer.

Mr. Theodore Winters is again in luck, or rather he is the fortunate possessor of a yearling which all good judges of youngsters claim is a better yearling than El Rio Rey was at the same age. That there must be good ground for the belief is self evident, as the gentleman has been offered and refused $15,000 for the last Norfolk—Marion colt.

P. A. Finigan, Esq. was serenaded at the Depot Hotel, Sacramento, last Friday evening. A whole host of friends assembled, and accompained by a band of twenty pieces they took the State Fair Directors by surprise; however, a royal time was had until the early hours.

Wilber Smith's Annie Laurie by Hubbard, dam Mayflower by imported Eclipse, grandam Hennie Farrow, won the prize in her class, four years old and over at Sacramento. Every one expected Wilber would breed her to a trotter, but he assures me she is in foal to Milner and that he intends sending her back next year, if the produce suits his critical eye.

"The Australian two-year-old colts are fine, big animals, with great bone and muscle; good legs and feet; and would show for good looks with anything of their age in England. They have only been doing slow exercise since they came, so that I know nothing of their galloping action." This is given as Mr. Dawson's opinion of the Hon. J. White's Derby colts, Kirkham and Narellan, in St. Stephens' Review.

The liberality of Senator Stanford is proverbial. He has again placed the horsemen of California under obligations to him, by contributing to the State Agricultural Society a check for $1,000 toward assisting them in the Spring Meeting of next year. At a meeting of the board of Directors, it was decided to name the stake "Matadero" after the Senators thoroughbred breeding farm.

Kingston has again covered himself with glory. Last Tuesday, he beat Los Angeles, Tenny and Raceland in a mile and a quarter, going the distance in 2:06½. It has always been considered that his best distance was nine furlongs, but with this new achievement he proves himself able to go a bit further and stay with the best of them. The fractional times for the quarter was 0:26—0:51¾—1:16½—1:41¾—2:06½—half a second better than the record.

The Sporting World says that Senator Hearst is picking a few crumbs from the racing table, and those who were warm admirers of the stable in the spring, and have not yet lost their admiration, occasionally gather in the shekels accordingly. But there are not many of the band left. They have been so often disappointed, that Senator Hearst's horses usually have gone begging in the betting ring of late when they have started.

Dan Dannison is corralling every thing in sight at Quincy. On Monday, Rabe won the 2:30 class in straight heats; on Tuesday, Rabe won the 2:40 class in straight heats; Dave Douglas the mile and repeat; and G. W. the mile and a quarter; on Wednesday, Hotspur won the six furlong dash; G. W. the mile and a half; and Hotspur was pulled out again winning the mile. Dan evidently knew what he was about, when he went up country in preference to Stockton.

The San Jose Directors scored a big point when they secured Yolo Maid, Gold Leaf, Adonis, and Almont Patchen for the $1 200, free for all, pacing race. This great contest will take place on the last day of the fair, Saturday, October 5th. The 2:25 pacing race will go on Thursday instead of Saturday, as heretofore advertised. Special trains will run on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, October 3rd, 4th, and 5th, from the foot of Market Street, and leave San Jose at 7 o'clock each evening.

Mr. J. Maguire has sold his two year old filly Apolline, by Monroe Chief or Sydney, dam Lizzie, by John Netherland (the dam of Brown Hal, pacing stallion record. 2:12½, and Little Brown Jug 2:11¾) to F. H. Burke for $1,500. Mr. Maguire has purchased from the La Siesta Ranch, the bay stallion, Halcyon, foaled 1886, by Falls (son of Electioneer) dam Girofle, by Elmo. Price paid $1,250. The new owner will change the colt's name to "Fresno."

Electric webbing will do wonders sometimes. Bill Mellon, the man who taught Star Lily how to go square and fast, says: "She was knockkneed. Spreaders and sideweights had no effect. So I tried a piece of electric webbing reaching from the outside of the knee to the shaft bearer on each side. It worked like a charm and ought to help kneeknockers. I put it on without tension, and when the knee is doubled it has a tendency to pull the joint outward."

We learn from good authority that several horse breeders have been trying to negotiate with Dr. J. W. Trull of Vallejo, for the farm on which is located the new race track. There is altogether 170 acres of level land, and in addition to the race track there is a fine picnic grove, and a well laid out base ball ground that is very popular. If the tract is in the market for sale, here is a splendid chance for some of California's breeders, as the close proxmity to San Francisco makes it a very desirable place.

The Directors of the Blood Horse Association had a meeting Tuesday evening, and the preliminary work gone through preparatory to announcing the dates. A committee was appointed to confer with Mr. Hinchman, lessee of the Bay District track, to find what vacant dates could be secured without conflicting with other meetings. The proposed fall meeting should be the best ever held under the auspices of the association, as there are a better class of horses in the State to-day than ever before.

Summons and complaint has been severed on the Tribune Association by Counsellor Lawton B. Garside, on behalf of Fred Littlefield, the jockey. The suit, which will be brought to the Supreme Court, is for libel, and damages to the extent of $5,000 asked, Charles S. Littlefield, the young man's father, being named as his guardian in the prosecution thereof. The suit is for repeated criticism of the boy's riding which has appeared in the columns of the Tribune, and which, in the minds of the boy's relatives, was calculated to question his honesty and deprive him of earning a livelihood at his profession.—[Sporting World.

Mr. Corbitt, of the San Mateo Stock Ranch, showed me a letter a few days ago, in which a prominent Eastern breeder asked for terms for Guy Wilkes for the season of 1890. The gentleman is desirous of sending out a carload of selected mares to the harem of the sire of Lillian Wilkes.

Col. R. E. Edmonson of Lexington, Ky., has been at Sacramento during the past two weeks. He was invited to take a hand with Killip & Co. in disposing of the large herd of short horns, the property of Prewit & Goff. The Colonel is one of the best auctioneers in Kentucky, and he it was that sold Bell Boy, when he brought the enormous price of $51,000.

The Horseman says that James Howard, the popular and efficient assistant secretary of the Washington Park Club, accompanied by his wife, left Chicago for a trip to the Pacific slope on Sunday last. Mr. and Mrs. Howard formerly resided in California, and a visit of a month or so among old and tried friends and familiar scenes will certainly be productive of much pleasure to both, and prove beneficial to Mr. Howard's physical health.

There is a splendid chance to let Stamboul make a name for himself, as the Daly party are anxious to make a match with Lord Byron. From the way the Montana representative won his race at Sacramento, he hardly seems able to cope with the old Campaigner, but as he is an improving horse, it is just possible that a grand contest might be arranged and an exciting race ensue. It is claimed that Lord Byron showed three heats better than 2:18 before he was brought from Montana, and his supporters feel confident that he can beat Stamboul.

In reading over the account of the San Luis Obispo Races, I noticed among the winners "Gertrude". It is a pity to see a mare with such a regal pedigree, pulled out for a small country meeting. She was imported last Spring from Australia, at a cost of $1500, is by Somnus, dam Geraldine by Yattendon, grand dam (imp) Atholine by Blair Athol. Her sire and dam were both first class performers in the colonies, while among her near relatives are Blairgowrie, Huntingtower, Habena, Moorthorpe, Narina, and a host of other well known equine heroes in Australia.

The California State Veterinary Association held their quarterly meeting at the Baldwin Hotel, San Francisco, last Wednesday evening. A good representative gathering of veterinarians attended. Dr. Wadham, of Santa Clara, read a very instructive article on purient apoplexy, and Dr. Orvis, of Stockton, gave an interesting account of a peculiar case he had lately attended. The treasurer's and secretary's reports were read and officers nominated for the next year. The next meeting will take place at the Baldwin Hotel the second Wednesday in December, and will then adjourn to Los Angeles, where several new members are expected to join.

The difficulty between Porter Ashe and Scoggan Bros., over the sale of Robin Hood to Mr. Ashe for $1,900, has been satisfactorily settled. It was very natural for the Californian to feel disappointed to have his purchase show signs of lameness immediately after the sale, but he was hardly justified in having the payment of his check stopped under any circumstances, as the horses were sold as represented by the auctioneer, and not by any representations that may have been made by the owners of the horses. The Scoggans had the stable of Mr. Ashe attached, and the horses were kept under the eye of a representative of the courts for several days. It is generally known to buyers at auction sales of thoroughbreds that title is all that is guaranteed when a horse is knocked down.

"Hark Comstock" writes as follows to an Eastern contemporary:

A word about Margaret S. I have seen the staunch little daughter of Director trot three races since I came here. In none of them have I seen her break, either in scoring or in the heats, as far as I can recall. In each succeeding race she has showed improved form. She has another month in which to meet her competitors in The Spirit Futurity Stakes at Cleveland. Just what depreciation may occur from her journey I cannot compute, but if the race was to be trotted on this side of the mountains and her rate of improvement continued as it has the past four weeks, I think she would be capable of putting in three heats from 2:19 to 2:22. In her as a three-year-old and Direct as a four-year-old Mr. Salisbury's great stallion Director, 2:17, has splendid representation of his qualities as a sire.

There is a desire among some of the owners of fast stallion to have a chance at the Pacific coast "cracks," especially Stamboul, 2:14¾. "I know whereof I speak," says Albermarle in the Sportsman, when I stated that a big sweepstake race for stallions would find favor among Eastern owners. The proposition as hastily outlined is that a race be opened with any reasonable sum for entrance stake, say from $2,000 to $5,000 each, and the added money to be the largest sum any association will give to have the race trotted over its grounds. If Eastern owners go to California (which some are willing to do), each is to be allowed a reasonable sum for expenses. Here is a chance for a great stallion race with stakes and added money aggregating from $10,000 to $20,000. If I should make a prediction as to the Eastern owners that would go to California to trot their horses, I should name at least two: C, H Nelson, of Maine, to enter his bay horse Nelson, 2:15, and Frank Noble, of Michigan, to enter Alcryon, 2:16¾. Will not some enterprising Californian take the "trip" and put the plan at once into practical operation?

Every year the public is treated to a story or two about some speculator of the "shoestring" type who has made a lucky play with a few dollars and run the same up to a goodly sum. The New York Graphic relates a recent case, which has for its hero Sam Stedeker, a brother of the popular horseman, Henry Stedeker. Last Thursday Sam went to Sheepshead with a solitary ten-dollar bill; not liking the first race he waited for the second, parting with a dollar for a poor dinner. Investing a "V" on Britannic at 8 to 1 he quickly had $45. This amount on Buddhist in the third at 12 to 5 returned him $153. Magnate next increased his capital to $400, and when Firenzi came in first his total was swollen to $960. He backed Barrister with $500 at 2 to 1 in the last race, and quit the day $1,950 to the good. Friday, Sam won a cool thousand on Cassius, $2,000 on Hub S., and $500 each on Tattler and Oriflamme, which increased his "shoestring" to almost $6,000. Saturday morning he backed Cracksman in the city pool rooms to the amount of $1,000 at 3 to 1 against, winning $3,000; he won $500 on Reclare, which he as promptly lost on Hindocraft. His other prizes of the day were $1,200 from Salvator, $1,800 from Firenzi, and $1,200 from St. Luke—a total for the day of $7,200, or $13,164 all told for the three days' plays from the $9 nest-egg. Sam Stedeker is a lucky lad, but he is not likely to hold on to his windfall many weeks.

THE GUN.

Standard Challenge Medal Match.

A challenge match for the Selby medal representing the championship of Central California at Blue Rock targets was shot off at Stockton, on Saturday last, and was in some respects the severest test of skill with the gun that has ever taken place in the State.

The medal must be won four times by one man before it becomes personal property, and as the trophy is of great value, matches for its possession follow in rapid succession. Mr. T. H. Buckingham won it at Vacaville. a month ago, the previous holder, Mr. Frank J. Bassford, being out of the State, and of course unable to shoot when challenged. Mr. Buckingham was challenged by Mr. J. B. "Daisy" immediately, and last Saturday's contest was the result. Mr. "Daisy" has chosen his shooting name not inappropriately. Trap shots will recognize him when it is stated that he is the popular purser of one of the great steamships plying to Portland, Or. He has for years held preeminence as a field shot at all sorts of game, to our notion having no equal on the coast, but his ventures at the trap date but a few years back. His success has been astonishing, however, and he may always be looked for among the winners when he turns his Parker loose. The medal has been won three times by Frank J. Bassford, once by T. H. Buckingham, and is now in possession of Major S. I. Kellogg, of the Selby Smelting and Lead Company, donors of the trophy. Major Kellogg is a fine performer on artificial targets and his score of 75 to win the medal, under the prevailing conditions is fully equal to 90 under such conditions as have been present in former matches.

Another contestant was Mr. C. J. Haas, champion of the California Wing Shooting Club, for the past season. Mr. Haas' work has often been mentioned in this paper, and always in merited terms of praise. No more graceful, certain and elegant shot uses the gun here abouts.

Mr. Austin B. Sperry also shot for the medal and made a good score, considering he was using an L. C. Smith gun, recently built to his order, about the daintiest bit of gun work in its lines, balance and finish that has been seen in local circles for a long time. The owner had always used a much heavier gun, and as a consequence was a little uncertain at times; in fact, during the latter portion of the match he absolutely flinched, but when he "held on" his little Smith smashed the targets at any range. The previous holder of the medal, Mr. Buckingham, was decidedly off in his shooting. He dwelt too long, letting the blue rocks go out to sixty or seventy yards, a distance at which breaking a bird is always problematical regardless of accuracy of aim. The shooting was done on Mr. Sperry's private ground adjacent to his residence, a fact which contributed much to the comfort of those in attendance, for the reason that the genially sardonic proprietor at short intervals through the day had suitable refreshments sent out from his residence near by. Mr. Sperry is most thorough in every undertaking, and when he decided to perfect himself in trap shooting he had a complete Blue Rock outfit set up on his own premises, where he practices whenever leisure affords opportunity. The latest improvements in the way of traps, trap pullers, indicators and other paraphrenalia are on the ground, and his shooting is all done strictly to rule, the American Shooting Association code being commonly adopted. Mr. Sperry also owns a set of ground traps and does considerable live bird shooting, the pigeons being procured from adjacent farms. A flock of fine lively birds bred by Mr. Geo. Sperry persisted in circling about the shooting ground all day, much to the disquietude of Mr. "Daisy," who can never let an opportunity to score on live birds pass unnoticed.

The day was uncommonly cool for Stockton fall weather, and a strong wind from 8 o'clock, as riflemen say, made the shooting very difficult. The flight of the blue rocks changed momently, the targets taking all sorts of eccentric darts and pitches, in many instances just at the moment of pulling the triggers, so that the comparatively low scores afford no index to the actual merit of the contestants. As a matter of fact the match was the most difficult contest at artificial targets it has ever been our luck to see, and a score of fifty on Saturday last was a first-rate one, anything above that figure being possible only to thoroughly superior shots. Mr. Henry A. Bassford was expected, but was unavoidably kept away. As soon as the men reached the ground a sweepstake was begun, with six entries, which was won by Mr. A. B. Sperry. Score at 10 Blue Rock Targets, 50 cents entrance, sweepstake:

Daisy, 10, 18	1	0	0	0	1	0	1	1	1	1–0
Frank	1	1	0	1	0	1	0	1	1	0–6
Sperry, 12	1	1	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	1–8

Another sweep, under similar conditions, was won by Major S. I. Kellogg, despite accidental loss of a bird, because the shooter failed to cock his hammerless gun. The referee ruled that under American shooting Association rules the omission was fatal to Major Kellogg's right to another bird.

SCORE.

Frank	1	0	0	1	1	0	1	1	0	0–5
Haas	0	1	1	0	1	0	1	1	0	0–5
Kellogg	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1–9
Buckingham	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	0	0–7

A third match, under like conditions brought Mr. "Daisy" in a winner, the only incident of the event being a monstrously long kill on a live bird, which flew over Mr. Haas, some fifty yards away That gentleman's little 12-bore Sneider accounted for the bird in beautiful style.

SCORE.

A. B. Sperry	1	0	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1–8
Haas	1	0	1	0	0	1	1	1	0	0–5

The main event for the Standard Challenge Medal for Central California was then on. Messrs. Buckingham, "Daisy," A. B. Sperry, Kellogg and Haas, entering. Mr. Frank E. Lane, whose practice scores have generally been high, was on the ground, but not in first class fettle and as he failed to do well in the preliminary matches he thought it best to pull the traps, rather than to enter the arena against the cracks opposed to him.

Mr. Lane's trapping was well done. The trapper kept up an expressive monologue, addressed to the boys in the trapping pits, at times in soothing words of encouragement, and then in such tremendously expressive expletives as to actually change the flight of the targets. As soon as the match began, it was seen that the then holder of the medal, Mr. Buckingham, was not in it. He lingered, shot wildly, and "Daisy" was looked upon as a sure winner, but he was so full of fun and skylarking about so much, that he did not settle down to steady work until too late to retrieve his chances. Major Kellogg from the beginning did good work and before fifteen rounds it was apparent that the medal lay between Mr. Haas and the Major. Both shot with splendid judgment, timing well, and seeming to know intuitively the coming pitch of each target. When each had shot his fifty singles, Major Kellogg was but one bird ahead of Mr. Haas.

Mr. Sperry distinguished himself by breaking three pairs straight in the doubles, the only one who did so. In his doubles, Major Kellogg again failed to cock his hammerless gun, and the pair was scored against him, but for which fact his score might have been better. The ruling was a new one, the point never having presented itself before, and it is worth the while of shooters to think about it a little. Taken as a whole the match was one of the most pleasant ever attended by this reporter, beside being a fine test of the skill of the men.

The Selby Medal has been described in this paper, and it will suffice to say that it is a very rich bit of goldsmith's work, both in design and execution. Under the conditions of the match, 40 per cent. of the entrance fees was presented to Mr. Buckingham when he surrendered the medal.

SCORE.

At 15 singles and 25 pairs; Blue Rock targets; $10 entrance. Prizes—Selby Medal to first, Major S. I. Kellogg; 30 per cent of entrance to second, Mr. C. J. Haas; 20 per cent of entrance to third, Mr. J. B. "Daisy;" 10 per cent of entrance to fourth, Mr Austin B. Sperry.

From Deputy Fish Commissioner Callundan.

Mr. F. P. Callundan, who was appointed a Deputy Fish Commissioner a few months ago, has worthily justified himself in his onerous position. The gentleman is peculiarly fitted for the duties of the office, being courteous and of considerate bearing, but persistent and inexorable in pushing inquiries into cases of suspected violation of the game and fish laws.

The freedom of the San Francisco markets from unseasonable game up to September 10th, is almost entirely due to Mr. Callundan's vigilance and known determination.

He has recently been laid off because of illness, but we learn from a note written by him on September 24th, that he is about well again, and, as usual, pushing his work. He would make a useful Chief of the Deputies appointed by the Commission, having supervision of all the work of the Board, and, if not discourteous, we venture to suggest his appointment by the Board. He would have the confidence and active support of the best men everywhere, and would, because of his peculiarly favorable connections, be enabled to do more effective work than has ever been done hitherto.

Mr. Callundan writes from Sacramento: "Since getting on my feet again, I have been looking after the Sacramento river fisheries for some days. The Fish Commission at its special meeting recently held here was disappointed in not having present some of the leading sportsmen. If the lovers of the gun would assist the Commission, it would not be long before a better state of things would prevail in game and fish matters. I see by some of the dailies, that some reporters think the Commission is not doing enough. All the work of the Board is at the disposal of the press, and I think if the papers would investigate more closely, they would agree with me in believing that the Commission should be credited with the accomplishment of much good, particularly as regards fish. His Excellency, Governor Waterman, received a telegram today, stating that some people were violating the fish law on Klamath River. I leave to night to investigate. The Fish Commission meets in San Francisco about October 1st, and it is especially requested that such sportsmen as can attend will be present at the meeting, which will be held at 220 Sutter Street, in the office of Labor Commissioner Tobin."

IV.

The creation of an accident, Havilah speedily became a leading factor. Drawn by the hope of gain, and by that wish for betterment which leads the active and which the lazy follow, it quickly became a buzzing, and a stinging human hive.

Under a powerful microscope, it is said the tip of a rapidly growing plant represents chaos in embryo. There is constant turmoil on the vegetable surface; there is a continuous shooting out and folding in; a minute spore strikes out as if for freedom in everlasting space, only to go the length of its minute tether and double back on its tiny homestretch. So with man. A new place offers new achievements; excitement, the hope of some yet undeterminate glory, or lust, one the other, or perhaps all, work upon the mortal mind, spurring to the doing of something which shall somewhere count. And it does count. It can be always told by the graves in a new mining camp—"they died with their boots on." The human spores shot out, were shot back, and probably had not earthly time enough to know that they had fulfilled their mission, when they were sent back to "Mother Dust."

Amid all the excitement of about town, mining was vigorously prosecuted; millions in gold were taken from the mines; Tulare County was cut in twain; Havilah was made Shire town of the new Kern County; and prosperity deliberately moved in and settled. At one time perhaps twenty-five hundred people—where now one hundred could not possibly be tallied—were residents of Havilah and its immediate vicinity.

Other interests in other places began to conflict, and a squabble which grew into a red-hot fight resulted in the removal of the County Seat to its present comfortable easy-chair in Bakersfield. The manner and method were somewhat in this wise: In the Legislative session of '69-70 a bill was presented for enabling a vote upon this question to be had by the County. The bill was vigorously opposed by Senator Fowler, of Tulare, but was passed on the last day of session, then to be pocketed by Governor Haight. The code adopted by the Legislature of '72 provided for submitting County Seat changes to voters of the County, upon petition to the Board of Supervisors. Upon election being thereafter held, 72 votes in majority were cast in favor of removal, but the Supervisors (two of whom were opposed to any change) threw out the two precincts of Tejon and Bear Valley on account of some informality. At the instance of Col. Baker, Julius Chester and A. R. Jackson, County Judge P. T. Colby was applied to for a writ of mandate compelling the Supervisors to canvass these returns. This writ was denied. A second application was made by Sacramento attorneys, also denied. Hon. Theron Reed, judge of the District Court, was then applied to. He refused a hearing on the ground that he was then a resident of Havilah and personally opposed to the removal, but of his own motion transferred the case to the Court of the 13th Judicial District at Visalia, Judge Denny then presiding Meanwhile an election was held in Tehachipa District, and John Narboe (favoring) was elected Supervisor. Sol. Jewett, A. H. Denker and John Narboe then constituted the Board. The majority employed A. J. Atwell of Visalia to represent them against the application for a writ, in answer admitting all the facts as set forth in the complaint. Question arose as to their duty in counting the returns of the two rejected precincts, when Judge Deering granted the writ, commanding them to count these ballots. On the third day thereafter the ballots were counted and on the same day—in the spring of '73—the records of Kern County were on wheels, travelling from Havilah to Bakersfield.

McFarland's four-horse team was loaded with the County insignia, pomp and power, and left Havilah to the dirge "Le Roi est Mort," in due time reaching Bakersfield to be welcomed, amid salvos of fire crackers, with the pæan "Vive le Roi." The Board of Supervisors having jumped over the head of the District Attorney A. C. Lawrence, in their employment of A. J. Atwell to represent them at Visalia, A. H. Denker minority member of the Board, employed Freeman on behalf of Havilah interests, to move for a new trial. The motion was denied by Judge Deering, then holding Court at Merced, and an appeal was promptly taken to the Supreme Court, where the appellants' side was argued by the late Judge Sanderson. This Court unanimously affirmed Judge Deering's decision Afterward, when the railroad had reached Sumner (the present Court House walls being up some six or eight feet), a majority of the Board wished to re-open the County Seat fight, and an application was made to Judge Theron Reed for an injunction. This was granted, restraining the erection of a Court House at Bakersfield, upon stated grounds, among which was that the vote cast for a change of the County Seat was illegal. Upon appeal to the Supreme Court, this injunction was also dismissed; and this, done in 1875, settled the question permanently.

This row stirred up the blood of the whole County. The least man in the puddle had his fixed opinion, and knew it all, just as wisely and positively as his biggest neighbor. There was no isothermal lines, the whole space was red hot. No divorces were had on this account; no brothers were eternally parted; father and son did not forever separate, but many a warm friendship changed to a hot enmity; the pleasant flow of daily converse often became a roily, dirty torrent; and altogether, between the outs who were just out and the so freshly come ins, it was indeed a monkey-parrot time. Since then many suns have risen and set; moons and moons have waxed and waned; tide after tide has ebbed and flowed; men have come and gone—also women and young children—and the bitterness of actual strife has mellowed into recollections only slightly acrid. Time eats all things. The heart of the rose and the sting of despair; the blush of youthful hope and the pall of lost love; the glory of a first born and the agony for one gone wrong; the pride of possession and the misery of loss; these and more than these, aye, all things moral, are swallowed by the gentle yet relentless, and in all the most merciful Time. "Tempus edax"—who could endure this mortal coil were it not so? In such way, and with some such resultants, the County Seat question was stirred up and settled.

[Time would surely eat up this valorous band of Pilgrims, and long before their tales are told, if their paths always led amid lands so fraught with early incidents. But after one or two more towns to be conquered, they will take to the woods.]

Mr. Martinez Chick writes from San Diego, that he will be at the State Tournament with his family, and that Mr. Hamilton, and others, will also attend. San Diego can send a team as strong as any city in the state, and Mr. Chick will spare no efforts to have his men in form.

This reduction also covers the families of those, who wish to attend the tournament. Certificates will be sent out to all sportsmen, who have indicated an intention to be present at San Jose; and, if any others wish them, a postal-card request should be sent to Mr. Briggs immediately.

California Ornithological Club.

Mr. Walter E Bryant, Curator of the Academy of Sciences, and the leading naturalist of the Pacific Coast, kindly sends us some information about the Ornithological Club, recently organized as a sub-section of the Academy. The special work outlined will prove of great value, especially to sportsmen who are fond of quail and duck shooting, as it will determine the mooted question as to the harmfulness of the birds to vineyardists and grain growers. The circular is as follows:

The California Ornithological Club was founded in San Francisco, February 9, 1880, for the study and advancement of the ornithology of the Pacific Coast.

The investigation of the food habits of Californian birds has been undertaken by the Club, and, in order to make this work successful, the co-operation of all members, both active and corresponding, and the assistance of others interested in this undertaking is earnestly desired.

Assistance may be rendered in two ways: first, by saving material for examination; second, by making careful observations and notes.

The contents of birds' gizzards and crops may be preserved in two ways, viz.: in a dry condition or in alcohol.

The contents of the gizzards of all gramnivorous birds and most of the insectivorous species may be dried and placed in an envelope provided for this purpose by the Club.

In the case of rapacious birds (hawks and owls), all the water birds, and such land birds as feed on worms or soft, perishable insects, the gizzard must be preserved entire in alcohol. A tag bearing a number written with pencil should be attached before putting the gizzard in alcohol, and a few slits cut in it to allow the alcohol to enter, but not large enough to permit the escape of contents.

The following memoranda should be kept:

Number—corresponding to the number fastened to stomach.

Name—the scientific name of bird if known, otherwise, the common name; great care should be exercised in naming the bird and, if any doubt exists, a question mark (?) should follow the name.

Sex—should be determined by dissection, otherwise followed by a query (?).

Age—particularly in cases of young birds.

Locality.

Date—with name of month written in full.

Time—the approximate hour for which may be used the terms early morning, before 8:00 A. M; late morning, from 8:00 to 11:00 A. M.; noon, from 11:00 A. M. to 2:00 P. M.; afternoon, from 2:00 to 5:00 P. M; evening, after 5:00 P. M

Nature of Country—mention some physical feature of country and character of vegetation.

Collector—not necessarily the person who shoots the bird, but the one who preserves the gizzard and is the authority for its identification.

Remarks—including any information not included in the above headings.

Further information and a supply of envelopes may be obtained from the chairman of the committee, Walter E. Bryant, box 2247, San Francisco, to whom the envelopes should be returned when filled. Full credit will be given in all cases for material and notes supplied.

In conclusion, the committee desires to state that the aims of the Club are in nowise antagonistic to those of the Division of Economic Ornithology and Mammalogy of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. They are simply trying to do in detail for California Ornithology what the Division is doing in a more general way for the whole United States.

It is well-known that there are many collectors making skins of Californian birds, who never examine the contents of the gizzard and crops, or give attention to the food habits of birds. With but little additional care they, as well as sportsmen, might greatly increase their usefulness and the debt which is already due them for their interest in advancing the study of Ornithology.

The State Sportsman's Association.

With this issue goes out the last news about the coming meeting of the State Sportsmans' Association before the body convenes. The Garden City Gun Club, of San Jose, to which falls the pleasure of entertaining the Association, is perhaps of all clubs in the State best prepared for the duty. It has a large membership of really enthusiastic sportsmen, many of whom are widely known, and the rest will be remembered after the meeting as thoroughbreds. The committee of arrangements, Messrs. F. E. Coykendall, a host in himself, Geo. C. Anderson, popular and energetic, A. L. Ingalsby, known by every man in Santa Clara County, have spared no efforts to perfect details of the meeting. The shooting ground will be ready on time, and the first match for the Selby trophy will begin at 9 A. M. on Wednesday, no team being permitted to enter after that hour and no delay for laggard shooters being allowed. Plenty of good fresh birds have been secured, and good shooting alone will win the Selby trophy. The special rates kindly offered by the Southern Pacific Company are available for sportsmen and their families, and it is to be hoped that the royal men who shoot shot guns will bring along the wives and babies. The special prize list, printed elsewhere, is a magnificent one both in number and richness of prizes.

It is expected that the meeting will result in a large addition to the membership of the association.

Do Mongolian Pheasants Drive out Quail?

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—It was my intention to shut my mouth regarding the Mongolian pheasant, but after reading your remarks saying I had failed to establish the fact that they were the cause of the scarcity of grouse and quail in this valley, I must make one more effort to prove the truthfulness of my former statement. I have conversed with many farmers in this valley and they one and all agree that the Mongolian pheasants have driven the grouse and quail back into the mountains. In many instances I have met and talked with farmers that have seen the China pheasant fighting the grouse. On one farm of several thousand acres owned by Mr. Calaway, where a few years ago, grouse and quail were plentiful, to-day you could not find a grouse there, but hundreds of Mongolian pheasants can be found all over the ranch. I heard Mr. Calaway make this statement also, that the Mongolian pheasants had destroyed his garden for the past few years, eating cabbages, turnips, beets and stripping the husks from the green corn and eating that also. This same complaint comes from many farmers. Now, Mr. Editor and readers, I am not so bitterly opposed to this bird as you may think, because he will not lie to the dog, but the question was asked, "Are they the proper bird that the sportsmen want planted in California?" To this I will say I think not. I have lived the most part of 23 years in the Golden State and a good part of the open season I have spent in the field from San Diego to Humboldt County, and I ought to know what the sportsmen want in a game bird. It is true that a young Mongolian pheasant is nice and tender and serves well as a broil or potpie, but after they mature they are not fit to eat, being poor and full of sinews and their meat which is light when young, becomes dark with age and it is impossible to cook them tender. You may say how do I know this, if this bird is protected by law? I will save you the trouble of asking, by telling you as I did before, that I have made a careful study of this bird in the field and on the table, and if the sportsmen of California want this kind of a bird planted so that in a few years the beautiful little valley quail may be destroyed and driven away, then I am mistaken. If the committee appointed to select a game bird have ever been among the little Bob White quails and the prairie chickens they could not but decide that they are the birds that California should be stocked with, because they are fine table food at any age. They are true game birds and lie well to the dog, and birds that do not fear the pot hunter. They can be easily obtained for stocking. The writer spent several months last winter in Kansas and Indian Territory, where there are thousands of quail and prairie chickens, and the farmer boys in that country would jump at the chance of earning a few dollars trapping them By sending a man well posted into Indian Ter. and the Pan Handle of Texas, he would have no trouble in obtaining all the birds he wanted at small prices. The quail and prairie chickens breed well and raise large families, and I have never heard it said that the Bob

The Great Stallion Race.

The Balch stallion race for 1889 is now a thing of the past, and Nelson has been proclaimed the victor. The entries originally were Nelson, 2:14¼; Alcryon, 2:16¼; Brown, 2:18¾; Pilot Knox, 2:19¾; Gold Ring, 2:18; Mount Morris, 2:19¾; Junemount, 2:18¾; Granby, 2:19½; Joe Young, 2:18½· Mulatto, 2:22; Rajah, 2:29½; Ready Boy, 2:29¼, and Bayonne Prince, 2:21¼. The race was originally set for Thursday of last week, but owing to seven storms it was postponed until Friday, and then again put off until Monday, the 23rd inst. When the bell called the horses to the post only five responded, they being Nelson, Alcryon, Junemont, Granby and Pilot Knox. Beacon Park, Boston, has seldom seen such a crowd as were present, the lowest estimate placing the number at 15,000. The weather was all that could be desired, and the track tolerably fast, considering the fearful rains of the previous week. Nelson was driven by C. H. Nelson, his owner; Junemont by James Golden; Granby by Crit Davis; Pilot Knox by J. J. Bowers, while Robbins handled Alcryon.

First Heat—At the tenth attempt they got the word to a fair start, with Alcryon leading. Nelson won in 2:18½. Alcryon second, Pilot Knox, third, Junemont fourth and Granby last.

Second Heat—Nelson won in 2:17¼, Alcryon second, Junemont third, Pilot Knox fourth, and Granby last.

Third Heat—Nelson nearly distanced the field, Pilot Knox second, Junemont third, Granby fourth and Alcryon last.

When the race was concluded the crowd made a rush for the track, cheering heartily for the favorite, who had won so easily, and flowers were showered upon him in profusion. A magnificent floral collar was placed around the neck of Nelson, and a handsome wreath and whip were presented to the fortunate owner. The following is the full score:—

SUMMARY.

The State Fair.

Once more the annual State Fair is a thing of the past and it can truthfully be said that no others ever held could compare with that of 1889. The Directors have all worked with a will, and every effort was put forth to make it a success, and now they have the self gratification of knowing that everything of the past has been eclipsed. The racing has never been equalled, the stock exhibited, superior to any hitherto shown, and the pavilion exhibits away ahead of all former ones. This is the result of hard and united work, and reflects great credit to the association and its officers. Special mention must be made of the indefatigable efforts put forth by the Secretary, Mr. Edwin E. Smith who has worked like a trojan, and well deserves the many enconiums showed upon him.

Large Purses.

The Washington Park Club, Chicago, announce this week the opening of the entry list for the fixed events of 1890 and 1891. The added money as usual is very large, and not to be outdone by the large Eastern clubs, the Chicago organization adds $20,000 to the American Derby, to be run in 1891. At the last meeting this year, the Washington Park Club, scored a gigantic success both financially and from a racing stand point, and they have determined hereafter to add the above amount to their Derby. Of course as the event has closed for next year, 1891 will be the earliest to which it can apply. The Californians who annually make the Eastern pilgrimage, delight to stop and attend the Chicago meeting, and all the horse owners are in the habit of making numerous entries there. This year will surely be no exception to the rule, and from the liberal purses offered, Washington Park Club may rest assured that the entries from the Golden State will be as large as ever.

The Trotting Horse Breeders' Association.

We have received word that Sunol is the only paid up entry in the Stanford Stake, which will be trotted on Friday, October 18th. The value of the stake is $1,175, and the Directors have received word that on the day of the "walk-over" the fast daughter of Electioneer will be sent for a record. The query arises whether she can beat Axtell's time of 2:14, made on the Chicago track. There are many staunch supporters of the filly who think that she can make a new record, and it will be a pleasing sight if she successfully performs the trick. There is also a strong probability that a special purse will be given for the free-for-all pacers. If this is done, it will insure a large attendance, as all lovers of sport are anxious to see the "whirlwinds" on the fast Bay District Track.

Director, 2:17 1:4.

The State Agricultural Society in 1886 passed a resolution to award to the owner of the sire whose get should make the best average performance in the races for trotting foals two, three and four year olds, in 1887, 1888 and 1889, the grand gold medal of the society, the actual cost of which should not be less than $200. Last Sunday the medal was awarded to Director upon the performances of Margaret S. and Direct. The competing sires and the performances of their get are as follows.—

The auction sale of stock to take place at San Jose during Fair week comes off October 5th, Saturday, and not September 30th as heretofore advertised; and furthermore, we omitted to state that the trotting-bred mares are in foal to Soudan, 2:27¾, (by Sultan, 2:24,) dam the dam of Elector, 2:21¼, (Lady Babcock by Whipple's Hambletonian), and the Mambrino Patchen stallion, Mambrino Jr. 1789, sire of Lady Ellen, 2:28, dam of Ella, 2:29. The Breeder and Sportsman.

The excellence of the State Fair edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is still the subject of many favorable comments, as the following will show:

The excellence or the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN we thought was not subject of improvement, but the last number excells any publication of that character that we have ever seen. It should be in the house of ever farmer and stock raiser.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has issued an exceedingly handsome State fair edition. It is full of horse lore and its pictures of turf celebrities are very fine.—Sonoma Democrat.

The issue of the "BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN" (San Francisco) for September 14th is one of beauty and excellence. The lithographic full-page pictures of noted animals, some done in colors, are of a high order of art. The pictures of Lillian Wilkes, St. Savior, Electioneer, Stamboul, Fairmount, Don Patricio, Junio, and Imp. Greenback, make the number a veritable gallery of fine stock portraiture. The text matter is all good, well selected on the one hand, thoughtful and reliable as to the original articles, and generally laden with information and suggestions of value to breeders.—Record Union.

The issue of September 14th, of the San Francisco BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, in honor of the State Fair, is a paper that would be creditable to any publication of its class in the world. It is enclosed in covers bearing lithographs of prominent thoroughbred horses, and the inside pages contain numerous articles pertaining to equines prominent upon the turf and in the stud. The information given is not only authentic, but also valuable because of its thoroughness of detail. This journal is in its line the peer of any in the land, and the admirers of good horses or legitimate sports will find something of interest in every issue.—Gridley Herald.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has just issued a splendid and handsome State Fair edition. There are a number of pictures of the leading horses of the slope, and the engraving and printing is a creditable piece of work. Every person who takes an interest in horseracing or sport of any kind should secure a copy.—Pajaronian.

The last issue of the San Francisco BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is a magnificent number. The title and last page have, one a lithograph of Greenback, and the other St. Savior, the two thoroughbreds on Gebhard's Guenoc Stock Farm in Lake County, while the inside contains excellent cuts of Mambrino Wilkes, Junio, Don Patrcio, Fairmont, Stamboul, Lillian Wilkes, Dire t and the great Electioneer.—Humboldt Times.

The State Fair edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is an attractive number. On the cover pages are illuminated cuts of imp. Greenback and St. Savior, the property of Frederick Gebbard, Guenoc Stock Farm, Lake County, with full descriptions of these noted horses in the reading matter. The number contains cuts of Stamboul, with a record of 2:14¾, by Sultan, dam Fleetwing, by Rysdick's Hambletonian, the property of W. S. Hobart, San Francisco; Electioneer the noted sire of the greatest number of famous trotters produced in Cal., by Rysdick's Hambletonian, dam Green Mountain Maid, by Harry Clay, owned by Leland Stanford; Junio, son of Electioneer, dam by Granger son of imp. Hercules, owned by Gonzales Brothers, and well known in Monterey county as the sire of a number of promising colts; Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Mambrino Jr., property of Iryin Ayers; Don Patricio, by A. W. Richmond, dam Bridget, owned by I. K. Fisher, Santa Barbara; Fairmont, by Piedmont Queen by Garibaldi, owned by Jas. G. Fair Jr.; Lillian Wilkes, the three-year-old wonder that recently electrified the horsemen of this State with a record of 2:17¾, by Guy Wilkes, dam Flora Langford, by Langford, owned by Wm. Corbett, San Mateo. The Fair edition contains full descriptions of these famous California horses, besides much interesting matter.—(Salinas Index.)

The BREEDER AND SAORTSMAN for September 14th is a great paper. Handsome lithographs of Frederick Gebhard's thoroughbred horses Greenback and St. Savior, from the Guenoc Stock Farm, Lake county, adorn the first and last pages. The pictures are the combined work of E. Wittenback, whose horse pictures have made him celebrated, and the well-known lithographers, Britton & Rey, of San Francisco, and are certainly pretty enough to frame. The paper also contains full page engravings of the noted trotters Mambrino Wilkes, Junio, Don Patricio, Fairmont, Stamboul, Electioneer, Lillian Wilkes and Direct. The paper also contains a vast amount of interesting reading matter and much valuable information not only to those who have a fondness for sporting matters, but to the public in general.—Petaluma Argus.

We must notice the edition of September 14th of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. It contains some very fine reading matter as well as some fine illustrations, among the latter that of Doc Aby, the well known horseman.—Lower Lake Bullentin.

The BREEEDR AND SPORTSMAN came to us last week an exceedingly interesting and handsome number, the front and back cover of which contained two excellent lithogrsph pictures of Fred'k Gebhard's celebrated stallion Greenback and St. Savior. We have seen these fine horses many times and pronounce the pictures perfect. Besides these are given the pictures, pedigree and history of a number of their noted horses.—Solano Republican.

The State Fair edition af the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is the best engraved and handsomest paper ever issued on this Coast. The horse portraiture is perfect as any of our readers, who saw the picture of Direct (with whom we are more famaliar than any of the balance) would recognize the picture among a thousand.—(Pleasanton Star.)

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of the 14th inst. is probably the best paper ever published in its particular line. The first and last pages have pictures of two of Fred Gebhard's horses, the first being Imp. Greenback, by Dollar, and the other St. Savior; by Eolus. It is a handsome number and contains much valuable information for horsemen and others.—Oregon Blade.

The current number of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN merits more than passing mention. The covers present handsomely colored lithographs of Fred Gebhart's horses, St. Savior and Greenback, while the issue is filled with valuable data and information.—Portland Sunday Mercury.

We are in receipt of a special State Fair edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN published in San Francisco. It is gotten up in fine style, and is a credit to the publisher and the sporting fraternity which it represents. It contains all the news relating to fine stock on this coast, and is full of valuable information.—Healdsburg Enterprise.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept, 24, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Allow me to say California leads the world "in another industry, turf journalism." Your State Fair Number is away ahead of all Eastern competition, Christmas publications not excepted. My copy has been loaned three times, and I trust "will sow good seed." Your circulation should increase ten fold. The Horticultural Dept. of the Exhibit of District C, opened at Hazard's Pavilion yesterday: The display with one exception has never been better. We hope the live stock and speed displays will be in keeping. Yours,

E. A. DECAMP.

PENN'S GROVE, Sept. 25, 1889.

A. L. WHITNEY, ESQ., OWNER OF DAWN, 2:18¾, PETALUMA—SIR:—In your "open letter" of the 18th inst, addressed to me, you make reference to what you are pleased to term my "unequivocal assertion" that Lillie Stanley (not your horse Dawn, 2:18¾, please to note, but his contestant, Lillie Stanley) was "pulled" in her race at Petaluma.

You characterize this assertion of opinion made by myself (one of the judges of that race) as "a very serious accusation," and, with swelling indignation, add, "No honest man would "make" (it) without proof positive that such was the case." (The italics are mine)

That this quixotic outburst should be followed by your "demand" on behalf of the drivers of your horse and yourself, upon whom your (my) remarks reflect, seems, under the circumstances, natural; but, allow me to call your attention to a remarkable oversight or omission on your part, viz., among those "reflected" upon, you have failed to name the nominators and owners of Lillie Stanley.

Was the omission accidental? Was it because you agree with me in considering these gentlemen above any suspicion of participating in track frauds? or was it because almost immediately after the Dawn—Lillie Stanley race at Petaluma, before she trotted her next race, and before your "open letter" was addressed to me you learned that they, the owners and nominators of Lillie Stanley, had placed said Lillie Stanley in Mr. Goldsmith's hands? (Mr. Goldsmith, you will probably recall and admit, did not drive her in her race against Dawn at Petaluma.)

If, however, your omission to include these gentlemen was not an oversight; if it was purposely made believing that no opinions of mine or any other judge, would or could reflect on said owner and nominators of Lillie Stanley, why then should you, the owner of Dawn, winner of the race in three fast heats infer that such opinion should reflect on your horse or on yourself?

Would it not be just a little bit unkind for me to use your own style of phrase and argument, by saying. "It is a very singular inference and one that no honest man need have drawn?"

Had you not flatly refused to trot Dawn at all, unless you started single-handed against Lillie Stanley; had you accepted the President's and the writer's proposition and started for a thousand dollar purse against Lillie Stanley and one or two of either Palo Alto, Bay Rose, Victor or Jim L.; had Dawn won the race, and had any one of the drivers of the contesting horses been punished or even reprimanded by the presiding judge for not driving to win a heat, would you have inferred that such action was a reflection upon all the other drivers? upon your horse? and upon yourself?

Would you, under the circumstances, have demanded, if the judge be an "honest man," that he should produce "proof positive" for his opinion and his action?

In conclusion, allow me to inform you, my dear sir, that each judge is appointed on the presumption and for the purpose that he shall form, express and act upon his individual opinion of what occurs before him on the track, and that, although he be at liberty to seek other evidence, if he so desire, to strengthen or confirm his opinion, if he have not sufficient backbone to express his judgment on a point or conclusion in which he is satisfied his eyes have not deceived him, the judges' stand is no place for him

CLARK.

San Luis Obispo Fair.

The fair opened on Tuesday, the attendance being very good, and evidently racing is looking up here already. There are several large breeding ranches, notably Senator Hearst's, Cambria and San Simeon stud farms and the Murphy ranch. The first race, a six-furlong dash, had four starters; a false start occurred and Pirate, ridden by Caldwell, bolted, and going straight for the outside fence, fell over it, seriously injuring his rider and getting badly cut by the barbed wire, which should certainly never have been allowed in such close proximity to the track. The race was practically an exercise gallop for George Van Gorden's imp. Gertrude, who was in front all the way, winning hands down, and Den's entries were, of course, second and third. The winner was imported from Australia last spring, and though rather undersized, is almost a perfect specimen of a thoroughbred, outclassing the others in looks and conformation. The second race had only two starters. Van Gorden's entry was at once made favorite, but E. R. Den's two-year old Gambo won easily by two lengths. The saddle horse race was very closely contested, Little Casino winning by a short head, owing to Ramsey's good finish. The five hundred yards dash was very badly started, Wild Bill having a long way the best of the start, while Rondout was left at the post. The San Simeon pet, Wild Bill, won easily.

Palo Alto, 2:13 3-4.

Having to go to press at such an early hour on Friday morning, we can give but a meagre account of the great race which took place at Stockton on Thursday, but still we owe it to our readers to give them some of the particulars, deferring a full account until next week:

First Heat—Palo Alto, with Marvin in the sulky, Bay Rose, with Hickok behind him, and Direct, driven by McDowell, scored up for the word, and were sent away with little or no delay. Palo Alto, who had the pole, left his feet immediately after leaving the wire, and Direct, going very fast, took the pole from him, leading two lengths round the turn. Up the backstretch the little black still led, trotting strongly, while Palo Alto, having settled down, came fast, and passed Bay Rose, getting to Direct's wheel at the half in 1:09½, and gradually closing, was on equal terms at the head of the stretch, Palo Alto slowly but surely got his head in front, and though the game little black struggled hard, finishing the last half at a 2:14 gait, he was beaten out half a length, Bay Rose away back. Time, 2:16½.

Second Heat—After the usual interval, the trio came out for the second heat. Palo Alto was looking so fit, having cooled out beautifully, that hardly any pools could be sold at $100 to the field $15. The trio again got away with very little scoring. Palo Alto broke once more before the turn was reached, but catching well, trotted very fast after Direct, who passed the first quarter a length in front of him in 35½ seconds. Marvin drove Palo Alto up to Direct, and with the black doing his best, they trotted like a double team past the half in 1:08¾, Bay Rose five lengths back. Palo Alto trotted slowly but surely away from the honest son of Director, leading him a good length at the head of the stretch, and drawing further away. Direct was eased, Palo Alto winning handily by six lengths slowing up, Bay Rose just inside the distance. Time, 2:17¾.

Third Heat—Before the commencement of this heat, it was announced from the stand that Palo Alto would be sent for a record and that at the half mile pole a runner would be prepared to assist the gallant horse home. There was some little murmuring as to this mode of procedure, but as it was in this manner that Axtell procured his record, no objections could be made. The word was given on the second attempt at scoring, and it was a sight to see the perfect manner in which Palo Alto started off. No machine ever moved with more even balance than did this favorite son of Electioneer and Dame Winnie, and as the quarter was passed in 33 seconds, a stillness seemed to have fallen on the thousands present. There was a something in the atmosphere, that seemed to tell every beholder that a marvelous feat was being performed. At the half, Harry Agnew looked up from his watch and said "there goes the stallion record," and most assuredly it did look like it for no horse ever came more steadily than did Palo Alto, the distance having been covered in 1.05½. At this point the running horse came to the assistance of the trotter and carried him along the third quarter in 34 seconds, the time now showing 1:39½. The speed was terrific, could he keep it up was the question, but the stallion never flinched and came as true as a die, the clattering of the runner's feet only serving as an incentive to keep him at the high rate of speed at which he was going. Coming down the homestretch, he seemed to falter, but it was for a second only, and he came under the wire not having made skip or break, in 2:13¾, equalling the best time ever made by a trotting stallion in a race.

Adelaide's Career.

Adelaide, 2:19¾, that in her day was a great campaigner, and that gave her sire, Phil Sheridan, a reputation as a sire of trotters, is dead. The Breeders' Gazette says that she was retired from the turf in 1879, and since then has been bred to Nutwood and other trotting sires of note. Adelaide began her career as a trotter in 1874, her first appearance being at Goshen, N. Y., under the name of Kittie Watson. In addition to being but a pony in size, Adelaide was a trotter of marked peculiarities. In the matter of breeding, it is stated in the records that her dam was by a horse called Sam Houston, but as a matter of fact she was out of a mare that was sired by a stallion brought to Watertown, N. Y., by an English officer. Adelaide and her dam were owned by a farmer living near Watertown, and when the filly was a mere runt she was broken to harness and began life by drawing wood into Watertown alongside her dam. Irving Harris, a local driver, finally got hold of her and showed a mile in about 2:30. It was then that Dan DeNoyelles, who is contemporaneous with Dan Mace, and who is still hale and hearty, got hold of Adelaide, and he owned her till the day of her death. He saw what the little mare could do while she was still at Watertown, paid a long price for her, and when some one, seeking to be sarcastic and alluding to Adelaide's lack of size, said that he had probably bought her for a book mark, Dan only laughed and said that perhaps she would beat some of the big ones, which she certainly did.

Jack Phillips had her for a while, and then she passed into the stable of John Splan, who campaigned her when she was at her best and drove her to her fastest record. A curious thing about Adelaide was that she would not sweat a particle, and it is doubtful if there is another case on record of a race horse being so constituted as to go mile after mile at top speed and never turn a hair. Splan knew nothing of this peculiarity when he took Adelaide and on bringing her to the stable after he had worked her out for the first time he was alarmed to find that she did not sweat at all. He spoke to the mare's rubber about the matter and was greatly relieved to find that Adelaide had never been known to perspire more than just enough to cause a slight moistening of the hair under the harness. During the two years that she was in Splan's stable he treated her in various ways to induce perspiration, but nothing that he could do in the way of extra blankets, physic, etc., had the slightest effect on the little trotter. As a race mare Adelaide was celebrated for her victories at times when the best posted people on such matters thought she had not a chance to win.

The greatest of these surprises took place over the Cleveland track in 1878 when she was to start against Prospero, Midnight, and half a dozen others that were supposed to outclass her a great deal in the matter of speed. But Splan and DeNoyelles, who had looked the case over pretty carefully, came to the conclusion that while perhaps Adelaide was not as speedy as Midnight or Prospero, she was a good deal gamer, and on this quality they based their hopes of success. Prospero, a son of Messenger Duroc, won the first heat in 2:22, Midnight the second and third in 2:22 2:23¼, and then Adelaide took the fourth in 2:23¼ and the fifth in 2:24. By this time the other two heat-winners were ready to cry quits and as the rest of the large field went to the barn for not winning a heat in five, there were but three in the sixth heat. Adelaide won in 2:31, but even at that slow rate Prospero and Midnight were barely inside the distance stand when the little mare went under the wire. It was a race that turf followers even yet allude to as showing how badly some horses can stop when they have shot their bolt, and created a great sensation at the time.

Adelaide is the dam of Nina D. The chesnut mare Goldsmith gave record of 2:26½ in the fourth heat at Napa, winning the race. She was sent by her owner to be bred to Guy Wilkes, and at the same time, he said he should like her, to have a record. Goldsmith soon gave one, but it could easily be lowered if required. Dan De Noyelles should have a clipper from Nina and Guy.

Name Claimed, etc.

Hemet Valley Stock Rancho. Property of H. M. Johnston:

I want to claim the name of Conifer for bay colt, with star, left hind coronet white, and a little white on right hind heel; foaled at Woodburn, Ky., May 26, 1889. Sired by Lord Russel (full brother to Maud S), dam Carlota by Nutwood; second dam Kitty Clyde by Chieftain. Mare bred to King Wilkes. I will ship a car load of colts and fillies to Woodard's sale, at Lexington, Ky., about the 26th of this month; among them there is an untried two-year-old Stamboul (2:14¾) colt, a yearling Bonnie McGregor (2:13½) colt, and a two-year-old filly, full sister to Arrow, pacer (2:13¼), all of them untried, and most of them unbroken to harness. The stallion at the head of the stud here, this year, will be Larco by A. W. Richmond, dam Maud Smith by Overland, by Bald Chief; second dam Nell Crocket (2:24) by Davy Crocket, and he's a good one.

Shipment of Cattle to Japan.

A few weeks ago, we noticed that Japan was gradually becoming more and more of a market for our pure bred cattle. At that time we mentioned that Mr. Smith had sent a shipment of Durhams (pure bred short-horns). We are now pleased to learn that the same gentleman (Andrew Smith Redwood) has consigned to an agricultural college in Japan, four of his celebrated white faced Berkshire pigs and two pedigree shorthorns, while another breeding farm there has sent him an order for six Berkshire pigs, a short-horn bull, and two cows. Mr. Smith is justly proud of the appreciation of our Japanese neighbors for high class stock, and it is evidently an indication that we shall soon have a market for well bred stock at a price that will repay us for our time and labor.

The Electioneers.

There has been a great deal of newspaper talk anent the Electioneers, some of them advocating the great prepotency of the blood, while others take the negative of the question. The Breeders' Gazette has always been more or less antagonistic to the Palo Alto stallion, but must surely be experiencing a change of heart, as the following is an excerpt from an article in the current number:—

The Electioneer representative that has created a genuine sensation, however, is Norval, whose 2:17½ in his second race places him well to the front in the list of his sire's get that have beaten 2:30. When Palo Alto sold Norval it was not thought one of his legs would stand training, and this was freely discussed at the time. As a three year old he had shown speed, and the 2:17½ record of the present season results from the fact that the "game" leg was not as weak as had been thought. An English mare had been booked to Bell Boy, and the man who sends a mare across the Atlantic to breed her to a trotting stallion is as game as they make them. Bell Boy is one of the bright stars of the Electioneer constellation, and in spite of the injudicious booming he received as a three year old previous to his sale at auction, is refined gold in the matter of breeding and performances. It is understood that if the course of sharpening up now being undergone by him results in the development of enough speed he will be sent to beat the four year old record of his half sister, Manzanita, her mark of 2:16 standing at the head of that age: Norval and Bell Bay in Kentucky doing public service, with Fallis at Woodburn, and Egotist not far away, will do much to give the Electioneer blood a chance on the good mares of the Blue Grass country: Egotist, who is four years old, and a full brother to Sphinx, 2:20, now doing stud duty in Michigan, as is also Anteeo, 2:16¼, another son of Electioneer, is credited with a mark of 2:29, made recently at Lexington.

Whites destroyed the gardens. They could not help but do well in California, as they could find plenty of food, winter and summer. If this committee should decide to select the Bob White or the prairie chicken, and should want further information I might be able to furnish them with the addresses of parties in Kansas that might perhaps help them in this good work of planting a true game bird in the Golden State. I have been in hopes to see a few remarks from some of the California field shots on the subject of game birds. Where are J. K. Orr, Edward Fay, Crittenden Robinson, E. L. Mayberry, Frank Whittier, A. L. Bancroft, Martinez Chick, Gus Knight, C. J. Haas, Mr. Post, of Sacramento, and many other honest field sports, some of whom I have had the pleasure of shooting in the field with in past gone days. Long live the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and its Field Editor.

CORVALLIS, OR., Sept. 22, '89. C. A. LOUD.

[Mr. Loud's desire to know the opinions of the noted sportsmen mentioned, finds an answering wish in the minds of very many, both those directly interested in game shooting and those whose interest is merely that of the wide awake citizen who feels it his duty to forward all meritorious enterprises. We shall be very pleased to receive communications from the gentlemen mentioned, and also from scores of others whose expertness in the field is no less marked and whose standing as sportsmen is in no degree less honorable. The Fish Commission is in earnest in its desire to meet the wishes of sportsmen because it recognizes in them the men best fitted by taste, experience and knowledge to suggest suitable game birds for introduction to the State. The necessary funds are ready for immediate use; all that remains is for those whose chief interest it is to express their views. We think most favorably of Mr. Loud's suggested birds, Bob Whites and Prairie Chickens. Both afford splendid sport, are hardy, easily acclimated, first-rate food, multiply rapidly and can be cheaply obtained. Bob Whites are already increasing fast in numbers near Gilroy. Let us hear from others.—FIELD ED]

At last we have secured a little story about that most modest of sportsmen, Mr. C. M. Osborn of the California Wing Shooting Club. He had been missed from his accustomed walks in the city for some weeks, but no one could tell his whereabouts until the news came from Tahoe that a wonderfully fine shot named Osborn, from San Francisco, was making the deer, grouse and mountain quail suffer in that hunter's Elysium about Tahoe City. When particulars arrived it was known that the successful one was our quaint, positive friend Osborn. He left the city in early September in company with the better three-quarters of him, Mrs. Osborn, and the pair journeyed by easy stages via Truckee At Truckee Osborn saw an old black dog lying in the sun, and recognizing him addressed him by name. Soon a sybaritic looking old fellow came pegging up and growled, "Know that dog?" Osborn, having his superb pointer Professor with him, could not back out, so he boldly confronted the Blue Beard and said, "Yes." The gruff one immediately launched into marvellous stories of quail hunting in North Carolina, chicken shooting in Nebraska, field trial work in Indiana, and similar yarns, all of which were as manna to the soul of Mr. Osborn.

Finally the oracle ceased, and the meek listener, faint with intent listening, whispered, "You're Taft." "Umph! what's that?" said the terrible. "You're that incomparable light of California dog days! That effulgent luminary of White Rock, the only Fred Taft!" "Yes; have something," and the men stood there face to face, centering the Truckee world in the morning light, a picture for anybody who happened to be around there. Osborn, suaviter in modo: Taft, fortiter in re. Then Osborn jogged along to Lewis Page's great dairy ranch, six miles from Tahoe City, where two long weeks of solid shooting and fishing brought brown to his cheeks, sparkle to his eyes, and the enviable effervescence of spirits only vouchsafed to the healthy. Five big mountain deer tumbled to the rifle of the city man. Dozens of mountain quails, a score of fat blue grouse, and other game in plenty. Poor Professor found his work hard in the sharp sage brush, but the plucky old fellow faced the pricks bravely, and retrieved his birds nicely.

Two weeks of sunlight, pure air, venison, trout, sweet cream and joy, sent Osborn home refurbished for a year of intense devotion to his great business, but also confirmed in the belief that rocks and clods are not insensate, nor streams without entity, nor sighing firs soulless.

In the standard challenge medal match at Stockton on Saturday last the rules of the American Shooting Association governed, and a question arose which is not clearly covered by the rules. Major S. I. Kellogg was shooting a new hammerless shotgun, which he had not owned long enough to enable him to know all the peculiarities of the gun. On going to the score to shoot, Major Kellogg opened the gun far enough to enable him to insert a cartridge, closed the weapon, properly adjusted the safety, and called, "Pull!" When he pulled the trigger the gun failed to discharge and examination showed that the gun was not cocked. The referee ruled the bird a "lost bird." Rule 20 of the American Shooting Association Rules for inanimate target shooting is as follows:

RULE 20—ALLOWING ANOTHER BIRD.

The shooter shall be allowed another bird for either of the following reasons:

A—For any defect in the gun or the load, causing a miss-fire.

B—For unintentional neglect to load his gun.

C—For unintentional neglect to cock a hammer gun.

D—For unintentional neglect to properly adjust the safety slide on a hammerless gun.

PROVIDED, that in single bird shooting, if the shooting is at traps set in the segment of a circle, the bird shall be thrown from an unknown trap to be decided by the indicator; if from the traps set in a straight line, the bird shall be thrown from the same trap, at a different angle and unknown to the shooter.

(NOTE. The object of this rule is that a shooter shall not incur a chance for defeat by the unfortunate circumstance of losing his shot.)

Soon after, in shooting double Blue Rocks, Major Kellogg again failed to cock his gun when he inserted cartridges, and the referee ruled the pair "lost." In support of the referee's position, it may be said that the rules are mandatory, and are to be strictly construed. There is no provision allowing another bird for failure to cock a hammerless gun. Subdivision C says another bird shall be "For failure to cock a hammer gun." It was probably the intention of the framers of the rule to include all guns, but it does not so appear. They may have held to the opinion that all hammerless guns are intended to be cocked when opened sufficiently to permit the insertion of cartridges, but there appears to be no rule governing the gun makers in that particular, and, in fact, experiment since the referee's decision under mention shows that many hammerless guns can be, if gently manipulated, opened far enough to insert shells without cocking them.

Major Kellogg, like all experts, handles his gun gently, and in opening it, saves the joint and lugs as much as possible by not throwing down the barrels forcibly, and if he had had anyone of a half dozen hammerless guns now in mind, he would likely have suffered in the same way.

Major Kellogg claimed that the failure to cock was a defect in the gun, and was covered by subdivision "A" of the rule, but close reading will show that the defect must cause a "miss-fire," the implication being that the loaded shell is in place, and is stricken by the plunger, but fails to explode because springs are too weak, the plunger too short, or other like reason.

We shall be glad to receive the opinion of Dr. E S. Knowles, Mr. J. K. Orr, Mr. Ed Fay, and other leaders at the trap, on the point, and we commend the issue to the consideration of the Executive Committee of the American Shooting Association.

An old lady once bought a parrot, but it swore so her ears were constantly outraged. Speakidg one day of the matter to her pastor, he replied: "Madam, I, too, have a parrot, but he is very correct in his expressions; it might be that hanging them near one another would produce good results." The two birds were accordingly hung side by side in the old lady's kitchen, when after some hours she heard the following remarks:

Old lady's parrot—"This old woman in our house is the damdest (original much stronger) liar that ever walked."

A really serviceable and convenient game marker has long been a desideratum with those to whom it is part of the enjoyment of shooting to keep accurate tally of the game as it is killed, or of trout as they are basketed. At last, however, Mr. Charles H. Maleham, a gun maker of Sheffield, Eng., has invented a marker that fills the bill perfectly. It is in the shape of a small watch-like instrument with a dial numbered to 60. It is operated by pressing a nob which would be the stem if it was a watch, each pressure moving an indicator over one space on the dial. The marker is to be worn like a watch and is really a beautiful and useful device, while its cost, seven shillings, is a bagatelle. We hope some of the enterprising dealers of the city will procure the markers.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

SUMMARY.

The event of the week will be the exhibition of the Olympic Athletic Club, which takes place at the Grand Opera House this evening. The regular monthly exhibition of the California Athletic Association, on Tuesday evening turned out to be "stale, flat and unprofitable." The programmes for the coming amateur games have not, as yet, been issued.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The mile run will be the event of the day at the Olympic games. No less than three local runners claim to be able to lower the record.

O'Kane thinks McGee will not have such a soft thing in the quarter. Should both these amateurs toe the scratch in good condition, the judges will need to keep their eyes open at the finish. Cassidy will give all his attention to the "two-twenty,' run, and if not too heavily handicapped, should make a good record.

Jarvis will, no doubt, lower all the walking records, from half a mile up. The handicapped should make allowance for the fact that the ex-English champion has been out of practice for nearly four years, and it would hardly be fair to handicap him on his old form.

The California Athletic Association will probably allow their amateur members to take part in the games. Their own grounds will not be ready for a long time to come, and surely they will not expect their amateurs to lie on the shelf all the time. Such good men as Sexsmith, Holland, Carpenter and Whelan cannot afford to lay back when the prospect in store for them is so bright. The C. A. C. is now without a good walker or distance runner, and if it still continues to order its amateurs not to compete in games held under the auspices of the P. C. A. A. the probabilities are that all its amateur out-door men will desert in a body, then it will be compelled to rely on its "boxers" and "wrestlers." We hope this will never come to pass, the club is composed of good material, and if the directors would only take a little more interest in the annex the California Amateur Athletic Club would become just as famous as the California Club itself.

There is a very slight possibility that the general championship meeting of the United States will be held next year on the new grounds of the Olympic Club, in this city. We hope the American Athletic Union will decide upon San Francisco as the place for the holding of their meeting of 1890. The fact of the American Championship meeting being held out here would keep to boom athletics on the Pacific Coast.

The athletic committee of the O A. C. are evidently determined to find out whether the new grounds will be ready or not for Thanksgiving Day before they issue their programme of games.

Duncan C. Ross intends to sail for Australia next October.

G. M. L. Sachs, has been elected president of the Allerton Athletic Club, of New York.

The Amateur Athletic Association of Canada will hold its annual championship meeting at Toronto, this afternoon.

AT THE OARS.

The bay was very favorable for rowing on Sunday last, and several crews were out for a spin.

An amateur crew from the Ariel Club rowed to Point Tiburon and back, making the round of Angel Island.

Two amateurs will row a match race on Lake Merritt, Oakland, to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, for a stake of $50 a side. The agreement is that one must row three rounds of the Lake, while the other rows two. P. C. Johnson of Oakland has been chosen referee. Both the oarsmen reside in San Francisco.

The last Sunday in October has been selected as the date for the four-oared barge championship race. The stake will be $400, each club to advance $100 additional with a $25 forfeit, as a guarantee of good faith, the second crew to save entrance money.

An Australian amateur sculler is at present in the city, and he is anxious to arrange a race with some of the local crack amateurs.

Charley Long is willing to compete with Henchman and Paine in a three handed single scull race, if it could be arranged to take place in San Francisco waters. The two latter oarsmen, however, do not seem inclined to agree to this.

THE WHEELMEN.

The wheelmen are anxious to find out if the O. A. C. will add any bicycle events to their programme for November, 28th.

A lady's tricycle race would attract much attention, and we would suggest that the O. A. C. include one in their games list.

L G. Rowell, of the Bay City Wheelmen, was the only rider who reached Livermore with Tom Roe last Saturday night. Where was H. A. Matthews?

Several of the local riders took a trip into the country on Sunday. They all report the roads in a very dusty state.

Big Tom Roe, the gritty Chicago wheelman, started on his long journey across the plains last Saturday at noon. He intends reaching Chicago inside of fifty days. Several of the local riders travelled far into the country with Roe, and towards the close of day bid him adieu, wished him success in his undertaking, and inwardly congratulated themselves that San Francisco was much nearer than Chicago.

The boys are waiting with "bated" breath for the initial appearance of Knapp, Morgan, and their team of lady riders in this city.

George W. Burton and H. R. Stokes, of the Melbourne (Australia) Bicycle Club, who started upon a tour last November, have spent about four months of that time upon their wheels. They have ridden over 7,000 miles, and have averaged 85 miles a day while riding. They visited Java, India, Egypt, Palestine, Sicily, and then started across Europe.

The L. A. W. has issued for free distribution a neat little book devoted to "Improvement of Highways." Fifteen thousand of these books will be sent to highway committees, road surveyors, legislatures, and to those interested in the improvement of the roads of this country. It goes out as a missionary to plead the cause of better roadways, and to point the way to reform.

IN THE SURF.

The warm weather is proving a boon to the proprietors of surf bathing establishments. For several days past the different bathing places have been crowded.

John Fay is teaching a class of five ladies at the Shelter Cove Baths, and on Tuesday all six swam to the outside raft, which is quite a respectable distance for novices.

Jack Volmer has several pupils under his charge at the Terrace Baths, and is proving himself to be one of the best instructors on the coast.

Miss Kelly is one of the best and most graceful divers at the Shelter Cove Baths.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The San Francisco Turn Verein will give an athletic exhibition at Woodwards Gardens, on Sunday, October 6.

The regular monthly "knock out" exhibition, of the California Athletic Association was held at the exhibition hall on New Montgomery Street, on Tuesday evening last. About 1800 members and their friends, assembled round the arena, to see the lilliputian "fake" gladiators, Warren and Murphy do battle for a "draw". Both men were so successful in their efforts, that they may both feel assured that the club will not call upon them again to entertain its members. Such men should be driven out of the city.

The members of the Pacific Athletic Club are well pleased at their new headquarters. Several improvements are to be made and the members will hereafter be able to witness the monthly exhibitions in comfort.

Should the Directors of the C. A. C. and the Manager of Harbor View Park fail to come to terms, the Golden Gate Athletic Club may slip in and secure the grounds for its out-door members.

The P. C. A. A. A. was to have met on the 20th inst., but as there was not a quorum present the meeting was postponed, subject to the call of the Chair. This was not the first time that a meeting of this association had to be postponed for the same reason, and if the delegates representing the different clubs are too lazy to attend, their places should be given to men who take an interest in athletics and who would be willing to work in the interest of the P. C. A. A. A.

The Olympic Club exhibition which takes place this evening at the Grand Opera House, will certainly be well attended. All true lovers of out-door sports should lend their aid in making the affair a financial success. The programme will be made up of the following events: Dueling scene, horizontal bar, sparring, wrestling, pedestal club swinging, aerial act, pyramids and wands, dissolving views, representing different positions in the art of self defense and wrestling, and other features of athletic excellence by the members of the Olympic Club and its juvenile class. In addition, assisted by the courtesy of the Golden Gate Athletic Club and the California Athletic Club, Jack Dempsey, middle weight champion of the world; Jimmie Carroll, light weight champion of the world, Mike Lucie, the famed middle weight; George La Blanche, the famous "Marine"; Professor Corbett, Instructor of the O. C., and other noted boxers will appear in a grand exhibition of scientific sparring.

The amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the California Amateur Athletic Association, was brought to a close on Friday evening, the 20th inst. The tournament was hardly as successful as might be expected, but still some of the boxers did well from an amateur standpoint. The bouts between the light weights were far more interesting than those between the middle and heavy weights. Some of the men who entered the middle and heavy weight class entered merely to "fill up" the programme, and that's about all they did. Most of the leading amateurs of this city did not enter, otherwise some of them who won prizes might have gone without them. The awards were made as follows: Bantam—1st—W. Boyan, C. A. C.; 2d—William Spellmen. Light Weights—1st—John Attridge, American A. C.; 2d—J. C. Farley; 3d—M Hines. Welter Weights—1st—S. Harrington, C. A. C.; 2d—J. P. Casey; 3d—S. Nolan. Middle Weights—1st—George Murphy; 2d—V. P. White. Feather Weights—1st—Gus. Miller; 2d—A. M. King; 3d—R. D. Murphy. The first prize in each class is valued at $100; second, $50, and the third $25. Winners can select either medals or jewelry.

The first annual championship meeting of the Western Association of Amateur Athletes took place Sunday, Sept. 15th, at the St. Louis Fair grounds in the presence of 3,000 people. It rained hard in the morning and drizzled at intervals during the entire day. The track had been fast before the rain, and, notwithstanding the soaking, good time was made in the sprints.

The stand of colors offered by Mr. G. M. L. Sachs of New York to the club making the most points went to the Unions of Chicago, the final score standing: Unions, 36; Missouris, 35, Wanderers, Chicago, 32.

The Western records for the 3-mile walk, pole vault, and ihrowing the 56-pound weight were broken. Handsome gold medals were given to the winners. The annual meeting was held at the Lindell Hotel, and S. C. Cabanne of the Olympic Club was elected President of the Association.

The second annual championship games of the Amateur Athletic Union were held Saturday, Sept. 14th, on the grounds of the New York Athletic Club, at Travers Island in the presence of at least 3,000 spectators, including several hundred ladies.

The weather was most disagreeable, and many of the good arrangements which the local Games Committee had made for both spectators and competitors were useless. There was a feeling of regret that the "Union" was not more favored by the weather, but the best of the circumstances was made, and on the whole, the championships were awarded satisfactorily. There were varied opinions concerning the choice of grounds for holding the games Travers Island is very nice when one arrives there, but it is too far away to be popular with the present means of transportation.

The track is five laps to the mile, and it is situated so that the surrounding banks form a natural amphitheatre.

Boxing, wrestling, fencing, tumbling, and other athletic sports will be the events of the evening. The affair will undoubtably be a grand success, as the leading lights of amateur circles have promised to participate. The Pacific Athletic Club extends a hearty welcome to all amateur athletes and lovers of athletic sports, to patronize their benefit, and to assist the club which has, and always will, stand by the genuine amateur colors and principles of athletics. The club also hopes that the gentlemen of the press will assist them as they have done hitherto, and thanks them heartily for their prior kindness. C. GIERY, President."

BILLIARDS.

The Coin is all up for the Main stake in the McCleery—Saylor Billiard Match, $1,000, with Messrs. Joyce and Orndorff at the "Cafe Royal". The San Jose Contingent (Saylors backers) say they are ready and willing to increase the Main stake to $2,000 a side. Metropolitan Temple is the place, and Monday Evening next, 30th, the time set.

The admission has been placed at 50 cts., no extra charge. The entire balcony has been reserved for Ladies and their escorts

The Temple is admirably situated for a billiard contest as every seat commands a good view of the table.

The game is "straight" or full billiards. McCleery plays 1,200 points while Saylor plays 900.

The Schaffer—McKenna Match has been postponed.

Bets have been made, that a run of 900, will be beaten on Monday Evening as Saylor has run 710, in a public match, four years ago. The bet looks like a good one.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Whelps.

Mr. M. P. McKoon, El Cajon, Cal. cocker spaniel bitch Vixen No. 10 429 A K. C. S. B., whelped four puppies on September 20th, 1889, sired by his cocker spaniel dog Col. Stubbs, No. 4,676 A. K. S. B.

Pacific Kennel Club.

The following circular has been sent out by the P. K. C., and is commended to the candid consideration of members:

SAN FRANCISCO, September 14, '89.

To members of the Pacific Kennel Club:

A thorough inspection of the books of the club by the Secretary and Messrs W. S. Kittle and C. A. Haight, a special committee appointed for that purpose, shows the present financial condition of the organization to be as follows:

LIABILITIES.

Bill and premiums unpaid.....	$1196.30

ASSETS.

Cash on hand.....	$243.20
Dues from advertising in catalogue and premium list..	240.28
Total	$ 483.48
Net amount due and unprovided for.....	$ 712.82

At a meeting of the Executive Committe, held on September 12th, at 21 Kearny Street, San Francisco, it was ordered that a statement of the condition of the club be sent to every member, together with an appeal for immediate and substantial pecuniary aid, to the end that the outstanding obligations may be met, the honor and good name of the club held harmless, and the general dog interests of the coast properly subserved.

The Pacific Kennel Club has maintained itself through some three years in the highest position attainable by such an institution. Its dog shows have been unexceptionable in every respect; its judges the best in the world; its prizes and other legitimate expenditures always promptly met, even though members were compelled to draw largely upon private resources to do so. The Bench Show given by the Club in May last, was in no respect less creditable to the club than the preceding show. It was conducted throughout in in such a manner as to elicit the highest enconiums from all who attended it, and its excellence was, and of right should be, a source of pride to every member. The attendance was not so great as the Club had a right to expect, and the receipts failed to equal the expenses by many hundreds of dollars, a deficiency which it is equally obligatory upon all members to make up, and the Executive Committee now appeals to members, with confidence that the same enthusiasm which prompted them to organize the Pacific Kennel Club and which has lead them to maintain the spotless honor of the society hitherto, will now arouse them to respond to this appeal promptly and freely.

The Executive Committee ordered that an assessment of twenty dollars be levied upon all members, payable to the secretary immediately. The amount is not large, but will suffice to place the club on a sound, safe footing, and will wipe out all bills and other liabilities. No argument is necessary to establish the right in the premises—that will be admitted. It is to the spirit of members that the committee appeals, and with implicit faith that all to whom this circular may go will at once respond. RAMON E. WILSON, Pres.

JAS. E. WATSON, Sec'y and Treas.

Mr. Henry Wormington from far away Worcestershire in England reminds us that he is still there by sending a copy of an English paper with "H. W" scrawled on one corner. We knew he was somewhere else than here, because his cheery voice and delightfully funny stories no longer help to shorten hours. From Hawaii to Worcestershire is from Zanzibar to Greenland, but it is a safe wager that our veteran courser gets none the worst of it.

ROD.

Petronella In Prussia.

Long time, too long, since that brilliant writer and most natural of poets, Petronella, has vouchsafed a line to this office, but the other day the spell was broken and the subjoined came from Dresden, Prussia, wherever that is. The admirers of our correspondent in legion will enjoy the characteristic bits of analysis and the happy vein of the note, which came in response to a request for an article. Petronella says:—

Ay de mi! Mr. Prose, what a very formidable document! Chubb to the rescue, etc. An article, undying spirit—everything all at once. But tell me how I shall gather inspiration here, where everything runs to music and beer? Perhaps it would be well to write on the transcendentalism of the piscatorial art. On second thought that would not do, for I should be sure to introduce Ramon in his corduroys and you in your half dissected coat. Perhaps I could save myself and balance things by drawing a picture of the courtly J. M. A. in his silk handkerchief and India headgear. But no: that would be sacrilege. The request seems to be quite a free and undefined one, but how am I to tell about length? And dare it be a sketch, or must it be an extremely dignified article, wherein I lay down my opinions as if they were not to be controverted by any mortal living?

One day, when I was rather a new arrival here, I went with a party to the Schiller Garten on the banks of the Elbe. We sat down for a time and talked over the days when Schiller wrote under a great tree which grew near, or lived at the village of Loschwitz, just opposite—a dear little village along the side of a woody ridge, to which river steamers constantly plied. Tired of sitting, we walked along a road by the river-edge and came upon a party of men and women fishing. Opposite, some boys were having a jolly time bathing in the Elbe The picture was not quite ideal, and I fear would not furnish the right basis for Mr. Chubb's article. Indeed, I think my mind must be let to run back to California, though the ordeal will be "summat," as Mrs. Poyser would say.

I do not think I am sorry for all the friends who fancy they miss me, are you? I wish you could see "that baby." She grows by the minute and does not look enough like me to impress any one as being my daughter. And as people mistake me always for a miss (instead of taking me for a madam) and her for my sister, the situation is sometimes amusing. An English lady in the house said to me the other day, "It seems really ridiculous, Mrs. Petronella, to call that child yours.' On what ground I could not see. Next Tuesday "the child" begins her studies again, but in the meantime she has declared her intention of writing to you. She is to study German and French in school and English with me. I also superintend her music, so my leisure moments are not very many. How many, many experiences I have gone through since the first of last June when I left San Francisco! Every one has been pleasing, though and the tragedy of traveling has kept itself afar. The life in Germany is many-sided and interesting. And I must confess to a decided liking for beer gardens and military bands. The most truly enjoyable experience I have had, though, was a visit to Bayreuth and Nurnberg At Bayreuth I heard Parsifal, and Tristran and Isolda. Ramon has, by this time, received a full description of the first, and this afternoon when I mail this I shall send a sketch of the second. There is nothing in America like it, but I hope there may be before many years. Great as our country is, she lacks fine art. Perhaps she is engaged in producing fine human beings instead, and how she does it with her scant artistic materials I cannot see. But I have made comparisons enough to be quite certain on the subject of human beings.

Please tell Ramon not to work too hard, and picture me as working on the article. It may not be a success, but I shall try at any rate. I hope you may some day explore the Oregon country in another way than at the tail of a mule; even your worst enemy (which I am), etc. Do you not wish you knew what I meant by my etcs? But then, you see, you would be as wise as I am and that would never do Excuse this hurried little scrawl, and believe me sincerely yours,

PETRONELLA.

DRESDEN, PRUSSIA, Monday, Aug. 26th, 1889

The tides were rather unfavorable for fishing on Sunday and during the week, and very few large catches were made.

A few good messes of smelt were caught at the new wharf, Sausalito on Sunday.

Fishing along the wharves both in the city and across the bay, has been very poor of late, and the anglers are beginning to seek new grounds.

One of the tug boats made a trip to the Farallone Islands, last Saturday night, but the party on board were much disgusted at the scarcity of fish. The chances are that the grounds are fished out. In the deep water off Kershaw's Point some very large rock cod have been hooked lately, and the anglers anticipate that a good deep sea fishing ground will yet be discovered in that neighborhood. The Farallone Island will probably be abandoned after this season as the old time fishermen say that these grounds are no longer any good.

Black bass abound in Monterey Bay. Considerable numbers have been recently caught by parties trolling near the whaling station. The tackle used is a heavy line a large galvanized hook, and the bait the ordinary squid.

The tides will be more favorable for the next week and there should be an improvement in the bay fishing.

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, MICH., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used OSSIDINE for the past two years, and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone, and Spavins; there is nothing equals it: and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used. Very respectfully yours,

S. A. BROWNE & CO., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish.

Acknowledged by leading horsemen of the world to be the ONLY preparation that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

We have authority also to refer to
Mr. JEROME I. CASE, Mr. FRED. GEBHARD, Mr. JOHN PORTER (Trainer to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales),
And hundreds of others from whom we have very flattering testimonials.

THURSDAY.

There was a splendid attendance upon the third day, and a good programme was offered the crowd, the day beginning with the

Trotting 2:20 Class.

Atto Rex went lame in his morning's work and was scratched, leaving Orrin Hickok's b g Alfred S, Billy Donathan's br g Franklin, and G. A. Doherty's c h Victor as starters, pools selling with Alfred S. at about even money against the field.

First Heat—Alfred S. was on the outside and had the worst of the send-off. Franklin went away in front, Victor second, Alfred S. third. Alfred went around them on the turn, and just past the quarter showed in front. Half way down the backstretch it was Alfred S. first, Franklin a length second, Victor two lengths third. The positions were never changed to any extent. On the straight Franklin came up close to Alfred S., and forced him out in 2:19½, Victor a poor third.

Second Heat—Pools now sold Alfred S. $50, field $12. It was a simple pick-up for Alfred S. He took the lead at the turn, Franklin close up and Victor third. Victor broke once on the turn and was two lengths from Franklin at the qharter. On the backstretch Johnny Goldsmith, who was driving him tried to get him to the front, but he again broke. Alfred S. went on around the second turn with Franklin at his wheel. They came home this way, Alfred S. finishing easy a length from Franklin, Victor away back. Time, 2:21¾

Third Heat—No more pools were sold. Alfred S. went off around the turn in front, Franklin second. At the quarter the order was Alfred S., Franklin and Victor a length apart. The positions were unchanged on the backstretch, except that Victor acted badly and lost two lengths. Around the second turn Alfred S. led Franklin by a length, Victor closing his gap. In the straight Victor passed Franklin and made play for the lead, but he broke in the effort and Alfred S. trotted on home at a lively clip two lengths in front of Victor. Franklin broke several lengths. Time, 2:18¾.

Free-for-all Stallion Trot.

The above event for a purse of $1,000 brought to the post, Palo Alto's b h Palo Alto, Pleasanton Stock Farm's blk h Direct and Orrin Hickok's b h Bay Rose. Palo Alto was the same hot favorite that he has been in all his races, selling against his field at $160 to $20.

First Heat—At the first attempt they got the word but Palo Alto was not going steadily and broke just as the bell tapped. Direct went to the front and lead around the turn, with Bay Rose second. Palo Alto got down and immediately began to close the gap but he broke again just before they reached the quarter and Direct passed the post two lengths in front of him. Once on his feet again, Palo Alto began to crawl up and at the half was at Direct's wheel. He stayed there until they came well into the straight, when he got to the little black's head and then got a length in front. Direct was given a tap with the whip and when Palo Alto crossed the wire in 2:16½, the little black was at his wheel.

Second Heat—A few pools were sold, Palo Alto bringing $50 to $5 for the field. When the bell sounded, Palo Alto was in front but going into the turn he broke and Direct went in three lengths in advance. Palo Alto settled quickly and closed up the gap rapidly, catching Direct half way down the backstretch. The two went together five lengths ahead of Bay Rose to the middle of the turn when Palo Alto began to draw away. The half was trotted in 1:07¼ and the quarters in 1:39. Palo Alto was coming fast and would have done the mile in close to 2:14, but Marvin took him back and jogged him in 2:17¾. Direct four lengths away, Bay Rose just inside the distance post.

Third Heat—The horse was in good condition, with a fast track before him, and it was determined to send him for a record in the third heat, and when they came out to score it was announced that a runner would meet him at the half and bring him home. They went off, with Palo Alto going strong. He immediately opened a wide gap, and passed the quarter in 0:33; he reached the half, going steadily, in 1:05¾. There the runner joined him, and he came past the half in 1:39. Down home he did not alter his speed until past the distance post, where he tired, and Marvin shook him up and sent him under the wire in 2:13¾, the fastest mile ever trotted by a stallion on the coast.

No pools were sold on the races. J. R. went out and took a long lead going around the turn, Chloe in second place. On the backstretch the crowd was strung out all over the track. J. R. held his gait, and distanced the crowd of them in 2:24.

B. C. Holly's b g Frank, driven by Holly, Bradbury's ch g Little Hope, driven by Quinton, A. J. Agnew's b g Mink, driven by Hillman, and C. Haven's br g Racquet, driven by Dustin, started in the pacing race, pools selling, Frank $40, Racquet $18, field $20. Little Hope got off in the lead in the first heat, followed by Mink, and was never headed, winning in 2:22¾, Mink second, Frank third.

Pools changed, and the field sold favorite at $50, Frank $35, Racquet $10. Little Hope broke on the turn. Mink lead, with Frank second, until they reached the drawgate, when Mink broke, and Frank took the heat in 2:27½, Mink second, Little Hope third. Racquet gave down in the backstretch, and was taken to the stable.

In the third heat Little Hope led, Mink a length second, until the seven-eighth post was reached. There both broke, and Frank took the heat in 2:23¾, Mink second.

In the fourth heat Little Hope went off in front, Frank second. The positions were never changed, Little Hope winning in 2:22½, Frank second. Little Hope also won the fifth heat, leading from start to finish. Frank lost a shoe at the distance post, and broke at a time when it looked as if he would win. He got second. Time, 2:24.

FRIDAY.

Stockton seemed determined to give the people the full worth of their money, and on Friday they had two days races in one programme, eight events in all and enough to thoroughly tire the large crowd. The opening event was the Yosemite Stakes, two-year-olds.

The distance was three-quarters of a mile, $350 added money, and the starters were Palo Alto's b c Racine, 117, Palo Alto's ch c Flambeau 117 and A. G. Todd's b f Jessie C. 110. No pools were sold. Jessie C. was first away from the flag and led Racine in second place for the first eighth. Then Racine went to the front, followed by Flambeau and the two left Jessie C. away behind. Coming down the straight Flambeau was running at Racine's shoulder and Morton on Racine began to shake the colt up. He responded and went under the wire half a length to the good of Flambeau, Jessie C. back near the distance. Time, 1:14¾.

Heliotrope Stakes—All Ages.

The above event, one mile, $250 added money, brought to the post, L. U. Shippee's b f Songstress 3,109, W. L. Pritchard's ch c Louis P. 3,102, Ben Hill's ch g Tycoon 4,112, and W. L. Appleby's b g White Cloud 7,112. Pools sold on the event, Songstress $25, Tycoon $10, field $15. At the first breakaway, the flag went down. Cook on Tycoon gave him a cut with the whip and the rawhide flew out of his hand. He got the horse in front, however, and when they swung around the turn and got to the quarter, Tycoon lead them by two lengths, Louis P. second, Songstress and White Cloud at his flanks. They ran in these positions to turn where the crowd closed up to Tycoon and they came into the straight closely bunched, Tycoon's head showing in front; coming home all four horses were being ridden hard. Songstress, the pet of the talent, quit at the drawgate. White Cloud was at Tycoon's shoulder on one side and Louis P. in the same position on the other, with the jocks riding for their lives. Tycoon was a losing horse at the finish, when Cook fairly lifted him over the wire, Louis P. at his neck, White Cloud at his flank and Songstress four lengths back. Time, 1:43.

The handicap for all ages, 1⅛ miles, had in it L. U. Shippee's br f Picnic, 3,105, Ben Hill's ch g Mikado, 5,122, and Kelly & Samuels' br m Welcome, 4,115. Pools opened, Mikado $40, Picnic $30, Welcome $20. There was considerable delay at the start, and when the flag fell Picnic had the best of it and came down under the wire for the first time a neck ahead of Welcome, Mikado waiting two lengths behind. On the first turn Picnic drew away slightly, and at the quarter was a full length in front of Welcome, Mikado two lengths from the mare. In these positions they ran to the ⅝ post and then both Welcome and Mikado began to close up, and at the half they were nose and nose. Going into the second turn Mikado showed in front, and half way around was a length to the good, Picnic second and Welcome two lengths back. In this order they entered the straight. Cook was already riding Welcome, and she was out of it. Narvaez began his work on Picnic at the ⅞ post, but she was done for. Mikado came on home, getting two or three slashes with the whip at the finish, winning by a length and a half, Picnic second Welcome away back in third place. Time, 1:55¾.

Special Pace.

A special pacing race, two in three, for Adonis, Gold Leaf and Yolo Maid, was one of the things arranged for the day, but Yolo Maid was not right, and only the two Sidneys started. Adonis was the hottest kind of a favorite in the pools, and piles of money was offered on him at odds of $120 to $20.

First Heat—Gold Leaf had a length the best of the start, and went around the turn that distance in the lead. Going out of the turn and into the backstretch Adonis broke, and before he settled Gold Leaf was five lengths from him. Hickok sent the colt along very fast on the backstretch, and at the half had crawled up a length, and around the second turn he continued to close the gap, entering the straight not more than a length to the bad. He steadily gained on the mare down the straight. Andy made a show at whipping the mare, but Adonis went by her and finished four lengths to the good in 2:16.

Second Heat—When they jogged down past the stand the judges instructed Andy to drive for the race and not monkey around as if he were driving for fun. A good start was given them, and they went off around the turn with Adonis in front and Gold Leaf at his wheel. She stayed there until they reached the half, and then Adonis began to draw away, and came into the straight two lengths to the good, coming home as he pleased, and winning the heat and race in 2:16½.

Gold Leaf quit on the straight, and Andy made a great flourish with his whip, but took the mare back when he saw that she was beaten.

Special Trot—2:30 Class.

The above was another made event, having as starters L. J. Rose's blk m Moro, J. L. McCord's b h Tom Benton, L. J. Rose Jr.'s b g Richmond, and San Mateo Stock Farm's b m Nina D. Nina D. was favorite at $50 to $7 for Moro, and $7 for the field.

First Heat—After a long delay at adjusting a shoe, they came to the score and were sent off to a good start. Nina D. went into the turn in the lead, but Tom Benton passed her, and at the quarter was a length in front, Nina D. on her toes. Richmond made a bad break on the turn, and got to the quarter four lengths to the bad, Moro a length behind him. Half way down the backstretch Tom Benton broke, and Nina passed him at the half; the positions were Nina D. first by two lengths, Tom Benton second, a length ahead of Richmond, and Moro last. Same positions were held into the straight; there Nina took a long lead, and jogged under the wire an easy first. Richmond passed Tom Benton at the distance post, and got second from him by half a length, Moro fourth. Time, 2:27½.

Second Heat—Tom Benton went off in the lead as before, and stayed in front to the quarter, where Nina D. caught and passed him. On the backstretch Nina D led by two lengths, Tom Benton second, Moro third. Moro broke before they reached the half, and was out of it. At the half Nina D. was still two lengths in front, Benton second, Richmond close up to him. When they entered the straight, Nina D. already had the race won, and the sole fight was for second place. Tom Benton and Richmond were on even terms until they got down near the drawgate, when Richmond passed him, and made play for Nina, but the mare moved on easy, and finished first in 2:26¾. Richmond broke in his efforts to catch her, and galloped under the wire in second place, Tom Benton six lengths, third, Moro a poor fourth.

Third Heat—Nina D. was well up at the score, and went away in front. At the quarter she was four lengths ahead of the crowd, lead by Moro; she was never headed. Richmond made another of his hard finishes, crowding up closely to Nina. Moro made a bad break on the second turn, and Goldsmith took Nina D. back at the finish to allow Moro to get inside the flag, and when Richmond came up with a rush, he came near snatching the heat. Time, 2:27¼.

SATURDAY.

The closing day of the meeting did not have a very good programme, but there were some rich contests developed, particularly in the 2:23 class trot. The first event on the card was the free-for-all stallion race, in which Direct had a walk-over. Then came the

2:23 Class Pace,

W. S. Johnson's b g Edwin C., J. L. McCord's blk g Ned Winslow, and H. J. Agnew's b g Mink were the starters. Edwin C. did so well at Sacramento that against that class of horses it was considered a sure thing for him, and the betting men were eager for tickets on him at $40 against $17 for Ned Winslow and $5 for Mink.

First Heat.—Edwin C. was sick and came to the score coughing and wheezing. He did not seem well, and when the bell tapped Ned Winslow went away in front, and at the quarter was a length to the good of Edwin C., he a length from Mink. Going to the half they drew away five lengths from Mink, Edwin C. staying close up to Winslow. They swung into the turn in this order, and Edwin C. went off his feet. That was the last of him. He had to be brought to a standstill before he could be put to work again, and by that time Ned Winslow was in the straight, and pacing at his best speed, trying to shut both Edwin C. and Mink out. Hickok brought Edwin C. home on a run, but he couldn't get in. Mink just managed to get inside. Time 2:17¼.

Second Heat. Winslow tickets were in demand after the first heat, he bringing four to one against Mink. The start was a good one, Winslow taking the lead. Mink hung on to him, staying close up. On the upper turn Winslow made a short run. He came into the straight in front, but Mink began to crowd him and he began to run. Every time Mink came up close to him he went off his feet and finally finished in a gallop, with Mink at his wheel. The judges rightfully gave the heat to Mink. Time 2:22.

Third Heat—Mink had the call in the pool box now and brought two to one against the black horse. Mink took the heat. He led from the start, but on the backstretch made a break which gave Ned Winslow a lead of five lengths. Winslow led him into the straight, but when Mink came up to him he began to run again, and Mink passed him at the drawgate and took the lead by two lengths. Time, 2:24.

Fourth Heat—Marvin was up behind Mink when they came out for the next heat, and it looked like a sure thing for him. The two went around the turn and entered the backstretch together, but just past the quarter Mink made a bad break and Winslow went away for a long lead. Mink had closed but a little of it when they entered the straight. He came home at a good clip and reached Ned Winslow's wheel at the distance post, but he was tired, and although severely punished, could not get in front, and Ned Winslow took the heat in 2:25¼.

Fifth Heat—Mink $30, Winslow $17, were the quotations in the pool boxes. Winslow moving in front when the bell tapped, and going around the turn he took lead of two lengths. On the backsretch he broke once, but lost nothing. Mink also went off his feet, and gave Winslow still further a lead, and Winslow went on home and took the heat and race, Mink breaking in an attempt to collar Winslow in the straight. Time, 2:24¼.

2:23 Class Trot.

The next event of the programme was the above, and it was one of the most exciting and best contested races of the week. There were in it Palo Altos ch f Lorita, H. J. Agnew's b m Emma Temple, B. C. Holly's ch m Pink, G. E. Guerne's c h Alfred G., J. A. Goldsmith's s m Hazel Wilkes, and J. L. McCord's s m Mary Lou. Alfred G. was named to win by the talent, and in the opening pools he sold favorite, bringing $40, Hazel Wilkes second choice at $32, and the field going at $20.

First Heat. It was a scattering start, Alfred G. getting the best of it and going away in the lead, Pink following close up in second place, Hazel Wilkes third and Emma Temple fourth. The positions of the leaders were unchanged until they entered the straight, then Pink lost her feet and Hazel Wilkes passed to second place and in that order they finished, Alfred G. first by two lengths. Emma Temple got fourth place, Lorira fifth and Mary Lou sixth. Time 2:23¾.

Second Heat. Hazel Wilkes was strongly backed before the second and was made favorite, going at $40 to $35 for Alfred G. and $20 for the field. Alfred G. went off to the fore, attended by Lorita, Pink second and Hazel Wilkes third. They went this way to the half, when Alfred G. and Lorita, head and head, lost their feet. Alfred G. caught quickly but Lorita was not so fortunate. Alfred went away from her and when he passed the three-quarter post Hazel Wilkes, Pink and Lorita were on even terms two lengths behind him. Hazel Wilkes was out for the heat and Goldsmith began to drive her for it. He forced Alfred G. off his feet and passed him at the drawgate, finishing a length in front of him, Pink three lengths back third, Lorita fourth, Emma Temple fifth, Mary Lou sixth. Time 2:20.

Third Heat—Pools sold before the next heat, Hazel Wilkes $50, Alfred G. $10, field $10. This time Lorita made a showing for herself. Alfred G. got off around the turn in front, but when he passed the quarter Lorita was at his head, and half way down the straight she showed in front, Alfred G. and Emma Temple in second place, Hazel Wilkes close up to them.

On the second turn the order was not changed, but in the straight there was a strong fight for the heat, Hazel Wilkes and Alfred G. coming up. Hazel Wilkes was at Lorita's wheel at the distance post, and by the good work of her driver, was landed winner by half a length, Alfred G. third, Emma Temple fourth, Pink fifth. Time, 2:20¾.

Fourth Heat—The next heat brought out a surprise. Alfred G. was in front around the turn, but Lorita had caught him at the quarter and passed him in the homestretch. On the backstretch and at the half, Lorita led by a length, Hazel Wilkes second, Alfred third, with Emma Temple at the wheel. The positions were unchanged until they came into the straight; then both Lorita and Hazel Wilkes broke. Emma Temple got in front and won the heat. Mary Lou coming up from behind and finishing second, a head in front of Hazel Wilkes, Alfred G. fourth, Lorita fifth. Time, 2:22, a record for the winning mare.

Fifth Heat—Emma Temple again surprised them. She got off well up in front, Hazel Wilkes pocketed behind, Lorita got in front again at the quarter and led into the second turn, when she broke and was out of it. Emma Temple took the lead there and came down the straight with Hazel Wilkes pushing her hard. The finish was close and hot, Emma Temple winning by a heat, Mary Lou third, Alfred G. fourth, Pink fifth. Time, 2.21.

Sixth Heat—Even at this stage of the game, Hazel Wilkes sold first choice in the pool at $30 to $25 for the field. Emma Temple took the lead at the start and held it to the finish. Hazel Wilkes attempted to collar her in the straight, but broke in the effort, and Alfred G. trotted in head and head with her in second place. Time, 2:24½.

Trotting—Three-year-old District.

In the above event, trotted Thursday, the protest against J. R., who distanced the crowd, was referred to the referee. He decided that J. R. was entitled to the first money, and that Chloe, the only one of the distance horses who trotted a mile, be given one heat, the distance colts to test the race for second, third and fourth money.

The race was called to-day. Chloe sold in the pools at $40 to $10 on the field, but few pools were sold. Chloe took the lead, and led to the finish, making the mile in 2:37, Ida Vernon second, Jennie Wilkes third, Kittie Vernon last.

No further pools were sold, as it was conceded that the race belonged to Chloe. The favorite led off in the second heat, but broke at the first turn, and before she got on her feet, was so far behind that she could not save her distance, and was shut off for running. Jennie Wilkes took the heat in 2:39¼.

Ida Vernon won the third heat in 2:38½, Kittie Vernon won the fourth heat in 2:41½, when the race was postponed to Monday morning on account of the darkness. Each colt has one heat, so two more must be trotted at least.

A three-quarter dash between Hinstale Chief and Victor, local runners, was won by the first named, but as his rider pulled across in front of Victor, and the latter was pulled back to avoid a collision, the race was given to Victor.

Stamboul was trotted two miles for exhibition. He made the first mile in 2:18 and the second in 2:17¼.

L. J. Rose's yearling filly Reverie was sent a mile to beat her record of 2:36½, but she broke, and only made her old time, 2:36½.

Kitty Vernon took the lead in the first heat Monday, but broke badly, and Jennie Wilkes won the heat in 2:36. Jennie Wilkes got sick in the next heat and quit. Kitty Vernon took the heat in 2:36, Ida Vernon second, and Wilkes just saving her distance. She was very sick and had to be assisted to the stable. The seventh heat of the race was won by Kitty Vernon in 2:50, which gave her the race and second money, Ida Vernon taking third money.

Clydesdales from Australia.

The well known importer John Scott brought on the Alameda, six head of Clydesdales. Mr. Scott is no stranger here, having made six trips already. This time he has (at present in Morsehead's stables) five mares and a stallion. The stallion, Young Topsman is by imp. Topsman, one of the most successful Clydes in Australia. His son is a good looking dark bay, six years old. The mares are very good specimens of their breed, two of them bays are in exceptionally good condition. One is a four year old, of good hard color with black legs, a credit to any farm, and should be invaluable to our breeders, as her breeding is unexceptional, her sire being the celebrated "Champion of the North" who was imported to Australia, and there sold for $6000. A three year old bay in the next stall is very similar in appearance, and is also by an imported horse, Blue Ribbon, who was sold for $5000. The two lightish bays three years old, are not in as good trim, owing to the fact that they were taken up from grass immediately before being shipped, and of course, fell away a little on the trip, but a judge of horse flesh cannot avoid noticing the good points, splendid legs and feet, with an exceptional amount of bone and fine silky hair, which is characteristic of the breed, growing in profusion from locks to their heels, and when they get a little more flesh, they will be very bad to beat for general appearance. The black five year old mare is also very thin, but shows every indication of filling out into a grand brood mare. Mr. Scott hopes to sell his mares shortly, and unlike some others who came here, he does not wish to take the money out of the country, but purposes investing a portion of it in trotting mares, to take back with him to Victoria.

Quincy.

The Eleventh District Fair was held last week, and a fairly representative gathering congregated on the race track every day to witness the sport, the principal feature of which was Dennison's run of luck, or, perhaps, I should say it was good judgement in placing his horses.

MONDAY.

The weather was very pleasant, not too warm, while the track was in admirable order. The first race was a trotting race for the 2:30 class. Owing to Rabe's performance at Grass Valley and Chico, there was little or no betting, on the race. In the first heat, Rabe went away very fast from the wire, and had a four lengths lead of May Queen, at the quarter with Engineer three lengths further back. Engineer gradually drew up to May Queen and after a hard drive down the stretch beat her a length for the place. Rabe winning easily by two lengths. Engineer second. Time, 2:34.

Second Heat—After scoring up several times, May Queen went off in front, with Rabe second, to the half-mile, when the horse went past her, and trotting squarely, was soon three lengths in front, and stayed there to the finish, May Queen second. Time, 2:30½.

Third Heat—May Queen went off in front again, and had a four length's lead at the quarter. Rabe was hitching and skiving to the half when he started trotting, and was four lengths in front at the head of the stretch, May Queen driven out, passed under the wire three lengths behind him, and two in front of Engineer. Time, 2:31.

SUMMARY.

E. P. Smith's Engineer ..... Gore	2	3	3

Time, 2:34, 2:31½, 2:31.

The second race was a dash of a mile for district three-year-olds. Only three came to the post, and after a pretty race, Red Eye won by an open length in the slow time of 2:00.

The days sport finished with a half mile and repeat for a purse of $200 for district horses: four starters came out. Mr. Stephen's Red Rock won easily in straight heats: Lige Clark was second in the first heat, and Colman in the second,

TUESDAY.

The track was much better attended. Four races were got through during the day. Dan Dennison getting away with three, the other being a district race of course, he could not get in. The first race was the 2:30 trotting, for a purse of $350, with three entries. Rabe won easily in straight heats Nevada second every time. Time, 2:39; 2:35; 2:37.

The second race was a district three year old trotting race for a purse of $300: four started. William B. won the first heat, Little Phil second 3:00. The positions were reversed in the second, Little Phil taking the first place, and William B. second. Time, 2:55.

William took the third and fourth heats in 2:55 and 2:54.

The runners had the track for the rest of the afternoon. D. Dennison's Dave Douglas won the mile and repeat in easy style, while Dennison's G. W. beat Applause and Mollie McShane for the mile and a quarter.

WEDNESDAY.

The weather was rather too hot to be pleasant, but the crowd turned out in great force, particularly the ladies, who were a great attraction naturally. The first race was a district race for two-year-olds, mile heats, two in three, with a purse of $250. There were three starters. Pool selling was very light, Samantha bringing $100 to the other part $10. In the first heat Samantha, the favorite, was inside the flag, but was distanced by the judges for running. Hamet was made a big favorite, but Thurman beat him out by three lengths in 3:00. Thurman came out much fresher for the third heat, and won handily in 3:05.

The next race was a race for 2:50 horses for a purse of $250. Three starters came out. Nevada won the first heat by two lengths, Klamath second. Time, 2:42½. But the judges thinking that Robert L. was not driven to win took the driver out and put Dan Dennison in the sulky. The result was not altered though, for Nevada won the third heat and race in 2:40.

The six furlong dash for a purse of $250 had three starters, Dennison's Hotspur winning by a short length from Applause in 1:17. The mile and a half had only two starters, although $250 was hung up. Dan Dennison's G. W. won easily, McShane finishing second necessarily. Time, 2:48.

The last race of the day was a mile dash for a purse of $250, with three starters. Applause and Hotspur were pulled out again, and Ten-per-cent started fresh, but could not live with the other pair, who ran a hard race, Applause being beaten by a neck by Hotspur, who was ridden from start to finish by young Dan. Time, 1:46.

THURSDAY.

The racing was again good. The free-for-all not having the requisite number of starters, a special purse of $600 was given for four named horses, pacers and trotters. Johnny Hayward won easily in straight heats, making the best time of the meeting 2:28½, 2:30 and 2:30½.

The next race on the programme was a buggy horse race, owners driving, mile heats, two in three, for a purse of $100. Captain Jack won easily in 3:08 and 3:08. The third race was for district yearling trotters, half mile heats, two in three. Bradford and McClelland's Milford B. won in straight heats in easy style. Time 1:54 and 1:50½.

The half mile dash for a purse of $200 brought out four starters. Painkiller got away in front and won by half a length from Applause, who came fast at the finish, Hotspur third. Time 0:49.

FRIDAY.

The last race of the day was very successful; every man, woman and child turned out, and the lengthy programme was got through in good time. The special purse of $150 for three named horses was productive of a good race. Engineer, who was outclassed by Rabe on the first day, made a very good show, taking the first two heats from Robert L. and Klamath in 2,41½ and 2:45. In the third heat Robert L. came very fast, and made a dead heat in 2:42¾ with Engineer, who won the fourth heat and race, with Robert L. second. Time, 2:45.

A purse of $250 was hung up for beaten horses. Four turned out, and after a pretty race Snuff Box beat Lige Clark by half a length.

The three furlong dash had six starters. Red Rock, who had run well before in the meeting, won cleverly. All things considered, the fair was very successful, and it is hoped that next year a much better interest will be taken in it by the outside public, as the association are striving hard to attract outsiders by offering good horses, and furthermore the management would be a credit to many larger organizations.

DENVER.

SECOND DAY.

DENVER, Sept. 23d.—The first day's weather would have been acceptable to-day in preference to the cold wind and drizzling rain with which all those present have had to contend. Betting, however, was quite lively, and as nearly all the events were quite close and interesting and the betters numerous, scarcely any one experienced the chilly sensation generally attendant upon the cold-blooded spectators.

Hindoo Rose was a great favorite in the mile dash. King rode a waiting race, and his mount went to the front easily when called upon.

Zufolo, the favorite in the Silver Stakes, was beaten by a nose by Governor Adams, with Weaver up. This victory of the Carlile & Shields' colt was quite a surprise to the talent, and they dumped quite liberally in consequence. Wallie Weaver is riding very well this season and fast working himself into the front rank among jockeys.

The victory of Hailstorm in the three minute trot was rather unlooked for, the favorite, Beecher, being set back from first place for running in two heats.

Uncle Jack had a walk-over in the pace, and made very good time, considering the lack of company.

THIRD DAY.

DENVER, Sept. 24th—The feature of to-day's racing was the two victories of J. C. C. Thornton's galloper, Red Elm. He won the three-quarter dash with hardly an effort from a good field of eight horses. Then, again, the bay gelding came on the track and won a half mile heat race in the easiest manner possible.

Carlile and Shield's chestnut gelding, Justice (Senator Wolcott), was a big favorite in the Denver Cup race and he won it with comparative ease.

The 2:27 trot was quite a surprise to many as Bertie M. was looked upon as almost a sure winner. Of course, it was known that Georgie Moshier had considerable speed, but there were not many that supposed he was in shape for a good race. This horse has been handled for some time, but up to last spring had never gone better than 2:30. Wm. Wilandt, however, got him to take on the Montana circuit, and he has gone several times since in as good as 2:25. Moshier won all his heats quite handily and the betting tide was completely turned in his favor.

SUMMARIES.

Won both heats without whip or spur.

EXTRA DAY.

DENVER, September 25th.—This, the extra day of the meeting, was, by far, the best yet, inasmuch as the weather was much warmer and the attendance considerably larger than on any of the preceding days. The talent was much surprised and quite somewhat loser when B. G. won the mile dash with ease over the favorites Cocotte and Sympathetic's Last. Delwood went to the post at 6 to 5 in the Overland Cup, and won handily from Silent King, the favorite, and Deronda, a Wyoming stallion.

In the 2:40 trot, Monarch's victory was quite unlooked for, as he had shown up very poorly this season. The trot was hotly contested in each heat by Monarch and Midget, and a large amount of money changed hands on the result.

J. C. C. Thornton's Red Elm is doing splendid work for his owner, and seems able to come out and run his best whenever called upon. He won two races yesterday, and one of them a heat race; to-day he comes out in as good shape, apparently, as ever, and wins the five-furlong dash in the easiest possible manner in the very good time of 1:02¼. This he did without a touch of the whip or spur, and we venture to say that had Red Elm a good chance on a straight course, he would go very close to the present five furlong record.

FOURTH DAY.

DENVER, Sept. 26th. The events to-day were decidedly the best of the meeting thus far, and were witnessed by fully 3,000 people. The most interesting features of the afternoon were the two trots—the 2:35 and the free for all. In the latter Wanita 2:20¼, four years old, the property of A. C. Beckwith of Evanston, Wyoming, won easily in straight heats. In the 2:35 trot Faust, 2:18¼, was a great favorite and sold at nearly 2 to 1 against the field of three horses. This colt is a three year old and also the property of Mr. Beckwith. It was evident from the time that the horses scored for the first heat that it was the intention of the other drivers to defeat Faust. He was carried to the wire at a terific gait by Georgie Moshier and Jasper and was trotted around as far as possible each time. Gypsy Queen, a fast one, was always trailing and was always saved, being kept to go to the front when called upon. The gamey little gray was up on his mettle and full of go, hence was easily jockeyed. Gypsy Queen won the first heat after about ten scorching hot breakaways. Faust went in and won the two succeeding heats in 2:22¾ and 2:22¼—the fastest heats of the race. The next heats were won by Gypsy Queen, the combined work of the three being too much for the gray colt, who died very game, nevertheless. In the second heat Moshier fouled Gypsy Queen, and although the mare got the flag in her face, the judges allowed her inside and she started in the next heat. Nothing however, was done with Moshier or his driver for fouling her. Here Mr. Beckwith's ire was aroused, and he censured the judges in the stand, using very forcible language. J. Bryan, Faust's driver, also talked pretty hard to the judges. In this, though, both made mistakes. For although Mr. Beckwith may have had just cause in feeling angered he should most certainly have thought twice before uttering the remarks he did to the judges. His anger evidently got the better of him to an alarming degree, or we would not now have to chronicle the fact that one of the most enterprising and progressive of Western breeders has been expelled from association tracks. At a meeting of the judges, held this evening, it was decided that Mr. Beckwith should stand expelled, and that J. Bryan, his driver, should be fined $100 and stand suspended until paid up. Under this decision Mr. Beckwith cannot start in several races which he had entered in on Eastern tracks, chief among which was the three year old stakes race at St. Louis next month, in which Faust was probably to meet Axtell and numerous other good ones.

SUMMARIES.

FIFTH DAY.

Fairer weather could not have been wished than that which greeted the race-goers this afternoon, though not so interesting as yesterday, the events were all uniformly good. Receiver surprised everybody by winning the selling race, the favorites being Doubt and Greener. Four heats of the 2:45 trot were had, and were very hotly contested between Hailstorm and Georgie H., these two having two heats each at the close of the afternoon. The Stamboul filly, Murtha, had a walkover in the two-year-old stakes, and simply jogged the course.

SIXTH DAY.

This was the last day of the annual fall meeting of the Overland Park Club, and it has proved one of the most successful meetings ever held in the Rocky Mountain region. The attendance to-day was the largest of the week, and all the events of more than usual interest. The only things to mar the pleasant remembrances which are associated with the week, are the expulsion of the well-known breeder, A. C. Beckwith, and the suspension for two years of "Pap" or "Kid" Smith, one of the oldest pilots on the western turf. Mr. Smith was suspended for attempted fraud in the 2:45 trot yesterday. He is the owner of Stella Magnet and others.

Running—Purse $250, of which $50 to second and $25 to third for horses that have started and not won at this meeting. Six furlongs.

San Louis Obispo.

WEDNESDAY.

There was a marked improvement in the attendance at the track, a brilliant day and three good trotting races attracting the public. The first race was a free for all, mile heats, three in five, with four entries. The San Simeon money made Lena H. favorite over Fred Arnold, who won the first heat in a jog, Arnold's driver never making a move. The third heat was hotly contested all through, Allen L. winning and getting the heat despite Albright's bourgeois claim of a foul; the fourth and fifth heats were close races to the head of the stretch, when Arnold drew away, winning easily.

SUMMARY.

Purse $250. Trotting, free for all. Mile heats three in five.

Oregon State Fair.

The State Fair at Salem, was the most successful ever held in the Northwest, and all who attended speak of the management in the highest terms. The following full account of the speed contests is taken from the Rural Spirit:

FIRST RACE.

The initial was a breeders' stake for two-year-old runners, with Raindrop, Roebucken and Daily Oregonian as starters. They were placed as we name them. Raindrop and Roebucken sold as stable for $40, the other $20. The youngsters made a pretty race. Raindrop led all the way, but she never won it until she passed the wire, Daily Oregonian being last, but only two lengths from the winner. Time, 1:20½.

Mutuals paid $7.50.

SUMMARY.

Oregon State Fair Grounds, Salem, Sept. 16, 1889.—Running Breeders' Stake for two-year-olds, three-quarters of a mile; $50 each, $250 added.

Time, 1:20½.

SECOND RACE.

Jno. G. Wright took Van B. De Lashmutt's place as a judge, and the horses were called out. You people who think the first day does not amount to anything can now take a back seat, for it is seldom man's fortune to see a better race than was to be trotted. And when you see that the first and second horses were four and five years old respectively, and eligible to the 3:00 class, then can you understand what a game race it was. Hannibal Jr., May F., Della A., Stemwinder and Lady Beach were the starters, and they were arranged in position as we name them. In the pools Stemwinder brought $40, Lady Beach $15, field $10.

First Heat—Lady Beach was the only steady one this heat, the rest skipping and running and skiving a good deal. May F. ran from start to finish, and was second to Lady Beach, who won handily, but was distanced for her foolishness. Della beat Stemwinder a neck for third, Hannibal just inside. Time, 0:39, 1:17, 1:55, 2:32.

M. H. Mann, driver of May F., was ruled off the track for using improper language to the judges.

Mutuals paid $12 85.

Second Heat—Stemwinder $40, Lady $25, field $8. A fine contest between Stemwinder and Beach. The mare led till the half, where Stemwinder passed Della and hurried after the Lady. They trotted like a team to within 100 feet of the wire, where the mare went up and allowed the gelding to win by a length, Della three lengths behind, Hannibal distanced. Time, 0:38, 1:15, 1:53½, 2:30. Mutuals paid $9.

Third Heat—The judges announced that G. O. Bailey, owner of Trademark, a nominee for this race, was fined $20 for not having his horse on the track or officially withdrawing him. Stemwinder was an easy sale at $40, field $10. Going around the first turn, Beach and Stemwinder collided, and a spoke flew out of Stemwinder's wheel. They all trotted nicely together to the half, where Stemwinder broke and lost, and Beach broke and gained. Beach won by five lengths from Stemwinder, Della just inside. The judges made it a dead heat between the two first, and thereby created a technical point. Lady Beach finished in 2:29, but the judges announced Stemwinder's time. Time, 0:38, 1:15, 1:52, 2:29½.

The mutuals, owing to the dead heat, went to the winner of next heat.

Fourth Heat—Stemwinder still sold for $40, field $35. What a heat! Beach played it alone to head of stretch, where the gelding came up, and, trotting like a hero, carried the Lady off her feet fifty feet from the wire, and won by a head, Della behind the flag. Time, 0:36½, 1:12½ 1:50, 2:25¼.

Mutuals, on third and fourth heats, paid $10 each.

Fifth Heat—Pools: Stemwinder $40, Beach $15. A very unpleasant thing happened this heat. The driver of Stemwinder thought the starter recalled them when he gave the word to go, and pulled to a walk at the first turn. Woods went to the eighth and came near stopping, but went on again. Stemwinder was a long way behind, and had to do some good trotting to save his distance, but he got there. We think this would have been a very fast heat had it not been for the error. Time, 0:39, 1:15, 1:54, 2:32.

Mutuals paid $16.15.

Sixth Heat—Stemwinder was still the favorite at $40 to $20, but the talent were doomed to lose. On the first turn Stemwinder made a fatal break, and was virtually never in the race from there out, although he trotted nicely to the head of the stretch, where he broke again and gave up. Beach won handily by ten lengths. Time, 0:38, 1:15, 1:54, 2:33.

Mutuals paid $19.75.

SECOND DAY.

The weather was all that could be asked, and the track was in excellent condition. The attendance at the track fully reached 3,000. The judges were Van B. DeLashmutt, J. Q. Wilson and D. H. Looney, and J. B. Keeney took Mr. DeLashmutt's place as judge in the trot. The timers were J. L. Hallett and T. H. Tongue, and Wm. Galloway started the gallopers.

FIRST RACE.

The opener was a run, 1 1-16 miles, with as fine a field of Thoroughbreds as ever started in Oregon. The betting was rather slow, Jack Brady bringing $40, Coloma $40, Jubilee $30, Moses B. and Lady Duffy $5 each. Moses B. had the inside, then Brady, Lady Duffy, Coloma, Jubilee. To a start that could not be beaten Jubilee ran past the stand first, Brady at her head. A blanket could cover them all to the head of the homestretch, where Jubilee and Coloma came away from the rest. They had a fine struggle to within fifty feet of the wire, where Coloma seemed to have a neck like a telescope, and using it at the proper time, won by an "eyebrow." Brady was third two lengths away, and Moses and Duffy followed with about the same space between them. They ran from wire to wire in 1:44½ and the distance in 1:51½.

Mutuals paid $12.75.

SECOND RACE.

Now came a trot for the 2:40 class, and the talent had another blow. Stemwinder, Coquetta, Lady Beach and Gloster were the starters, and they drew positions as we name them. In the pools Stemwinder and Lady Beach, notwithstanding their hard race the day before, were favorites at $40 each, the others $5 each. The race was never very exciting, for Lady Beach had it pretty near all her own way.

First Heat—Gloster was the only one that could make it interesting for Lady Beach, and he was beaten by two lengths. Coquetta was a bad third, and Stemwinder had a great struggle to beat the flag. Time, 0:37½, 1:14½, 1:50½, 2:27.

Mutuals paid $14 25.

Second Heat—Pools: Beach $40, Gloster $15, field, $12. A procession. Beach led all the way around and won as she liked, although Coquetta trotted like the wind down the stretch. Gloster was two lengths behind her, Stemwinder not doing anything. Time, 0:38, 1:15, 1:52, 2:29.

Mutuals paid $8.50.

Third Heat—Beach was dollars to marbles, and there was no other horse in the race after she got started. Coquetta was a good second, and Gloster a bad fourth. Time, 0:36, 1:14, 1:51½, 2:27½.

Mutuals paid $6.15.

THIRD RACE.

About this race the least said the better. Sir Ladd and Jack Pot were matched to run ½ mile, and Sir Ladd won it. The judges had an idea that Jack Pot was not ridden to win, and declared all bets off.

THIRD DAY.

The weather was so smoky that it was impossible to distinguish the horses when far away from the wire, although the posts could be seen. About 6,000 people were in the stand and adjacent places, and were well paid for attending.

The judges for the day were George Chandler, D. S. K. Buick and William Galloway, and D. A. Looney started the runners. Frank C. Baker, T. H. Tongue and J. L. Hallett held the watches.

FIRST RACE.

There was a great field for the initial, consisting of Roly Boly, Jubilee, Billow, Sleepy Dick, Tom Daly, Humboldt Jr. Jou Jou and Kitty Van. They were placed as named above.

In the pools Jubilee brought $40 against about $10 each for the rest. The horses could not be distinguished as they went away from the post, but as they came in sight it was seen that Kitty Van had the race well in hand, and she won handily from Roly Boly by two lengths, she one length ahead of Jou Jou, the rest in a bunch, except Jubilee, who was left at the post. Time :26, 51, 1:16. Mutuals paid $70.40.

SECOND RACE.

Now came a trot for two year olds, and created a good deal of interest. There were five starters, and the judges placed them as follows: Alwin, S. S, Pandora, Canemah, Springhill Maid.

In the pools Alwin brought $20, Canemah $10, the rest $5 each.

First Heat. Canemah took the lead at the start and was never headed, winning in a big jog. Pandora trotted very nicely, but was not quite fast enough, she being two lengths ahead of Alwin, Springhill Maid a bad fourth, and S. S. distanced. Time :41, 1:21½, 2:02, 2:43½. Mutuals paid $10.85.

Second Heat. Pools, Canemah $30, Alwin $5, field $5. It was a repetition of the preceding heat, Canemah winning pretty easily from Pandora, Alwin third, Springhill Maid last. Time :43½, 1:25, 2:06½, 2:47. Mutuals paid $7.60.

THIRD RACE.

The next was a trot for three-year-olds, with a great field. Beulah, Nervissa, Lady Mac, Altao, Wallula. They were placed as named.

Pools—Nervissa $20, Buelah $7, Altao $5, field $3.

M. H. Mann, ruled off Monday, was reinstated.

First Heat—After leaving the stand Altao was never pressed until the stretch was reached, where Nervissa came up and made a great race to beat him, but failed by a head. Beulah was close up, Wallula a length behind her, and Lady Mac distanced for running. Time, 0:39¾, 1:20, 1:57½, 2:34½.

Mutuals paid $40 95.

Second Heat—Pools—Nervissa $20. Altao $15, field $5. On the first turn Nervissa broke and lost all chance of winning. Altao broke and fell behind Wallula at the quarter, and they were strung out till the three-quarter post was reached. Here Altao made his fight, and he trotted a grand race home and succeeded in winning from Wallula by a length, Beulah next, Nervissa last. Time, 0:39, 1:16, 1:55, 2:31, the best time ever made by an Oregon three-year-old.

FOURTH DAY.

The weather was warm and smoky, so that it was impossible to distinguish the horses on the backstretch, and therefore our readers will surely excuse us for not giving as accurate an account of the races as we would had it been a clear day. Such a crowd was never before seen at the track, there being fully 10,000 people there. Judges—J. B. Keeney, D. H. Looney and Hon. Geo. Chandler. Wm. Galloway started the runners, and S. G. Reed, T. H. Tongue and Major J. L. Hallett were the official timers.

FIRST RACE.

The first for to-day was a run, 1¼ miles, with four starters as follows: Coloma, Little Phil, Jubilee and Jack Brady. In the betting Coloma had the call at $40, Jubilee $30, Brady $15, Phil $6. Jubilee led from the start, and was never headed, winning in a big canter from Coloma by three lengths, he one ahead of Brady, Phil four behind him. Time, 0:26, 0:52½, 1:18, 2:10½.

A protest was entered by Coloma's owner on the grounds that Jubilee had no right to start. The directors took the matter under consideration, but decided to award the horses positions as shown by the following

SECOND RACE.

Now comes a handicap of five-eighths of a mile, and such kicking we never heard. The judges thought that Sunday was not going to run to win, and they took down Hazlett and put up McCaugh; he was over weight, and they took him down and put up Bally. And what a kick there was in doing all this! But to the race. Lancer, Kitty Van, Sunday, Oregon Eclipse, Sleepy Dick, Laura D. and Roly Boly went to the post in the order named. In the pools Kitty brought $15, Sunday $10 Dick $5, Roly Boly $5, field $5. They were an hour starting, and was tapped off with Lancer looking the wrong way. A greater finish between two horses was never seen than between Van and Sunday. They were like a team all the way, and Van only got the decision by a nose. The rest was strung out at intervals of a length except Lancer who walked in 100 yards away. The time, 1:01, is only two seconds behind the records.

Mutuals paid $14.60.

THIRL RACE.

Now came the trot for the 2:30 class, with six contestants: Coquetta, Gloster, Almonette, Leona, Altena, Alta. They were given positions as we enumerate them. In the pools Alta brought $25, Altena $15, Almonette $8, field $8. The smoke was so thick that the horses could not be distinguished on the backstretch.

First Heat—Leona went out of sight in the lead, and when they were distinguished again it was seen that Gloster was a winner, although Almonette pressed him pretty hard, losing by half a length. Alta was a length behind one half sister and a length ahead of another, with still another a length behind her and a length ahead of a cousin. Time by quarters, 0:37¼, 1:13, 1:49½. 2:26.

Mutuals paid $73.60.

Second Heat Pools, field $28, Altena $12, Alta $11, Almonette $9. Alta led at the start. When they came in view again Gloster and Altena were at it in earnest, and Gloster, breaking at the wire, allowed Altena to win by a nose. Leona was distanced. Time :37¼, 1:14½, 1:50, 2:26½. Mutuals paid $25.

Third Heat Pools. Altena $40, Alta and Almonette $5 each. Gloster and Altena went away like a team, but at the head of the stretch Gloster had them all beaten by two lengths, Altena second, Alta a length behind her and a length ahead of Almonette, Coquetta a bad fifth. Altena was set back to fourth place for running. Time :38, 1:14, 1:50, 2:27. Mutuals paid $24.15.

Fourth Heat. Pools, field $22, Altena $7, Alta $2. They got a good start and there was never any daylight between them. They had a fine finish, for surely a blanket would have covered them all. Gloster beat Almonta a nose for first, Altena and Alta three feet away from her. Time :38, 1:15, 1:51, 2:28½. Mutuals paid $7.40.

FIFTH DAY.

Fully 7,000 people assembled to see the sport, and they were amply repaid, as there were two records lowered, viz., best trotting record in Oregon and best three-year-old trotting record for Oregon. The judges in the run were Wm. Galloway, Van B. DeLashmutt and J. Q. Wilson, and J. B. Keeney started them.

S. G. Reed, T. H. Tongue and J. L. Hallett were the timers. In the trotting races, Geo. Chandler, Wm. Galloway and J. Q. Wilson officiated as judges.

FIRST RACE.

The Oregon Derby, a race that should be a good one, was called, and two starters came out. They were Farewell and Pat Curran. The latter was favorite at $10 to $6. Farewell drew the pole, and led all the way around to within 100 yards of the wire, where Pat got his head and passed Farewell like he was standing still, and won by three lengths in a canter. Time by quarters, 0:28, 0:55½, 1:23½, 1:53, 2:22½, 2:49. Mutuals paid $8.65.

SECOND RACE.

Now came the free for-all trot, and was worth going across the continent to see. Palatina lowered the Oregon record in the last heat, and the four heats were the fastest ever trotted in the North Pacific. Edwin C., Fantasia, Little Joe, Palatina and Col. Bradshaw were allotted positions as we name them. Pools: Bradshaw $20, Palatina $15, field $10.

First Heat—Edwin C. was never headed, and won by four lengths in a jog. The rest, especially Palatina, acted badly, and did not trot much for the heat. Bradshaw was two lengths behind the leader, and there was about that much space between them all. Fractional time, 0:35, 1:12, 1:48½, 2:24½. Mutuals paid $22.50.

Second Heat—Pools: field $20, Bradshaw $15, Palatina $10. A great race between Edwin C., Palatina and Bradshaw. Little Joe led to the quarter, here Edwin passed him. Palatina and Bradshaw then came up, and it was a great sight to see them come from their home. Palatina was the best, and although making a break, won by a nose from Bradshaw, Edwin C. a neck behind him. The other two were away back. Time, 0:36, 1:13, 1:48½, 2:23½.

Mutuals paid $24 70.

Third Heat—Pools—Palatina $30, Bradshaw $16, Field $7. Palatina made her usual break on the first turn, but caught nicely, and there was no other horse in the race from there out, she leading all the way and winning easily by three lengths. Joe had a fine finish with Bradshaw for second, and succeeded in beating him a head. Fantasie finished fourth, but was put last for running. Time, 0:39, 1:13, 1:49, 2:24½.

Mutuals paid $12 45.

Fourth Heat—Pools—Palatina $20, Bradshaw $5, Field $3. For the first time in history Palatina failed to make her losing break on the first turn, and seeing this, her opponents in the betting began to tear up their tickets. And they were right. Nothing ever came near her, and she won by two lengths from Edwin C., Bradshaw, third, Little Joe last. Fantasie was again set back for running. Time, 0:36½, 1:12, 1:47½, 2:22½.

Mutuals paid $9.

THIRD RACE.

Now came a race that pleased everybody. It was between the regarded horses of Oregon 3-year-olds, Blondie and Altao. Never before have we seen such enthusiasm over a race between two horses, and no wonder! Blondie trots a third heat after two hards ones in 2:27½, and Altao on his shoulder! Why, it was enough to make a rheumatic man of 80 feel like a joyloving urchin of 10. To those of our readers who have never seen these superb colts we would say that Blondie is one of those pretty chestnuts—not large, nor yet small. He is very steady and quick, and his gait reminds one of the patter of rain. The contrast is great between the two. Altao is the larger, is a beautiful bay, and one of those strong-going horses that when under good headway looks like the earth had lost its power of attraction and suspended him in midair to paw into space. But to the race: Altao, by virtue of trot-trotting in 2:31 during the week, was favorite at $20 to $12.

First Heat.—Blondie drew the pole and they went away like a team to the quarter, where they both went up. They settled nicely and Blondie took the lead and went to the half with it. Here Altao came up and passed him and led all the of the way winning by three lengths. Time, 0;38, 1;16, 1:53½, 2:31

Second Heat—Pools: Altao bought for $20 Blondie $5. Altao led to the quarter by half a length, and to the half by a length, but soon broke and swerved, and to use Lewis' words Blondie took advantage of it and took the pole, and trotting very nicely, won by four lengths, Altao not acting very well on the stretch. Time, 0:39, 1:15½, 154, 2:29¾.

Third Heat—Pools: Blondie now sold for $20, Altao $15. Now came the rub! Blondie had a length the best of it at the quarter, and maintained it to the half. Now if ever two men men in a hurry it was Lewis and Mann. There was only a half length between them, Blondie having the percentage. Alao seemed to be struggling gamely for the advantage, and Blondie was struggling just as hard to hold the persimmons, and he held it, winning a race that every state cannot beat by a short half length. Time, 0:37, 1:14½, 1:52½, 2:27½.

SUMMARY.

SIXTH DAY.

In the morning a light shower fell, but was only sufficient to lay the dust, and did not hurt the track. In the afternoon light showers fell at intervals, but only served to make it a little disagreeable. About 7:000 people assembled to see the races, and were well repaid. The judges in the runs were Wm. Galloway, D. S. K. Buick, and H. Looney, and in the trot J. Q. Wilson took Mr. Galloway's place. The timers were J. L. Hallett and Joseph Baker.

FIRST RACE.

A handicap of one mile was called first; the eight horses responded: Laura D., Lady Duffy, Jou Jou, Roly Boly, Jack Brady, Coloma, Little Phil, Tom Daly. We name them as they drew positions. Pools: Stable [illegible] D.) $40, Brady $30, Daly, Roly Boly, Jou Jou and field $12 each. Phil got the best of the start and led to the quarter, Coloma trailing. At this point Brady and Jou Jou moved up, and then at the half there was no daylight between them all. Here Colomo was seen to be running by them one by one, and he won by half a length from Daly, Brady half a length behind him, the rest all in a bunch and close up. Time, 0:26, 0:51, 1:16½, 1:43.

Second Heat—Pools—Fantasie $20, Hero $10, Gloster $6. Gloster was never headed, winning by three lengths from Fantasie, Hero a bad third. Time, 0:40, 1:17, 1:54½, 2:31½.

Mutuals paid $22.25.

Third Heat—Fantasie's owner asked and obtained permission to put up Woods in place of Misner. Fantasie was never headed, although she and Gloster went like a team on the backstretch. Hero trotted nicely the last quarter and beat Gloster a length for second. Time, 0:39, 1:16, 1:51¼, 2:26¾.

Mutuals paid $8 80.

Fourth Heat. Pools, Fantasie $20, field $5. Fantasie did not act right, and Hero outfooted Gloster and won as he liked by two lengths, Fantasie a dozen lengths behind. Time :40, 1:17, 1:53, 2:27. Mutuals paid $16.40.

FOURTH RACE.

After the north bound train had left we understand there was a ⅜ mile and repeat between Oregon Eclipse, Pappoose and King, resulting in a victory for Eclipse in straight heats, Pappoose second. The best time was :35½.

Won by an American Colt.

A gratifying item of racing news from the other side of the water is that which records the victory of Kaikoura, a colt by the American sire Wallenstein, in the High Weight Handicap, run at the recent meeting at Brighton in Sussex. Wallenstein was one of the horses sent over by Pierre Lorillard during the era notable in England for the victories of Foxhall and Iroquois. He failed to make any great mark on the English turf, although he ran some good races, and was relegated to the stud about six years ago. Breeders, however, fought shy of the American, and hitherto he has enjoyed but scant patronage at the hands of the owners of fashionably-bred mares. His first stock, too, were small and unpromising, and in the season of 1887, the only two that were trained—fillies out of Eirene and Homespun—failed to earn winning brackets. Kaikouri is said to be a grand looking animal, and his Brighton victory under a heavy impost, in which he beat, among other high-class animals, the flying Gervas, by that successful sire Trappist, by Hermit, is likely to create quite a demand among breeders for Wallenstein's services. The colt was bred at the Hermitage, Epsom, by Mr. Quartermaine East, ex-Sheriff of London, who has, during the past ten years or so, been one of the most successful breeders, in a small way, of thoroughbred stock on the other side of the water.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN,

SAN JOSE.

The Santa Clara and San Mateo County Fair opened at San Jose Agricultural Park Monday, Sept. 30. There was not a large crowd present, nor were the events of the character likely to draw a large attendance, both of them being district races. The opening event was Trotting, District Stallions.

The opening event had in it J. W. Gordan's ch h Alex Graham, R. S. Fox's ch h Chancellor, James Boyd's b h Billy Thornhill, and T. W. Barstow's b h Stranger. Chancellor was a warm favorite in the pools, selling at $25 to $7 for the entire field.

First Heat. It was nearly 2 o'clock when they passed under the wire with the word go, after having scored for the fifth time. Before the return to the quarter Chancellor broke, and when the quarter was reached Alex Graham led by a length, Chancellor at his wheel and Thornhill and Stranger following close in their order. At the half Alex Graham still held the lead with Thornhill bringing up a close rear. When the three-quarters was reached Graham, Chancellor and Stranger were in a bunch and Thornhill lost his feet and widened the gap between the others and himself. Upon entering the home stretch Graham and Chancellor were neck and neck and Thornhill was driven hard to stay with Stranger. At the string the horses came in in the following order: Chancellor, Graham, Thornhill and Stranger, Chancellor winning from Graham by a neck. Time 1:19 at the half, 2:36¼ for the mile.

Throughout the remainder of the heats the pools sold the same, at $25 for Chancellor as choice against the field at $7.

Second Heat—The start for second heat was made after four unsuccessful attempts to go off together. They started in the same order as in the first heat, Chancellor taking the pole with Stranger on the outside. Stranger had a slight advantage in the start, which he maintained until the three-quarter. At the quarter Graham was following close to Stranger with a gap of about two lengths between the former, and Churchill and Thornhill some three or four lengths further in the rear. The half was made in 1:16½, with Stranger far in the lead, with Chancellor and Graham together, and Thornhill pulling hard to close up the big space between him and the others. At the three quarters Stranger appeared to have lost all power, and was being rapidly left behind, with Chancellor, Graham and Thornhill leading. As they strode along the homestretch, the race was between Chancellor and Graham, each receiving the lash in hard style. Chancellor won the heat from Graham in 2:35½, Thornhill and Stranger taking third and fourth place, about twenty yards in the rear.

The sale of pools on the race was at an end now, and only a few private bets were made at a ratio of five to one in favor of Chancellor.

Third Heat—After a number of scores they got off at the tap of the bell. Graham lost his feet before the turn to the quarter, where he fell into third place, with Chancellor leading and Stranger second. These positions were unchanged until near the half. Stranger broke twice and fell far behind with Thornhill, with Chancellor far in the lead, and Graham second. The half was made in 1:15½. Just beyond the half Chancellor fell behind Graham a half dozen lengths on account of a break. At the three-quarters, where Chancellor, Thornhill and Stranger were bunched, the latter started on an uncontrollable dead run. Coming in on the homestretch the race was an exciting one. Graham came in under the string in 2:36½, taking the heat from Chancellor, Thornhill coming in third and Stranger getting in on a gallop.

Fourth Heat—A good start was made for the fourth heat after scoring four times. Graham and Stranger both broke after leaving the stand, and when the quarter was reached Chancellor led with a large gap between the followers, Thornhill being in the rear. From the quarter to the half Chancellor led, making it in 1:18½. At the three quarters it was close between the latter and Graham, Stranger having advanced to third place. Before entering the stretch Chancellor and Stranger broke, but were soon brought under control. All along the stretch the trot was a lively one. As the flyers approached the wire Stranger was applauded for his position of a neck in the lead of Chancellor. As the two shot under the line, Stranger was declared the winner in 2:38½. When the announcement was made declaring Stranger the winner of the heat, W. Donathan, the driver of Alex. Graham, complained to the judges that Barstow was driving Stranger to a cart and not a sulky. The judges declined to altar the decision on the grounds that the cart was heavier than a sulky, and if anything worked a disadvantage to the owner. The rules were scanned, and it was found that "to harness" meant a sulky. The decision was unchanged, although Barstow was ordered to drive in a sulky. His reason for not doing so on the start was that the horse was unused to a sulky.

Fifth Heat—Billy Thornhill was withdrawn by James Boyd, his owner, on account of lameness in the right forward ankle. Some delay was occasioned by a loose shoe on Stranger's foot, which was fixed on the track. They started nicely after scoring the second time. They were close together at the quarter and up to the half, which was made in 1:17½. Here Stranger was being forced to overtake and pass the others, but failed, the horse breaking badly. Chancellor led to the three-quarters, with Stranger at his wheel and Graham several lengths behind. Stranger broke again and fell to the rear. The three held these positions to the end. Chancellor taking the heat in 2:37 from Graham, and winning first money, the second going to Graham and the third to Stranger.

District Trot, Two Year Olds.

The second event had as starters R. J. Langford's b f Deadwood, La Siesta Ranch's br c Daylight, and Pat Green's blk f Lena D., pools selling before the first heat, Lena D. $20. Daylight $17 and Deadwood $2.

First Heat. After scoring four times a successful start was made. Deadwood took the pole and at the quarter was neck and neck with Daylight, with Lena D. a length behind. Deadwood broke just past the quarter and the first place was taken by Daylight, with long openings between them, Deadwood holding second position. The half was made in 1:31, Daylight a length in advance of Lena D., and Deadwood in the far-off rear. Toward the three quarters Daylight steamed ahead and Deadwood again broke, falling still further behind. Daylight took the heat in 3:02, amid great surprise, from distanced. According to an understanding between the drivers, Deadwood was allowed to stay in and the judges so ruled.

Immediately after the heat a rumor gained currency that Lena D. was held back by Pat Green. It seemed so apparent that the judges were importuned to substitute James Dustan as her driver, which was done.

Second Heat. After the first heat for the two year olds Lena D sold for $11 against Daylight for $20.

The second heat for two year olds was started after three unsuccessful attempts at scoring. When 100 yards from the start Daylight fell behind on account of a break. At the quarter Deadwood led and Lena D. was a close follower and Daylight was just recovering. The race was close at the half, which was reached in 1:35. Lena D. led at the three-quarters, which position she lost on entering the home stretch. Daylight took the heat in 3:10½, with Lena D. and Deadwood following. The heat closed the race and first money was awarded to Daylight, second to Lena D. and third to Deadwood.

TUESDAY.

There was the same handful of people which was in attendance upon the opening day. Of the three events on the card, but two of them started, J. 2:20 Class Trot.

Pleasanton Stock Farm's blk h Direct, J. W. Donathan's blk g Franklin, O. A. Hickok's b h Bay Rose and B. C. Holly's ch m Pink, were the starters. Direct was expected to win in straight heats and in the pools he was a hot favorite, going at $100 to $24 for Franklin and $14 for Bay Rose.

First Heat—At the second attempt they got a good start, Franklin taking the bad. When they straightened out on the turn Franklin was a length in front, Direct in second place, Bay Rose a length from him and Pink two lengths back. These positions were held until they entered the second turn, then Direct began to move up, getting first to Franklin's wheel and then collaring him as they swung into the straight. Down home Direct and Franklin trotted head and head almost to the drawgate, and then Direct drew away and won by two lengths, Franklin second, Bay Rose three lengths third, Pink well inside the distance post fourth. Time, 2:21¼.

Second Heat—A few pools were sold at $25 for Direct and $15 for the field. Four attempts, and then they got the word to a good start. Direct went around the first turn with Franklin at his wheel, Bay Rose a length behind him and Pink back three lengths. They passed the quarter in this order, Pink off her feet. Down the backstretch the positions were not changed, but in the second turn Direct drew away to a length lead and Bay Rose closed up to Franklin's wheel. They entered the straight in these positions. Bay Rose got to Franklin's head and both of them tried to collar the leader. Andy shook the little black up and drew away from them slowly. Franklin lost his feet at the distance post and Bay Rose carried Direct out, finishing two lengths behind him, Franklin third and Pink a poor fourth. Time, 2:20½.

Third Heat—There was absolutely no money to go against Direct after the second heat, and the race was conceded to him already. By Holly driving Pink delayed the start for some time, but La Rue, who had the bell, finally sent them off with Pink behind. Direct was in front when they got into the first turn, Bay Rose attending him, Franklin a length from Bay Rose. Direct opened the gap in the backstretch and at the half was two lengths in front, Franklin head and head with Bay Rose. On the second turn Franklin took second place and entered the straight a length behind Direct. Bay Rose began to close up again on the straight and there was a sharp battle for second place and second money. Direct won by two lengths. Bay Rose crowded up to Franklin and by a burst of reserve speed beat Franklin out for second place by a head. Time, 2:19.

Trotting—Two-year-olds.

The above was the next event of the day and had three starters, L. J. Rose's b f Mista, G. Valensin's b f Fleet and San Mateo Stock Farm's b c Regal Wilkes. There was not much betting on the event, Regal Wilkes bringing $40, Fleet $30 and Mista $10.

First Heat—After a lot of scoring they were given the bell with Mista going unsteadily and just after the bell tapped she broke, but lost nothing. Fleet was also going on her toes and as they entered the turn she also went up. When they reached the middle of the turn, Regal Wilkes was in front with Mista at his wheel and Fleet eight lengths away. There was never any material change. Mista hung on to Regal Wilkes' wheel all the way to the drawgate and then Wilkes drew away from her and won as he chose by two lengths. Time, 2:26.

Second Heat—Regal Wilkes sold against the field at $50 to $10. There was a lot of scoring done and then the word was given to a good start, Fleet having the best of it. She went away very fast and took the pole on the turn, Regal Wilkes in second place with Mista following him. Regal Wilkes closed up to Fleet very fast and when they got well into the backstretch he passed her, the filly going off her feet. The three were strung out by two lengths apart until they reached the half and there Regal Wilkes lost his feet. Fleet went up also but caught quickly and went into the turn in the lead, Mista a length behind her and Regal Wilkes five lengths away. Mista passed to the lead on the turn and entered the straight in front, but Regal Wilkes was coming at a 20 gait, and caught her half way down the straight, passing her and winning the post by two lengths, Mista breaking badly when the colt headed her. Fleet was away back in third place. Time, 2:28.

WEDNESDAY.

Running day drew a larger crowd than had been in attendance at any previous day of the fair, and the events were of a one-sided order, the favorites selling high and running well. The first thing on the card was Running, One Mile, All Ages.

Matt Storn's ch f Glen Ellen, 109, and Ben Hill's ch g Mikado, 120, started. Pools sold, Mikado $25, field, $17. A good start was given them and Glen Ellen went off in the lead at a fast clip, evidently out to kill Mikado with the heavy weight up. She led him down the backstretch by three lengths, but on the second turn Appleby shook Mikado up and brought him up to the filly and they entered the straight together. The race was already Mikado's. He passed the filly at the ⅛ post, and came home an easy winner by two lengths, Glen Ellen getting the whip badly at the finish. Time, 1:43½.

The above event was the next thing on the card and had in it J. B. Chase's ch f Marigold 110, Palo Alto's b c Rico 121 and B. P. Hill's b c King David 113. Rico was as usual favorite at odds of $50 to $26 for the whole field. The start consumed several minutes and then the flag dropped with Rico two lengths behind, but when Marigold and David reached the half-mile post he was head and head with them and opened a gap of three lengths on the turn, Marigold in second place and King David two lengths from her. Rico came home under a pull. Marigold was severely punished in the straight but she was not able to reach the colt and he finished first easy, Marigold two lengths from him and King David ten lengths back. Time, 1;01¾.

The next event brought but two starters to the post, W. L. Appleby's b f Alfarata 119, and J. C. Simpson's b f Joe Viva 114. Pools sold, Alfarata $25, Joe Viva $10. The race was the first surprise of the day as the talent regarded Alfarata as a sure winner and put their money upon her freely. They went off to a head and head start and stayed right together, both under a strong pull until they got to the middle of the second turn when Joe Viva got the whip and showed in front, coming into the straight two lengths to the good. At the seven-eighths post Hitchcock called on Alfarata, but the mare could not repond. They came down to the wire very tired and both under a drive, Joe Viva taking the race by two lengths. The day closed with the above event, in which Bruce Cockrell's b m Daisy D., 114, Matt Storn's ch g Kildare, 117, and Chas. Bambrick's 99 Stoneman, 117, started. Pools selling, Daisy D., $40, field $10. There was a delay of 20 minutes at the post, and then the flag went down and left Stoneman at the post. Daisy D. jumped off in the lead, but half way around the turn Kildare caught her, and they came into the straight together. Daisy D. shoved her head in front at the drawgate. Kildare was heavily punished, but Daisy finished a head first under a pull, Hennessey timing the finish nicely and getting the mare in with just as little work as possible for her. Time, 0;50¼. Stoneman's rider made a strong protest and tried to have the heat declared off, but after hearing all the evidence in the case, Daisy D. was given the heat, Kildare the place, and Stoneman was declared distanced.

A few pools were sold after the heat, Daisy going at $50 against $6 for Kildare. The start was another bungle, Daisy getting off five lengths in front, but Hennessey very kindly drew the mare up until Kildare got to her flank, and then set her to going again. She came home as in the former heat, with the colt at her flank under the whip, and won that way in 0:54¾.

San Joe Gossip.

While the Palo Alto runners were being loaded in the cars at Stockton for transportation here, the two-year-old colt Flambeau backed off the chute and fell. There was a lot of loose sand at the side of the track which saved the horse serious injury. Speaking of Flambeau reminds me that a good many people considers him a better colt than the unbeaten Racine the pride of Palo Alto. It has been Palo Alto's policy to run first always with Racine, but I believe Flambeau can give him a beating at any time. When Racine won the three-quarter dash at Stockton the other day in 1:14¾, Flambeau as usual finishd at his neck, but I noticed Morton on Racine looking back at the Chestnut's white face very anxiously at the finish and he rustled the Bishop colt pretty lively to g t him under the wire first. Flambeau wasn't even stretched out. Another good one in the Palo Alto string is the filly Muta, I saw her working alongside Peel on the San Jose trace and she carried him around the turn and to the half at the pace which took all the energy Peel had in him to stay near her, she hasn't started this fall, and she will be a rattling good one when she does.

The San Jose track is nothing to be proud of in its present condition. It is very hard and to a certain extent dangerous for the runners. Matt Storn,s filly Lurline went lame to her first morning's work and had to be scratched in all her engagements for the week.

Daisy D. struck herself in her race at Sacramento and has had a bad swelling in her off fore ankle, but she was quoted a big favorite in her first race. She is a good mare to go any distance from a mile down on any kind of track and any day in the week. Bruce Crockrell tells me that he has a fine look-youngster in her colt by Ironclad.

Regal Wilkes trotted a good race for a two-year-old Tuesday. The first heat in 2:26 was not lead, but I am satisfied that had he not lost his feet in the second heat he would have come home in 2:24.

Lorena, Cap. Harris' two-year-old filly did not go in the district race Tuesday. She is coughing badly, and Harris feared for a time that he might lose her, she is on the up though now and will likely pull out.

La Siesta Rsnch's mare Wauda went wrong after her race at Sacramento and will not be trotted again soon. Epizootic sent her off in the summer and she is troubled by a weakness in her compling which will not allow her to be worked.

Almont Patchen, the pacer is slowly recoving from his injury received from a fall in a car while being transperted from Oakland to Napa. This week he is being marked out in 2:20 and 2:22.

Scott Quinton concluded at the last moment not to take his string to Fresno and the entire lot is here. He had St. Patrick entered at Fresno with almost a certainty of winning, but the distance was too great to take him for one race and run all the risks of travel.

H. M. LaRue has come down for the week and will pull the bell in the judges' stand, I like him that position. He generally gets the events off in good time and drivers have learned that he is not the man to countenance any "monkey" business.

San Jose has made the mistake of a good many other associations in putting its grand stand with its front toward the afternoon sun, making it a very uncomfortable place. The judges' stand is similarly placed and the reperter's box is blazing hot. Otherwise the grounds are admirable and could be made beatiful.

Capt. Ben Harris is the inventor of another scheme for starting horses, and it was used for the first time on the San Jose track Wednesday. Its first appearance was not a flattering one, judging from the starts, but it might amount to something after the jockeys get on to the method of the thing. It consists of a red flag on a staff. A cord runs from the staff to the starter. He is equipped with a huge breastplate in the shape of a gong. When the horses are in position the gong sounds, the string is pulled, and down comes the flag in front of them. The principal difficulties lie in the facts, that it must be transported to and set up at the different points of the track as the distances in the races are changed, and that each new starter will require a day or two for practice before he can use it.

Stoneman seems to be running in hard luck this year.

Betting has been very light at the meeting. All the ready money which the boys had at the beginning of the circuit, seems to have gone into the boxes already, and the betting which is done now is for bread and butter money, and the boys are very careful how they lay it.

A handsomer lot of draft horses are not found every day than have been seen here this year.

Superintendent Boyd who has charge of the show stock department has the finest looking lot of colts and fillies that I have seen in some time. They are all by Beverly Wilkes, the horse which Mr. Boyd brought out from Kentucky last year, and these are the first of his get seen in California, out of thirty mares served last season twenty-eight foals were dropped and lived. Of the dozen which have been on exhibition here I shall speak more at length later on.

UKIAH.

The Seventh Annual Fair of the Twelfth Agricultural Association, composed of Lake and Mendocino Counties, began here to-day. The beautiful little town of Ukiah is simply overrun, and each train brings new delegations. Accommodations are hard to find, and the private houses have nearly all been filled up. The weather is warm, but pleasant. Lake and this county divide the honor of holding the fair alternately each year, and Mendocino is most liberally patronized this year by its sister county.

The officers of the association are: President, L. F. Long; Secretary, S. H. Rice; and the Directors—Messrs. John Newhinney, O. V. P. Day, J. S. Reed, J. M. Marmon, L. G. Simmons, Maurice Keatinge and J. F. Burner. J. M. Standley, the Sheriff of the county, and widely known as the capturer of stage robbers, is a most efficient and painstaking superintendent of the track. The cattle and horse exhibit is most creditable and the best ever seen here. The Pavilion is situated in the center of the town, and is well filled, and the exhibits speak volumes for the enterprise of the citizens after their severe losses by the recent great fire here, that nearly destroyed the town.

The track, a half mile one, is very fair, although the turns are most too sharp and not thrown up enough. It is the intention of the association to next year build a fine mile track and new grand and judges' stands, and enlarge the number of stalls.

The races to-day were brought to an early close, owing to the Anteeo 2-year-old filly distancing the field in the first heat, and the failure to fill of another one of the races advertised.

The first race of the meeting was for a special purse of $75 for saddle horses, and brought out a field of four, in which Last Chance was a decided favorite in the pool box at $10, Fox bringing $5 and Wild Rock and Roan Frank as a field for $5. After a few trials, they got away well with the exception of Wild Rock, which bolted and was left at the post. Before the quarter was reached Fox had outrun the other two and led into the stretch by two lengths. He increased this to the wire and won as he pleased by six lengths. Time, 0:53¾.

The next and last race of the day was for a purse and stake of $145 for district two-year-olds, in which Lady Armington, in lively pool selling, brought $20 against $9 for Tommy C. and $4 for Advocatrix. The odds on the mare were fully justified as the other two were greatly outclassed, and she took the lead immediately on the tap of the bell, and began putting daylight between herself and them at a great rate. She had them both badly distanced in the first half mile, and kept coming on until the wire was reached in 3:08¾, and the others only at the three quarter pole. The winner is a very handsome brown filly by Anteeo, dam by Abbottsford, and is the property of R. J. Hudson, a Superior Judge of Lake County.

WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 2nd.

The second day of the Ukiah meeting was much better attended than the first. The grand stand which will seat about 300, had a crowd of nearly 350 in it and was an uncomfortable jam. Numerous carriages with families lined the fences of the stretch on both sides. The races were very fair and many pools were sold on the results Directors Simmons Keating and Mannon filled the stand; Director Simmons acted as starter for the running races, and demonstrated the fact that he knows nothing of the rules and is unsuited for the position in every particular.

President Long relieved him in the trotting race, and by several rulings plainly showed that he knows less of the duties of the position and less about the rules then his colleague Simmons. After the first heat when the drivers had weighed, President Long noticed that the trotters had gone to their stalls to be cooled out. He at once called the marshal (Sheriff Stanley) and told him to order the horses back on the track immediately. He then (ten minutes after the heat) gave them a long lecture, telling them that they ought to be heavily fined for breaking the National Association rules, in taking their horses out of sight of the judges during a race, and then ordered them to score at once for the next heat. Both drivers demurred, but under penalty of a heavy fine scored, and were tapped off in fifteen minutes after the termination of the previous heat. Immediately on the rendering of his decision of the second heat, and while it was still sun light, with plenty of time for two more heats to be trotted, he announced the postponement of the race until to-morrow, at 9 o'clock. When asked by the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S representative why he did so, he said that as each horse had won a heat there would be two more to trot. He did not think it could be finished to-night. None of the other judges or directors are able to assist in the deliberation, further than to do their best by a constant perusal of the rules, after the decision has been given.

In the first heat to-day a ⅝ running dash and repeat for a stake and purse of $160, Twilight sold in the pool box for more than both the others and justified the odds by winning the first, laying up the second, and winning the race in the third heat. Time, 0:38½, 0:40, 0:39½.

The second race excited great interest and as much enthusiam probably as a race would in San Francisco, between El Rio Rey, Reclare and Gregory. Although numbers of pools were sold $10 was the highest price paid for choice.

It was a dash of half a mile for a stake and purse of $160. The starters were well known fast short horses, belonging here. "Dick Turpin" sold for $10, against $9 for "Joe Hooker" and "Ace Full."

The race was a surprise to the "talent" for Ace Full won handily by a length from Turpin. The latters defeat was loudly attributed, by his backers and friends, to the incompetency of the starter, who kept them at the post for over an hour. The time :52 was very fair over such a track, and shows that they are indeed fast horses for a half mile.

The last race of the day was a special trot—3 in 5 for District Stallions, for a stake and purse of $160. After two heats the judges, not the lateness of the hour, caused the race to be postponed until to-morrow at nine o'clock. Sam Tilden won the second heat handily, as he would the first, had not his driver pulled him up at the end of the first half-mile, not knowing it was twice around for a mile.

If he had Victors speed, with the driver and sulky he had to-day, the pair would surely create more of a sensation on the grand circuit than did "Hayseed" last year. Harry Whippleton won the first heat. Mendocino Chief was distanced in the first heat by a quarter of a mile, but the judges came very near allowing him to start again on account of his trace coming loose in the first quarter of a mile. His driver came on with it this way, and when he did reach the wire the horse had pulled all his harness of but the bridle and saddle. The driver said he did not think he would be allowed to pull up until after he had completed, and persisted in his right to start again.

The time of the two miles trotted was 3:04½, 3:03¾.

UKIAH GOSSIP.

That is a good idea of the directors in covering the road to the track with straw. It effectually keeps the dust down which would be almost impossible to do by sprinkling.

A great many complaints are, and will be, made during the week on accoont of the announcements from the judges' stand being made in such a low tone of voice that none in the grandstand can hear.

Daly, the rider of Last Chance, to-day said the track was full of small stones and lots of them. He ought to know, for he was behind all the way.

In both Lake and Mendocino Counties, comprising the Twelfth District, horse love runs in the "shorthorse" groove. Very few trotters are raised or trained here, but they well represent themselves at the track with 600 yard and half mile horses.

Santa Barbara Races.

A beautiful day and a good track. The Fair grounds are filled with horses from all parts of the county, and the exhibition of fruits and agricultural products will be better this year than ever witnessed here. There was a good crowd at the races, and the prospects are that this will be the most successful Fair we have had. The speed programme was opened by a half mile and repeat. In the pools, Comet sold for $10 and the field for $4. Comet won the first heat easily. Time :50½, Lucy S second, Ella Hill third and Lone Star fourth. The second heat was won by Comet, Ella Hill second, Lone Star third and Lucy S fourth.

The second race was a sweepstake for two and three year odl colts sired by Dan Rice. Entrance fee $15 each. J. D. Doty adds $50 and the Association adds $50.

Pools sold on this race, Bullett $4, Lulu M $3, Flora $3. The first heat was an easy victory for Bullet, Flora second. Pools then sold, Bullet $5, field $3. In the second heat Flora had a new driver and Flora won easily. Bullet broke and never settled down to work. He was twice distanced. Mr. Stewart came to the judges and complained of Flora's driver. He said that his loud yelling had rattled his colt, and even if he had a chance to start again that he would win easily. His objections were overruled.

The third race was the three minute class, in which were entered good horses. In the pools Rucker sold for $10, Saxton $7, Red Wilkes $5 and Delta $2. The first heat was closely contested from start to finish, Rucker leading by half a length, Wilkes running all the way. They went to the first quarter in :42, Saxton leading, to the half in 1:22. Around the turn Rucker came up, and the race home was very close, Rucker winning by a short length. Time 2:45.

The second heat was very closely contested from wire to wire. They went to the quarter in :41, half in 1:23, three quarters in 2:02, home in 2:47, Rucker winning by a neck from Saxton, Delta third.

The third heat was fought from wire to wire by Saxton and Rucker, Saxton winning by a length. Pools sold after the third heat, Saxton $5, field $3. Rucker was quite lame and it was only his pluck that made him win. He won the last heat after a most desperate fight on the homestretch, and won from Saxton only by a nose.

This ended the day's sport, and all came away fully satisfied that the best horse had won in every race.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

SUMMARY.

The exhibition given by the Olympic Club at the Grand Opera House last Sunday evening was a big success. Some doubts exist as to whether the Olympic grounds will be ready or not by Thanksgiving Day. It is to be hoped that the athletes will not be disappointed a second time. The oarsmen are all busy getting into fix for the coming races, and the wheelmen are hardening their legs for the tournament which begins in the pavilion October 21.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

John Purcell may compe e in the pole vault and shot-putting events at the O. C. games. He will not have time to train for any of the other events.

A local evening paper recently made the assertion that Purcell was the first person to introduce cross-country runs on the Pacific Coast. We beg to differ with our esteemed contemporary on this point, and will say that cross-country runs were first held in this city under the auspices of the Albion Athletic Club three or four years ago.

One of the clubs should offer a trophy for a seven-mile walk. If handicapped properly, a race between Jarvis and Gafney would be worth witnessing.

Nearly every athlete in town was at the Olympic exhibition.

The boys were highly pleased at the large attendance, and anticipate a glorious future for out-door sports on the Pacific Coast.

A. A. Jordan, of the New York A. C., has challenged Malcom W. Ford, of the Staten Island A. C., holder of the individual general athletic championship, to contend at all-round athletics for a $500 prize, the money for which Jordan has placed on deposit as an evidence of sincerity. Jordan bars the run from the list of events to be contested, for the reason that, in his opinion, it gives a sprinter the advantage. For this reason Ford declines the challenge, holding that Jordan's objection thereto is unreasonable.

Several Scottish athletes will meet athletes of any other country at Paris, France, October 17, 18, or any other day during that month in a series of athletic games, for the championship of the world and gold vases and cash to the amount of 800 guineas.

James Albert, the celebrated long distance walker, distinguished himself at Atlantic City, September 8th, by leaping into the angry surf and rescuing from drowning an aged lady who had been knocked off the board walk at Jackson's bathing establishment. Albert was loudly applauded for his brave act.

During the present year at least a half a dozen sprinters throughout the United States were credited with having run a hundred yards under ten seconds. We think a good ten second man could give any of them five yard's start and a beating.

The special features of the annual fall games of the Manhattan Athletic Club, held on Saturday, September 21, were the two-mile steeplechase and the ten-mile run, both for the championship of America, and the interest felt by amateur athletes and their supporters in the result of those events did much to draw to the grounds on Eighth Avenue a good sized assemblage. The weather was not highly favorable, for although they were spared the threatening rain, a high, cold wind swept across the grounds. The entries for the various events were quite numerous, and excellent sport was had, with the two special events being won by A. B. George and Sydney Thomas, both British-bred and reared athletes. Aside from these events, perhaps the most exciting contest was the furlong hurdle race, in which Copland and Schewgler again met. The former was scratch man, but was penalised six feet for false starts, and the Staten Islander, who was on the one-yard mark, managed to win by six inches, in the fast time of 26s. The runners, however, were favored by the stiff wind blowing toward the finish of the sprints. Summary:

One hundred and fifty yards run—Final heat: J. R. McMullen, B. A. C., 12 yds. start, first, in 15s; George Schwegler, Staten Island A. C., 6½ yds., second, by 6 ft.; J. P. Lee, New York A. C., 5½ yds., third, 2 ft. behind.

Half mile run—W. Lennon, Waverly A. C., 45 yds. start, first, in 2m 1s; W. C. Dohm, New York A. C., scratch, second, by 4 yds; Stewart Barr, Staten Island A. C., 22 yds, third, 5 ft behind.

Running long jump—W. B. Coster, New York A. C., allowed 2 ft 6 in, first, actual jump, 19 ft 9 in; F. R. Wells, Ridgefield A. C , 2 ft, second, 19 ft 11 in; S. J. King, Columbia A. C., Washington, 1 ft 6 in, third, 20 ft 5 in.

Hurdle race, 220 yds—Final heat: George Schwegler, Staten Island A. C., 1 yds, start, first, in 26s; A. F. Copland, Manhattan A. C., scratch (penalized two yards), second, by 6 in; P. C. Puffer, New Jersey, A. C., 9 yds, third.

One mile run—J. Reid, American A. C., 150 yds, first, in 4m 32 3 5s; T. Owens, West Side A. C., 95 yds, second, by 6 ft; Thos. P. Conneff, Manhattan A. C., scratch, third, 3 yds behind, his time being 4m 35s. The long starts and big field combined proved more than "Tommy" could overcome.

Ten mile run, championship of America —Sidney Thomas, Ranelagh Harriers, England, first in: one mile, 5m 17s; two miles, 10m 35s; three, 15m 54s; four, 21m 16 2-5s; five, 26m 41 3-5s; six, 32m 7 4-5; seven, 37m 37 1-5s; eight, 43m 8 1-5s; nine, 48m 40 1-5s; ten, 53m 58 4-5s. W. T. Young, Manhattan A. C., 2d, by about 50yds; S. T. Freeth, Staten Island A. C., 3d, the latter being allowed to stop at 9 miles and a half, as all the other starters except those named had dropped out. Thomas, who made a needless spurt down the homestretch, was completely run out at the close.

Two-mile steeplechase, championship—A. B George Manhattan A. C. first in 11m 17 2-5s; E. Hjertberg, New Jersey A. C., second, by 200 yds; S. T. Stagg, Prospect Harriers, third, 100 yds away.

Half-mile run, club members, Storm Medal—D. I. Tompkins, 13ds, start, first, in 2m 22 1-5s; A. P. Roth, 50yds, second, by 6 ft. The medal is now Tompkins' personal property.

Two-mile walk—C. Nichol, Prospect Harriers, 1m 36s, start, first, in 15m 51 2-5s; J. B. Keating, Pastime A. C , 1m, second, by 5 yds; C. Wulff, Pastime A. C., 45s, third, 10 yds behind.

Throwing 16-lb hammer—C. A. J. Queckberner, Staten Island A. C., allowed 3ft, actual throw 125ft 6in; E Giannini, New York A. C., 3ft, second, 92ft 10in; B. C. Davis, B. A. C , 3ft, third, 89ft 6in.

Quarter-mile run—Final heat: L. R. Sharp, New York A. C., 28 yds, first, in 50 3-5s; W. J. Dixon, Manhattan A. C., 30 yds., second, by 5 inches; J. C. Devereaux, Manhattan A. C., 8yds, third, by 5ft.

Bicycle race, mile and a half—Final heat: F. G. Brown, New Jersey A. C., 60yds start, first, in 4m 46 4-5s; F. B. Hesse, New Jersey A. C , 55 yds, second, by 8 yds; A. C. Banker, Berkeley A. C., scratch, third, 10 yds off.

E. L. Stones, the English champion pole vaulter, gave an exhibition, but, owing to the cold wind, he could not get higher than 10 feet.

UNEQUALLED HAMMER THROWING.

The Warren Athletic club, of Willmington, Del., held their most successful field meeting on Sept. 21st. The feature was the one hand throw of a 16 lb. hammer, from a 7 ft circle, at which game W. L. Condon of the New York A. C. sent the missle a distance of 120 ft 5¼ in, being the best on record. Summary of games:—

THE WHEELMAN.

Sanford Plummer is training hard and will enter some of the amateur races at the Pavilion. His best distance is ten miles.

We hope to see the smiling face of H. A. Matthews at the tournament. He should stand a good chance of winning the long distance race.

From all accounts Tom Rose will reach Chicago inside of the limited time. He is getting along nicely and is warmly received wherever he stops along the road.

The professional riders Knapp and Morgan, and their team of lady riders, practice daily at the Height street grounds. They will all be in good trim for the coming tournament, and one or two records may be lowered.

The track in the Pavilion will be built at once so that the riders may have a chance to practice in-doors previous to the opening of the tournament.

Valuable prizes will be given for the amateur events.

IN THE SURF.

The swimming races of the Terrace Club will be held early next month.

Greenbaum, Spiller and Dall are doing splendid practice work and all three men will surely capture prizes at the tournament.

The Lurline Club will not hold its swimming tournament this year.

The Terrace Club should include a fetching contest on their programme.

The managers of the Shelter Cove Baths will build a new diving tower next year. It will be seventy-five feet high, with spring boards at intervals of ten feet.

The Terrace Baths were crowded on Sunday last and several well known swimmers were noticed in the water.

Another accident happened at the Crystal Baths last week, and still the proprietors have made no effort to hang up notices cautioning the bathers not to dive in shallow water.

Pinckham has been defeated twice by Sundstrom, and in a few weeks the New Yorker will again strive to down the Pacific Coast champion at his favorite distance, one hundred yards. Although the Eastern swimmer failed to down Pinckham at this distance, still a good many are inclined to believe that when they meet again at Fresno, if the race is not already fixed, Sundstrom will win.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The P. C. A. A. A. should inflict a heavy fine on any club whose delegate fails to attend its meetings regularly. The associate clubs will then take the pains to see that men chosen as delegates are competent to officiate.

Since the Pacific Athletic club moved to its new quarters several new names have been added to its membership roll.

The new grounds of the Olympic Athletic Club are not ready by Thanksgiving Day the games will probably be held at Mechanics Pavilion.

The Harbor View training grounds at present contain several dime museams. The proprietors have themselves to blame for not coming to terms with the directors of the C. A. C.

Despite the rumors to the contary the Pacific Athletic Club will no doubt be admitted to membership in the P. C. A. A. A. The young club means well and should be encouraged.

THE OLYMPIC EXHIBITION.

The Grand Opera House on Saturday night last, was crowded from ochestra to the super-gallery by an audience which may fairly be said to have been representative of all that is choicest in several circles of San Francisco. Leading ladies in society were present in numbers. The clubs of the city sent large delegations. Professed admirers of athletics by hundreds held favorable seats, and what space remained was closely filled by those to whom a thoroughly, good and unexceptionable exhibition by the club is always a drawing card. The entresol was bedded in elegant flower pieces, fresh from the deft hand of Mr. A. H. Lean Some of the pieces were very large and exquisite in design, notably those presented by the Olympic Club to Mr. John E. Dempsey, Mr. George La Blanche, Mr. Jimmie Carroll, Mr. John Donaldson, Mr. Mike Lucie and that king of boxers, Mr. J. J. Corbett.

The California and the Golden Gate Athletic Clubs kindly permitted their brilliant instructors in sparring to appear, and the former engaged the lower proscenium box, in which sat several of the noted men who have piloted the club through many embarrassments to its present enviable position as the first organization of the kind in the world, among them being President L. R. Fulda, Director Edward Fay, Director W. R. Vice and Referee Hiram B. Cook. The Board of Directors of the Olympic Club, is entitled to any degree of praise for the excellence of the programme, the smoothness with which number followed number, and the magnificent success of the exhibition. The show was perfect. Every participant was on hand, and full of vim. The net receipts exceeded $1,400, which will be used in improving the out-door grounds recently secured by the club. The entertainment was begun by Vice-President R. P. Hammond Jr., with a neatly phrased little speech in which the reasons for the exhibition were stated. In closing his talk, Mr. Hammond presented to the vast audience, Mr. William Greer Harrison, President of the Olympic Club, who has just returned after three months stay abroad. The roar of applause which greeted Mr. Harr son bespoke more eloquently than words could, the esteem in which that splendid officer, indispensable man, and invaluable member of the Olympic Club is held. Mr. Harrison resumed the reins on Monday last, Mr. Hammond acting as conductor of the exhibition.

The opening tab eau was indeed a pretty sight and reflected great credit on the club. The pedestal club swinging was perfect, and Messrs. Vaughan, McGill and Smyth well earned the applause bestowed upon them. The sparring by the juvenile class was clever, one little chap giving promise of being another Corbett. The horizontal bar act by Prince John Hammersmith, leader of the club, assisted by Ben Bogner, was excellent. Mr. Hammersmith did not seem to have lost any of his old time grace, agility, and daring, and maintained his prestige as the finest gymnast in America. Mr. Bogner makes an excellent clown and his very clever feats on the bar showed him to be an expert at the business. The sparring by professionals was interesting, and the champions, especially Mr. "Jack" Dempsey, fell in for plenty of applause, and a few of them were almost smothered in flowers presented by admirers.

The dueling scene was realistic, in fact painfully so to Professor Henri Ansot. Professor Tronchet displayed great skill in his art, and had the duel continued much longer Professor Ansot might have received a bad wound; as it was his forearm was badly cut.

The wand exercise by the juvenile class was quite a novelty, and the youngsters were loudly applauded for the good time which they kept.

In the wrestling bouts some of the contestants showed great knowledge of the science, and their excellent work exacted much interest. The pyramids by the juveniles were loudly applauded. The dissolving tableaux greatly interested the audience, and Professors Corbett and Donaldson received quite an ovation for their clever work.

Comparisons need not be made where all parts of the show were so fine, and it must suffice to present a summary.

AT THE OARS.

The professional crews are training hard for the coming championship race.

Several amateur crews took a spin on the Bay on Sunday last. The crack crew for the Ariel Club, in charge of I. I. Larkey, showed up in good shape.

The man with the one lap start won the race at Lake Merritt on Sunday last. The prize was $50. The men will arrange another match race, when the winner will receive only half a round of the lake start. The stakes will probably be increased.

Although the majority of the sporting men are inclined to risk their money on the South End Crew, still some of the knowing ones cling to the idea that the Ariel men will win the championship honors.

The championship four-oared badge race will be decided over the Alameda course on the first Sunday in November. Four crews will compete, the Ariel, South End, Dolphin and a crew composed of two men from each of the Stockton clubs. The race will be for the championship of the Pacific Coast, a purse of $500 and a challenge cup valued at $1000.

It is now claimed that O'Connor sold his race with Searle We are sorry for those who believe this to be the case. We think the Canadian is of too manly a spirit to do any such dirty work, and all sensible men will uphold that the Australian won solely on his merits.

Edward J. Carney, the crack single sculler of the Institute Boat Club, of Newark, N. J., has been ordered to appear before the Executive Committee of the National Association, of Amateur Oarsmen, to show cause why he should not be disqualified for participating in the regatta of the New England Association held at Boston on Labor Day. The cause of the trouble is that J. J. Murphy, who had been disqualified by the association for being a professional, rowed in the race.

Edward Hanlan is ready to make a match to meet Neil Matterson, George Bubear or Wallace Ross in England, provided any two of them will guarantee him a race for $500 a side each, and allow reasonable expenses.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: — Please accept my warmest thanks for copy of BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. What a wonderful paper you have made out of it. You had better go a bit slow. I knew of a similar excellent paper that recently went to the wall because of extravagant enlargement and lavish expenditure. It must have cost a whole lot of money to get up this magnificent issue, playing hob with many a paid up subscription. My copy is invaluable.

C. L. LUNDY.

Cincinnati, Sept. 26th, 1889.

[Mr. Lundy's premonitions of disaster to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN are made in ignorance of several facts which may interest both that gentleman and other friends of the paper. The journal is an accomplished fact. Seven years of undeviating endeavor to conduct it legitimately, squarely and always on the highest plane have been rewarded as such effort generally is. The paper holds undisputed sway as the authority, within its provinces, of the Western slope. Its continuance is no longer a matter of doubt. It is growing rapidly in all ways; is aggressive, enthusiastic, willing to enlarge its already great army of readers, and is perfectly healthy.—ED.]

Corvallis Club.

EDITOR RREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The Corvallis Rod and Gun Club held a trap meeting on September 24th, using the Keystone trap, set at high tension, which accounts in a measure for some of the lower scores. The club will hereafter shoot on every Friday afternoon, and will undoubtedly soon show better work. The match was at 20 single Peoria Blackbirds, American Shooting Association Rules.

State Sportsman's Association.

The annual convention of the California State Sportsman's Association will be held at San Jose, commencing October 9th and continuing for four days. This meeting promises to be the most interesting of any yet held, and ought to result in great benefit to the game and fish interests of the State. It is through this association, that all of the game and fish protective laws now on our statute books have been passed, and it is to this association that we must look not only for the protection of game and fish, but for the protection of forests from the devastating fires now so prevalent.

Sportsmen (not market and pot hunters) are lovers of nature and fond of the pleasures the forests afford. But aside from this, they know that in order to protect the game and fish, they must protect the forest—the habitation of the game. They know that if the shade that aligns the mountain stream is destroyed, that the trout cannot live in the heated waters. They know that if the mountains are denuded, they would search in vain for deer. They therefore become doubly interested in the preservation and extension of the forest trees of the State, and, no doubt, at the coming session of the Legislature, they will take some steps toward placing the care of the forests of the State in hands that will do something toward its protection. If they do, good results can be expected, instead of the do-nothing policy at present pursued.—H, T. Payne in Los Angeles Tribune.

To the Top of Mt. Whitney.

[By C. E. Sherman.]

V.

From ancient landmarks the Enthusiast was led to recall to the band, the name and memory of the late Judge Deering. One of the most impartial judges who ever graced the bench of California, none abler than he ever presided over a District Court in this State. Bakersfield will ever be indebted to him for having the County Seat within its limits. A discussion re-opened the County Seat fight, and the last battle is here given at more length.

May 26, 1875, suit was commenced by Wigginton & Marks as attorneys for F. W. Goodale, Havilah member of the Board of Supervisors, against Solomon Jewett and John Narboe, Supervisors, D. A. Sinclair, Treasurer, and the contractors, to prevent the erection of the Court House, and Judge Reel granted a preliminary injunction. R. E. Houghton was employed by the County to defend the action. The case was removed to Merced County and the matter again came before Judge Deering. It was argued by Mr. Houghton and by Messrs. Wigginton & Marks, and in July 1875, Judge Deering made an order dissolving the injunction. A demurrer to the complaint was then interposed, and it was sustained by Judge Deering and judgment entered in favor of the defendants. The judgment and order dissolving the injunction were acquiesced in by everyone, and no appeal was taken to the Supreme Court. The contractors who had suspended work during the pendency of the injunction, then went on and completed the Court House.

By a chance, Time slept, and at 11 A. M., July 31st, with a temperature of 90 degrees and an elevation of 3,500 feet above the sea, the Pilgrims escaped from Havilah, following the gently descending canyon of Copperas Creek to its end, and then climbing by a winding mountain road through a saddle, in itself high, yet dwarfed by the giant mountains on either flank. At the summit unfolds the View Beautiful. Far away, yet directly beneath, is a tiny spot of green, set in the varied browns of arid plains, and surrounded on all sides by the purple to black tints of towering mountains. And away off, at almost the farthest sight, as if fastening this beautiful medallion to something yet unseen, with a shining silver thread, is given the first glimpse of glorious Kern River. And where the silvery waters faded out of sight, up and up, one above another, towered the peaks of a mountain chain, toward Mt. Whitney, which crowns them all. To rapidly descend into the valley of the Hot Springs; to halt, rest and lunch beside one of the tiny mountain streams, all of which pay tribute to their Cæsar, the river of Kern, was a duty, a delight, and a substantial comfort to the Pilgrim band.

In 1854, gold was first discovered in Kern County, by a party of emigrants who camped in a gulch on Greenhorn Mountains—across Kern River from the Hot Spring Valley. In April, 1854, Captain Maltby, with a party composed of Messrs. Lawson, Brown and Way discovered a quartz mine, naming it the Mammoth. Maltby erected a mill and worked the mine very successfully for two years. The river bars were also extensively worked about this almanac time. Just across the river from this valley, in a cove nestling at the foot of the Greenhorn Mountains in '55 Richard Keys and Jonathan Crandall discovered the Keys mine, and shortly afterward the rapidly growing mining camp was christened Keysville, by Abiah T. Lightner in honor of this mine, which was the richest of the group. Captain Blackburn opened the first store in 1855, followed in '56 by Marsh & Kennedy, and afterward by many others. In '68 Keysville had seven quartz mills, about 400 inhabitants and was a base of supplies for at least a thousand miners in that and adjacent districts. Those were the days of long haired men, flour sack patches upon the region devoted to breech-clouts, gold dust in careless generosity, and unlimited monte. The camp was always self-supporting; the Keys mine used to yield an abundance of quartz paying $300 in gold to the ton; no outside capital was invested there, and the group of mines must have yielded at least $2,000,000 in gold. Now, like the real wedding, when a golden one is being celebrated, it is only a memory.

A downright good entertainment was once offered there. There was a case in court, and the justice then presiding is living in Bakersfield to this day. An attorney applied for a change of venue, alleging that he could not get and did not expect justice in that Court. After a few words from the attorney to the Court, the justice remarked, "I will now adjourn court for five minutes until I can whip the ——— rascal." Court adjourned, the Justice kept his word like a man, the attorney got his deserts, and the case went to trial upon its merits, without change of venue.

In those days the Springs were a noted bathing resort and in the valley many an exciting horse race was lost and won. After the earthquake of 1873, that one which was so deadly and destructive in Inyo County, the temperature of the water was materially increased. Before that time one could comfortably bathe right in the sort of tank which had been worked out around the spring, but afterward the waters would have parboiled any one who dared to venture in. Since then and until the present time the temperature is slowly diminishing, but has not in these many years fallen back to the point from which it jumped in a single night.

The Hot Springs Valley was once the bed of Kern River, and will some day be one of the great reservoirs necessary for the wants of irrigation. Its soil is naturally fertile, and whenever baptized by water, smiles back with luxuriant vegetation. In places, there is an alkaline crust, and a wire grass that attracts the educated donkey from all the points of the compass. It is the Jack's paradise. They are always in the valley, and when there is no other living thing to be seen, there they are reveling in contentment. Equus Asinus; pride of ancestry? Aye! even upon such as he, Christ rode into Jerusalem. Hope of posterity? Ever. Thoroughbred? Jacob could not have changed his markings, with all the ring-streaked ante-natal wands in Laban's fields. His dainty hoof, always surefooted, often fatal, never requiring any of man's mechanisms, cannily courses over valley sands, mountain pebbles, and foothill second growth, with never a change in its aristocratic firmness and instep. As his remote ancestry munched the byways and alleys of uneatable things, even so he of to-day. A township line, or a rise in stocks, a chest protector or a bride's first loaf of bread, all are eaten alike and with equal gusto, straight or in the soup of decay, by this remarkable historic survival: And at the end, this wide eyed son of antiquity, gently folds his ears, and betakes himself to some undiscovered Mount Nebb, and no man knoweth of his sepulture to this day. But one dead jack was ever seen of man, and he was unexpectedly drowned, very much to his surprise, and quite against his will.

The late mountain fires in San Mateo County have driven the deer, quail and rabbits to this side of the mountains, and hunters have secured good bags.

The Belmont marshes have been so crowded with hunters of late that it was considered dangerous to hunt in some places.

Louis Werder killed twelve teal and one mallard on Sunday near Belmont.

It is reported by Menlo hunters that wild ducks are becoming quite plentiful in the neighborhood of Ravenwood.

Rail are more plentiful in the vicinity of West Point, near Flood's lake, than in any other section around the bay.

Fifteen deer have been killed on the stage road on the mountain back of Redwood City since the fires.

Fishermen report fish very scarce in the Pescadero and Butano creeks. Local hunters are not killing any game for the market this season, consequently quail and rabbits are plentiful.

Ducks are plentiful on the bay shore of the marshes, but very few are found in the creeks near the town.

While the stage was coming from Pescadero to San Mateo last week the passengers saw seven deer trotting along the road ahead.

E. L. Fisher, of Redwood City was out hunting yesterday and returned with a good bag of quail. He went up to the foot of the fire near West Union.

The county of San Mateo, owing to its proximity to the metropolis, is frequented by more lovers of nature and true sportsmen, than any other county in California. Its creeks which empty into the ocean, and its lakes and reservoirs, afford delightful sport for the disciples of Izaak Walton, and its grand hills, woods and canyons, as well as the sloughs and marshes on the bay side, are frequented by local and metropolitan nimrods, who nearly always find good shooting, varying according to the season. Deer are found on the hills and in the canyons, quail are plentiful, dove shooting usually good, duck, rail, curlew, plover and snipe abound in the marshes—and taken all in all, considering how easy of access the shooting grounds are from the center of population, among sportsmen San Mateo county is the most popular section in the State. Railroad travel is cheap, the county roads are the best in the State, hotel and stable accomodations in the towns and villages are ample, stages connect daily with the railroad, the scenery is grand, and the climate is delightful. In fact, there is everything there to invite the citizen of the metropolis who is wearied from work.

Encouraging.

Deputy Fish Commissioner F. P. Callundan, of San Francisco, returned on September 30th, from the Klamath river, where he was directed by Fish Commissioner Routier to stop the destruction of salmon at the Klamath River Improvement and Milling Company, as requested by the Governor of Oregon. He reported that the wholesale killing of fish had been stopped, and that he had arrested seven fishermen at the dam on the charge of catching salmon out of season. Though the fisherman admitted having violated the law, the jury that tried them could not come to an agreement. The next day after Mr. Callundan reached the dam the owners inserted a fishway, as ordered by the Fish Commissioner. No trouble at this place is expected hereafter.

Special Deputy Fish Commissioners J. M. Sullivan and Ned Riley have returned from the headwaters of the Sacramento river, where they were enforced the law passed by the last Legislature prohibiting the dumping of sawdust into the river or streams. They arrested William Sulleway & Son, mill owners, at Sissons, and Nelson Anderson, the owner of a large mill at Sweet Briar. In the Justice's court they pleaded guilty and each was fined $50, and promised in the future to impound the sawdust.

Deputy Fish Commissioners Sanders of Susanville and Smith of Placerville reported that the mill owners in their counties have complied with the law.

The Largest Trout in the World.

The combined arts of pisculture and acclimatization have completely upset all the old-fashioned ideas as to where to go for sport, and also as to size and habits of even the most familiar kind of fish, says Forest and Stream. If any of the most noted American anglers were asked to say, at a word, where the biggest trout in the world are to be caught, they would probably be puzzled for an answer, and the chances are a hundred to one that they would give a wrong one. Those who have the "inside notion," however, would have not a moment's hesitation in replying, "New Zealand, for a thousand dollars." There are several rivers in New Zealand —mostly in the Middle Island—where for some reason not clearly ascertained the trout grow much more rapidly and to a larger size than elsewhere. One of these is the Opihi, in South Canterbury, on which is situated the picturesque village of Temuka. I have myself seen an honest brown trout there weighing 28 pounds, and a firmer or better fish I never saw. I have known 40 pounds of trout killed in the Opihi with one rod in a single evening, and not a long evening either, for darkness falls very suddenly in those latitudes. In the same river fish weighing 30 pounds have been taken and eaten and found delicious.

I happen to know the country about there well, and I attribute the great size and good quality of the trout in the Opihi, to the fact that the river, which rises in the snowy mountains, does not flow into the sea at all, but into a large, deep lagoon, many miles long, which only breaks out into the sea at flood times, though the sea water penetrates into it through the shingle bank, or flows over into it during stormy weather. This lagoon is, in fact, like an inclosed arm of the sea, and is alive with little fish, crabs, and all sorts of marine, and semi-marine creatures.

Here the trout can get any quantity of food, and from the depth and saltness of the water, they develop some of the characteristics of salmon, the red flesh and the large size, without being exposed to the attacks of the ravenous seafish. The Mataura, in South Otago, another snow river running into a lagoon, has trout as large as those in the Opihi. A friend of mine who is a true angler, Mr. Alexander Ferguson, manager of the National Bank at Christchurch, Canterbury, to whom I applied for some authentic particulars of sport during the season just over, wrote to me, to follow me to America, as follows: "Brown trout weighing 20 lbs. and upward have been landed with rod and line, from streams both in the north and south of Canterbury, during the past season. On the Selwyn, a stream fifteen miles from Christchurch, three rods killed twenty-one fish weighing 144lbs., on the 17th of December, with natural bait, bullhead and smelt (small fish indigenous to the river). On the same day, two rods killed sixty-one trout weighing 41½lbs. with artificial fly, in a stream flowing into the Selwyn."

The very big fish are generally caught with natural bait, or with an artificial minnow, the Devon being considered specially effective. But I have known several huge fellows landed through the seductions of a cockchafer or a large grasshopper.

Judges vs. Drivers.

During the past six weeks the unwelcome news comes through the sporting press that at several of the meetings on the big circuit, there have been rumors of crookedness in connection with some of the principal trotting and pacing events. The first rumor came from Buffalo, and almost every week since there have been insinuations cast on the probity of some one in almost every great race. Our correspondent, over his own signature, this week, tells what the general impression was in Boston on the night of the $10,000 stallion race. These stories all tend to injure the best interests of racing, and they are even more injurious than if they were true, for in many instances there is no foundation for the idle words of men, who know not whereof they speak. To illustrate a case it is only necessary to point to the race that Emma Temple won at Stockton. Alfred G. was the favorite before the first heat, his great contest at Oakland with Atto Rex, stamping him as one of the best young horses of the year. It is true Hazel Wilkes and Lorita had made low marks and both had proved themselves game, but it was not thought for an instant by those who had watched the horses closely on the circuit that they could do much more than exercise him. He won the first heat, but was beaten in the second, he not being at himself, the epizootic having taking a firm hold of Anteeo's best son. Immediately on the conclusion of the heat, the story was retailed that Dustin was not "out for the money" and a request was made to change drivers. Dustin stepped down and out and Donathan was put up instead. There is no fault to find with Mr. Donathan, but he is so much over weight that what little chance there was for the backers of the colt was completely gone, especially in view of the fact that Mr. Dustin understands the youngster perfectly having given him his first work, and has driven him ever since the Napa meeting, and the new driver had never pulled a rein over him before. Before the judges had decided to change the driver careful consideration should have been paid to all the bearings in the case, for there is hardly any horseman but what thinks the outcome would have been different if the change had not been effected. Whenever the average bettor does not win in straight heats, he is willing to cry fraud and assist to take the bread out of the mouths of deserving men. Gentlemen who go into the stand should be well up in everything that pertains to the sport, and at the same time should have firmness enough not to listen to all the talk which the man with one five dollar pool ticket is only too willing to carry.

Lord Bryon.

Immediately after the entries were made on August 1st., threats of protest were heard from all quarters Re Lord Byron who was entered in the 2:30 class and yet Wallace's Year Book shows that at Butte, Montana, on August 10, 1888, he made a record of 2:29. It was assumed at once that a mistake had been made by the manager of Mr. Daly's stable and enquiry was set on foot to prove the record if possible. Letters were written to J. H. Wallace asking him, where he received his information from; to the secretary of the association at Butte, to the daily papers at Butte, and to several gentlemen who were present when the race was trotted. Answers have been received, and there can be no further argument in the case, the second heat was trotted in 2:29¼, and therefore he was eligible to start in the 2:30 class.

Pacific Coast Association.

During the meeting of the PacificCoast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, which begins next Saturday, a convention of delegates will be held from the principal tracks throughout the Coast. The object it to determine whether it is practical to start another trotting association, based on the same lines as the "American" and the "National." Some two months ago the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN sent circular letters to all the prominent horsemen of the West, and received such replies that it was evident that all interested are ripe for a change. The very negligent manner in which business has been conducted by the old Associations and the way the rules respecting penalties are at present in vogue between tht two older organizations seems to warrant the assumption that a new organization is really necessary for the proper protection of the trotting horse interests of the Pacific Coast. It is desired that a full representation be present, and where it is impossible to send delegates, each track Association should be present by proxy. As the Breeders' Meeting promises to be one of the best held in the State, this will afford the visiting delegates a fine opportunity to witness some grand races. Secretaries of all associations are requested to call the attention of their directors to this meeting.

Our Australian Letter.

SYDNEY, Sept. 4, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—In speaking of trotting races in my last letter, I stated that, with the exception of the Sydney Driving Park, trotting races were not indulged in by any of the Sydney Suburban Race Course proprietors. I should have added the Canterbury Park Race Club, where a programme of trotting races is set down for the 23d of September, the items including a maiden trot for 50 sovs; a 2:50 class trot for 50 sovs, and a 2-mile time handicap trot for 250 sovs.

Dr. Slate, an American dentist, having a large practice in Sydney, and one of our most prominent trotting horse owners, was recently disqualified by the Melbourne authorities under rather peculiar circumstances. A Mr. Lamonte took upon himself the office of writing to Dr. Slate, asking him to enter a trotter called Creole for a race in Sydney. This the Doctor did, being unaware at the time that Mr. Strettle, the owner of Creole had entered the horse for the same race. Mr. Strettle reported the matter to the Victorian Turf Club, of which he is a member, and that body thought fit to pass disqualification upon him. The matter was referred to the Sydney Driving Park Club, who refused to endorse their action, and upon Dr. Slate the other day instituting an action at law against the Victorian Turf Club, they cried peccavi and removed the ban. (Dr. Slate was formerly Assistant American Consul, while Col. Kahlo was the representative. The Mr. Lamonte referred to was for many years a resident of Oroville in this State.—ED.)

"Stiff" running is carried on out here to an alarming extent, and the in-and-out running of Colonial horses is something to be remembered. We certainly have a few straight-goers, but they can be reckoned up in a very short space of time. More particularly at the "rat" or Suburban meetings is the stiff running indulged in, when before every race is started each horse and jockey undergoes a careful scrutiny by the knowing ones, and if the former has its plates on and the latter is without spurs, the pair are looked upon as not "on the job." Sometimes an example is made of the owner or jockey—more especially if they are not among the influential crowd; but as a rule nothing much short of pulling a horse's head clean off will lead to disqualification. At a recent Rosehill meeting a horse ran in a race with six stone up, and finished pretty well last. Later on in the day the same horse went out apparently friendless with 8 stone 10 lbs up and won cleverly from a good field, drawing comment next day from the local papers that the owner had refused to take £100 to £2 about him. However, the writer of this knew on very good authority that the owner had backed his horse—through a friend—to win him a very tidy sum.

The Hon. James White is one of our straight-goers, but so far as his case goes it pays to be honest, as he yearly wins a princely sum in stakes alone. As an instance of the horses running for Mr. White last season: At the first day of the V. R. C. autumn meeting in 1888 Mr. White annexed four races in succession with Carlyon, Volley, Abercorn and Cranbrook. No need for a man to run crooked with such a team as he raises year after year.

Correze, the two year old which promises to be the best colt of his years, ought to be fast, if breeding goes for anything, he being by Newminster from Ouida, by Yattendon—My Fancy by Blair Athol. He is a most headstrong beast. At his first showing at Rosehill he galloped twice round the course after winning with ridiculous ease; and after winning Tattersall's two year old stakes at Tattersall Club's August meeting, he dashed across the course and into the fence, both horse and jockey coming down a crusher. Correze lay stunned for some seconds, but soon got up, and was led away, young Fielder, one of our crack jockeys, escaping with a shaking. Some idea of the horse's speed may be gained from the fact that in the latter race he ran the half mile in the rattling time of 49¾ seconds.

The principal event at Tattersall's August meeting, the Spring Handicap resulted in a big surprise, the winner turning up in Bustler, a horse by Marvellous—Secret. When the weights first came out for this event, Mr. C. T. Roberts, the owner of Bustler, was, or pretended to be, very wrath, and threatened to vent his grievance in the press as to the over weighing of his horse, but the events have shown that the handicappers had gauged the horse better than his owner. The two favorites, the much fancied Singapore and Bernardo were easily defeated, but the writer will not be surprised to see them show up later in the season, as neither of them was properly wound up, Bernardo in particular, grunting like a hog.

A few statistics as to our winning sires during the season of 1888-89, may interest your readers. The mighty Musket, recently deceased, the property of the New Zealand Stud Company, heads the list, he having begot thirty-one winners, who annexed in Australia and New Zealand, the handsome sum of £19,613. The Drummer, by Rataplan—My Niece comes next, but a long way below with £7971 for twenty six winners. Martini—Henry, a son of Musket from Sylvia, takes third place with three winners who appropriated £6,151. Your Darebin sired six winners who won nine races for £1781; Sir Modred one winner, two races £580, and Cheviot scored two races with two winners for £298. Before my next letter leaves here the Hawkesbury, (near Sydney) and Australian Jockey Clubs' Spring Meetings will have become things of the past, so that a big budget of news may be expected from your humble servant. THE JUNGLE.

Scientific Horse-Shoeing.

Among the things that mark the wonderful progress of the day in matters pertaining to the horse and race-track, not the least interesting is the development of the farrier's trade into a science—a profession that requires study and natural aptitude. Our leading trainers appreciate the inestimable value of a perfectly balanced and scientifically adjusted shoe, and a careful comparison of time made under different styles of shoeing has always demonstrated the importance of seeking only the most skillful farriers. The handiwork of the expert farrier has in many instances decided the race between otherwise equally matched horses, and intelligent work is now taking the place of the "rule of the thumb" in shoeing horses. Among horsemen of the country, San Francisco is becoming noted for the excellency of this branch of skilled workmanship; and among the most skillful and best known scientific horse-shoers, we take pleasure in referring to Messrs. Boyd & Morgan, who have recently opened a shop at 413 Taylor Street, adjoining the Club Stables, where scientific shoeing of cracked trotters and valuable horses will be a speciality. Mr. Boyd gives his personal supervision to this branch of the work, and has shod some of the most notable horses that ever made a record on a race track, and that, too, at short notice, and under the critical supervision of the best judges who were vitally interested in the excellence of his performance of the work in hand. Mr. Boyd comes to us indorsed by Mr. Goldsmith, Dick Havey, Walter Maben, W. H. Parker, J. W. Donathan, W. H. Houser, Ayers, Campbell, McDowell, L. M. Morse, Dr. W. H. Jones, M. R. C. V. S.

Grim's Gossip.

There is a letter at this office for Mr. Freidhofer.

In the black list sent this week from the American Association there appear the names of several Californian horses.

Axtell, 2:14; Sunol, 2:16½; Lillian Wilkes, 2:17¾; Allerton, 2:18½; Faust, 2:18½—quite a quintet of three-year-olds for one season.

The New York Sporting World has broken all previous records by naming seven winners at Gravesend in one day. It will be many a day before that record is beaten.

Mr. Whitney has had Dawn sent to the Bay District Track to prepare him for the great contest in the National Stallion Stakes, which takes place Saturday, the 12th inst.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake is sure to be a grand success, as assurance come in every day that the entry list will far surpass anything ever seen in California.

The Healdsburg meeting promises to be a great success. Entries have been promised from many sources and there is every indication that a large number of horsemen will be in attendance.

"Every breeder and true lover of the trotting turf must feel a just pride in the management of our races this year," exclaims the Horseman. "New owners, new drivers and new horses are coming to the front. The finger marks of advancement and improvement can be seen everywhere."

Messrs. Killip & Co, informs me that by the Mariposa, which leaves Sidney October 4th, there will be sent to them, for account of John Trestrail, four draft stallions and two mares. They are a superior lot, one of them being the finest English Shire stallion yet brought to California. Mr. Trestrail was endeavoring to arrange to accompany the importation.

On Tuesday of last week, Fallon and Lansing lost a valuable mare from lung fever. She was at Bridges stable, and although everything possible was done for her, she had to succumb to the fell destroyer. She was called Mamie C. and was by Casey's Hambletonian, out of Maggie C. who has a record of 2:25.

A historic race is being talked of in Vermont. It is no less than a proposed match between the famous sires Aristos, 2:27¼, and Highland Grey, 2:28. The former is 18 years old and the latter is about 23. Both are too old to trot out a race of fast heats, but the blood of their owners is up, and by a contested race only can the rivalry be settled to satisfy them.

"It's the race that draw the crowd," says the Ruthland Herald. Oppose the "race problem," my kind. anti-racing friend and see what kind of a financial shroud will enfold you. You may have the same exhibits, have everything but the racing, and then balance up your books. The standard of the race track has been so raised that racing is now recognized as the leading out-of-doors sport.

The Directors of the Blood Horse Association held a meeting last nigh to determine where the fall races should be given. It seems that they cannot agree with Mr. Hinchman as to what is a fair price for the use of the Bay District track, so they concluded to go elsewhere. Fresno it is understood will make a large bid for the privilege, and Petaluma is also looking toward securing the bangtails as an attraction for that town.

Mr Barstow's stallion Stranger, which won the 4th heat of the District race at San Jose on Tuesday, is a monstrous big fellow, weighing 1,465 pounds, and what is more remarkable about the victory, is the fact that he was only worked out five times prior to the race. He pulled a cart instead of a sulky, it being found that with the light vehicle he was liable to lose his balance more easily than he did with the heavier cart.

Without being able to state positively what terms have been offered by Mr. Lorillard, of New York, for Racine and Flambeau, it is well known that the great tobacco king is desirous of securing them both for next year, and is willing to come to any understanding that may be accepted to Senator Stanford. He should also try to get Rico, for if he fills out well during the coming winter, he will be a world beater. He has a big lumbering way of going, but is a very speedy colt, and evidently a stayer.

Here is another story told by one of the shewdest horsemen in the country on the Nelson-Alcryon race at Hartford: "It is quite certain that there was a combine to beat Nelson, and the plan was that Alcryon should drive Nelson out in two heats, and that then Jack should win. So far as Nelson and Alcryon were concerned the plan worked, but in the meantime Jack was pumped out, and it became evident that Geneva S. could beat him and would do so. In consequence of this Alcryon was sent to win."

A movement to erect a suitable monument over the grave of John Murphy, the celebrated trotting horse driver, has already been commenced, the matter having been taken in hand by several prominent New Yorkers in a manner that assures its success. Subscription books have been opened and sent to various places, and before the snow flies a marble shaft, suitably inscribed will mark the resting place of a man who was never tempted into pulling a horse and who enjoyed the confidence of Robert Bonner and other notable patrons of the trotting turf.

Why don't secretaries of trotting associations comply with the rules of both the American and National Associations and require the pedigree to accompany every entry? This is a rule that should be strictly enforced. Everybody can't attend races everywhere, but every lover of turf sports can enjoy reading reports of races everywhere if such reports gave the breeding and ownership, not merely of the winners but of every horse engaged in the race. But what satisfaction is there in reading summaries of races that barely give the names of the contestants and positions obtained?

The following speaks for itself:—

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 27th.—Mr. C. H. Nelson, owner of the Maine stallion, Nelson, is out in the following self-explanatory letter:—

TO THE EDITOR OF THE GLOBE:—In reply to the reports in regard to the stallion race not being won on its merits, I make the following proposition:—

I will trot Nelson against Alcryon over Mystic Park next Tuesday or Wednesday for from $2,500 to $4,000 a side, to satisfy the public that my horse can win on his merits. I have an offer to sell Nelson for very big money, but I have cancelled the sale until this race can be trotted. The Globe can name the judges. CHARLES H. NELSON.

The attention of all horsemen is called to a new advertisement in this issue, which emanates from the P. C. T. H. B. A. offering $3,400 more for trotters and pacers. From the present look of affairs, this will be the best meeting ever held on the Pacific Coast, and will surpass in brilliancy many of the Eastern events.

Billy Lakeland, the able trainer of Exile, is quite a character. Meeting Major R. G. Thomas on the stretch at Sheepshead Bay recently, and after being congratulated on his recent series of successes by that gentleman, he said: "Well, Major, everybody around here scanned me so closely when I went around in my stable clothes, that I concluded to get a new outfit, and dress up as you see me. I give $6 for this suit; and it is a nice outfit. Don't you think so?" The conversation was here broken off by several faiends joining the pair, and Major had no chance to pass an opinion on Billy's outfit.

It will be seen from the following which is taken from the New York Sporting World that Lee and Keating have sold their fast horse Sensation. The reported sale of the grey gelding Sensation, by Peacock, to Mr. Frank Work of this city was concluded to-day by Dexter B. Goff. The price paid was $5,000. Sensation will be remembered as the winner of the 2:22 class trot at Fleetwood Park last week. Mr. Work purchased him for a pole mate to his gray gelding Billy Freer, whom he matches perfectly, and the two together should make one of the fastest of teams, as they worked well when tried.

Mr. Valensin has sent the chestnut horse Valensin, 3-year-old, record 2:23, to W. H. Wilson of Abdallah Park, Cynthania, Ky., by whom he will be sold. There have only been two of his colts trained, both of which were threatened with speed, one of them showing easy quarters in 40 seconds, while the other, when only 15 months old, trotted a half in 1:16, and a quarter in 36 seconds. Valensin himself is a good game trotter, getting his record against Alcazar and Tempest, both of whom were very speedy. Mr. Goldsmith afterwards drove Valensin a mile in 2:21, as a four year old, and the performance was all the more meritorious inasmuch as it was to cart. Whoever finally secures this horse will get a good one, as he is not only a fast trotter, but a producer of trotters.

A friend writing to me from New South Wales says that ringers are numerous in the Antipodes, and that pedigrees are frightfully mixed He gives an instance of one of the pedigrees announced at a late sale there by the auctioneer, wherein he stated that Justin Morgan's dam was by Morgan's Tally Ho, he by Woodburn, grandam by Andrew Jackson, he by Bashaw. Now, as Justin Morgan died in 1821, and Andrew Jackson was not foaled until 1827, it is somewhat of a puzzle to make that pedigree stick. The writer also says, some really good mares, from 4 to 8 years old, able to show from 2:40 to 3:00 or better, and well bred with authenticated pedigrees, would sell well down here, say from $1,000 to $2,000. Must bring a veterinary certificate of health, and that there has been no known infectious disorder on ranch for six months previous, signed by breeder or owner, also, or they won't be let land in Sydney. No more stallions wanted."

The Porterville (Tulare Co.) Blood Horse Association met at the Enterprise office on Wednesday afternoon to discuss the question of purses etc., and hear the reports of the committee, which was appointed to interview the citizens with a view to finding out how much money could be raised for the event. There were present L. J. Redfield, president, in the chair; J. E. Shuey, treasurer; J. C. Scott, secretary; and directors J. W. Hall M. C. Crawford and E. Jamieson. After the reading and approval of the minutes of the previous meeting, the committee before mentioned reported that they canvassed among the townspeople in the interests of the work assigned them with the result that about $450 was promised, so that taking perquisites and other things into consideration there would be no difficulty in raising the necessary $500. A committee consisting of Messrs. Hall, Crawford and Jamieson, was then appointed, with authority to make all the necessary arrangements for advertising the coming races, and arranging their order, after which the meeting adjourned until Saturday.—(Enterprise.)

State Fair Edition Notices.

We are in receipt of the State Fair Edition of the "BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN," published in San Francisco, by J. P. Kerr. This special edition is a very excellent work, with a cover lithographed in colors showing "Imp. Greenback" and "St. Savior," thoroughbreds, the property of Mr. Fred Gebhardt. Both are beautiful pictures, and would do to preserve in a frame. There are in the paper also full page lithographs of "Mambrino Wilkes," "Direct," "Lillian Wilkes," "Electioneer," "Stamboul," "Fairmont," "Don Patricio," and "Junio," all famous trotters, with their history and records. There are also records of other great horses, tables of fast time, rules, reports of fairs, etc., making a valuable paper to keep for reference.—San Luis Obispo Republic.

The State Fair edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is received. It is a handsome volume, with cuts of the most prominent racers of the state, and contains valuable information to breeders of stock. The subscription price of this journal is only $5.00 a year, and is well worth the money. Every farmer and stock raiser should have a copy.—Wheatland Graphic.

We are in receipt of a copy of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, a handsome illustrated journal, published weekly at San Francisco by James P. Kerr. It is the Turf and Sporting authority of the Pacific Coast, and is just the thing for our horse raisers. Call at this office and see copy.—Lassen Mail.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for September 14th, is a superb number. The covers contain brilliant chromo-ilthographs of Imp. Greenback and St. Savior, noted horses of the Guenoc stock farm in Lake County, and full page pictures of Mambrino Wilkes, Junio, Don Patricio, Fairmount, Stamboul, Electioneer, Lillian Wilkes, and Direct adorn the interior. It is one of the handsomest papers ever issued on the Coast.—Kern County California.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, of San Francisco, issued a special State Fair edition last week. It was brightened with illustrated pictures, and was far superior to anything ever issued from the offices of The Horseman, Spirit of the Times and kindred papers of the East.—National City Record.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The $10,000 Stallion Race.

Sept. 24, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I have just returned from Boston, where I went to witness the great race between the most noted stallions of the East, and saw the honors go to the Maine bred stallion Nelson 2:14¼. Never but once has he been defeated and that was on the 28th day of August, of this year, at Hartford, when after winning the first heat and obtaining his record, he had to succumb to the game little grey Alcryon, record 2:16½. Probably the largest crowd ever seen on a race course in New England, graced Beacon Park at 1 o'clock, the hour set for calling the first heat, in this the greatest event of the year. The grand stand was a solid mass of humanity. There was not a vacant seat upon the bleaching boards and the mammoth pool rooms were packed. Men, women and children were everywhere. The stables swarmed with people, the track was lined, and over a thousand carriages passed through the gates. Every conceivable style of vehicle was to be seen, mail coaches, victorias, landaus, road wagons, etc., in fact every kind of equipage known was to be seen inside the grounds. Mr. Balch, John Turner, John Trout, Jock Bowen and James Golden, all said they never saw the track so crowded nor so fast as it was on this particular day. Of course, you already know the starters and the result, but I thought you might like to hear how the race was trotted, from one of the spectators.

Of the thirteen nominations, there were five to face the judges, who for the occasion were Mr. W. Edwards, of Cleveland; Geo. W. Archer, of Rochester; David Bonner, of New York, and F. F. G. Babcock, of Hornellsville, N. Y. The starters were Nelson, record 2:14¼; Alcryon, 2:16½; Junemount, 2:18½; Granby, 2:19½; and Pilot Knox, 2:19¾. In the pools, Nelson was a decided favorite at $100, with Alcryon selling second choice for $50, and the others as the field for $20 down to $12. In the draw for places, Alcryon got the pole, Pilot Knox second, Nelson third, Granby and Junemount on the outside.

The scoring for the first heat was long and tedious, much of which was caused by Alcryon's breaking, but at the tenth or twelfth effort, they got the word to a good send-off, with Alcryon a trifle in front. He was quickly joined by Nelson, who made the pace so fast, that Alcryon broke, and Nelson went at once to the front, and, staying there, won somewhat easily by a length and a half in 2:18½, Alcryon second, Pilot Knox third, Junemount fourth, and Granby fifth. The ease with which Nelson won, was a staggering blow to Alcryon's backers, and a good many of them, went to the pool-box to hedge. When the horses were called for the second heat, Nelson was selling over the field at $200 to $175 and down to $160.

They got start with Nelson at once taking the lead. Alcryon made a big effort, but failed, and Nelson drew away. Junemont then made a dash at Alcryon but could not pass him. At the third quarter Robbins took a pull on Alcryon for a great spurt in the last quarter. He made the effort, but could not sustain it, and breaking badly Nelson won the heat by two lengths in 2:17¼, after which many conceded the race to Nelson in straight heats. Nor did he disappoint them. The scoring for the third heat was long and tedious. When they got the word Nelson took the lead with Alcryon making a desperate effort to pass him. He broke badly then rallied and again closed up, only to break again, and as it was plain that he had shot his bolt Roobins took him in hand. Pilot Knox and Junemont than made a race for third money, which Pilot Knox secured by finishing second, Junemont third, Granby fourth and Alcryon last. Time—2:18¾.

Of course there is always plenty of talk after a big race, and this one was no exception to the rule. Breeders, horsemen and stable boys all told the same tale, that Alcryon received first and second money, and Nelson received the floral emblems. Whether the race was fixed beforehand is simply a matter of conjecture; be that as it may, the two are matched to trot again, Mr. Nelson putting up $2,500 against $2,000. It must have been fully twenty minutes before the winner could leave the track, after the last heat, as it seemed as though all of Maine had turned out to see the great contest. Mr. Balch told me that there were over 20,000 persons present, of which 13,000 paid $1.50 for entrance and an additional $1.50 for seats in the grand stand. As you will readily perceive it costs more to see a good race here than it does in our glorious State, and I hope in future that I will never hear any more kicking about our people having to put up a dollar to see a good race. I have now seen the best of the Eastern stallions, and know that Stamboul, Guy Wilkes and Director can beat the best of them here. Horse business is good here and prices high. Yours very truly,

SAM GAMBLE.

How to Lay Out a Track.

The question comes every few months, "What is the rule for laying out a mile or half-mile track?" In order to post new subscribers in the modus operandi, it is necessary to publish this rule once or twice a year, and in answer to recent inquiries we give it below:—

FOR A MILE TRACK.

A field of forty-two acres will do. Draw a line through the oblong centre, 440 yards in length, setting a stake at each end. Then draw a line on either side of the first line, exactly parallel with and 140 yards from it, setting stakes at either end of them. You will then have an oblong square 440 yards long and 280 yards wide. At each end of these three lines you will now set stakes. Now then, fasten a cord or wire 140 yards long to the centre stake of your parallelogram, and then describe a half circle, driving stakes as often as you wish to set a fence post. This half circle commencing at one side and extending to the other, will measure 440 yards. When the circle is made at both ends of your parallelogram, you will have two straight sides that measure 440 yards each, and two circles of exactly the same length, which, measured three feet from the line, will be exactly a mile. The turns should be thrown up an inch to the foot.

HALF-MILE TRACK.

Draw two parallel lines 600 feet long and 452 feet five inches apart. Half way between the extreme ends of the two parallel lines drive a stake, then loop a wire around the stake, long enough to reach to either side. Then make a true curve with the wire, putting down a stake as often as a fence post is needed. When this operation is finished at both ends of the 600 foot parallel lines, the track is laid out. The inside fence will rest exactly on the line drawn, but the track must measure a half mile three feet from the fence. The turns should be thrown up an inch to the foot. The stretches may be anywhere from 45 to 60 feet wide.

In the mountain lakes of the Middle Island, some of which, such as Wakatipu, are 2,000 feet above the level of the sea, and are reputed to be unfathomable, the trout reach a greater size than they do even in rivers like the Opihi or the Mataura. But I believe there has never been an instance of a big trout being caught in a lake with rod and line. Plenty of them are caught and eaten, but they are either netted or else speared, or snared in some way. There seems to be something in the vast depth and extreme coldness of the water, which changes their habits, and renders them proof against all temptations that the genuine angler can hold out.

Meeting of the Fish Commissioners.

The Board met at 220 Sutter street on Wednesday afternoon last. The first business done was to allot the contract for removing obstructions in the American River at Salmon Falls, El Dorado County, to Henry G. Miller, of Placerville, his bid being $479. The report of Deputy Commissioner F. P. Cullendan was presented in the following words:—

HON. BOARD OF FISH COMMISSIONERS:—

Gentlemen, On the day of Sept. 25th, 1889, at Klamath City, Siskiyou County, Cal., I called on J. E. McLaughlin, President and manager of the Klamath River Lumber Improvement Co., in reference to the construction of a fish ladder. He had received a plan of instructions the morning of my arrival. He immediately set his men at work to build one. I saw them making it. He stated he would have it placed on the afternoon of the 25th, 1889. Mr. McLaughlin is doing all the Commissioners and the law require of him.

I also arrested eight men for violating the fish law in catching salmon out of season: With the assistance of Sheriff Moxley, of Ureka, Siskiyou County, the case was brought before Justice E. H. Antennith, and was prosecuted by Assistant District Attorney Thomas. Jury trial.

I will state the gentlemen did all in their power to convict, but as the parties arrested were laboring people and if convicted could not pay their fines and would place their families in destitution, and claimed they were not versed in the law, the jury stood nine for acquittal and three for conviction. The prisoners had the full aympathy of the people of the county, as everybody from the Judge, District Attorney and nearly every citizen of the County to the jury had bought salmon from the said prisoners I had on trial. In my judgment, if I had stayed in Yreka from the 25th day of Sept., 1889 to the 25th day of Sept. 1890, I could not find a jury to convict, unless, as was remarked to me, I arrested the whole County. I think the law, from public opinion, will be carried out and will not be violated again.

Calling on the District Attorney, J. S. Beard. I found him very sick. He stated that the Commissioners had asked him to recommend a gentleman to act as Deputy Fish Commissioner. He, as well as the Sheriff and citizens of Yreka, named Charles H, Bogart. I called on the gentleman and found him in business as a carriage and wagon painter. He is a sportsman and a lover of fishing and hunting and is very determined to carry out the laws. I would recommend the Commissioners to appoint him as a Deputy Fish Commissioner.

I will also ask that the Secretary of the Commission inform His Excellency Gov. Waterman that Mr. Moxley, Sheriff of Yreka, did all in his power to assist me in following out his instructions. Yours respectfully,

F. P. CULLEMDAN.

Deputy J. P. Dalton reported the aquittal of two Chinese arrested for illegal fishing in Suisun Bay.

The deputy had patrolled the Sacramento River from Benecia to the City of Sacramento, and the San Joaquin River from Black Diamond to a point twenty miles above Stockton. No violations of the laws were noted. Reports had reached the deputy about the maintenance of tanks of fish which were caught and salted during September, and salted down. It had been impossible to ascertain the precise place where the tanks were.

A deputy reported that the residents of Yreka were complaining of the irrigating flumes in that vicinity. The small fish enter the flumes and are thrown on the land, where they cause a stench that is almost unbearable, and makes the neighborhood unhealthy. Many thousand young salmon and trout are destroyed in this way. The Commissioners will instruct the owners of flumes how to place wire nettings so that they will keep the fish out and still leave the flow of water unobstructed.

A deputy stated that the Indians along Russian River, between Ukiah and Cloverdale, maintained many fish traps which should be removed. Deputy Callundan was ordered to visit Ukiah at once and remove the traps.

Commissioner Routier stated that the sawdust and slickens trouble was almost over with, and that few fish were dying from that cause. In a few cases, notably in the Truckee River, millmen persisted in disobeying the law. He intends to go there soon, and offenders will be punished as heavily as possible.

The commission has decided that Lake Tahoe trout are not fit for transplanting on account of their sluggish habits, but have discovered a finer variety in Lake Marlett, just over to the Nevada line from Tahoe. These fish are said to greatly resemble the Dolly Varden or Eastern brook-trout, and are so plentiful in the lake that there is not sufficient food for them. The Carson and Virginia Lumber Company has control of the lake, and will furnish fish in any number. The Commissioners will plant them in all streams where applications are made for fish.

Views on the proposed importation of game-birds were called for, but none were elicited. The commission is anxious to hear opinions on the best birds to import.

Last Sunday was the last quarter of the moon, and the fish bit unusually well.

Several large catches of rock cod were made at Lime Point, Tiburon, Angel Island, and other points around the bay.

Several catches of Smelt were also reported, the largest fish being caught in the neighborhood of Sausalito.

Good fishing may be found off Alcatraz, under the prison, but in order to fish when one hundred yards from the shore a permit must be obtained from the commanding officer on the Island.

On Monday a good many blue cod were caught off Kershaw's Point. A party consisting of Jack Killey, Joe Mahon and Ned White, went to Hospital Coal, Angel Island, on Tuesday and brought home over one hundred pounds of very large fish. They used clams for bait.

H. P. Rennie, of Oakland, was last week presented with a fine mastiff bitch puppy, by Mr. H. G. Kuhl. The puppy is sired by Dick, (10549) out of a fine bitch owned by Mr. Kuhl. It gives promise of being an exceptionally fine animal.

Death by Poison.

Admirers on the Pacific Coast of the English mastiff, will regret the death of Dick (A. K. S. B. 10549), by poison, one day last week. When discovered by Mr. Scott, his owner, every effort was made to save this noble animal, but being such a powerful dog, it was a difficult and somewhat dangerous matter to apply the remedies at hand, and after suffering intense agony, poor old Dick succumbed. Dick was undoubtedly the finest mastiff dog on the Coast, having won first prize at San Francisco, at the Pacific Kennel Club, two years in succession, viz: 1888 and 1889. When it became known the following morning of Dick's death, real estate men, bankers, and dry goods men, and clerks flocked to Mr. Scott's place of business to see the immense skin stretched on the floor, and if the "poisoner" could have been found at that time it would have been two to one that he would have been tarred and feathered.

The American Kennel Club.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Kennel Club was held at 44 Broadway, New York, September 10th, 1889.

The meeting was called to order at 1:30 P. M., Vice-President Terry in the chair. Present—Associates, Dr. J. Frank Perry and H. W. Huntington. Cincinnati Sportsmen's Club, J. Treadwell Richards; Collie Club, T. H. Terry; Michigan Kennel Club, Major J. M. Taylor; Mascontah Kennel Club, James Mortimer; Southern Field Trial Club, James L. Authony; St. Paul Kennel Club, A. D. Lewis; Westminster Kennel Club, F. R Hitchcock; Virginia Field Sports Association, Hon. John S. Wise; Long Island Live Stock Association, Temple Prime; New Jersey Kennel Club, A. Clinton Wilmerding; New England Kennel Club, F. Blackwood Fay; Beagle Olub, H. F. Schellhass; St. Bernard Kennel Club, S. B. McFarland; American Spaniel Club, James Watson.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The Secretary read his report, as follows:

NEW YORK, Sept. 18th, 1889.

To the American Kennel Club—

Gentlemen:—Since my last report I have received applications for admission to the American Kennel Club from the following clubs: The American Spaniel Club, the Brooklyn Kennel Club and Pet Stock Association, the California Kennel Club, the Elmira Poultry and Pet Stock Association, the Montana Kennel Club, and the American Pet Dog Club. These applications are all in proper form, and the clubs are eligible to admission. At the last meeting of this club the application of the Southern California Kennel Club was laid over on account of the non-arrival of the copy of its constitution and annual dues, as required by our rules. These papers came to hand the day following the meeting. This club has held a bench show since its application was received, and asks the American Kennel Club to recognize the awards made at said show. All correspondence on this subject between said clubs and myself will be submitted to this meeting for your action.

I beg to call your attention to a complaint lodged with me by Mr. A. W. Smith of Buffalo, New York, against the Albany Kennel Club for the non-payment of the prize awarded to him at said club's show, together with a letter from Mr. William C. Hudson, President of the Albany Kennel Club, on the subject.

An urgent appeal has been received from Messrs. George E. Poyneer and H. Horace Smith, breeders of the Chesapeake Bay dogs, praying that this club will formally adopt the standards of said dogs as published in the American Kennel Gazette of July, in reply to which I advised these gentlemen that I would submit their request at this meeting anh ask for action.

The Richmond County Poultry and Pet Stock Association of Augusta, Ga., having applied for a State charter, under the name of the Georgia Poultry and Pet Stock Association, asks to have its name changed to the list of active members this club.

I beg to submit two letters from Mr. Amory R. Starr of Marshall, Texas, asking that the rules governing registration in the stud-book may be so amended as to admit dogs of unknown pedigree, but having made a record for themselves at field trials, to a place in the book.

I have received notices of proposed amendments to the Bench Show rules as follows:

From Mr. Robert Leslie, to amend Rule IX.

From Dr. J. Frank Perry, to amend Rule XXVII.

Both the notices of said amendments will be submitted at this meeting.

I herewith submit for your consideration a complaint from Mr. Andrew Laidlaw of Woodstock, Canada, against Mr. Halket P. Rennie of Oakland, Cal., asking for his disqualification, together with the Spaniels "Woodstock Belle" and "Giffee."

A communication from Mr. Elliot Smith, enclosing one from a friend, relative to the arrangement of the Bench Show rules of the American Kennel Club, will be placed before you, and your secretary believes the matter to be of sufficient importance to adopt the recommendations contained therein, and would recommend that a committee should be appointed at this meeting to re-arrange, and add all the amendments passed since the last published copies of said rules, and to incorporate any new alterations additions or amendments that the experience of the last show season has taught us are required, to give the necessary thirty days notice of the changes, in the October issue of the Gazette, so that the matter can be acted upon at the December meeting. In case this is done, would suggest that your secretary be instructed to order three sets of electrotype plates made of the new rules, of a size suitable for the catalogues issued by the several clubs holding shows for the purpose of loaning a set of such plates to each club for its use in making up its catalogue, thereby insuring the publication of the correct rules, and also resulting in a saving of expense to the shows.

A communication from Dr. H. T. Foote will be submitted for your consideration, in which he asks for special legislation in the matter of the wins made by his black and tan terriers "Meersbrook Maiden" and "Meersbrook Girl," during last spring's shows, while shown under wrong names, through ignorance on the part of their owner as to their identity.

Your Secretary begs to call to your attention the fact that some of the clubs whose applications for membership are now before you, have held shows since filing such applications, and if said clubs are admitted, he would respectfully recommend that some action should be taken at this meeting as to whether this Association will or will not recognize the awards made at such shows.

I also beg to submit a communication from Mr. C. J. Peshall, requesting an alternation of the minutes of the meeting of July 23, 1888, the same being in his opinion incorrect.

A. P. VREDENBURGH, Secretary.

A. P. VREDENBURGH, Treasurer.

Report, on motion, received.

At this point Mr. August Belmont, Jr., arrived and took the chair.

The report of the Stud-Book Committee was read by the Secretary, and on motion of Mr. Anthony adopted.

The report of the meetings of the Advisory Committee was also read and adopted.

The following clubs were admitted to membership in the American Kennel Club: American Spaniel Club, Southern Callfornia Kennel Club, the Elmira Poultry and Pet Stock Association, and the Montana Kennel Club.

The application of the Brooklyn Kennel Club and Pet Stock Association was read.

Mr. Richards moved that the sense of this meeting is that the Brooklyn Club is not an organization presenting evidence of sufficient strength to make it desirable to admit it to this Association.

Mr. Prime moved an amendment that the Brooklyn Kennel Club be not admitted.

Amendment seconded and carried, as was also the resolution as amended.

The Secretary also read the application of the California Kennel Club.

On motion of Mr. Hitchcock the application was laid on the table until the Pacific Kennel Club could be heard from.

The application of the American Pet Dog Club was, on motion, referred to the Advisory Board.

Then the application of the Southern California Kennel Club was presented, Mr. Richards moved that the club be admitted, but that the wins of their recent show be not recognized.

Seconded and carried.

At this point Mr. Belmont retired, and Mr. Terry took the chair.

The complaint of Mr. A. W. Smith against the Albany Kennel Club for non-payment of the prize awarded him at their show was, on motion of Mr. Taylor, referred to the Advisory Board, with power.

During the discussion relative to this matter Mr. Watson moved an amendment that the secretary be instructed to carry out the provisions of Rule 28.

Mr. Hitchcock asked Mr. Watson what club he represented, who answered that he was present as a delegate of the American Spaniel Club, elected a member of the American Club to-day. Mr. Hitchcock then called for the reading of a resolution adopted some time previous concerning Mr. Watson, after the reading of which he moved that as Mr. Watson had ceased to be editor of the American Kennel Register, he be accepted as a delegate of the American Spaniel Club.

The communication from Messrs. Poyneer and Smith was read, asking for the adoption of the standard of the Chesapeake Bay dogs as published in the American Kennel Gazette in July last.

(Mr. Belmont here resumes the chair.)

After considerable discussion on the subject Mr. Richards moved that the American Kennel Club recommend the use at Bench shows of the standard of the Chesapeake Bay dogs formulated and published in the July issue of the American Kennel Gazette in the absence of, and until some standard is adopted by some recognized specialty club in Chesapeake Bay dogs.

Seconded and carried.

A. P. Vredenburgh, Esqr., Secretary American Kennel Club.

SIR: At the next quarterly meeting of the American Kennel Club I will offer the following amendment to Rule IX: "Each duly qualified veterinary surgeon to be approved by a committee of three appointed by this club to act on such matters."

The rule to read as follows: "A duly qualified veterinary surgeon must be appointed at each show held under these rules; each duly qualified veterinary surgeon to be approved by a committee of three appointed by this club to act on such matters." Each dog received at a show must be passed upon before being benched.

AMENDMENT TO RULE XXVIII.

In the last paragraph strike out all after club—in the third line—and so amended the rule may read as follows:—

"The Secretary of every show must also forward to the Secretary of the American Kennel Club a daily certified report of the judges' awards, together with their reasons for making such awards, within five days of the closing of each show." In support of which Dr. Perry submitted the following argument, which was ordered to be published:—

Before offering this resolution I gave it deep thought and made it the subject of much inquiry, for the reason that I felt, from its peculiar nature, it was likely to meet with some prejudice. It is well to say now that my first impression when this matter was first proposed to me was exceedingly unfavorable, but the more I considered it the stronger grew my conviction that just such legislation was needed and that the proposed rule was perfectly right and proper. I hold that Associate clubs should send to the American Kennel Club duly certified reports of their judges' awards, together with their reasons for making such awards, and such reports should be published in the official organ of the club, the American Kennel Gazette.

Now, it is generally known that there have been some adverse criticisms on this matter, both by the kennel press of our own country and that of England. It has been said to be "objectionable, as being tyrannical." But such an assertion must be backed by argument, and none has yet been offered. It must fall of its own weight, however, for there is nothing to sustain it. It is no more tyrannical than any one of the rules established by this club. The purpose of the American Kennel Club is to adopt and enforce such rules as shall tend to the proper conduct of bench shows and to the interests of breeders and exhibitors. And, to my mind, such legislation as I propose is strictly in the line of our duty.

It has been said that "we had better not exchange good judges for poor reports." In the first place, our club has nothing whatever to do with judges, hence barter is impossible. The judges are amenable to our associate clubs, and to them only. We say to these clubs, "we must have certified reports of your judges' awards." It is for them to settle the matter with the judges; and how they do so does not concern us. But is there a danger that indirectly we may be the means of losing good judges to bench shows by reason of the rule which I propose? I say, certainly not.

They tell us some of our judges are illiterate and cannot write a decent report. Now, many well know what judges were in mind when this assertion was made. As a matter of fact, the judge who is held the most illiterate of all is perfectly competent to clearly express himself in writing and to prepare a good report. I know this to be so, for I have evidence of it in my possession I have corresponded with him, and his letters sustain what I say. It is true he does not write an elegant hand, nor is his spelling always correct; "but," in the language of the street, he gets there just the same." Were a judge, however, barely able to write his own name, does it follow that his report would be a poor one? Most assuredly not. If he cannot write well himself, let him convey his ideas to one who can, and sign his name to the document which holds them.

As an objection, says one man to me, "the ability to judge the merits of dogs, by no means goes hand in hand with the faculty of clearly expressing ideas in even tolerable English." That is true, and yet it means very little. Were we to exact elaborate reports, very likely not a few judges would prove unequal to the task. We would expect nothing of the sort, however, we would ask for reports, and the reasons for the awards, in plain and simple language—nothing more. And it is absolutely absurd for a man to say, "I know, but I can't express it," for he who knows can always manage to find expression. Surely there is nothing intricate about judging—nothing requiring intuitive powers; and if judges depend upon intuition the sooner they come to earth and base their awards upon rational signs the better. And if of two dogs one is better in head than the other and the judge cannot say so, then the ring is the last place for him.

One critic seems to think that judges should look upon this rule as an imposition; and that they can have but little respect for themselves if they conform to it. All I can say is that here in America, men expect to do what they are paid for doing, and they do not consider that it detracts from their dignity to obey orders while under contract.

Now here is a matter to dwell upon a little longer. When a bench show committee hires a man to judge, they will, of course, make it a part of their contract that he shall furnish them a report such as we require of the club. One judge may say to them, "I cannot write a decent report." What, naturally, would be the answer? "That is all right; some of us will help you in making it up." And there are any number of men connected with every club who would be pleased, after the judging is over, to take a note book and go around the benches with the judge who feels himself incompetent; take down his comments on the different dogs to which he has awarded prizes, and then put the matter into shape. So this objection is scarcely worth considering.

A judge may say, "I do not know what sort of a report you want." All that is necessary to say in reply is: "Take one of our prominent kennel papers containing the report of a bench show with comments on the awards; let that be a starter for you—write up your work in about that style." That will do for a beginning, before long some one will write a report which will stand as a pattern for judges.

Now, some one is going to say of the proposed rule, "It will add to the expenses of bench show managements." I do not think that it will do so; if it does, the additional expense will not be worth the mention. As an able associate of mine, with long experience in the management of bench shows, has said to me, "we pay judges enough so they can afford to give us written reports of their awards such as you propose. From that, I, of course, assume that judges cannot with good grace refuse such a request even were they disposed to; and bench show committees will have little patience with him who undertakes to haggle.

Then there is the assertion which has been made that this rule will put a hardship upon judges exhausted by their arduous duties. Were we to demand of the secretaries of bench shows that a report be sent to this club the same day of the judging, it would be a hardship; otherwise it cannot be so. Under the rule it is required that the report be forwarded within 5 days. That allows judges from 6 to 7 days in which to prepare it. Surely, there can be no hardship there.

Finally we come to the objection raised by some that since the judges' reports are for publication solely in the American Kennel Gazette, it will be giving it an undue advantage and be treating its contemporaries unfairly.

One needs but to stop and think a moment to see how senseless is this objection. Were the Gazette a weekly, and were it insisted upon that the reports be sent in as soon as the judging was completed, it would hold good; but in no instance can said reports be made public through the Gazette, until long after its contemporaries have sent out theirs.

I have now called attention to all the objections to this rule which so far as I know have been offered. As can readily be seen, none are serious, and the most of them fall flat when we come to consider them. I will now briefly mention a few of the reasons which prompted me to propose this innovation.

All know that there exists a most unwarrantable prejudice among the occasional exhibitors—that judges are in various ways influenced in making their awards. Of course the delusion is dispelled by experience, in the absence of which, however, every argument is purposeless. If the resolution which I have offered prevails, and bench show managements hereafter require written reports from their judges, this absurd prejudice will have practically been overcome, for the suspicious exhibitor can no longer entertain it, when he knows that every judge must publicly sustain his awards with good and sufficient reasons. So the innovation will afford a sense of security to many doubtful ones, who for their very fears of unfairness in the ring now decline to exhibit their dogs. And, besides that, judges themselves will share in the gain, since there is given them the right to justify themselves, which they do not now have in the existing state of affairs, being dependent upon the courtesy of the kennel press for such opportunity.

Many decisions in the ring are necessarily close ones, and not infrequently in doubtful cases judges must now jump to conclusions, which, it scarcely need be said, is always hazardous. If a judge knows that he must make a written report of his awards and give his reasons therefor, he will, as a natural consequence, use exceeding care in the performance of his duties in the ring, and there will be no mental "toss up," as there must occasionally be now. The more we hedge around judges' safeguards against mistakes the better we shall have performed our duty to them and to exhibitors.

It is a fact, which stares us in the face, that we have no safe rule for judging dogs. It is true we have standards, but like the Bible, they are rendered many ways. Every judge must have ideals of his own creations, and no two can be found with the same, alike in every respect. It is thought by many that judging by points is the only true way. That is, beyond doubt, far better than the present somewhat erratic method; but, besides being inexpedient in many instances, it can never be held as an absolutely perfect system, for, again, must a judge's individuality assert itself, and a merit which constitutes five points with one may be accepted by another as only deserving three or four points. So in the absence of any sure method of judging, we can only hope for keener discernment in our judges as they become better educated in their duties. And no one can gainsay that the innovation which I propose, will stimulate judges to study, and to a better understanding of their requirements.

We have judges—and we have judges. Some must necessarily be far superior to others, and some, the most liberal must be forced to admit, are but poorly qualified. The latter should be weeded out, and what better way can be suggested than this I propose, by means of which all will be put on record so a just estimate can be made? A man incapable of judging must certainly betray his inefficiency in the first report he sends in.

And this brings me to another point. It is a sort of haphazard way in which judges are now very often selected. There is much speculation in it. Here is a man who has been breeding for some time, and it is assumed that he is well up in his specialty. He is invited to judge in a show, the management having no positive assurance of his possessing the qualities to fit him for the duty it asks him to assume. Practically it is "guess work" in his case. If he makes a success, well and good. But such random selections are more often unfortunate than otherwise. The debutante is more than likely to "slaughter his classes" and disgust almost all exhibitors who come before him, except, of course, those who take the blue ribbons. And every one of experience knows how irreparable the damage which one such judge will do, especially if the show he is acting in is a small one. When bench show managements exact of their judges the reasons of their awards in writing—it being known to them that the same are for publication—the number of experiments in the ring will be decidedly less than now, for the aspirant for such honors will not be likely to assume the responsibilities tendered him unless he is quite certain he can bear them with credit to himself.

America is favored with a number of publications, devoting much space to kennel news. In the more prominent ones we find quite exhaustive reports of all important bench shows, together with comments upon the various awards. As is well known, it is by no means the rule for the reporters to agree as to the justice of said awards. The average exhibitor is, in consequence, often left in a fog, and not infrequently we find one not only bewildered but disgusted by what he feels is the lack of any sure means of determining the relative merits of dogs. Of course the innovation which I suggest will not obviate the difficulty, but it certainly will contribute somewhat toward a happier state of affairs, and the judge and his critics—who now have him at a disadvantage—will be more on an equality.

And so I might go on pointing out the advantages of such a rule as I have proposed, but it is unnecessary. Considering the matter fairly, and even but hastily, I think there can be but one verdict, and all will agree that we should exact from our associate clubs certified reports of their judges, the same to contain their reasons for making the awards.

The request of the Richmond County Pet Stock Association to have its name changed to the 'Georgia Pet Stock Association," in compliance with their charter, was granted on motion of Mr. Anthony.

Communications received from Mr. Amory R. Starr, asking for the amendment of the rules governing registration in the stud book were, on motion, referred to the Stud Book Committee.

The communication from Mr. Andrew Laidlaw, asking for the disqualification of Halket P. Rennie and the Spaniels Woodstock Belle and Giffee, was referred to the Advisory Committee.

A communication was also read from Mr. H. T. Foote, appealing for special action on the part of the American Kennel Club overruling Rule 5, and accepting the winnings of his two bitches Meersbrook Maiden and Meersbrook Girl, which were exhibited under wrong names.

On motion the vote adopting the report of the Stud-book Committee was re-considered, and the Stud-book Committee was instructed to rectify the records of the dogs in question, and to credit Meersbrook Maiden with the awards she won while shown under the name of Meersbrook Girl by mistake, and the same in regard to Meersbrook Girl.

Moved and seconded that that portion of the Secretary's report relating to a committee to re-arrange the Bench Show rules, and publish the same in October issue of the Gazette, the same being the proper thirty day's notice, as provided for in the Constitution, be adopted.

Carried.

The Chair appointed Messrs. F. R. Hitchcock, A. D. Lewis and T. H. Terry as that committee.

The application of the Continental Club of Denver was read, and on motion laid over until next meeting, on account of not complying with the rules.

Mr. Peshall's communication, asking that the minutes of July 23d, 1888, be corrected, was, on motion, ordered on file, and that the minutes of July 23d and September 12th, 1888; at which Mr. Peshall was present, should stand as now recorded. The following was read:—

"A. P. VREDENBURGH, E-q, Secretary A. K. C.

Dear Sir,—I desire to make the following motion: As the A. K. C. Associate members' delegates are not representatives of any one club, and their travelling expenses having thus far been paid out of their private purses, I would move that the A. K. C. reimburse them, and in the future pay their travelling expenses to all meetings of the club or its committees. H. W. HUNTINGTON."

REFFERED TO THE ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

Mr. Watson asked the Secretary if he had heard anything from the Rochester Kennel Club in regard to his protest, which was acted upon at the July meeting. The reply being in the negative, the matter was referred to the Advisory Committee.

Adjourned.

A. P. VREDENBURGH, Secretary.

Mr. M. D. Walter the trainer will probably start for Bakersfield with his field trial string this week. Mr. Walter has in training several of the superbly bred Llewellins from the California Kennels, which can be relied upon to make a brilliant showing. There is also in the string a young red bitch by Kaeding's Duke out of California Belle. The bitch Countess is said to show the hard sense of her dam on birds, and to possess the carriage, pace and style of her sire. If so she will likely be "amongst 'em" when the money is devided.

Among the names claimed this week by the California Kennels is Leon for a Loadstone—Sweetheart pup. The youngster was named after Mr. Leon J. Rose, Jr., and if the dog proves half as game and staunch as the man he can't be stopped.

Mr. George Crocker has a pair of handsome Irish Reds in the hands of George Allender for the coming Derby. Mr. Crocker is pleased by the quality of his entries and expects to be present at the trial to see them win. Still another red is to run, handled by William De Mott. Four red setters in a trial is a rare thing these days.

Admirers of Cocker and Field Spaniels are requested to communicate with H. P. Rennie, of Oakland, concerning the matter of organizing a club under the name of the "Cocker and Field Spaniel Club." Dr. A. C. Davenport is also one of the prime movers in this direction, and no doubt the efforts of the above named will prove successful.

A line from Captain H. E. Hamilton, New York City, informs us that his dogs Brimstone and Count Fritz are lively and well. Captain Hamilton has for years been one of the popular field trial leaders, and we hope may soon have the luck to run dogs of his breeding to the front.

Mr. Washington A. Coster, secretary of the Eastern Field Trial Club, sends the revised rules of the club and entry blanks for the coming Aged Stakes of the club, which will be run off at High Point, N. C., in November, and early December next. The Eastern club has long maintained a leading position, and its trials are seasons of the greatest enjoyment to all attendants.

FRESNO.

The Twenty-first Agricultural District Meeting opened at Fresno on Tuesday. On our arrival there early in the morning everything was lively. The town was already crowded, and beds at a premium. On going out to the track the same activity was manifest. A new grand stand was almost completed, the roofing being all that was necessary to complete one of the most perfect enclosures in the State, while further down the track was the Driving Club private enclosure, to which I was cordially invited. It is equal to almost any Eastern private club house, the equipments and general management being exceptional. Palo Alto, the Golden Gate Stable, Kelly and Samuels, Harrison Bros., and many other outside racing stables were there in great force, while the local talent were well represented by such prominent horsemen as Messrs. Straube, Owens, Bowers, Heinlan and others. The stock parade in the early morning was witnessed by a large crowd. Mr. S. N. Staube led the van, driving Baby S., a full sister to Baby Mine, and a three year old filly by Dexter Prince hitched double to a light wagon, followed by his well known stallions, Clovis, Apex and Pasha, and after them fifteen mares, yearlings and colts from his breeding farm. Mr. J. H. Hamilton was up behind Albert, a son of Altamont (2:30½). The same owner had also a good looking Cleveland stallion, Monk 376, by Grenadier 76 and the useful looking Monarch by Elite 2659, two brood mares by Algoona, with filly foals at their side by Clovis and Albert. The thoroughbreds were represented by Jack Brady, Asa and others of the Golden Gate Stable entries, while trotters, Perchrons, Clydes and others brought up the end of the horse procession. Cattle were represented by the Heilbron herds of short-horn and Herefords, Messrs. Hall & Ferguson's Polled Angus (selected from the herd purchased from S. N Straube in the spring). The California Pastoral and Agricultural Company's, Thornton's herd and Mr. Berry's Polled cattle, and after the parade the Hon. P. D. Wigginton, in a long and very instructive address, opened the fair, and racing started immediately afterwards. The programme consisted of three races —a district two-year-old trot, the 2:20 class and a mile dash for runners. The first was easily won by Mr. Straube's Lizzie Thorne, while in the 2:20 Palo Alto was given first money to stay out, and Alfred S. won all his own way, going the last heat in 2:18, the best mile ever made on the track.

Two-year-old Trotting.

First Heat—Pool selling fluctuated a good deal, Nellie Boyd eventually selling favorite at $20 to $5 each for Lizzie Thorne, Stella B. and the field. A good deal of time was lost owing to the fractiousness of the youngsters. When the bell was tapped Lizzie Thorne and Nellie Alta went to the front, closely followed by Nellie Boyd, who, however, broke on the turn and fell in the rear. Nellie Alta and Lizzie Thorne kept together to the half, where the former skipped, and Thorne broke badly, being passed by El Pastore, who closed gradually on the leader and was only three lengths behind at the head of the stretch, and trotting very steadily, went past Nellie Alta at the seven furlong post and won as he pleased by five lengths, the rest strung out. Time, 2:54½.

Second Heat—The field sold readily for $20 to Thorne $6 Stella $5 and Boyd $3. Havey, who was up behind Stella, was going well when the bell tapped and led Thorne three lengths to the half when Marvin sent the latter up to him, and going past in easy style was never afterwards headed, winning as he pleased by ten lengths. Stella beat El Pastore half a length for second place after a hard finish. Time, 2:54¾.

Third Heat—Lizzie Thorne was now made a hot favorite at $20 to the whole field $12. The word was given with the favorite off her feet and badly tangled up, and seemingly out of the race, but, catching at the first turn, she settled down and trotting magnificently, was only two lengths behind Stella at the quarter, and passing her down the backstretch, won handily by four lengths from El Pastore, Stella third, she having broken badly at the drawgate. Time, 2 53.

2:20 Class Trotting.

First Heat—Before the first heat Alfred S. sold for $50 to the field $12. When the bell was tapped after very little scoring Junio who had the pole cut out the work a length in front of Alfred S. who went up to him on the backstretch, and with Hickok evidently satisfied, Alfred was pulled back until well in the homestretch when he went past and won in a jog three lengths in front of Junio, Emma Temple five further back. Time, 2:26½.

Second Heat—When they came out for the second heat, Alfred sold for $30 to the field $5, and after scoring twice Hickok went away half a length in front of Junio and holding the gelding back led the stallion a length until well in the stretch, when Temple who had been going easy five lengths back closed up and with Junio leaving his feet at the drawgate the mare driven out went under the wire a length behind Alfred. Time, 2:22.

Third Heat—No pools could be sold and Hickok turned Alfred loose; immediately the word was given Alfred S. went out and trotting in splendid style had a seven lengths lead at the half in 1:10, and went right along, finished the full mile in 2:18. Temple drew up to Junio on the turn and the stallion going all to pieces in the last fifty yards he was beaten by a length and a half for the place, sixty yards behind Alfred S. Time, 2.18.

Mile Dash, Running.

Pools chopped and changed all round, Asa who sold for nothing at first ultimately being favorite at $30 to $17 for Welcome, $15 Oro and $6 Romeo. The flag fell at the first attempt to an excellent start. Oro and Welcome at once went out with Asa under a strong pull third. Welcome stayed behind Oro to the quarter when Cook let her go and she rapidly opened a gap of three lengths which she kept to the head of the stretch where she looked all over a winner. Hazlett made an effort in the stretch but dropped back and Barton bringing Oro up at the drawgate, rode a splendid finish winning by half a length from Welcome, Asa third, six lengths back. Time, 1:45.

WEDNESDAY.

The weather was again very enjoyable, quite a good crowd taking advantage of it appeared on the track in the afternoon to see the races. The first race, a half mile and repeat (extra race), was practically a walk-over for Kitty Van, ridden by Hazlitt, who could have won in straight heats had he so willed. Susie S. did not move with her old free, easy style of going, and was unable to race with the three-year-old any part of the way. The two-year-old race had only two starters, and Bayard could never exercise Jessie C. The 2:35 trotting was soon seen to be a gift for Stoneman, a big six-year-old gelding who, after allowing Daybreak—who was rigged up with hobbles—to take the first heat, won the next three easily, the best time being 2:31.

McHugh unnecessarily punished Daybreak in the last two heats with no possible chance of winning. Alex was declared distanced in the second heat, but certainly he was inside when the flag fell. The three-year-old race was deemed a certainty for Theodosia, and had she not broken in the third heat, it would have been finished there, but the break was so bad that Marvin never drove her for the heat, and the race had to be postponed.

Half Mile and Repeat.

Four starters turned out, and the betting was very lively. Susie S. readily sold favorite, but Kitty Van was plunged on by the talent until at the finish. She sold for $25 to Susie S. $30, and the field $7. They were delayed at the post for some time, owing to Susie S.'s saddle requiring fixing. When the flag dropped Kitty Van rushed to the front with Ida Glenn second and Susie third. Kitty went right away, leading five open lengths round the turn, and with Hazlitt sitting still, won by three lengths. Susie came past the other two and beat Ida Glenn half a length for second place. Bolton, four lengths back, last. Time, 0:49½.

Second Heat—Kitty Van was plunged heavily on at $40 to $18 for the whole field. After the two-years-olds had run, they came out for the second heat. A long and vexatious delay took place, caused by Bolton, who would not break away when the flag fell. Susie S. and Kitty Van got well away, with Bolton three lengths back. Susie S. went out for the heat, and led three lengths at the first turn, Hazlitt holding Kitty Van back, was third at the head of the stretch, where he came up to the leaders, but never moving on her, was beaten a length. Time, 0:50.

Third Heat—Pools sold slowly at $40, Kitty Van to $10 Susie. When the flag fell, Kitty was quickly on her feet, and soon had the inside berth a length and a half in front of Susie, and though the latter drew up to her on the turn, Hazlitt came away again, winning cleverly by a length and a half. Time, 0:49.

The 3:35 class came out after the second heat in the half mile. Pools sold, Stoneman $25, Daybreak $10, field $6. Daybreak and Stoneman went away very steadily, while Alex broke at once and Dutch followed. First, round the turn and up the back stretch Stoneman and Daylight kept well together, and both trotting steadily were on even terms at the upper turn. Stoneman showed a shade in front at the head of the stretch, but Daybreak, under the whip, passed him at the distance post and won by a length. Alex, who came fast in the stretch, broke at the drawgate, finishing six lengths behind Stoneman, with Dutch just inside the flag. Time 2:38.

Second Heat. Stoneman sold readily for $40 in the pools to $15 for the field. They were sent away the first time. Stoneman and Daybreak, trotting steadily, were forty yards in front of the other pair at the first turn; both the latter having broken badly, the two leaders drew farther away up the backstretch, Stoneman leading a length and going round the upper turn he slightly increased his advantage, and though Daybreak came fast under the whip he was readily beaten a length and a half. Alex was just in, but was distanced, and Dutch thirty yards out. Time 2:31¼.

Third Heat. Stoneman sold for $40 to Daybreak's $8. They were tapped off the first time: Stoneman, going to the front, led a length and a half on the turn, and gradually increased it to three up the backstretch: Daybreak was severely and unnecessarily punished in the stretch, Stoneman winning easily by three lengths. Time 2:32¼.

Fourth Heat. Stoneman led two lengths all the way, winning as he pleased, Daybreak again being uselessly whipped. Time 2:32.

Three Year Old Trot.

The first heat was trotted after the second heat of the 2:35. Very few pools were sold on it at $25 to $5 for the field. After a good deal of delay Oliver B. went away in front of Theodosia, with Pericles outpaced from the start. Oliver B. skipped before the turn, but caught well, and led the mare a length at the quarter when she broke, and bucking for twenty yards was about thirty behind when she settled down, and trotting well, slowly but surely overhauled Pericles who broke, never losing much though, six times before the wire was reached, with the mare three lengths in front going easy. Time, 3:01.

Second Heat—The trio were started evenly, but Owens, evidently under a misapprehension, pulled up, and Theodosia was fifty yards in front when he was going again. The mare trotted home without a break at her leisure, winning by twenty yards. Time, 3:00.

Third Heat—They were sent away the first time. Theodosia broke before the turn, and having to be pulled to a standstill was not persevered with, Marvin getting her well inside the distance. The other two had a hard race, and Oliver B. breaking several times was beaten four lengths by Pericles. Time, 2:59.

The race was then postponed until Thursday, when Theodosia won easily.

San Luis Obispo Fair.

Thursday there were two thousand people on the fair grounds, and considering the number of horses in the stalls, the time made was poor. The trot for three-year-old stallions was uninteresting, as Claremont was considered too fast for Monroe S. Claremont is a beautiful sorrel gelding by McGinnis; both horses are owned at the Piedra Blanca Rancho, owned by Senator Hearst. Claremont won the race in two straight heats.

The second race was a half-mile and repeat running race, in which were entered Ella Hill, Kitty C. and Rondout. They were sent off to a good start, Kitty C. took the lead at the quarter post and won easily, Ella Hill second, Rondout third.

Second heat was a repetition of the first. Pools sold: Ella Hill $10 and the field $5. Kitty C. taking the first heat did not change the betting.

The next race was a mile dash. A great deal of money changed hands in this race. Cassino sold for $3, Wonder $4, Boy Jesse $2, Go-as-you-please $1 and Fox $1. The race was won by Boy Jesse after a hard struggle, Little Casino running very closely to the winner all the way. Whip and spurs were used freely, but Boy Jesse finished first by a neck.

Thursday morning the farmers exhibited their horses, cattle and jacks. The thoroughbreds exhibited by the Piedra Blanca Rancho were fine looking youngsters. Gertrude is a beautiful filly three years old; she was foaled in Australia. Mr. Van Gordon remarked that her dam Geraldine never bred a colt that has lost a race. She got the blue ribbon, and Minniola, from the same ranch, received the blue ribbon for a two-year-old thoroughbred. Sidney and Sacramento were also awarded premiums, and "Old Nick" by Electioneer, received blue ribbon as a buggy horse; he has a record of 2:23. Piedra Blanca also exhibited a span of sorrel geldings, silver tails and manes. Race Warden was awarded second prize for his pair of black geldings that make a fine carriage team.

Fred Arnold, by Nephew, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, was awarded first premium under the standard-bred stallions. Fred Arnold is a coal black, fifteen and three-quarter hands high. As a three-year-old he won a six-heat race against aged horses, making a record of 2:37½. As a four-year-old he won a seven-heat race, trotting in 2:30½. At San Francisco, June, 1885, he beat Blaine, 2:28¼, and Nighttime, 2:29¼, race of two-mile heats, trotting the fifth heat in 5:10. At the Salinas Fair, fall of 1885, he trotted a six heat race, winning the second, third and sixth heats. Fred Arnold is gamey and an easy stallion to handle. H. D. Albright, the owner of Fred Arnold, also exhibited a draft stallion Pride, to which was awarded the first premium. The exhibition of Holstein cattle by E. W. Stelle was creditable, and so was the Jersey herd exhibited by Bier Bros.

The first race on Thursday was a surprise to the talent. Before the race everybody argued that the pacer Little Shrimp was too speedy for the trotter. Pools sold: Fred Grant $10, Little Shrimp $10, Promise $4, Prince B. $3. The driver of Prince B. could not handle his gelding; he had the poor horse checked up so high that it was impossible to see where he was stepping. The four horses were sent off to a good start. Little Shrimp went to the lead and passed the quarter in 0:40, to the half in 1:19. He was taken up around the turn, and he came home an easy winner in 2:44.

The second heat was a repetition of the first. Pool-buyers of Prince B. complained of the driver, and the driver was changed. The horse's check was lowered, and the horses came out for the third heat. Everybody cheered Prince B., for in scoring he showed more speed than the others. The horses were sent off to the poorest start that I ever witnessed on a track. Prince B. was almost to a standstill when the horses were tapped off, but he went at a thirty gait, and on the backstretch he collared the pacer, and soon passed him. The little pacer tired, and Prince B. came home an easy winner. The pools took a great chop, Prince B. bringing $10 against all the rest for $6. The fourth heat was an easy one for Prince B. He took the lead and was never headed, and he jogged under the wire in 2:40½.

The fifth heat was also an easy race for Prince B. The winner is a large, thickset, buckskin gelding nine years old, and is by Brilliant. He has been in training three weeks. Before his training began, he has been driven in a delivery wagon. The horse promises to be another hay-seed.

The next race was a trotting race, and the talent were again disappointed. Pools sold: Bonner $5, Duke $3, Diamond $3, Adjutant $2. Diamond won the race almost in a walk. The people from Santa Maria and Arroyo Grande yelled themselves hoarse.

Pools sold: Diamond $10, and the rest for $5. The second heat was interesting. On the backstretch Diamond made a bad break, and Bonner took the lead, followed closely by Duke McClellan. Bonner broke around the turn, and the Duke led by three lengths when they straightened for home. Bonner made a good effort for the heat, and only lost it by a neck.

Pools again changed: Bonner $5, Duke $5, field $3.

The six hundred yards and repeat race was sandwiched after their heat. Sid Lou was such a favorite that no pools were sold in this race. Sid Lou won the first heat easily.

The trotters were brought out again and started for the third heat. The race was between Bonner and the Duke all the way, but Duke McClellan got first under the wire by three or four inches. The races was then postponed till the next day. The runners were again brought out, and Rondout won the second heat, and this race was posponed.

At 1:30 on Friday the unfinished trot was called. The fourth heat was won by Bonner, and the fifth and race by Duke McClellan.

The unfinished run was then called and Rondont won the third heat and race. Lid Law second money.

Friday evening, Geo. C. Smith, owner of Topsey, circulated dodgers around town to the effect that the association had opened purses for saddle horses of $150, and that he,

Geo. C. Smith, had a mare that could trot in 2:25, and Flora G. could trot as fast, if not faster, and that they could not trot for a purse less than $300. Mr. Smith telegraphed to his friends in Santa Maria that his mare Topsey would not trot. The directors of the association were so indignant that they suspended Mr. Smith and Topsey for six months. Mr. Smith claims that they have no power to suspend him, as he had no contract to trot his mare, and he knew his friends were coming a long ways to see the mare trot and that he had a just right to get out his dodgers.

The races at San Luis Obispo were ended by a trot, and the novelty of one mile and a quarter; $25 for each quarter. The trotting race was the best of the week, the horses all contesting for each heat desperately. Pools sold, Allen L, $10, Lena H, $18, Acrobat (pacer) $4. Allen L took the lead after they passed the first quarter, which was made in 0:39. To the half Allen L. went in 1:15. He was driven clear outside around the turn, and he came home an easy winner in 2:34.

The second heat was won by Acrobat and the other three by Lena H., that proved the best stayer. Allen L. and Acrobat would tire on the homestretch. The novelty race was uninteresting as Othello was a large favorite for the ¾, 1 and 1¼. The first quarter was won by Wild Bill in 0:25, the half by Kitty C, and the rest were easily won by Othello who loaped in as he liked, running the mile 1¼ in 2:20¼.

The judges doing the work were J. H. Hollister, Leu Warden and Geo. Van Gordan.

J. H. STEINER, Secretary.

Theodore Winters, last week, removed his yearlings from Sacramento to his ranch in Washoe county, Nevada. Among the youngsters was the slashing brother to El Rio Rey, who is as big and handsome as his celebrated brother, and shows every indication of enhancing the value of the Norfolk-Marion blood when he appears in public.

The Almont Family.

One of the great features of the Fairlawn dispersal sale will be the seventeen Almont mares that will then pass under the auctioneer's hammer. It now seems certain that Almont will prove to be the great sire of trotting dams. He has now seventeen daughters that have put twenty performers in the list. At the same age Mambrino Patchen was the sire of thirteen dams of sixteen performers. Thus age for age he is the sire of four more dams of four more performers than even the great Mambrino Patchen himself. He is also the sire of 44 sons that have put 109 or 110 performers on the list, and every week is adding largely to the number. His percundity is absolutely astounding. There is no parallel to it in the history of the trotting horse. We give below a list of the sons of Almont that have made additions to the 2:30 list this year, with the names and records of the new performers:—

SIRE.	PERFORMER.	TIME.
Abdallah Mambrino	Mattie H.	2:25
Alcona	Flora Belle	2:25
——	Alice	2:29½
——	Addie E.	2:25
Allie Gaines	J. B. S.	2:28¾
Hamlius Almont	Grand R.	2:24¼
——	Actor	2:29¾

——	Stanford	2:30
——	Forester	2:22¾
Tilton Almont	Almonta	2:25
Almont Abdallah	Dr. Alrich	2:30

Below is a table of the producing daughters of Almont, with their produce:—

DAM.	PERFORMER.	TIME.
Alice West	Allamora	2:30
Allie	Spartan	2:20
Alma	Almont Wilkes	2:26
Almonia	Sallie Cossack	2:21¾
Almonia	Austornent	2:27¾
——	Restok Cossack	2:26
Ailine	Sand Bay	2:21
——	Chandos	2:28¼
——	Aronmen	2:29¼
Bohemian Girl	Theresa Sprague	2:25¾
Cachuca	Catchfly	2:18¼
Lady Alice	Acalyte	2:23¾
Lady Almont	Hindee Wilkes	2:20¾
Mathilda	Egberta	2:29¾
Mattie West	McMahon	2:21

Sirenia	C. W. L.	2:26
Tullahema	J. B. Richardson	2:17¾
Victor Almont	Careless	2:23¾
Coronet	Quartette	2:29

These figures speak for themselves, and stamp Almont as the most prolific progenitor of trotters that has yet appeared.

The Almont mares at Fair Lawn are the choicest in individuality and breeding produced by that great sire. The breeder who is fortunate to obtain one of them will make a great addition to his stud, no matter how rich it may already be in trotting blood.

Almont has now 37 performers in the list. About 130 grandsons and daughters, and some 30 great-grandsons and great-granddaughters

BOYCE TABLETS.

Leg and Body Wash.

THE BOYCE TABLETS are packed in a nicely decorated metal box with hinged lid—one hundred tablets in each box; directions for use plainly engraved upon the box; therefore, the convenience of the package—no liability to leakage and breakage—economy and ready solubility, together with the absolute certainty of their action, will at once commend the use of BOYCE'S TABLETS to the intelligent horsemen of the country. TABLETS sufficient to make one hundred pints of leg and body wash are conveniently carried in an inside coat pocket or in the hip-pocket of the trousers.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y, August 23, 1889.

BOYCE TABLET CO., Terre Haute, Ind.

GENTLEMEN: I look upon horses the same as human beings. They say that a horse has no soul. I dont't believe that is possible. It does not seem to me that so true, brave and noble an animal as a horse, after having spent a life of toil and drudgery, will die, and that is the end. I feel like thanking everyone who does a kind act for the horse family, and for that reason, if for no other, I take the opportunity of thanking you for having invented a medicine that brings as much comfort to them as I am sure your CELEBRATED TABLETS do. Mr. Wm. McClosson, the foreman of my stable, tells me that he has never tried anything in his long experience that gives such relief to a sore horse as the wash prepared from your medicine.

Hoping for the sake of the horse family that every horse owner in the land will try it, I remain,

Yours truly, JOHN SPLAN.

Price per Box of One Hundred Tablets, $2, sent postpaid to any part of the United States; six boxes for $10. A sample of BOYCE'S TABLETS will be mailed to any address on receipt of four cents to pay postage. These TABLETS are warranted to keep in any climate. Address

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, MICH., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used OSSIDINE for the past two years, and consider it invaluable for Spring Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone, and Spavins; there is nothing equals it and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used. Very respectfully yours,
S. A. BROWNE & CO., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish.

Acknowledged by leading horsemen of the world to be the ONLY preparation that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

We have authority also to refer to
Mr. JEROME I. CASE, Mr. FRED. GEBHARD,
Mr. JOHN. PORTER (Trainer to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales),
And hundreds of others from whom we have very flattering testimonials.

SUNOL---Three-Year-Old Record 2:13 3-4.

It is very appropriate in the present number to present once more to our readers a likeness of Sunol, who now stands at the head of the three-year-old class for speed, the mile she compassed at Fresno, stamping her as the greatest three-year-old that ever lived, especially when it is taken into consideration that one of the quarters on that course is a very slow one, owing to the sand which predominates. The account of the race in which Sunol made her remarkable time is clearly given by one of our correspondents in another column, so we will describe Sunol in the words of Leslie E. Macleod, assistant editor of Wallace's Monthly.

Electioneer has furnished many stars in the juvenile trotting-world, but none has attracted the attention that is being showered upon Sunol, the great two-year-old. She is generally regarded as the brighest star in her sire's radiant cluster, she has increased the value of a whole family manifold, and in the light of her glory they enjoy reflected fame. Her performance is perhaps the most wonderful on record; and though, in view of the uncertainties of the turf, it is idle to speculate upon the future, she has perhaps as good a chance, if it is not destroyed, of surpassing the record of Maud S. as any animal now before the public. Be that as it may, her prominence is already great enough to warrant us in giving a somewhat particular account of her. She was bred at Palo Alto, and was got by Electioneer, out of Waxana, by Gen. Benton. Waxana's dam was Waxy, a racing-bred mare, reputed to be by Lexington. Waxana is a large chestnut mare of excellent form, a handsome, expressive head, and of general marked character. Sunol has developed into a filly that, if she had no reputation, would attract notice for her peculiar shape and rare finish. She has as exquisitely handsome a head and neck as ever was striven for on the painters' canvas. The beautiful lines on which they are chiseled, and their delicate finish, make Sunol's fore-features imperial in their beauty. The shoulder is prominent, running obliquely to a rather low and smoothly-turned wither that is carried well back. Her depth through the heart region and the formation of the chest give the requisite lung and heart capacity. It is in her rear formation that the peculiarity exists. She is remarkably "high behind."

There appears a greater proportionate difference in her height at the withers and over the quarter than the figures show, or than we ever observed in any other animal. She is 15.2 hand high forward and 16 hands high behind. We have always considered this the most favorable formation for speed—have never admired prominent withers, and the form of Maud S., Sunol and many others, bear out the preference. Electioneer is himself on this order of structure, Sunol is just slightly inclined to be roach-backed, but she is closely and strongly coupled. The lower line of her barrel is, one might say harmonious with her back. That is it runs high at the flank, and while she is not light-waisted, still she has the most greyhoundish appearance imaginable in a horse.

Her croup is rather short, and the incline of the quarter is sharp, and the slope very noticeable. The pacing conformation is here closely approached. The combined length of the quarter and leg is exceptional. If you draw a line from the point of the hip to the whirl-bone, from there to the stifle, and thence to the hock, we think the aggregate length of the lines forming these angles will much exceed, in proportion to other parts, a similar measurement of any horse we have ever seen. The quarters are muscular, the legs stout and strong to the hocks and knees, which are faultless, and the cannons are rarely good. The pasterns are not unusual in length or slope, and the foot is a good average one.

Notwithstanding her sensitive nerves, Sunol has no disposition to break when trotting. She has an easy, stealing gait, tucking her hind legs well up under her, and going very close. She carries the lighest of shoes and no toe-weights. The toe-weight has no place among the appliances used in educating trotters at Palo Alto. Sunol is now sound and clean as a dollar, to all appearances; and though it is possible she has not the flight of Manzanita, whose capacity was equal to a quarter in thirty seconds unless she has some of the ill-fortune that prevented that great mare acquiring a record that would adequately measure her speed, the prospect is rosy for the daughter of Waxana heading the roll of the Electioneers with a very low figure.

THURSDAY.

There was quite a big day in front of everyone on Thursday, what with cattle judging, the balloon ascent, the prize babies, ladies' riding tournament and racing in the afternoon. The judges' stand was tinged with crape in memoriam of F. H. Hamilton, who only the preceding day was in the stand, and whose sad death cast such a gloom over the day's proceedings, for in him Fresno lost one of her most popular and most generous citizens, his courtesy and kindness to the visitors, and particularly the members of the Press, and myself personally, can never be forgotten.

The babies, eight in number, were judged by Messrs. S. N. Straube, George Brown, F. H. Calderwood and J. E Ryan. The first prize was given to a three months old boy, Ezekiel Lewis, Marguerite Warrener second, and Alice Cutten third. The judges at once left the scene to attend to their other duties. The Equestrienne tournament did not fill as well as had been expected, but although only two ladies turned out, the ease and grace with which they rode, made up for the absence of the others. Mrs. R. W. Furnish was awarded first prize, the Examiner saddle, etc., and Miss Leona Burnside second. The latter rode very well and gracefully, with a firm easy seat, and but for an unfortunate accident in which her horse reared and fell over backwards, the judges' position would have been as awkward as was Paris'. Mr. Ed Felton, of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, although slightly bashful, made the announcement from the stand in flowing language. The descent from the balloon by Joe Van Tassell was very successful, the æronaut and his parachute alighting a yard or two of where he started. The attendance all day was exceptionally good. The unfinished race was called up at once, but fully an hour elapsed before the three-year-olds were started. Theodosia, despite a bad break, won as she pleased. The 2:30 class was generally conceded a certainty for Lorita, who was handled by Orrin Hickok, who had leased her for the Fresno trip, the confidence reposed in the six-year-old daughter of Piedmont was not misplaced, for Atto Rex who was dead lame had no show, although he took one heat, while Express was not steady enough. The Raisin Handicap was put down as a good thing for Hello, and nicely placed by Narvice, he came through in the last quarter, and won cleverly. S. N. Straube's good looking Apex filly, frightened all opposition in the yearling trot, and the local two-year-old runners finished the programme, two Confidence youngsters running one, two, Little Confidence winning easily.

The fourth heat of the unfinished three-year-old race was called up at 1 o'clock, but it was after 2 before they were started, Oliver B. breaking every time before the wire was reached. When the bell was tapped Oliver B. broke and dropped back. Theodosia broke before the turn, but catching, trotted well, and at the half was level with Oliver B., five lengths behind Pericles. Oliver went up, and fell away back, while Theodosia went slowly but surely up to Pericles, being level on the turn, and with the latter breaking badly, drew away, winning easily by seventy yards, Oliver B. just inside the flag. Time 2:50.

2:30 Class.

First Heat—Lorita was made a big favorite, being steadily backed until the start at $40 to $25 for Atto Rex and $16 for Express. When the trio were tapped off Lorita was a trifle in front. Express left his feet before the first turn was made, and spoilt his chance for the heat. Atto Rex went rather lame, and Lorita had a five lengths' lead at the first quarter, with Express six lengths further back. Hickok kept Lorita moving, and was never collared, winning as he pleased by six lengths. Express trotted the last half well, and with Atto Rex breaking at the drawgate, beat him three lengths for the place. Time 2:28.

Second Heat—Lorita sold a still bigger favorite at $70 to Express $27, and Rex $17. The word was given after three scores, Lorita going out a length and a half in front of Rex, who was a length clear of Express. The trio went very smoothly to the quarter when Marvin shook Express up and passed the pair, leading a length round the upper turn. Atto Rex six lengths back last. Lorita went up to Express in the stretch, and carrying him to a break won readily by two lengths. Time, 2:27.

Third Heat—Lorita now sold readily for $40 to the field $5, and when the bell was tapped had a shade the worst of it. Marvin sent Express away at a good clip and soon had two lengths the best of the others, and going very steadily up the backstretch was five lengths in front of Lorita at the upper turn, and although he broke, turned into the stretch four lengths in front, but tiptoeing for a hundred yards went up at the eighth pole, and Rex coming with a wet sail beat Lorita two lengths for the heat. Time 2:27.

The fourth heat was not productive of any betting. Lorita went out first and had things all her own way, winning easily by five lengths from Rex, who was the same distance in front of Express. Time, 2:23.

The mile and a quarter was one of the heaviest betting races of the week, Hello being an even money favorite at $100 to Brady $50, Oro $40 and Manzanita $10.

There was a long delay at the start, and when the flag dropped to a good send off, Manzanita was rushed to the front and passed the stand a length in front of Oro, with Brady pulling double two lengths back, and Hello last. Manzanita had shot his bolt and retired after the first turn, dropping back last, while Oro took up the running, and Brady, being given his head, raced up to him at the half, and the pair went round the turn two lengths in front of Hello. When the stretch was reached Narvice moved up on Hello, and getting in front at the drawgate, won cleverly by three lengths, Brady and Oro making a dead heat for the place. Time, 2:10.

The Yearling Trotting Stake, half-mile, $50 entrance, with $150 added, which had closed with seven entries, only brought S. N. Straube's filly by Apex, dam Ella, to the post, and the speedy looking youngster trotted over the course easily in 1:40¼.

FRIDAY.

The announcement that Sunol and Palo Alto would attempt to beat their records had the effect of bringing a much larger gathering to the track. The two Palo Alto cracks had been going so well in their work that hopes were entertained that one or the other would lower their record. The track was smoothed over at 1 o'clock and seemed fairly fast, but not more so than usual, the last quarter being slow (too much sand). Marvin came out at a quarter past one with Sunol, a purse of $250 being offered if she could beat her record of 2:16½. After moving her slowly round the track and scoring up twice Marvin nodded for the word with the three-year-old trotting fast. The first quarter was made in :32½ and trotting like a piece of well regulated machinery, the mare kept up the pace. At the three furlongs Mr. Straube's runner joined in but stayed a length behind, while the mare kept up her terrific burst of speed, passing the half in 1:05½, and trotting steadily round the turn was joined by the runner. When the head of the stretch was reached in 1:38½ the splendid daughter of Electioneer was still going well; half way down the straight she faltered in the deep sandy going, but Marvin kept her down, and using the whip freely the mare came again and finished strongly, going under the wire in 2:13¾. Cheers and shouts of applause rent the air, for every one knew she had beaten 2:16. When the time was hung out they were renewed, and though under a misapprehension it was at first hung out as 2:14, the timers immediately had it altered. Messrs. S. N. Straube, A. Gouzalez and E. B. Gifford held the official watches. When the time was first hung out as 2:14 two of the timers at once went up to the judges' stand and stated they had made the time 2:13¾, and their colleague had been too hasty. The judges' watches also made it 2:13¾, while a dozen outside watches also made it 2:13¾. Harry Agnew, who stood next me, caught her at the first quarter and stopped at the wire in 1:41¼. All who had split seconds caught the first quarter in 32½ seconds. Marvin at once brought Palo Alto out, but as he went decidedly lame he was only given one heat, going to the half in 1:06½, but when he struck the sand he left his feet in a bad break, and did not catch for forty yards, and then trotting fast again finished the full mile in 2:15. Marvin did not wish to risk the stallion again, so he was not brought out for another heat. The other races were a three-quarter dash, one-fourth mile and repeat and a special pacing.

Six Furlongs.

Welcome and Oro divided favoritism, Oro generally having the call. The last pool sold Oro $52½, Welcome $50, Springwater and Bay Bolton, as a field, $8. After half an hour's delay the flag fell to a fairly good start, the two field horses making the pace with Oro and Welcome two lengths behind to the head of the stretch, when Oro came up on the inside and Welcome on the outside, and soon passing the leaders, ran a hard race home. Welcome, who ran none too kindly, was beaten a neck by Oro, Springwater six lengths back third. Time 1:16.

Pacing.

There was very little betting on the pace at Mink $20 to the field $8. When the bell was tapped Doc went away well, but Birdie broke badly, being quite a hundred yards back, when she settled down. Doc led Mink by two lengths all the way, winning by the same. Birdie was distanced. Time, 2:26.

Second Heat—What little betting was done was at the same rate Mink $20, Doc $8. The bell was tapped the first time, Doc again setting the pace and going steadily was four lengths in front at the quarter. Mink gradually closed up and passing him in the stretch, won easily by two lengths. Time, 2:26.

Third Heat—There was no pool selling now; Mink with a length the best of it went round the turn, but breaking at the half was a length behind, and pacing steadily was level at the head of the stretch, winning by three lengths. Time, 2:27½.

The race was then postponed to Saturday.

SATURDAY.

The unfinished pacing race was called up at one o'clock, and the pair were soon sent away, Doc leading four lengths when the quarter was reached, Hellman drove Mink hard and caught Doc at the drawgate, but breaking was beaten two lengths. Time, 2:25.

With both horses having two heats in the best betting that could be obtained was $6 for Doc to $25 Mink. Doc made the pace to the quarter, when Mink went past him and won as he liked by forty yards. Doc was badly pumped out and stopped fast. Time, 2:23.

When they came out for the second heat a few pools were sold at $30 for Emma Temple and $6 for Don Tomas. The pair made a very pretty race to the drawgate when the gelding broke and Emma won by three lengths. Time, 2:23.

The third heat was trotted in the same way, at the drawgate Emma Temple had half a length the best of it and Hellman drew a very fine finish, winning by the shortest of heads. Time, 2:23½.

The fourth heat was trotted after the quarter mile. The pair went together to the half, when Don Tomas broke, losing three lengths. He trotted well afterwards and was level at the drawgate when he again broke, Temple winning by two lengths. Time, 2:25¾.

The quarter mile dash catch weights had four starters, Black Bess getting up in the last few strides and winning by a head. Time, 0:24¾.

A mile and an eighth over four hurdles was the next event on the programme. Jack Pot was made favorite and won, though Sir Ladd was much the best fencer, gaining three or four lengths every jump. O'Brien rode Ben Harrison and got him round the track about a minute after the other two.

The meeting wound up with a seven furlong dash with four starters. Betting varied a good deal. Asa was installed favorite the night before, but when they appeared on the track Manzanita was favorite for a while and eventually Isabella and Blain, as a field, sold a big favorite, bringing $70 to $30 for Asa and $20 for Manzanita. When the flag fell to a fairly good start Manzanita and Blain were rushed to the front. Hazlitt and Myers, on Asa and Isabella, hard held, ran together five lengths behind the leaders. Blain had enough when the head of the stretch was reached, and as Asa was coming too fast Hazlitt took a pull on her at the eighth pole, and when she could not possibly win sat down the last thirty yards and rode a brilliant finish for the place, finishing three-quarters of a length behind Manzanita.

Sallie Blain ran unplaced.

The meeting was fairly successful all round, the trotting being very good, Alfred S getting a record of 2:18, while on Friday Sunol lowered the world's record, and though there is not a shadow of a doubt that the peerless daughter of Electioneer and Waxana will lower it a second at the very least before the fall meetings are through, it is a big thing for Fresno that Axtell's record was beaten there. Hardly any one thought the mare would go as fast, for the track was not as fast as several we know, and next year it is intended to have more loam on it, which should cause a great improvement. The Association have spared neither time nor money, and will continue until they have the best track in the State. Their grand stand, when completed, will be one of, if not the best in California.

The exhibits were all round as good as any seen on a fair ground. Thoroughbred classes were nearly all walk-overs, while in standard trotters and roadsters S. N. Straube was easily first in almost every instance, Clovis, by Sultan, dam Sweetbriar by Thorndale, out of Ulster Queen by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, winning in the stallion class and also with several of his progeny in the sweepstake. A good many of Mr. Straube's were shown in the roadster class, owing to the fact of their having too much thoroughbred in them to be standard. Standard horses were judged by S. A. Clark, David Bryson and Porter Mickle. All other classes were judged by W. Furnish, Wm. Snow and Robert Hill. The Heilbron herds were invincible, taking everything before them, the Shorthorns being given the preference.

SANTA BARBARA.

WEDNESDAY, October 2d.—There was a big crowd present at the track to witness the stallion race. Everybody seemed to take great interest in the race. The evening before the race, Bashaw sold for $10, Rosewall for $6, and Electro $4. At the race track, Bashaw sold for $10, and Rosewall and Electro in the field for $4.

The first heat was at last announced. The three stallions scored fully twenty minutes, and the longer they scored the better became Rosewall's chances. At last the bell was not heard, and the clear, loud voice of F. S. Malone gave the word "go." Bashaw led to the quarter in 0:39, to the half in 1:17½ Rosewall came up to his wheel, and the three quarter pole was reached in 1:55, Electro four lengths behind. When they turned towards home, Bashaw was given the whip, and with Rosewall laying up the heat, won easily. Time, 2:36.

After the usual twenty-five minutes, the stallions were again brought out. They did a great deal of scoring. Rosewall scored very fast, and when they were sent off, they were going very rapidly. Electro broke immediately after leaving the wire, and ran, and Gus Walters, fearing a collision, struck Rosewall, who broke and ran, but immediately came down, trotting fast, reaching the quarter in 0:38, Electro second, Bashaw third. To the half he went in 0:16½, to the three-quarter in 1:54, and almost walked under the wire in 2:35, Electro second, Bashaw third.

Pete Doyle said: "Judges, I want to make a complaint." F. S. Malone answered: "It is not neces-ary; we know all about it."

The crowd surrounded the judge's stand. It was a great sight to behold! To watch the expressions in each man's face as he stood there looking up towards the judges. Not a voice was heard! The noise, tumult and hurrahs of one moment before were hushed, and only a low murmur was heard, such a murmur as recollections of storm in mid-ocean. At last the suspense was broken! The bell rang, and the sonorous voice of the chosen judge from San Francisco, F. S. Malone, announced the following severe and unjust decision: "Electro wins the heat, Bashaw second, Rosewall and driver ruled off the track."

Not a word of complaint was heard. All seemed bewildered, and only looked into one another's faces, and seemed to ask, "Is it a fact? Will not Rosewall be allowed to start?" In twenty-five minutes their anxiety was gone. Bashaw and Electro came up for the third heat. The interest in the race was all gone. Bashaw won the next two heats as he pleased. Time, 2:37, 2:39.

When the crowd realized the unjustness of the decision, they became so chagrined that many feared trouble. The bell was heard to ring once. F. S. Malone made the following announcement: "After due consideration, we have decided to re-instate Rosewall." Voices were heard to say: "After the race is finished."

The next race was a special race between Glenwood and Prussian Boy. In the pools Glenwood sold for $10, Prussian Boy $6. The first and second heats were won by Glenwood. After the second heat the judges decided pools and all bets off, and the race a farce. Pete Doyle said to me the Prussian was sick, and had been fed only on hay and bran for four or five days. "The horse," he said, "is too sick, and he cannot pace."

Time, 2:41½.

The next morning a meeting was held by the directors to investigate Gus Walters' case. F. S. Malone stated in substance, that Rosewall's breaking and running had nothing to do with his decision, but that he believed that Gus Walters had maliciously and intentionally whipped his horse into a run to take the pole, and thus win the heat.

I. K. Fisher, proprietor of Don Patricio, and a prominent capitalist, was then heard, and his testimony was to the fact that he was standing where he could see the horses, and that he had seen no foul. A. F. McPhail testified to the same, and so did several prominent men. The five directors voted to re-instate Gus Walters, which was announced from the stand Thursday.

THURSDAY.

The first race was a most interesting one Pools sold, Comet $20, Gambo $10, field $4, in which were Ella Hill, Joe Dandy and Lone Star. Many large bets were made, even money that Gambo would beat Comet. Lone Star had the pole, Gambo 2nd, Comet 3rd, Joe Dandy fourth and Ella Hill fifth.

The horses were soon sent off all in a bunch. Comet and Gambo soon left the rest. Around the turn Gambo was seen suddenly to stop and fall back four lengths. All the other horses passed him, but on the homestretch he made a fight for the leader, Comet, and under the wire Comet and Gambo came head and head, but Comet had three or four inches the better of Gambo, Ella Hill third, Joe Dandy fourth, Lone Star fifth. Gambo's rider came to the stand and claimed that Comet had fouled. He said that Comet crowded him into the fence and that Gambo came near falling. He asked if the judges would not go down to the turn and note the foul. One of the judges went down and he reported that it was evident that the horse was crowded into the fence. Mr. Malone then said, 'Let us declare it a dead heat and send the other three horses to the stable," and so it was announced. A prominent horseman said, "It is a rank decision. If a foul were evident Gambo should have the race. Such a foul cannot be admitted and then the heat decided a dead heat."

Comet and Gambo were again brought out, Comet having the pole. They were sent off to a good start and they ran neck and neck all around, but in the homestretch Comet drew away and won by a length in 1:04½.

The next race was a three year old trot. Only two came to the start, Tono and Rowdy. Tono sold for $20; Rowdy $5. Rowdy had the pole.

Rowdy led in the first quarter in :39. Gambo moved up and Rowdy broke. Tono led to the half in 1:19, to the three-quarters in 1:54, and jogged under the wire in 2:42½.

In the second heat Tono led all the way. They passed the first quarter in :38½ like a double team; to the half in 1:17, when Rowdy broke and Tono led to the three quarters in 1:59 and home in 2:46¼

After the second heat Gus Walters came on the track driving Don Patricio. It was announced that Don Patricio would be driven a mile. The pool box was opened and bets were made that Don Patritio would not beat 2:50. The stallion looked well and moved gracefully. He has two hundred pounds of extra flesh, yet he trotted easily, with no horse beside him to urge him on, in 2:46

Tono and Rowdy came out for the third heat. The word go was soon given. Rowdy led to the quarter in :39½, to the half in 1:16½, to the three-quarters in 1:58. Rowdy was trotting beautifully, but when one hundred yards from the wire he broke and Tono passed him and won the race easily in 2:39¾.

FRIDAY'S RACING.

Fully two thousand people were present to witness the last day's racing of the Santa Barbara Agricultural Association. Great was the disappointment when it was understood that Topsey could not start and that Bastian would not. So the 2:30 class was contested only by Nigger Baby and May Queen. Nigger Baby was so much faster than May Queen that little interest was taken in the race.

The three-quarters and repeat was a walk over for Othello, and in the special trot Saxton was too fast for the other horses in the race.

The exhibition of fruits, farm products, minerals, merchandise, etc., was the finest ever held here. The Santa Maria and Lompoc exhibit was bewildering. The apples, peaches and apricots from there were large, healthy and beautiful in color. Lompoc apples cannot be surpassed. SAN JOSE.

Three Horses Enter the "30" List in One Race—Grand Contests at the Garden City Adonis Paces a Third Heat in 2:14.

THURSDAY.

The crowd upon the fourth day of the meeting was as flattering to the association as the former days were discouraging. The programme was only fair.

Trotting, 2:40 Class.

The report began with the above event in which L. J. Rose's Jr., b g Richmond, San Mateo Stock Farm's ch m Una Wilkes, L J. Rose's blk m Moro, J. W. Jordon's b h C. W. S. and G. T. Johnson's gr g Sargent started. Richmond sold favorite in the pools at $40, Una Wilkes second choice at $14 and the field at $12.

First Heat—After three scores they got the word. Sargent had the pole and swung around the first turn in the lead, C W S and Moro at his wheel, Richmond a length behind them and Una Wilkes last. They remained in those positions to the second turn, except that Una Wilkes broke on the backstretch and ran into second place. On the second turn they strung out, Sargent first, Moro second, C W S third, Una Wilkes fourth and Richmond fifth a length apart. They entered the straight in that order and Moro began play for the lead and pushed the grey hard, but she broke at the drawgate and was out of it. From the head of the straight home Richmond came very fast and when Moro broke he was at her wheel and making for the leader, but he started too late and the grey Sargent took the heat by two lengths, Richmond second, C. W. S. third, Moro fourth, Una Wilkes fifth. Time, 2:28.

Second Heat—Richmond was still favorite, selling at $100 to $26 for the field, and $9 for Una Wilkes. The favorite again disappointed them. He broke entering the turn and dropped behind the crowd. Sargent went on in front with C. W. S. at his wheel, Moro two lengths from them and Una Wilkes in fourth place. Richmond came up with a burst of speed as they entered the backstretch and got on even terms with Moro, when he broke again. They entered the second turn strung out a length apart in the old order, Richmond closing up. When they got into the straight, Sargent was a length to the good. C. W. S. and Moro came after him and Richmond began to close his gap but he went off his feet again. C. W. S. was at Sargent's wheel, but running half his time. Moro began to crawl up fast at the finish and she stayed on her feet for once and snatched the heat by a head from Sargent, C. W. S. a close third, Richmond fourth. Time, 2:27.

Third Heat—Richmond still held his place as favorite, and sold at $40 to $19 for the field, and $5 for Una Wilkes. They got a beautiful start at the second attempt, and went off with Moro in the lead and Sargent at her wheel. Moro broke on the first turn, and fell back to third place. On the backstretch the order was Sargent first, then C. W. S., Moro, Richmond and Una Wilkes in the order named, an open length apart. The positions were unchanged until they were swinging into the straight, when Sargent and C. W. S. simultaneously broke, and Moro crowded up and came into the straight a length behind them. She quickly collared both, and was in front to near the drawgate, and then Richmond, who was four lengths behind, came up with a burst of speed which carried him by the others as if they were standing still, and head and head with Moro he came to the wire, surging forward in the last length and winning from Moro by a short head, C. W. S. third, Sargent fourth. Time, 2:29¼.

Fourth Heat—No pools were sold; everybody being busy with the next event. They were sent away to a fair start, Moro taking the lead, closely followed by Richmond and C. W. S. Richmond crowded up to Moro and went into the backstretch a head in front of her, C. W. S. two lengths behind them. Sargent was tired and no more in the race, and Una Wilkes was acting badly, leaving the race to Richmond and Moro, who went around the second turn like a team, but Moro came into the straight slightly in front. Richmond crowded her hard, hanging on to her wheel until they reached the distance post, where he broke, and Moro took the heat by half a length, Sargent a poor third, C. W. S. fourth, and Una Wilkes just inside her distance. Time, 2:28.

Fifth Heat—Johnny Goldsmith had to be fined $10 for scoring ahead of the pole horse before they could get off. He was out for the heat but couldn't get it. Moro went off in the lead attended by Richmond, Una Wilkes in third place. Richmond and Moro had the heat all to themselves. They stayed together until they reached the second turn, where he drew away and led Moro into the straight by two lengths, coming home as he pleased, and winning the heat by two lengths, Moro second, Una Wilkes a poor third, C. W. S. fourth, Sargent distanced. Time, 2:28.

Sixth Heat—According to rule, everything went to the stable except Moro and Richmond. When they came out a few pools were sold at $50 for Richmond and $8 for Moro. Richmond took the lead at the start, and held it to the finish, Moro staying at his wheel until they came into the straight, when Richmond drew away and won by two lengths. Time, 2:31.

The next event was the above, in which the starters were J. A. Goldsmith's ch m Hazel Wilkes, George Guerne's b h Alfred G., B. C. Holly's ch m Pink and J. L. McCord's ch m Mary Lou. Pools opened with Hazel Wilkes first choice at $60, Alfred G second at $20 and the field at $50.

First Heat.—There was a lot of scoring before they got the word, and then they went off with Alfred G in front, Mary Lou at his wheel, Hazel Wilkes in a pocket behind them and Pink back two lengths. The positions were held to the quarter, where Mary Lou lost her feet and Hazel Wilkes went up to Alfred G's wheel and stayed there until half way down the straight. Then she began to crawl in front, and Alfred G got the whip. At the drawgate he broke under the pressure and Hazel eased up and trotted in two lengths winner, Mary Lou third, Pink fourth. Time 2:21.

Second Heat—Wilkes was considered the only thing in it and was bought freely at $50 to $8 for the entire field. She got off when the bell tapped well in the lead with Alfred G in second place and Mary Lou third, but Hazel made a bad break in the turn, and when she got down Alfred G was leading, Mary Lou in second place ten lengths away. Hazel trotted very fast to make up the lost ground and at the half was on even terms with Mary Lou, who was off her feet, and but two lengths from Alfred G. Alfred broke just entering the turn, but lost little. The mare continued to crawl up and Alfred broke again entering the straight and she swung in and started home ahead of him. He made still another bad break. Hazel came home winner as she pleased, Mary Lou getting in for second place, Alfred G third. Time 2:22¾.

Third Heat.—Hazel took the heat and race. She went around the turn with Alfred G at her head, Pink two lengths behind them and Mary Lou last. Hazel went in front on the backstretch and led Alfred by a length to the turn, where he closed up to her head again and Pink and Mary Lou moved up closer to them. Hazel was again in front when they entered the straight, the others on even terms behind her. She came home easy and took the heat by two lengths. Mary Lou, Alfred G and Pink had an exciting finish for second place. Alfred G broke at the drawgate and Mary Lou snatched second from Pink by a head. Time 2:23.

FRIDAY.

Another big, surging, sweating crowd was out upon the fifth day of the meeting, a larger crowd than had been seen upon any two previous days. The runners had the call again, and for the last time of the meeting. The first event of the day was a

Selling Purse, 1 1-16 Miles,

Matt Storn had in two starters, Fanny F, carrying 111 pounds, and Kildare 112, Billy Appleby started Wild Oats with 112 pounds up. Wild Oats was favorite in the betting at $25, Fanny F bringing $15 and Kildare $8. At the second breakaway they were given the flag. Kildare was in front, Wild Oats at his flank and Fanny F at his heels. When they got into the backstretch Kildare went out to make the pace, and took a lead of two lengths, Wild Oats and Fanny F running together. They kept these positions until the stretch was reached. Then Hitchcock called on Wild Oats, but he couldn't respond. Fanny F waited until she reached the drawgate, when she made her run and got to Kildare's head, and they went under nose and nose, a dead heat, with Wild Oats three lengths back. Time 1:49¾.

The remainder of the programme was run off before Fanny F and Kildare were called out for the run-off of the dead heat Pools were sold on the heat Fanny F $25, Kildare $20. The flag went down with both horses moving head and head. They ran nose and nose at a lively clip until they got well into the straight, and then Morton, on Fanny F, began to punish her. She crowded Kildare close into the fence and got her head in front of him, and all the riding Morton could do wouldn't shove her an inch further out, and she won by a bare head. Time 1.52¾.

Running, three-quarters of a mile, two-gear-olds.

The next event, the Getaway Stakes, had in it Matt Storn's ch f Marigold, 115, Palo Alto's b c Racine, 119, and John Leach's br c Capt. Al, 118. There was no betting upon the event, it being considered a "cinch" for Racine. They went off from the flag head and head, but going down the backstretch Marigold and Racine drew away two lengths from Capt. Al. Racine showed his head in front at the half and lead around the turn by a length and came into the straight two lengths to the good. Morton shook him up and struck him twice with the whip and came home two lengths from Marigold in 1:14¾. Captain Al was never in it at all.

Wild Oats was named to win this as he had had no race in his former start, and the talent made him favorite at $40, to $20 for Joe Viva. Wild Oats took it, finishing under a pull. He cantered the first three-quarters, allowing Viva to stay with him and then as he entered the second turn he drew away and Joe Viva got the whip and quit. Wild Oats cantered down the straight and home an easy winner by two lengths. Time, 2:18.

The Saratoga Stakes, three-quarters of a mile and repeat, closed the running programme. There were but two starters R. B. Cockrell's b m Daisy D. 114, and B. P. Hill's ch g Mikado 117. Daisy D. was a big favorite, selling for $60 to $32 for the gelding. In the first heat Daisy had a little the best of the go, but Mikado quickly came up to her neck and ran with her to half way down the straight, when Daisy drew away to a length lead and finished with both horses under a pull in 1:15. When the pool box opened, the Daisy D. people went wild and ran the mare up until she brought $310 against $30 for Mikado. They came to the post, made one breakaway and then got the flag with Mikado a neck in front. Daisy caught him in the first 100 yards and they ran to the head of the straight together. Mikado got the whip there, but Daisy drew away from him a length and came home under a pull, Mikado two lengths back very tired. Time, 1:16¾.

SATURDAY.

San Jose's fair closed under much more encouraging circumstances than attended its opening. There was a large crowd present, attracted by a really good programme. The weather was not so intensely hot as it had been upon Thursdays and Friday, and the day was in consequence much more enjoyable.

Trotting—2:30 Class.

The sport was begun with the above event, in which J. Cochran's ch m Alloretta, J. A. Goldsmith's ch m Nina D., B. C. Holly's b g San Diego, and John Green's b g Melrose started In the pool-box Alloretta was favorite at $40, Nina D. bringing $25 and the field $18.

First Heat—Nina D. had the pole, but when the bell tapped after a number of scores, she was going on her toes, and as they swung into the turn, Alloretta took the lead from her, and at the half Melrose made a run and took second place from Nina, and she contented herself with third. San Diego was not in it. Melrose got to Alloretta's wheel on the second turn, and was crowding her on the straight when he broke, and Alloretta lead him under the wire by two lengths, Nina D. a poor third, San Diego fourth. Time, 2:28.

Second Heat—Pools opened: Alloretta $30, Nina D. $6, field $7. Alloretta got away from the score in front, but in the turn both she and Nina D. lost their feet, and San Diego went to the quarter in first place, Nina D. second, Melrose third, and Alloretta four lengths behind. Down the backstretch the favorite stayed behind, but in the second turn she closed the gap at a fast clip, and entered the straight in front of San Diego by half a length. Goldsmith brought Nina D. up, and both of them gave Alloretta a race home, but in a hard finish she beat San Diego out by half a length, and Nina D. by a length. Time, 2:27.

Third Heat—The heat was an exact duplicate in every feature of the second heat. Alloretta lead around the turn but broke, and San Diego was first at the quarter, Nina D. second, Melrose third, and Alloretta four lengths behind. The positions were unchanged until they reached the second turn, when Alloretta came up, passed them all, and came down home to a close finish with San Diego, beating him out by a neck, Nina D. a close third, Melrose fourth. Time, 2:30.

Special.

A special race was made up for Lillie Stanley, Gus Wilkes, Ned Winslow and Frank. The betters fancied Lillie Stanley as winner, and bought her for $25 to $11 for Ned Winslow, and $10 for the field.

First Heat—The heat lay entirely between Lillie Stanley and Ned Winslow. The pacer went to the front on the turn, and was never headed, taking the heat by a length, Gus Wilkes third, Frank fourth. Time, 2:22.

Second Heat. Stanley was still favorite, bringing $30 to $14 for Winslow and $5 for the field. Winslow again took the lead and held it to the wire, staying two lengths in front of Stanley until they entered the straight, when she got to Winslow's wheel. She was carrying him out in a hard finish when she broke and went under two lengths behind him, Gus Wilkes third, Frank fourth. Time 2:20¼.

Third Heat. Ned Winslow was made favorite after the second heat, selling at $50 to $17 for Stanley and $5 for the field. Stanley made a tangled break at the start and fell to the rear of the crowd, Ned Winslow going around the turn in front, Gus Wilkes second and Frank third, Gus Wilkes broke on the backstretch and gave second place to Frank. He hung on to Winslow all the way, getting up to him when in the straight, but as he was coming home with a fair show of winning he broke and Ned Winslow took the heat and race, Frank second, Lillie Stanley third, Gus Wilkes fourth. Time 2:19½.

Special Pace.

Another one of the card's attractions was a special for Adonis and Gold Leaf. The first heat was a corker. Gold Leaf had the best of the go by a length, and went off that distance in front and led the horse without change to the middle of the second turn, where he began to close the gap, entering the straight on even terms with her and passing her at the ⅛ post, coming home easy three lengths in front in 2:14¾. There was no betting at all on the event. In the second heat Gold Leaf broke going into the turn and was fifteen lengths behind Adonis when she got down, but Hickok held up for her and she caught Adonis at the half. He led her by a length into the straight. Then Andy gave her the whip but she quit and Adonis got the heat in a jog in 2:21¼. Adonis took the third heat, leading the filly from start to finish and coming home easy in 2:14. The last performance was greeted with cheers from the crowd.

I cannot close the account of the fair without speaking of the latest achievement of San Jose's enterprise—the Hotel Vendome. Horsemen, owners, visitors, everybody who attended the fair and had the good fortune to be a guest at this palatial home, speaks in the warmest praise of the house and its directors and of the warm entertainment received there. It is a house built and conducted upon the plan of the big Eastern houses at the fashionable resorts, and a few more like it would do California an immense amount of good.

The Vendome will this year accommodate all the Raymond excursionists.

My First Trotter.

By G. A. Sykes.

A few months ago my health was very poor. I was afflicted with sleepless nights, loss of appetite and a general sense of depression; life was not enjoyable. (This is not going to be an advertisement for Rostetter's Resurrection Bitters, or Quarner's Safe Dead Restorer, but a round, unvarnished horse story.) My doctor had prescribed nauseous drugs, blood-curdling baths, etc., but nothing seemed to benefit me, when he struck upon an idea for which I can never be grateful enough to him. In a moment of inspiration he suggested that I should buy a good trotter and take long drives in the open air. The idea took my fancy ot once, and I took steps to procure a horse and the accessories as soon as possible.

Inexperienced as I was I advertised for a horse, and the next mail brought me a shoal of letters from parties possessing horses which they knew were just the identical animal that I was in search of. There were wonderful coincidences connected with generous offers. The animals were all strikingly beautiful, phenomenally fast, young and gentle, and given away for one-thousandth part of their actual value.

"The horse market seems to be overstocked," I said to myself; "my driving won't be such an expensive luxury, after all, when Axtells and Star Lilys, all except the name can be bought for a mere nothing." Choosing a bright, sunny day, I went to look at a few of the wonderful bargains offered. The first horse I looked at I really believe was dead when I reached the place where he was stabled, for I was left standing outside while some mysterious process was being proceeded with inside. I think that they were pumping Dr. Brown-Sequard's elixir of life into some horse that had lately "shuffled off this mortal coil," for when permitted to enter I gazed upon an animal which, by a Munchausen stretch of imagination, could be regarded as a horse. As an example of unadulterated Pear's-soap-purity gall, this was the finest specimen I had ever seen. The letter I had received stated that the horse was only five years old, a mere frisky colt, still sowing his wild oats, so to speak, and here I was gazing sorrowfully upon an old mummy, whose only haven of refuge upon this planet was the Bologna-sausage factory. I looked at the horse as long as I could afford to, and until he leaned wearily against the side of the stable, then I turned and walked away, heedless of the expostulations of his owner.

I spent the day in a vexatious and wearisome search after what I wanted, but found nothing that would suit me. Indeed I doubt if any nightmare could exceed in ghostly homeliness some of the horse-flesh that was displayed to me. At last, in despair of getting anything better, I bought a mare in which I could see no serious defect, purchasing also a buggy and harness that went with her. The owner brought the outfit around to my stable, and after receiving his money went away, assuring me that I had found a treasure, though there was a grin on his face which made me uneasy.

Next day, thinking that I would enjoy my first drive, I issued orders for the mare to be hitched up, and getting into the buggy started down the street. We had not gone more than two hundred yards when Jewel—I forgot to say that the mare's name was Jewel—stopped dead and, to my disgust, sat down on her haunches like an enormous dog, then turned her head and looked reproachfully back at me, though I had done nothing to incur her displeasure. I clucked and whiped her and said "get up!"—meaning it in a double sense—but all I could do produced no effect. By this time an interested crowd had gathered around, a crowd which could see far more fun in the situation than I thought warrantable. It was funny, very funny, but I failed to see the humor.

I got down and went to Jewel's head, but she would not get up, and the spectators were kindly suggesting things to me and thinking thoughts to save me thinking them. "Why did you leave the arm-chair at home?" asked one. "The horse could sit more comfortably if you brought it along." Another noticing the way Jewel kept turning her head around, remarked: "Yer horse wants a chew of terbacker, boss. Give him a chew an' he'll start all right."

I couldn't have stood the guying I was getting much longer, when my groom came up and took charge of matters. Jewel resisted all attempts to move her; both persuasion and force were tried, and the groom was forced to take her out of the shafts and lead her to the stable, returning for the buggy afterwards. This little trick we found was the usual thing with Jewel, and every time I tried to drive her she went through the same performance. But for this slight fault—refusing to go—Jewel would have been passable. I couldn't get rid of her for a long while, but at last a man bought her, though I told him of the mare's fault. He said the street-cleaning department was buying her, and it didn't matter whether she went or not.

I was nearly disgusted with driving and had almost given up the idea of trying it again; but receiving a catalogue from a stock farm, and carefully looking through it, one horse described in it impressed me very favorably, and I was tempted to go to the farm. I was met there, treated with the greatest courtesy, and the stock shown to me. My fancy in the catalogue was a five-year-old horse named Trasmonto, and I liked him very much upon seeing him, and though the price asked was more than I could very well give, I purchased him. Having a nice horse now, I wanted everything good to correspond, so got a good set of harness and a light road-wagon. The bills for the turn-out were very steep, but I was trying to buy health, and that is cheap at any price.

The comfort and pleasure I derived from those purchases of mine were more than I could possibly mention. Long drives over a nice road behind a swift, easy-traveling trotter delighted me beyond measure. I have tried yachting, bicycling and hunting, but for pure enjoyment I will take the trotting horse every time. To come out in the morning with the horse full of life and energy, the perfect sense of sympathy between the driver and the horse the exhilarating thrill and glow of spirits as trees and landmarks seem to fly by, these are what I revelled in. All the day long I was out behind my new acquisition, and Trasmonto and I became good friends I found, beyond dispute, that it pays to get a good horse, and one that can travel.

At first I was content with traveling along at a gentle jog, though this was by no means the case with my friend Trasmonto, for he objected very strongly to being passed by everything on the road, and my arms would ache with the exertion of holding him.

By degrees I grew stronger, the blood coursed through veins with renewed vigor, and I began to let him out a little, though never really extending him. Often I would have a brush along the road with some other fast nag, and how Trasmonto enjoyed them; he would shake his head and dash out like a meteor, and the pleasure and excitement would communicate itself to me, until I was as eager as he was. Day by day I improved, until at last, thanks to my horse and the fresh air, I was as well as I had ever been in my life.

I found before long that I had got a genuine trotter, and, though I did not often let him have his head, whenever I did speed him few horses on the road could pass me Now I began to take an interest in records, circuit meetings and trotting in general, and my next step—a wise one, too, I think—was to subscribe for a good horse paper, a weekly that published portraits of horses, and read it through, eagerly and closely.

Being a member of a driving club, I entered Trasmonto in a cup-race, for members' horses, one of the conditions of the race being horses competing must be driven by owners. Friends had long ago suggested that I have Trasmonto trained and speeded for a record, but I had resisted the temptation, for I could not bear to have the horse under any one's care except my own.

The day for the race coming, I took my trotter up to the grounds and engaged the services of a good man to attend to him between heats. The race was, as usual, mile heats, best three in five; and, although there was no money in it, I was very anxious to capture the prize, for it was considered a great honor, and all the fastest horses belonging to members of the club were in for it. I was almost unknown in the club, as I seldom went there, and this was the first race that either Trasmonto or myself had taken part in. Yet I was satisfied, from what he had done on the road, that my gallant little friend would make the horse travel that beat him.

The favorite was a big, flashy looking chestnut named Sundown, and what betting there was seemed to be nearly all on him. One or two others were well thought of, Lady Clare, a sorrel mare, having her friends, though the chestnut was the pick of the club talent, who thought that the race was a gift for him. Sundown was owned by a wealthy, conceited Dutch brewer named Ackerman, who was himself certain that he had a dead-sure thing, so amused himself by going round inspecting the other horses, making fun of them and blowing about his own. In the course of his rounds he reached me, and after casting a hasty and contemptuous glance at Trasmonto, turned to me and said: "You tink dat you horse come in to save de flag?" "Yes, I think he can save the flag," I replied, a little nettled at the sneering way in which he spoke of my horse. "Very vell," he continued, "I shoost tell you one thing, mine frent; take dot horse und sell him to run der street-car in. I guess he look all right in der street-car, but he don'd look all right here." "If you will attend to your own infernal Dutch business," I replied, "you will be doing better; trotting has become pretty low if a man can't enter a horse without clowns like you making remarks." "Don'd got mad, young feller," Ackerman went on; "don'd got mad vonce. I say vot I tinks; dot horse ain'd got no beesness on dis track." "Perhaps you'll find him faster than you expect to," said I. "You are not the only man that has got a horse that can trot." "I tell you what I do mid you, my friendt," said Ackerman, loftily, "you seem to tink dot you horse is shoost so good as mine. I bet you two tousand dollar to five hundred dollar dot my horse beat you three straight heats in."

To tell the truth, I was pretty short just at that time, and could ill spare the money in case I lost. It is always a mistake to bet unless one can afford to lose the money; still the Dutchman's offer was so tempting, and if I won—as I thought I had a good chance of doing—the money would be particularly acceptable. The chief thing that made me accept the bet, however, was the fact that a large crowd was gathered round us, attracted by Ackerman's loud and boisterous talking, and I wasn't going to take water before them; so going up to the club house I placed five hundred dollars into the hands of the steward, while the brewer covered it with two thousand. I was getting four to one, and had made a very fair bet, though every one assured me that I had done a very foolish thing, as Sundown had the race as good as won When we came out onto the track, seven altogether, Sundown did have the looks of the party, I must admit—a big, showy, traveling horse, he took the eye directly, though a good judge and keen observer would have said: "Nice looking enough, but too much waste action; he's not built for business."

I will own that I was very nervous, the novelty of the thing and the knowledge that several thousand spectators were watching us made me completely lose my head, and we scored so often that Trasmonto got nervous. This was fatal to our chances. If the horse gets nervous and the driver keeps steady and collected, there is hope; even if the driver gets nervous and the horse keeps cool, there is a chance; but when both lose their heads together, all is over—for that heat anyhow. Trasmonto and I came in ahead in the first heat, for he broke and ran the last half as if he thought it was the Kentucky Derby he was in, instead of an orderly trotting race; though I was to blame, for I had lost my reckonings and couldn't steady him. Sundown finished second, trotting steadily, and the heat was given him, with Lady Clare second.

The man I engaged talked to me between the heats, giving me lots of advice and telling me, above all things, to keep cool; he then soothed and quieted my horse and brought him round in splendid shape for the next heat. As I got up and took the lines he said to me: "Keep your eye and thoughts on your horse, attend to him properly, and you won't have time to think anything else; keep him down, and I know you can beat the chestnut."

As we came together, Ackerman said to me: "You got Spokane in you harness, aind you? Dis aind Sheepshead Bay running races; I told you dot horse dond got no beesness here."

I gritted my teeth, but recollecting myself in time, turned my whole attention to Trasmonto and soon forgot the Dutchman and his taunts. We got off splendidly and I had my horse under perfect control, swinging along in the good steady fashion of the Wilkes family of trotters. As we reached the last quarter the brewer took Sundown to the front and started for the wire. Up to this time I had not hurried Trasmonto, being content to stay behind the leaders.

Seeing that Sundown was getting a good way ahead, I let out a link and went after him, Lady Clare challenging me at the same time. Foot by foot I lessened the gap between the leader and myself, Lady Clare dropping back meanwhile; a yard or two more to gain, and now I was even with Ackerman, Trasmonto still going well with himself.

The brewer cast a glance at me, and seeing how well I was going, grew alarmed, lost his head for the moment and forced his horse to a break. I got that heat, but the question was still undecided as to which was the fastest, though it was

Now it was my turn, and as we came up for the third heat I said to Ackerman: "It's no use your trying to make a trotter out of Proctor Knott, he ain't built that way."

"Wait a minute," replied my competitor, "I show what a trotter is right away."

We got off for the third heat. Lady Clare setting the pace, and setting a hot one. When I thought advisable, I moved my horse up, and took the lead, and had things all my own way. Sundown was laid up. I had two heats now, and as Trasmonto was tiring, I resolved, if possible, to capture the next heat, and bring the thing to a finish.

We got a bad start for the fourth heat, and I got the worst of it, and as Trasmonto did not get into his stride for some distance, I lost a lot of ground. Relying upon the easy heat that Sundown had had before this one, and knowing him to be a good deal better for it, Ackerman sent his horse right out from the start, and made the pace a scorcher I knew that he was making a mistake and that he would come back, so was satisfied to keep within a safe distance from the leader, and reserved my speed for the finish.

When well into the straight I let out, and overhauled Sundown as if he was going at a walk. Before Ackerman knew it I had caught him, and having got there I had come to stay. Neck and neck, both doing all we knew how in order to beat the other. Spectators are forgotten, everything is, except the fact that our horses need all the attention and help that we can give them. Trasmonto was nearly done, but I held him steady, and we dashed under the wire a length in front of Sundown and Ackerman.—Horseman.

UKIAH.

THURSDAY, October 3, '89.—The unfinished race of yesterday was concluded this morning before the cattle parade. The hour set for it, 9 o'clock, was so early that few were in attendance. The result, however, proved most interesting from one point of view, that of being split up heats, but the contest in each heat was one-sided, as the horse that obtained the advantage on the first turn, which is very sharp and flat, had just speed enough to prevent the other overcoming this advantage on the short stretch, and the next turn would produce the same result. There was no poolselling.

Harry Whippleton won the first heat this morning, and Sam Tilden the last two and race. The time was 3:12¾, 3:02, 3:11.

Third, fourth and fifth heats were trotted on Thursday.

The stock parade was called promptly at 10 o'clock, and resulted in a very fair display. The Holstein cattle made the best exhibit, and were closely followed by the draft horses. The other paraders were of a very mixed character, and few family exhibits.

At two o'clock the largest attendance ever seen on the track was in attendance to witness the races for the third day. The races proved the most interesting, and elicited the heaviest betting of the week.

The first race of the day was a half-mile and repeat running race, for a purse of $150. Twilight was a decided favorite in the pools at $10 against $2 for Sagebrush Sam and $5 for the field, in which were Dick Turpin and Dutchman.

Turpin took the lead in both heats from the jump, and was never headed, although very closely run out in the second heat by Twilight, which was still the favorite after Turpin had won the first heat. Time, 0:52½, 0:52½.

The second race was a quarter mile dash for a purse of $150. The betting showed the inclination of the people for short races and dashes, and more money went into the box on this event than all the previous ones together. There was considerable talk and several complaints to the judges of an intended "job" in the race, but no action was taken and the race decided promptly on the result of the outcome. In the pools Lulu B. sold for $20, Johnny D. for $12, and Croppy for $3. Lulu B. got away a half length in front of Croppy, with Johnny D. out of the hunt. Around the turn and down the stretch it was anybody's race, and at the wire nine-tenths of the spectators said Croppy's nose was in front, and a large crowd gathered in front of the judges' stand to hear their decision. The "talent" said "Croppy was not out for it, and only ran it so close because Thomas, the rider could not hold him," and as a consequence the judges' decision created no little comment among the buyers of the cheap horses. It was Lulu B. first, Croppy second, Johnny D. third. Time, 0:23½.

The last race of the day was for the 2:40 class for a $200 purse, mile heats, 3 in 5. It was an altogether one-sided affair and was won in three straight heats by Keepsake, Ulster Prince being distanced in the first heat, Surdel nearly so. The latter, however, made a better showing in the two last heats, but was outclassed from start to finish. The time was 2:41, 2:40¼, 2:40½.

On this track it is useless to start more than three horses in sulkies, and if the pole horse is a good actor he can win even if three or four seconds slower than the others. This is on account of the sharp turns, which are not only not thrown up, but are lower on the outside and the narrowness of the track, four sulkies being unable to score; in fact, it is close quarters for three.

Another fact that is noticed is that although there is a wire across the track it is above the judges' heads, and how they can accurately judge such close finishes as were had in the ¼ mile dash to-day is impossible to tell.

FRIDAY, October 4th.—To-day was the fourth day of the meeting, and was attended by a much larger attendance than yesterday, which was admitted to have been the biggest day ever had in the county. The day was much pleasanter than yesterday, being cooler, and with much less dust. The races, two in number, were uninteresting, and characterized by the irregular judgements and arbitrary rulings of the judges that have done more to cause dissatisfaction than the failure of the advertised races to fill.

In to-day's races, the first on the programme was a special trot for a $150 purse, mile heats 2 in 3. Four starters faced the wire in the first heat, and sold in the pools: Maud $10, field, consisting of Warwick and B. Flat, $8, and Iaqua Maid $4

The Maid took the lead in the first heat, and was never headed. Maud was second by a length, Warwick third, and B. Flat distanced. Time, 3:05.

Maud still sold for $10. Warwick for $7.50, and the Maid for $5. The Maid held the lead, closely followed by Maud, to the half-mile pole, where she broke, and was passed by Warwick and Maud. Warwick beat Maud to the wire, with the Maid a poor third. Time, 3:04½.

The third and deciding heat was easily won by Warwick by five lengths, Maud second, the Maid third. Time, 3:08½.

The second and last race of the day was a special for three-year olds, mile heats 3 in 5, for a purse of $150. It brought Launcelot for $1. Deronda won easily, Launcelot distanced. Time, 3:19. There were no pools sold before the second heat, and Deronda gave the heat to Doctor in 3:26½.

The third heat was, even for such slow horses, very interesting, as Doctor was much better driven and trotted faster. They continually changed places during the mile, owing to breaks by both horses. At the head of the stretch Doctor broke and Deronda opened a gap of four lengths to the distance post, where he stumbled and nearly fell, and on recovering himself broke badly and was beaten out half a length by Doctor in 3:17½.

The judges, however gave it a dead heat to the amazement of everybody, including the driver and owner of Deronda, who admitted they lost the heat by Deronda's stumbling.

The judges stopped all protests and complaints, however, by ordering any one daring enough to demur to be removed from the track by the Marshalls. The complaints, however, were loud and numerous, and the judges were plainly criticised not only for this, but for numerous rulings during the week.

Deronda easily won the next heat by ten lengths, amid loud cries of "Dead heat! dead heat!" which again caused the judges to call on the Marshalls to eject those caught shouting.

Judge Simmons, after the heat, freely lectured the driver of Deronda for looking back when coming down the stretch to see if he had Doctor shut out, and told him that if it was repeated he would be heavily fined. The judges then postponed the race until 8 o'clock to-morrow morning, notwithstanding the fact that there was daylight for at least two more heats.

The driver of Deronda objected, but was told by Judge Simmons "that he (Simmons) was running these races, and if he (Deronda's driver) didn't shut up he would put a great big fine on him." The time of the last heat was 3:12½

The fifth heat was won easily the next morning by Daniel Deronda in 3:14¼ by six lengths, never being headed in the heat.

SATURDAY, OCT. 5TH.

The fifth and last day of the Twelfth District Association's Fair attracted the largest attendance of the week. Fully 1,000 people were present, and the surrounding country and towns were well represented by families in teams and carryalls of every description. A notable attendance was the resident Indians of this county, who were out in full force. They are as well situated financially as the whites, live in as good houses, farm their own land, attend the races with their families, and, to wind up with, spend their money twice as liberally as the white population.

The main attraction of the day in drawing such a crowd was the ladies' riding tournament, in which Miss Lou Vanada, Miss Rozelle Higgins and Miss L. W. Redwine were the contestants for two prizes. The first, $10, was awarded by the judges to Miss Higgins, and the second prize, $5, to Mrs. Redwine. The characteristic ignorance of the judges in this as well as the racing events, so incensed the large audience that a larger purse than the first prize ($15) was immediately made up for and presented to Miss Vanada.

The first race of the day was a ½ mile dash for a purse of $100, and brought out three local celebrities of short horse reputation for speed. Lulu B. was the favorite at $10, while Fox and Dutchman sold for $4 each. Fox and Lulu B. ran well together, with Dutchman four lengths back to the head of the stretch, where Lulu led Fox by two lengths. In swinging into the short stretch Lulu took the middle of the track, while Taylor on Fox coming very fast pulled into the pole and was gaining on the mare at every stride. At the distance pole Hasty on Lulu drew his whip with the right hand and the severe punishment made the mare swerve clear across the track and directly in front of Fox. The horse, to avoid a collision, had to pull up and go to the outside, and then was only beaten by a head and neck.

The judges paid no attention to the foul, but immediately gave the race to Lulu B., claiming that she was ahead and had a right to take any position on the track she wanted The decision was justly greeted by howls and hisses from the much abused audience and pool buyers. Hasty, the rider of Lulu, to-night laughingly admitted to the representative of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, that the foul was so palpable and directly in front of the judges that even with as little as they knew, he fully expected to be placed last, if not heavily punished, as the judges had cautioned the boys all the week that the races were being strictly run under the Blood Horse Association Rules! The time was 0:51¼.

The third race was a quarter of a mile dash for a $75 purse and was won by Johnny D., who sold in the field with Birdie G. for $8 against $10 for Croppy. 0:25.

The last race, and a fitting wind-up for the Ukiah fair, was a match for $50 a side between Billy the Kid and Dutchman, a dash of half a mile.

Dutchman was a 2 to 1 favorite, and justly so, for after the race it was found out that Billy the Kid was run with heavy shoes on. The Dutchman won as he pleased, and the jobbers expected he would. Time, 0:53½. A more disgusted audience never filed out of the gates of a track than those that attended

Thomas, a favorite rider in these counties, closely resembles Billy Appleby in looks when in the saddle, but his style and riding are different. He couldn't pass anywhere for you Billy.

There is no accommodation here whatever by the association for the press. True, little is needed, for an expert reporter could make all necessary notes on his shirt cuff. It is probably an oversight on their part, superinduced by the scantiness of room, and a desire on their part to do everything, in their mind, for the best.

The upper or judges stand is occupied by a brass band? and what it lacks in harmony it makes up in noise and scaring horses within 100 yards, drowning the announcements of the judges, and almost completely stopping pool selling. The reporters are denied admission by the familar authoritative country official in charge.

I say "familiar authoritative country official," for that individual will be readily recognized by all frequenters of outside district fairs. But for a more general usurpation and misuse of authority, vested in them by their official and conspicuous badges, those holding the position here should be awarded the blue ribbon over all competitors. Nothing short of wearing a directors badge will entitle you to the slightest consideration from any of them.

The burning lately of the largest hotel here has made accommodations for sleeping apartments very scarce. As a consequence the private residences have been called to help out, and as they are all on the outskirts of town, necessitates long and very dusty walks. There are no street or corners lights, and it no unusual thing to see a sleepy visitor with a map in his hand studying the route to his sleeping house.

There were very few of the Bay gambling fraternity here, and those that did come were working like trojans with the the hope of getting enough to get out of town.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FRESNO, CAL., Oct. 6, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I feel that I cannot leave this place and do it justice without expressing my feelings, and at the same time giving advice to my brother horsemen who did not come here. And for their benefit I will say that Fresno is as nice a little town as a man wishes to visit. The Hughes Hotel cannot be beat for good eating, nice rooms, the best laundry outside of San Francisco, and from the proprietor down to the errand boy the most accommodating crowd I ever saw. The race track is as good as any on the coast. Sunol's record of 2:13¾ over it ought to convince the most skeptical. The grand stand is the best and finest looking in this State. The accommodations for horses are A No. 1, the grounds just lovely, and last but not least I must speak of the gentlemen who have things in charge.

Now, most of the horsemen well know that there are places on the circuit that tie their purses and promises with a long string. One place in particular they use a patent cable, but I must say that these gentlemen do all they agree and in our case did even better than they agreed. The town is growing and next year I look to see twice as many of the horseman here, and they won't regret coming if these people still continue to manage affairs here. Ever yours,

HARRY J. AGNEW.

Sunol's Record.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—We see by the Examiner that the reporter cast some doubt on the time made by Sunol. The facts are these: Mr. S. N. Straube, C. B. Gifford and Alfred Gonzales were the timing judges. Mr. Gifford made it 2:14 and Mr. Straube and Mr. Gonzales made it 2:13¾, and are willing to make affidavit of same, but they were under the impression that the slowest time, 2:14, was to be hung up, and so hung it out. Then Mr. Straube came to the judges stand and said he was under the impression that if two of the timers made it 2:13¾, the mare should have the benefit. The judges then called the timers into the judges stand and got the facts of the case as above stated, and then ordered the time to be hung out 2:13¾, and we have since heard of several parties that stood under the wire and timed the mare from 2:13½ to 2:13¾. Yours, etc.,

W. I. BALDWIN, Sec.

Subscriber, Stockton:

Please let me know through the columns of your paper, the proper way to use Ossidine for the removal of splints on horses, and if I have to use any ointment after the splint is removed. Also give me the pedigree of Gen. Dana.

Answer—Full instructions accompany each bottle of Ossidine, however, you had better apply for further information to H. H. Moore & Sons, of your city. Gen. Dana by Whipple's Hambletonian, dam Lady Crum (dam of Alexander 490) said to be by Brown's Bellfounder.

Can a horse make a record for or against himself without having his full weight up.

Answer.—To make a record he must carry full weight.

You Bet, Yreka.

At the Oregon State Fair, Stemwinder won a heat, Lady Beach second. In the next heat it was a dead heat between Stemwinder and Lady Beach, the latter finishing on the inside. What horse has the pole in the next heat?

Answer.—Lady Beach.

Kindly inform me if it is too late to make a nomination in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Futurity Stake. Also, let me know the pedigree of the dam of Mount Vernon.

Answer.—Nominations to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN ($3,000 guaranteed) Futurity Stakes, can be made any time between now and January 1st, 1890. A letter was sent to Mr. McCloud, the owner of Mount Vernon, in reference to your second question, and the following is his answer:

STOCKTON, Oct. 4, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—

Dear Sir:—Yours of Sept. 30, at hand. In reply I send you the pedigree of Daisy the dam of Mt. Vernon as far back as I can at present trace it. The stock has been in our family for the last forty years, which is as far back as I can go at the present time, as people here 40 years ago did not keep as accurate account of pedigrees as now. The great grandam of Daisy was a present to me from her breeder, my brother, on my arrival in Cal. 35 years ago, and I immediately purchased her first colt of him, the dam of Daisy, and she always remained in my possession up to the time of her death three years ago, after raising 20 foals, which number, I think, has not been exceeded by very many mares, if any in this country.

Daisy, the dam of Mt. Vernon, is at present owned by L. U. Shippee of this city, who has a yearling colt out of her by Hawthorne that I timed one quarter this week in 39 seconds after only one months work. If I can secure the proper dates, as some of my own have become destroyed, I will at some other time write you a description of the performances of Daisy and of her colts also of her dam and colts for some future article for your paper. I am sorry to inform you that the prevailing horse disease has attacked Mt. Vernon with such severity that it will interfere with his starting in the National Stallion race the later part of this month. It is a great disappointment to me as he had not been driven to a break this summer; and I was confident of his ability to trot in 2:18 if he came to the post in proper form.

Very respectfully,

J. A. MCCLOUD, 145 Park Street.

Mt. Vernon by Nutwood, dam Daisy 2:34½ by Chieftain he by Hiatoga; second dam by Corn Planter he by Copper Bottom; third dam by a black horse brought from Kentucky by a Mr. Hope and supposed to be Blackhawk and was once owned by Dr. Stamper, who if alive is living in Watsonville.

The good people of Suisun are contemplating building a mile race track. The Republican says: What we want is a good mile track, and with united action it can be had. The track at Dixon, we are told pays a good rate of interest on $9,000. Some three years ago, Mr. Elliot offered to lease 60 or 70 acres of land belonging to the Pierce estate for a track, at a low rate, and in all probability satisfactory arrangements could be made now for the same tract. The land lies due west from Suisun, about one-half mile distant. Put your heads together and talk this matter up.

Grim's Gossip.

J. B. Haggin returned from the East this week.

The runners are all located at Oakland, there being no room at the Bay for them.

Out of ten Sir Modred Colts trained this year, there are now five stake winners.

Palo Alto has been shod with bar shoes, but that will be no bar against his record.

Orrin Hickok says he should like to strike Favonia just now with Alfred S, 2:18.

Since Margaret S. won the Spirit Futurity Stake, Andy McDowell is the happiest man in town.

And now another Piedmont has gone into the list. Ira, at Rohnerville, made a mile in a race in 2:24½.

Any number of horsemen will attend the Healdsburg meeting next week. It promises to be a great success.

Sam Bryant still has due him $5,375 for unpaid forfeits to the Futurity Stake of 1888, won by Proctor Knott.

Mr. J. B. Haggin has given up his Kentucky farm. His yearlings had been kept at the Swigert place, near Spring Station. That farm is now for sale or lease.

Last Saturday a mare belonging to J F. Rhoten gave birth to three colts. One them of them died Sunday, but the other two are still alive and doing nicely.—Gridley Herald.

In training colts it is well to remember that the walk is the foundation of all other gaits. Teach them to walk well and you will have less trouble in developing the other gaits.

E. D. Wiggin of Boston, has sold to Sam Gamble, for $3,000, the promising yearling filly Carlotta Wilkes, by Charley Wilkes, a son of Red Wilkes, dam by Alcantara, 2:23.

Theo Winters will probably bring a two year old filly down for the fall meeting. If she does come she should show up well, for it is rumored that she is not very far behind El Rio Rey.

The match race between Harry Wilkes 2:13½ and Belle Hainlin 2:12¾ for $5,000 took place yesterday at Fleetwood Park, N. Y., but at too late an hour for us to give a report this week.

At the Reno Fair, Theodore Winters Esq. received three premiums for thoroughbreds, as follows: Best two year old colt Chan Haskell; best two year old filly, Florance A. best yearling colt, Rey del Rey.

It looked rather singular at Fresno to see Hickok driving a Palo Alto horse Lorita against Charlie Marvin and Express, but on enquiry Hickok said he had leased the mare for the trip. Hickok won the race, too.

H. P. Mohr of Mount Eden, has purchased from Mr. Scott, through Killip & Co., two fine Clydesdale mares, part of the importation which arrived on the last trip of the Alemeda, from Australia. The terms are private.

All the talk about Nelson, 2:14¼, coming to California to have a race with the fast stallions here can be summed up in the fact that Bud Doble now has him in charge and will winter him with the balance of the string at Los Angeles.

There are but four horses in the history of the American trotter that have had a colt enter the 2:30 list before the sire was seven years old. They are Sultan and Stamboul in California, Red Wilkes in Kentucky, and Herschel in Missouri.

R. Porter Ashe has done so well on the Eastern tracks this summer that he is having painted for the New York Jockey Club a picture of Geraldine to commemorate the fact that his speedy mare won the first race ever run over the Morris Park track.

One often sees horses with a big toe-weight and heavy shoe, but Pericle's should take first place, with 32 ounces (12-ounce toe-weight and 20-ounce shoe), at least McHugh, his driver, stated that that was the weight the three-year-old carried in his race at Fresno last week.

Sunol has been carrying 10 oz. shoes in front and 5 oz. behind, and in her world-renowned race at Fresno wore shoes of that weight. When I saw her at Napa in the spring she was carrying the same balance, but was not quite fit then. She will trot in 2:12 or better.

Echora, 2:23½, the dam of Direct, has been sent to Independence, Iowa, where she will receive the embraces of Axtell, 2:14. The service fee is a large one, $1,000, but if the offspring is only as good as Margaret S. or Direct the money is well invested.

The Chicago Herald, in a long drawn out story, telling about how Lexington made the record of 7:19¾, says that Richard Ten Broeck, Esq. was shot and killed August 8th, 1874, by Gen. Whittaker at Louisville, Ky. This will be news for Mr. Ten Broeck, who is at present residing at San Mateo.

S. N. Straube's Lizzie Thorne was driven by Charley Marvin, on Tuesday of last week, at Fresno, and although short of work, she easily won, getting a record (two-year-old) of 2:53. She is in foal to Clovis, and had it not been for the death of Mr. Straube's crack two-year old Castro, would not have been trained.

The Washington Park Club have done so much for racing in the west that it is not to be wondered at that the entries are always very liberal. California has from the commencement of the organization been represented in the entry list, and with the increased amounts offered this year there is no doubt the Golden State will again send on a lot of nominations. Person desirous of making entries can procure the necessary blanks at the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN office.

The old race horse Optimus, familiarly known as "Bones," owned by Ed Wright, of this city, says the Ukian Republican, and nearly thirty years of age, dropped dead at the race track Sunday, while being driven around for exercise. The animal has figured in many races gone by, and has a record of 2:26. The old horse has been kindly cared for since coming under Mr. Wright's care, and was on Monday morning given a decent burial. When and where did he make his record? (Grim)

My readers will be surprised to hear that there are rumors current in the East that "Knap" McCarthy will forsake the trotting element and have a go at the bang tails. Knap knows enough about the business to make him a grand success at it. A bird whispers that possibly he may train for D. D. Withers.

Henry Vaughan sold five head of Hereford cattle during last week, among them being the celebrated stock bull Pertly, weight 2,800 pounds, one of the best bulls in the country, his breeding being exceptional. Mr. Morgan Hill was the fortunate purchaser of the bull, at $1000, and the very next day Mr. Vaughan received a telegram from the East offering $2500 for the bull.
